"THE HIGHEST DEMOCRACY"

For they have finished to begin,
And greater things they do—
Who come so far to die so young
And live again in you.
—DR. DANIEL A. POLING.

(Dr. Poling is the father of Chaplain Clark V. Poling, one of the four Chaplains, Protestant, Catholic and Jewish, who gave their lives on the sinking of the troop transport "Dorchester" to save the lives of soldiers aboard the ship.)

Somewhere in this plot of ground there may lie the man who could have discovered the cure for cancer. Under one of these Christian crosses, or beneath a Jewish Star of David, there may rest now a man who was destined to be a great prophet. . . . Now they lie here silently in this sacred soil, and we gather to consecrate this earth to their memory. . . . Here lie officers and men, Negroes and whites, rich men and poor. . . . Here are Protestants, Catholics and Jews. . . . Here no man prefers another because of his faith or despises him because of his color. Here there are no quotas of how many from each group are admitted or allowed. Theirs is the highest and purest democracy. Any man among us the living who . . . lifts his hand in hate against a brother, or thinks himself superior to those who happen to be in the minority, makes of this ceremony and of the bloody sacrifice it commemorates, an empty, hollow mockery.—Chaplain Roland B. Gittelsohn, dedicating 5th Marine Div. cemetery on Iwo Jima.

MEETING WITH CONGRESSMEN OF THREE FAITHS

A large and representative audience assembled in the Rackham Auditorium on the evening of May 21 to hear these three congressmen discuss "The Pattern for a Just and Durable Peace" under the auspices of the Detroit Round Table and other outstanding educational and religious groups. Said Rep. Weiss: "As long as race riots occur in Detroit and other cities; so long as the poll tax can prevent even soldiers at the front from voting, so long as anti-Semitism continues to increase in America, there is little likelihood of securing an enduring basis for cooperation with the Orient or even with the countries of Latin America."

Dear Mr. Calderon:

In talking with me recently about the case of Isaac Woodward, Jr., who lost his sight as a result of a blow administered by a policeman at Batesburg, South Carolina, Miss Marjorie McLachlan suggested that you might be interested in knowing something about the Southern Regional Council. I am, therefore, sending you herewith several of our publications which will acquaint you with the background and program of the organization.

I should like to call attention especially to our monthly publication NEW SOUTH. The regular issues contain information of a general nature, while once each quarter we have an enlarged issue dealing with a subject of particular interest to the South. If you feel that the publication would furnish information which would be of use to you and your organization, we should be glad to receive your subscription. A blank is provided in the enclosed folder THE SOUTH IS YOURS.

If there is further information which you would like to have concerning the Council, or if we can be of service to you, please let us know.

Cordially yours,

Dear Mr. Calderon:

Your letter of July 28 asking if I could give you any further information with regard to the case of Isaac Woodward, Jr., Negro war veteran, came while I was on vacation in Canada.

I understand there were numerous news stories on this case during my absence and I have no doubt that by now you are in full possession of the facts. However, I made enquiry from Miss Emily Clay, Secretary of The Southern Regional Council; and their files contain information to the effect that Isaac Woodward, Jr. boarded a bus in Atlanta and that in Batesville, South Carolina he was blinded by a blow on the head by a policeman. His eyes were not gouged out. The Batesville policeman has acknowledged administering the ill-fated blow, affirming that Woodward was drunk, causing a disturbance in the bus, and resisting him. It seems that the only witness is another Negro veteran, who as far as the authorities are concerned, unfortunately, is as good as no witness.

Burg

In my opinion it is regrettable that the true facts were not better in hand before so much "news" of a sensational and inflammatory character got into print.

Since The Southern Regional Council is such a level-headed and constructive organization in the field of inter-racial relations (being bi-racial in its membership and staff), I am referring your letter to Miss Clay. She can likely supply you with further information; but in any case I want the Bronx Round Table to become better acquainted with The Southern Regional Council.

Sincerely yours,

Marjorie McLachlan

Dear Miss McLachlan:

The case of the Negro veteran, Isaac Woodward, Jr., who, according to the affadavit of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, had both eyes gouged out by police in Ailen, South Carolina after an argument with a bus driver, has received a great deal of notice in the press here. This veteran happens to be a resident of the Bronx and the local papers and local veteran and community groups have interested themselves in the case.

A number of our Round Table members have requested that the Bronx Round Table organize a committee to study the facts in the case and I am writing to ask you if you have any further information that you can give us.

For your interest, I am enclosing clippings from the local paper, the Bronx HOME NEWS.

Blinded by Georgia Cops--Bronx Vet

The National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People charged today that a Bronx Negro veteran was taken from a bus by police in Georgia, beaten and blinded with the blunt end of a blackjack.

The veteran, Isaac Woodward, Jr., of 1100 Franklin Ave., said he boarded a bus in Atlanta three hours after being discharged at Camp Gordon, Ga., on Feb. 13. An hour out of Atlanta, he asked the driver if he could go to a rest room at a bus station.

"He cursed and said, 'no.' When he cursed me, I cursed him back."

Woodward said the driver let him go to the rest room, but when the bus reached Aiken summoned police and charged that Woodward had created a disturbance.

Woodward said he took a billy from one policeman who was beating him, but the other drew a gun and forced him to drop it.

At the police station, Woodward said, one of the patrolmen "began punching me in the eyes with his billy" after knocking him down.

"I woke up the next morning and could not see," Woodward said. He was taken to a veterans' hospital at Columbia, S. C., and released two months later.

Dr. Chester W. Chinn, an eye specialist, examined him here, and said: "The boy's eyes are completely hopeless."

Blinded Pacific Vet Tells His Story

By BETSY LUCE and MICHAEL SPECTOR

Isaac Woodward, Jr., young Negro veteran of the Pacific fighting who charges that an Aiken, S. C. policeman blinded him by savagely gouging his eyes with a nightstick because he said "Yeah" instead of "Yes, sir" to him, sat today in a darkened room and "just marked time."

"I don't care what might have happened to me when I was fighting for my country," he said at his home, which is a ground-floor apartment at 1100 Franklin Ave. "But to think that a policeman could have inflicted this hardship upon me is something that makes my whole life turn sour."

Investigation Asked

After a New York physician pronounced the case hopeless and said that the youth—who is 27—faced a lifetime of blindness, the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People asked the Dept. of Justice to investigate the incident.

While his wife, Rosa, stood nearby, Woodward said:

"Here I was coming home, looking forward to a grand welcome party. My wife was waiting for me—and this thing happens."

It happened Feb. 13, three hours after the youth was discharged from the Army at Camp Gordon, Ga., and boarded a bus taking him north to the "grand welcome party." He had a dispute with the bus driver an hour out of Atlanta, and when the bus reached Aiken the driver called a policeman and said the ex-soldier had "created a disturbance."

Two Days in Cell

The beating followed. He was kept in a cell for two days without medical attention. Then, apparently frightened at his condition, the police drove him to the veterans' hospital at Columbia, S. C., where he remained until April, when relatives brought him home.

"Of course," Woodward said, "I'm keeping my chin up. That's what they tell me to do. While it is true one doctor told me it was hopeless, the doctor at the veterans' hospital told me there was a possibility my vision might return in due time."

He peered helplessly from behind his dark glasses, then said in a dogged tone:

"Already there is a slight flicker showing up from time to time in the corner of my left eye. But it's not strong enough. All I can do is mark time."

Going back to the beating in Aiken, he said that while he was in his cell he was bleeding from both eyes, but did not realize then he was blind. It was not until someone let him out of the cell to go to a nearby sink to wash that he realized he could not see.

"I Can't See"

"The man said, 'Come on, get up,'" he said. "I said, 'Man, I can get up, but I can't see.' They told me to wash up, I'd feel better. They tried to make me drink some liquor, but I told them I didn't drink. Then they put my coat on me, and told me we were going to see the judge."

They led him upstairs in the same building, he said, and told him he was before the judge. Turning blindly toward "the judge," he told him the only reason he'd taken the policeman's club away from him—one charge against him—was to stop the brutal beating.

"The judge said, 'We don't stand for any of these things here. You are fined $50 or 30 days in jail," Woodward said. "The cop told him I had $40 in my wallet, and he said, 'We'll take that.' Then I told him I had $4 in my watch pocket, and he said, 'We'll take that, too.'"

Back to Cell

He was led back to his cell, and kept there another day. He was permitted to keep his mustering-out check—$694.73 for three and a half years' service—because he refused to endorse it as the police suggested.

Woodward looked thoughtful.

"You know," he said, "I still don't think that was a judge I was before. Judges don't act that way. I know when a judge says $50 he doesn't take $44."

Schoolroom Fascism

By Malvina Lindsay

A SUBTLER and even more infectious expression of postwar prejudice and bigotry than the revival of the Ku Klux Klan is disturbing American educators and churchmen. President Truman referred to it in his recent strongly worded warning against racial and religious bias. It is the discrimination minority groups meet in many American schools.

The public high school is regarded as the worst danger spot of this incipient fascism. While it cannot deny minority groups entrance—as certain colleges do under quota systems—yet its pupils can practice the more indirect tortures of social ostracism, slights and slurs on their victims. These early psychological hurts, say educators, often generate strange behavior later.

Small children have no religious, racial or national prejudice, their teachers say. But those of high school age, and even younger, begin to ape their elders and put into effect what scientists call the barnyard peck caste system—based on the right of certain hens to peck other hens. Children in minority groups—Jews, the foreign-born, in some communities Catholics or followers of other creeds.

THIS YEAR the opening of school finds this problem of special urgency. Postwar adjustments, confusions and irritations have sent many persons looking for cats to kick. Their attitudes are reflected in their children. Also national polls have shown a disturbing amount of prejudice against minority groups. And the trek to this country of war's refugees has put more "outsiders" and children with strange accents in some schools.

Anti-Semitism is surprisingly prevalent, especially among the well-to-do in "nice" neighborhoods in large cities. It is a part of Hitler's legacy of hate. Authorities on racial and religious tensions say that the half billion dollars spent by the Nazis between 1933 and 1945 on anti-Semitic propaganda (much of it in this country) is having its aftermath. And native rabble rousers, to whom a political campaign always offers a field day, are finding, as did Hitler, that anti-Semitism is a fast horse for riding to power. All of this could hold peril, as it did in Germany, if a depression and a fight for jobs came.

However, bigotry is meeting a widespread counter-offensive. The President's Commission on Higher Education is looking into the college angles of it, including the quota system. A more fundamental approach is the inter-group education project in which school systems of about 20 large cities are cooperating, and which is sponsored by the American Council on Education and the National Conference of Christians and Jews. In operation little more than a year and a half, it has made amazing growth. It has a laboratory workshop in the University of Chicago.

THIS PROJECT reaches the heart of the problem in the schools—the teacher, who by attitude as well as words sets the social tone of the schoolroom. It works with her in studying the tension problems of her pupils, and in setting up projects to overcome these. It also reaches into the home and the community by promoting inter-group activities among parents.

Many cities are becoming aware of the need of immunizing children against bigotry in order to save themselves police trouble later. Some are making studies and surveys of racial and religious tensions. Some, as Springfield, Mass., have made democratic history by the programs they are carrying on.

Educators, encouraged by the way the inter-groups projects are taking hold, believe these may initiate a grassroots democracy in the high schools, which have become increasingly snob ridden as the Nation has gotten more urbanized, as living standards have risen, as more emphasis has been put on dress and social standing. Already, in some schools that have inter-group programs, there is less snobbery, fewer cliques, and more clubs without exclusive membership. There is even hope that the practice of democratic attitudes toward pupils who are unlike in accent and beliefs may in time break the back of the whole barnyard peck system.

WASHINGTON

I ACCEPT the Honorary Chairmanship of American Brotherhood Week, 1947, with the firm conviction that brotherhood is essential to the establishment and maintenance of peace. Our supreme need is brotherhood as a pattern for peace, here and across the globe.

Our own land can make no greater contribution to this troubled world than to establish brotherhood as the rule of life among all our citizens of every religion, race or national origin. Brotherhood—live it, believe it, support it—must be the resolve that governs our relations to one another. We cannot hope to commend brotherhood abroad unless we practice it at home.

Democracy rests upon brotherhood. Justice, amity, understanding and cooperation among Protestants, Catholics and Jews throughout our nation are cornerstones of democracy, even as they are the requirements of brotherhood. With them we can maintain our national unity and keep up the teamwork needed in peace as in war.

I, therefore, join heartily with the National Conference of Christians and Jews and with all forces of good will in our country in commending nationwide observance of American Brotherhood Week, February 16-23, 1947. I hope that our citizens will meet in church and schoolhouse, in halls and public places to affirm anew the principles upon which the realization of brotherhood depends and to strengthen the bonds that hold us together as we face the demanding tasks to which destiny summons us.

Very sincerely yours,

Harry Truman

"Brotherhood—Believe It, Live It, Support It"

The above, from the letter of President Truman endorsing AMERICAN BROTHERHOOD WEEK, might well be the motto for the observance in 1947.

Brotherhood—Believe it!

Defined as a willingness to give to others every right and dignity we claim for ourselves, brotherhood is essential to the fulfillment and perpetuation of American democracy. Until that conviction controls the thinking of our citizens democracy is not safe. So long as any minority among us is not free, all of us are threatened. That belief is fundamental.

Brotherhood—Live it!

That injunction finds us where we dwell. It reaches into our schools, our churches, our community organizations. Every denial of brotherhood anywhere menaces its establishment everywhere. It is our contention that the world-wide acceptance of brotherhood as the rule of life for nations is essential to permanent peace. "We cannot hope to command brotherhood abroad unless we practice it at home." What we do in our own country speaks more loudly to the world than anything that we can say.

Brotherhood—Support it!

That is, spread brotherhood. It is necessary, but not sufficient, to believe brotherhood and to live it as persons and citizens. We must proclaim it, be its advocates. Brotherhood has many adversaries. Selfishness, prejudice, ignorance are divisive. They disrupt the human family, drive and hold its members apart. We must educate for brotherhood in every community in the land. We must establish conditions within which brotherhood is possible. The friends of brotherhood must seek each other out and put their heads together. We must campaign for brotherhood. For the fight for brotherhood is never completely won. There is no surcease to this war. Strategy and tactics must be adapted to conditions as we find and face them. All of us—together!

American Brotherhood Campaign

The goal of this campaign, of which the HON. JOHN G. WINANT, formerly U. S. Ambassador to Great Britain, is General Chairman, is to enroll millions of people in an American Brotherhood dedicated to the extension of Freedom, Justice, and Responsibility as the foundation stones of a peaceful world. The National Conference has had eighteen years of experience in developing on the American scene an educational program for brotherhood.

Last year a budget of a little more than one million dollars made a tremendous impact on the nation with the following accomplishments:

> 14,776,200 publications printed; 7,334 school and college programs; 14,120 radio airings; 7,551 workshops, seminars and youth conferences; 1,700 daily newspapers carrying stories; 2,234 civic and service groups; 553,188 movie showings; 28,614 conferences and discussions.

Disease of Prejudice

But even this impressive record is not adequate to overcome the social disease of prejudice—a disease which causes more mental anguish and suffering and more disruption of the equilibrium of community life than all of the major physical ailments of mankind. We need to extend our work in schools, churches, and civic organizations.

Operation International

Late in the summer of 1946 one hundred and fifty delegates from 15 countries attended the first International Conference of Christians and Jews held in Oxford, England. A permanent World Council is one practical result. The organization of a Workshop on Anti-Semitism in Europe is another.

Such a vast program for brotherhood costs money. The minimum budget upon which this total program for Brotherhood can be operated is $2,000,000. Individuals, clubs, church groups, schools and community organizations are urged to send contributions to the National Conference of Christians and Jews, 381 Fourth Avenue, New York 16, N. Y.

How to Observe Brotherhood Week

Purpose

BROTHERHOOD WEEK is designed, in the main, for observance by organizations of every kind in a community, to be incorporated into their own programs according to their own customs. This reaches ready-made audiences in their natural gathering places.

BROTHERHOOD WEEK is a civic observance. As President Truman puts it, its purpose is "to affirm anew the principles upon which the realization of brotherhood depends and to strengthen the bonds that hold us together as we face the demanding tasks to which destiny summons us."

Cooperation

The observance will be successful in proportion as it secures the collaboration of every group in the community.

No group can be expected to cooperate in a BROTHERHOOD WEEK function in the planning of which they have had no share.

All meetings in which those of more than one faith group participate should be held, not in an ecclesiastical building, but in a neutral gathering place, and the program should not call for any form of common worship.

Program Suggestions

A trio of speakers, lay or clerical, Protestant, Catholic and Jew, of itself dramatically presents the Brotherhood idea. Without compromise of religious conviction, its members can present their common ideals as American citizens and the bases on which they can work together to achieve them.

Opportunity may be sought for such trios to address PTA's, service clubs, high schools, youth organizations, granges, women's and labor organizations, department stores, and industrial plants.

Pageants and plays may be used to dramatize the contributions of religious, racial and nationality groups to American life.

Libraries may provide a display of posters, pamphlets and books.

Musical organizations may sing or play musical compositions of Protestant, Catholic and Jewish origins.

Make full use of press, radio, moving picture, school and college assembly. Local editorials, cartoonists, news commentators, store advertising, factory bulletin boards are often available.

Local Committees

A city BROTHERHOOD WEEK Committee should be organized like this:

Co-Chairmen: Protestant, Catholic, Jewish laymen.

Executive Board: The chairmen of sub-committees.

Sub-committees:

1. Speakers' Appointments Committee to ask every organization to observe BROTHERHOOD WEEK at its regular meeting nearest Washington's birthday, and to furnish speakers where necessary. Assign women special responsibility for women's organizations.
2. Schools, Colleges and Libraries Committees, and Committees of public and parochial school people and faculty of any nearby college, to plan assemblies, projects and exhibits.
3. Publicity Committee, to co-operate with the press and arrange radio broadcasts.
4. "Brotherhood Dinner" or "Community Mass Meeting" Committee.
5. Finance Committee to secure contributions for the National Conference.

Available Aids

(To be obtained from the National Conference offices):

1. A series of fifteen-minute radio scripts for use over local stations or public address systems.
2. School programs; comics, plays, and stories for all grade levels.
3. Fifteen-minute scripts for programs in which parents, teachers and clergymen may participate.
4. Publicity material; spot radio announcements, editorials.
5. BROTHERHOOD WEEK poster.
6. A report blank for local achievements.

Dear Mr. MitchellL

The Armistice Day meeting in Washington called by the National Conference of Christians and Jews to plan the 1950 observance of Brotherhood Week was an important contribution to brotherhood.

Highlighted by President Truman's address, the gathering of Brotherhood Week leaders from all sections of the country and from various nations was distinguished by a sincere desire to make brotherhood a reality. The President's talk was carried by the wire services to all the newspapers--and by radio--but I am nevertheless taking the liberty of attaching his remarks as so many have asked for the complete text.

As a major part of the meeting, we considered ideas for bringing the goals of Brotherhood Week into the homes of every American. In this connection we discussed what radio, movies and the press could do; the schools; our religious organizations; and other community organizations. In short, we made plans to enlist the cooperation of every force in American life.

Now it is up to us. The national observance of Brotherhood Week is the sum of all our individual efforts wherever we happen to reside. If each of us does his share I know the 1950 observances will be an outstanding contribution to the national welfare and to the job of building good will and understanding in the world.

Your opinions and suggestions will be most helpful and I shall appreciate hearing from you on any plan to further our work in behalf of a successful Brotherhood Week.

Thank you very much for your friendly letter and your cordial offer to cooperate in the German grantee program.

As you realize, most of the foreign visitors are greatly interested in the South and its problems, and it seems regrettable that the necessity for economizing on travel expenses will make it possible for relatively few of the German visitors to stop over in Atlanta and observe the work of the Southern Regional Council.

We are looking forward to receiving your selection of printed material which, no doubt, will be very helpful to those concerned with intergroup relations. You may rest assured that whenever there is opportunity to do so, we will take advantage of your deeply appreciated offer.

Dr. George S. Mitchell, Executive Sec'y
Southern Regional Council

Dear Dr. Mitchell:

As a part of the Department of State's exchange of persons program, some 180 German religious leaders are expected to arrive in the United States within the near future. They will be of all faiths, Protestants, Catholics and Jews. They are experts in all phases of religious education and action, and want to study problems and typical solutions of problems in their fields in this country.

The over-all sponsor of these German "grantees" - as they are technically referred to - is the Religious Affairs Panel of the Commission on the Occupied Areas (of the American Council on Education). In actual practice the Catholics among them will be under the care of the National Catholic Welfare Conference; the Protestants will be under the guidance of the Federal Council of Churches and the National Lutheran Council; to the National Conference of Christians and Jews will be assigned a contingent of some twenty-five interfaith representatives of the six German local groups of the Conference of Christians and Jews.

As coordinator of this German grantee program with office at the National Conference of Christians and Jews, it occurred to me that the Southern Regional Council is a splendid example of intergroup work in America which has much to offer to the visiting German experts. I feel that they should be made familiar with your work and wonder whether you would be willing to send me a fairly comprehensive and up-to-date selection of material describing your theoretical approach to problems of your concern as well as your practical projects. Such material, I am sure, would be much appreciated by interested Germans and would be a good basis for the purpose of briefing and orientating them for their task.

Southern Regional Council

Furthermore, I should like to inquire whether it would meet with your approval if those Germans who desire to do so may visit your office in order to learn more about your organization. Please feel free to comment upon this request from your point of view - it is certainly not our intention to inconvenience youin any way.

With thanks for your cooperation, I am

Southern Regional Council, Inc.
63 Auburn Ave., N. E.
Atlanta 3, Ga.

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

I am sorry that I missed you when you were in the office and it may be that at that time you received the list of our principal southern offices. In any case, I am sending the attached list; these are the offices with paid Directors and in each case, these Directors have programs going in other nearby communities, so that they do not service only the city in which the office is located.

I think it would be worthwhile for your field Director to get in touch with any of the offices which is in the general area in which you are planning your survey.

Thank you for setting me straight on the matter of the manual being the April issue of New South. That has gone only to our office Directors and I should like a copy of the manual for each of the 25 members of our Commission, who are all lay people. Therefore, I am enclosing our purchase order for 25 copies at 50¢ each, totaling $12.50.

Thank you very much for the 20 copies of the Greenville Survey. If you could send me 5 more so that I could send both pieces to the Commission members, I should appreciate it. If there is an additional charge for these 5 Greenville copies, please let me know what it is.

Done aum Aug 3. '51

Sincerely yours

HISTORY MUST NOT REPEAT ITSELF...

He who does not learn from history is destined to repeat it.

No man wants to repeat the history of the past twenty-five years. No man who has learned anything from the past wants to look forward to a future of more wars, more race riots and dictatorships, more crematories for the disinherited.

We have lived through a quarter of a century of hate, violence and calumny on a scale the world has rarely seen. The years ahead will be trying for the most valiant souls. We need persons who, aware of the evils of anti-Semitism and anti-Christianism, will join in saying, "This must not happen again!"

But there are encouraging signs on every side. The growth of NCCJ is a living proof that there are countless men of good will everywhere who are ready to take up the struggle for the brotherhood of man under the Fatherhood of God.

NCCJ has learned much during the past twenty-five years. This brochure is a record of some of the achievements of NCCJ in a quarter of a century of work on behalf of better human relations. It is just a small part of the story. A book would be required to detail the many small, quiet and incalculably important deeds performed by NCCJ in fighting restriction, hate and discrimination not only in America, but throughout the world.

We look forward to the next quarter century with hope and confidence. But we cannot assume, in the face of the evidence around us, that the threat of dictatorship and all its evil implications is no longer with us. Communism is an ever-present threat. Men of ill-will still roam the face of the earth. Our job is monumental. And even as we look back at our past achievements with pride, we turn to you for help — vitally needed help — to keep up the good work in the years ahead.

Everett R. Clinchy

President

THE FIGHT BEGINS...

The story of NCCJ goes back a quarter of a century to the dramatic presidential campaign of 1928 when Gov. Alfred E. Smith ran for the highest office of the land on the Democratic ticket. It is a matter of common knowledge that Al Smith was violently opposed in the presidential campaign, not so much for his economic or political views, but because he was a Roman Catholic. Al Smith became the target of vicious and bitter lies. A campaign of hatred was started against the Roman Catholic Church, and particularly against Gov. Smith.

It was at this time that NCCJ began its first great fight against intolerance in America. At the first NCCJ Seminar conducted at Columbia University, an exhibit of the hatred literature defaming Gov. Smith and the Catholic Church filled the walls of a room in Earl Hall.

The attack against Smith and the Catholic Church was part of a continuing stream of 19th century anti-Catholicism and anti-Semitism of the Nativists, the American Protective Association and the multitude of other hate organizations culminating in the Ku Klux Klan of the 1920's.

NCCJ waged a long and continuing fight against all forms of bigotry in American life. And in the years that followed NCCJ has never ceased to fight intolerance wherever it appeared in our society.

CHARLES EVANS HUGHES

NEWTON D. BAKER

DR. S. PARKES CADMAN

ROGER W. STRAUS

CARLTON J. H. HAYES

Following the political episode, in 1928 Charles Evans Hughes, Newton D. Baker, Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, Roger W. Straus, and Carlton J. H. Hayes, inspired by a four-year exploratory venture by the Federal Council of Churches, founded the National Conference of Christians and Jews. NCCJ constitutes the first systematic attempt in history to outmode bigotry in all its forms by mobilizing the knowledge of social scientists, the technics of educators, and the moral dynamism of religious people.

One quarter of a century after the 1928 presidential campaign, NCCJ drew from two 1952 candidates, Dwight D. Eisenhower and Adlai E. Stevenson, the following appeals:

"Without tolerance, without understanding of each other or without a spirit of brotherhood, we would soon cease to exist as a great nation." —Dwight D. Eisenhower

"We can ill afford to exhibit to the world either incompetence or injustice in dealing with the relations of racial or religious groups." —Adlai E. Stevenson

Cooperation among all men of good will can change the social climate.

NCCJ TAKES UP THE FIGHT AGAINST NAZISM HERE AND ABROAD

1932 In 1932 Henry Smith Leiper of the World Council of Churches and Everett R. Clinchy of NCCJ addressed a small luncheon of Berlin businessmen in the Kaiserhof Hotel. Goebbels had launched a world-wide anti-Semitic campaign. His propaganda had already incited brass-knuckled Nazi students to chasing "die Juden" down the streets—a warning of more terrible things to come. Dr. Leiper and Dr. Clinchy pleaded with the Germans to educate their nation for cooperation of Protestants, Catholics and Jews against the Nazi hatred doctrine. But the pleas fell on deaf ears. The Berlin businessmen said that it was not necessary, that the individuals of the various religious cultures always had gotten along splendidly. Moreover, the Hitler movement was a passing, fanatical flash in the pan. The Berliners turned down the proposal to organize and raise funds for education in human relations. A year later Hitler was in power. And in twelve years the Kaiserhof Hotel, where they had met, was in ruins. Their businesses, their fortunes, their civilization, and many of their families were destroyed.

• • • • •

In America, anti-Semitism flourished with the advent of Hitlerism abroad. But unlike the Germans, American Protestants, Catholics and Jews joined together in a common fight against Nazism. In 1933 a team composed of Rabbi Morris Lazaron, Father J. Elliot Ross and Dr. Clinchy crossed the continent to sound a warning. In the years following, through the efforts of NCCJ, hundreds of ministers, priests and rabbis spoke to the people on the dangers of the Nazi doctrine.

NCCJ organized round table discussions, open forums, meetings and brotherhood chapters throughout the country in an effort to fight the new hate mongers.

The good work that received emphasis during the black years of Hitler's onslaught against human rights and dignity must continue. Brotherhood is a long-range ideal, not something to be supported only at a time of crisis. Our efforts to ameliorate all intergroup strife would be greatly strengthened if (1) by 1960 we had a standard chapter promoting the NCCJ program in every city of 100,000 or more population, and (2) we had an NCCJ committee in every town of over 10,000 population to observe trends, distribute materials, sponsor Brotherhood Week and support a year round program leading to a true world brotherhood.

"Thou Shalt Love The Lord Thy God . . .

Thou Shalt Love Thy Neighbor As Thyself."

The ideal of the brotherhood of man under the Fatherhood of God is as old as the Bible. We read in Deuteronomy and Leviticus, "Thou shalt love the Lord Thy God . . . Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

A quarter of a century ago religious education emphasized the exclusiveness of each religious culture. Today the emphasis is on appreciation of one another, on team-work as citizens, without sacrificing one iota of the spiritual values of any religion. People with strong faith and strong minds are needed in the United States now as never before, and always will be. Free people everywhere who recognize the moral law, and who believe in the spiritual interpretation of the universe, are recognizing that they must learn to work together as brothers. Toward that end, the NCCJ has dedicated its work among religious groups.

A QUARTER OF A CENTURY OF EFFORT...

In the past twenty-five years, aided by the effort of the NCCJ, the ideal of brotherhood has grown tremendously among all groups.

Community Chests, service clubs, farmers' associations, labor unions, women's organizations today use the principles of American Protestants, Catholics, Jews—the clergy and laity—for the well being of all.

The ideal of brotherhood has been fostered by the U. S. Department of Defense throughout the Armed Services.

Newspapers point to the NCCJ as a guide for molding public opinion.

Another trend—American sportsmen are opening the gates for all racial and religious groups to compete on equal terms.

During the past seven years California, Arizona, and New Jersey are among the states which have eliminated segregation in public schools.

Since World War II, World Brotherhood groups have been organized in Paris, Geneva, Nurnberg, Rome, Toronto and Honolulu.

NCCJ helped collect 30,000 books and raised $7,000 to help stock the shelves of the Free University of Berlin.

The problems of our time arise out of man's relation to man —rather than his relations to the physical world.

THE INSPIRING RECORD

OF EDUCATION IN INTERGROUP RELATIONS

A quarter century ago few school teachers paid any attention to intergroup education. The school books of the early 1900's show that children were introduced, in addition to reading, writing and arithmetic, to problems in physical health, citizenship, and personal character concerns; but these books did not deal with the peoples comprising the nation nor did they aid in educating for healthy group relations.

Since 1928 NCCJ has striven to help teachers to improve intergroup relations in the classroom.

In 1952 alone, over 700 school teachers and community leaders were trained in summer session courses at 25 universities. Indeed, NCCJ has pioneered in the field of intergroup education in the school systems of America.

We have produced something new in history, namely the first persistent, collective, systematic attempt, led by Christians but jointly shared in by Jews, to get at the causes of hostility between Christians and Jews and to get schools, communities, all civic organizations and media of mass communications to do something real about it.

SAN FRANCISCO STATE WORKSHOP

In this quarter century, some have said that nothing can be done about religious prejudice, or race discrimination, or national war, because "You can't change human nature." Actually, it is not a matter of changing human nature. The point is to change the training of human nature. While sinful human nature will always need the ministry of religion, group enmity, collective hate, color antagonism and religious bigotry are no more "fixed" in human nature than real estate restrictions or job discriminations in social nature.

S. M. U. WORKSHOP

The NCCJ initiated and subsidized studies by scientists specializing in human behavior. These learnings have provided material with which educators and religious teachers can work effectively in human relations.

WASHINGTON U. WORKSHOP

Wherever people meet, there you will find fertile ground for the work of the NCCJ. Many community organizations are cooperating in our program. Among these are the Scouts, YMCA, K of C, B'nai B'rith, labor unions and PTA.

CATHOLIC U. WORKSHOP

The practical application of intergroup relations is finding root in hundreds of communities all over the country every day. Civic, social and professional groups meet regularly to carry on this important work.

THE FIGHT AGAINST INTOLERANCE

NCCJ MOBILIZES RELIGIOUS AND CIVIC ORGANIZATIONS AND MASS COMMUNICATION MEDIA —to do something about it!

The fight against intolerance has gone on throughout the years on many different fronts. Before NCCJ was established, Sunday School lessons rarely paid attention to feelings and attitudes toward out-group people. NCCJ worked with leading religious educators of all denominations to re-emphasize the old truth that all men are children of God. Evidence of this is to be found in recent books such as "THE SUNDAY SCHOOL FIGHTS PREJUDICE" by Mildred and Frank Eakin.

By every means of mass communication — radio, motion pictures, television, newspapers, magazines, books — NCCJ has fostered the idea of universal brotherhood. Moreover, brotherhood is being built by exposing various groups to such important topics as: "Christian Teachings on Human Relations," "Neighbors All," "Being Christians In Our Country," and "How Jews Thank God, Long Ago and Today."

STRONG BELIEFS WIN STRONG MEN... AND THEN MAKE THEM STRONGER

NCCJ has been fortunate in the calibre of its leadership, in attracting men and women of great stature who have given of their time and work to encourage the growth of brotherhood. The following statements by religious leaders attest to the work of the NCCJ:

Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr, Professor, Union Theological Seminary, New York City: "I am glad to hear of the 25th Anniversary celebration of the National Conference. In a nation which is culturally and religiously as pluralistic as ours, the work toward mutual understanding of the religious groups conducted by the Conference is of inestimable value."

Father Edward V. Cardinal, c.s.v., Director, Sheil School of Social Studies, Chicago: "We agree, to disagree, agreeably: The National Conference of Christians and Jews has established its raison d'etre by the fact that it labors to create a pleasant atmosphere in a land where there are antagonisms and misunderstandings. In doing this work the NCCJ has been activating the philosophy of St. Vincent de Paul, who once said in a conference to his priests, 'we must love all of God's creatures but we must love those who differ from us just a little more.' "

Dr. Louis Finkelstein, President, Jewish Theological Seminary of America, New York City: "I am delighted to know that we are about to celebrate the completion of twenty-five years of work by the National Conference of Christians and Jews. When the National Conference was first established, none of us could have anticipated the astonishing growth which awaited it. Nor, for that matter, could we appreciate the fierce challenges of group dissension with which it would be called upon to deal. These twenty-five years have been historic, both in the achievements that have been made toward better relations, and in the great perils to improved human relations with which the world has been confronted and is still being confronted.

"The leadership of our own country in this field is indispensable to the survival of civilization, and all of us have every reason to be grateful to the National Conference of Christians and Jews for the great contribution which it has made toward the goal of united humanity."

HOW WE CAN KEEP THE "CHAIN REACTION" OF BROTHERHOOD GROWING . . .

DR. ARTHUR H. COMPTON

In 1950 World Brotherhood was organized in Paris under the leadership of Dr. Arthur H. Compton, Nobel Prize physicist.

Dr. Compton writes:

"The condition for developing the atomic chain reaction is that of having localized masses of uranium, each of which is large enough so that a neutron that originates within it will be captured by one of the uranium atoms, which will then re-emit other neutrons, and thus carry on the reaction. Each such unit mass then becomes a center that is largely self-sustaining."

He then goes on to draw a parallel between the atomic chain reaction and the human chain reaction. Dr. Compton believes that by organizing chapters for NCCJ in our communities we are producing a "chain reaction" of brotherhood. Every effort that we put behind the work of NCCJ sets off a spark that ignites the enthusiasm of others around us and thus helps the principles of brotherhood grow and grow.

THE WORK OF THE 5 NCCJ COMMISSIONS

1. The Commission on Educational Organizations
—Dr. J. Martin Klotsche, Chairman

More than ninety summer workshops for 4,200 teachers, principals, superintendents and community leaders have been held during the past eleven years. In cooperation with the American Council on Education, pioneer studies and programs, national in scope, have been conducted in eighteen school systems and twenty-five teacher education institutions. A five year subsidized study of prejudice in standard public school textbooks resulted in significant findings which have been of great value to publishers and writers.

2. The Commission on Religious Organizations
—Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, Rev. Dr. John A. O'Brien, Dr. Maurice N. Eisendrath, Co-Chairmen.

The Commission on Religious Organizations consists today of 39 prominent religious leaders widely representative of the religious life of the nation. Under their guidance, clergy and religious leaders come together in conferences and institutes; materials are produced that aid in the intergroup programs of churches and synagogues; programs are provided for theological seminaries; leadership is supplied for an ever enlarged summer youth conference program: campus interreligious activities are stimulated; and military chaplains are aided in their interreligious work.

3. The Commission on Labor-Management Organizations
—Allen W. Merrell, Chairman, Executive Committee

The in-plant group relations program under the supervision of the Commission on Labor-Management Organizations of the National Conference of Christians and Jews meets a basic need of industry and labor. Since 1949 it has attracted national attention as a sound educational approach for combatting discrimination in employment and in the upgrading of workers.

4. The Commission on Community Organizations
—Harold Riegelman, Chairman

In twenty-five years, NCCJ has been able to persuade more than 400 national community organizations of the importance of doing a good job for brotherhood, and has actually helped many of these organizations to promote the objectives of NCCJ through their own membership. The Commission has printed and distributed materials, sustained radio series (one of which won for NCCJ a Freedom Foundations award last year), sponsored summer workshops for leadership training, and published an annual BOOKS FOR BROTHERHOOD bibliography.

5. The Commission on Mass Communications
—Harold E. Fellows, Chairman

The media of mass communications have become increasingly conscious of their obligations to the American people. They have largely broken down old barriers, destroyed old shams and pretenses, and called the nation's attention to issues that once were hush-hush, issues that were privately admitted but publicly ignored. Hatreds, discriminations, religious intolerances were once such issues, lumped in the same category with other untouchable subjects such as social diseases. The Commission is bringing an awareness of the serious problems of group relations to the attention of writers, editors, publishers and broadcasters.

A LIVING, VITAL FORCE FOR GOOD

Representatives of three faiths join in a handshake of understanding following a Brotherhood Week program at the Kiwanis Club of Columbus, Ga.

1933 First Pilgrimage Tour organized by Father John Elliot Ross, Rabbi Morris S. Lazaron and Dr. Everett R. Clinchy, setting up a pattern for teams of Protestants, Catholics and Jews to appear before audiences. The first team spoke in 38 cities from coast to coast; travelled 9,000 miles; appeared in 21 radio broadcasts; spoke at 129 meetings before 54,000 people.

1934 First observance of Brotherhood Week with 300 communities participating . . . Statement issued on Freedom in Mexico . . . NCCJ represented at the annual Institute of Public Affairs of the University of Virginia . . . Religious News Service established by the NCCJ.

1935 First National Institute of Human Relations at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., with 685 persons attending and providing material for the publication of "The American Way" . . . Chicago Chapter organized, headed by A. D. Lasker, John P. McGoorty, Charles G. Dawes, Co-Chairmen; Dr. James M. Yard, Director.

1936 Twenty-five travelling trio teams organized. They covered 38,000 miles all through the country, appearing in hundreds of large and small towns.

Dear George:

The enclosed is a small token of my appreciation for the excellent job which you did in your lecture to the seminar. I may not have been there to hear all of it but I did listen in on a number of most favorable comments the next day.

I am certain you will be as amused as I was by a priceless question asked me by one of the seminar ladies from Alabama. She came up and in an embarassed manner inquired, " Is Dr. Mitchell a Negro?" My self-control was really masterly as I replied, " No. Why do you think so?" She blushed and replied, " Well, I never thought a white man would say such things about the South and my ancestors." Brother, do we get them in the seminar.

As of the present I am supposed to be on vacation. So far I have repainted three rooms and have two more to go. Nothing like trying to keep house.

Dear Miss Wilkins:

As a member of the Committee on Our Moral and Spiritual Resources for Brotherhood, Mr. Lewis Douglas sent you a prospectus and questionnaire on the current status of this project. On the basis of the answers to this questionnaire, we are now in the process of writing a report which will be presented to the President of the United States on November 11th. We realize that you received this material at a rather unpropitious season of the year in terms of the time required to prepare an adequate response and that this is probably why we have not heard from you. If it is at all possible, we would appreciate receiving your answer at the very earliest opportunity.

If, however, your other commitments and facilities do not permit such a full response, please forward any available data (basic information, pamphlets, exhibits, program outlines, releases, etc.) which might be relevant. Any remarks you may want to add in the way of commentary and evaluation along the lines of the questionnaire will be greatly appreciated. It is understood that the views expressed in any of these forms of response are your own and not necessarily those of the organization you represent.

To further ease the demand on your time we will be glad to have one of our staff call upon you or someone in your organization you may designate (preferably in New York) in order to secure the background material informally and personally. Please feel free to telephone this office suggesting a convenient time for such a get-together.

We consider your contribution and that of your organization to be of vital importance to the success of this project and we will be most grateful for whatever you can do to further it. You will receive a draft of the report for review, editing, and approval before it is finally submitted.

Sincerely,

Foreword

This prospectus is designed for the use of individuals and organizations desiring to promote the common good by participating in a cooperative national study of our moral and spiritual resources for living in peace with ourselves and our neighbor. The direction of the study resides in a national coordinating committee, the members of which are listed at the end of this prospectus. The initiating organization is the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

This program should serve to focus national attention upon considerations as persuasively important as they are timely. The cooperative survey and study outline in these pages should stimulate and provide fresh support and insight for the leaders of all those community institutions now striving to counter-act the amoral attitudes and the moral bewilderment of our time. Its positive emphasis may help to provide an awareness and appreciation of some of the ethical values so urgently required to combat the negative and fatalistic points that seem to be too widely held. The findings and recommendations that this study may produce can do much to bolster the essential ingredients of a free society and to buttress its basic political and moral foundations. Finally, the conclusions and experience of this program should substantially assist those persons and organizations devoted to meeting the responsibility for solving human relations problems.

Tolerance or tyranny! These alternatives are not mere sentiment, but an awesome reality. If we do not deliberately choose the one, we must inevitably reap the other.

Lewis W. Douglas

THE PLAN IN SUMMARY

The conviction grows that our world today is balanced precariously between cooperation and cataclysm. There is a sense of urgency about the need to match man's technical advance with moral maturity, his material resources with moral and spiritual resources. Although there is widespread conviction that we are the inheritors of great resources of the mind and spirit, some indigenous to our land and many the gift of transplanted cultures, we dare not assume that they are really ours until we can prove that they exist not alone in books, but in the thinking and living of our people. To advance individual responsibility and the common good through the discovery and identification of our moral and spiritual resources for brotherhood and ultimately to implement this emphasis through coordinated activities and programs of the institutions and organizations of the nation are the goals that call this project into being.

WHY?

Motivated by the need for such a project, a group of responsible citizens from some forty national organizations met with Mr. Lewis W. Douglas to underscore the timeliness of these goals and to plan a cooperative project. As that project develops, additional citizens and organizations will be enlisted. Many organizations are currently making valuable contributions in this area, often under some appellation other than moral and spiritual resources. The plan envisages a nation-wide, coordinated survey of moral and spiritual resources as related to certain pressing problems. Organizations are to make varied contributions according to their particular genius. Fundamentally a survey of resources, not of problems, the emphasis throughout will be upon the positive.

HOW?

The project falls into four phases. Only the first phase requires action at this time. This phase calls for a preliminary report on the moral and spiritual resources implicit in current activities, programs, materials and plans of a representative group of forty national organizations. A detailed questionnaire will be the primary means of securing this information. This report will be presented, along with the prospectus of the complete program, to the President of the United States by Mr. Lewis W. Douglas, November 11, 1954. The findings and prospectus will serve as the basis for subsequent phases. After appropriate study, testing, financial commitment, and staffing (phase two), phase three will begin with a call by the President for a year-long program climaxed by a National Conference on our Moral and Spiritual Resources for Brotherhood. This Conference will serve as a bridge to the fourth phase: integration of the findings and recommendations into the programmatic activities of American institutions and organizations in the years ahead to the end that our moral and spiritual resources for brotherhood may play an increasingly positive part in advancing individual responsibility and the common good in thousands of American communities.

WHEN?

WHY THIS PROJECT

The successful businessman takes regular inventory. He surveys the stock he has on hand, and he anticipates probable demand for his product. He must try to maintain an equation between what he has to sell and what his customers will want to buy.

The successful military leader constantly takes inventory. He surveys his resources, and anticipates the situations that will require strategic or tactical recourse to the resources he has available. The task for him is also to maintain the equation.

A service organization or agency conducts frequent inventory. Again the problem is in maintenance of the equation: what services are needed, what services is it equipped to provide.

The alert and prudent individual periodically takes an inventory. What is it that he does well? What gifts has God given him? Is he using these gifts as well as he might? If not, why not? What can he do to improve?

A nation and a people take inventory. What are its resources? So much capital wealth. So much per capita income. So large an Army, Navy, Air Force. So many ships, airplanes, guns. So many farms, cities, buildings, oil wells, mines, forests. So much coal, copper, zinc, steel. So many railroads. So much manpower. And now, so many atom and hydrogen bombs! The job is the same: maintenance of the equation.

However, these are not the only kind of resources of a nation and a people. These are material resources, and they are important -- very important. But what of our non-material resources as a nation and a people? What of our moral and spiritual resources -- our belief in a personal God, our concept of the dignity and worth of the individual, our confidence in the richness of cultural pluralism? Have we not these assets too, and are they not at least as important as our material assets? Indeed, do not our moral and spiritual principles actually determine what we take our national resources to be? It is good that we know what America makes. But what makes America?

If our world today is one that teeters rather too precariously on the fence between survival and oblivion, what are the resources that can save us from disaster? We must indeed, attend to the extent and our use of our material resources. But is their acquisition the chief reason for our existence? Should we not equate concern for our moral and spiritual resources with our concern for material resources? Are not our moral and spiritual resources in part the very use we make of our material resources? Can we survive with a split atom in a divided world?

Arnold Toynbee writes of the change in human affairs brought about by technological revolution. It has shrunk, he says, and is still shrinking the human geography of the world. "What must we do to be saved?" Professor Toynbee asks. "The heart of our difficulty is the difference in pace between the hare -- swift movement of the scientific intellect, which can revolutionize our technology in the space of a lifetime, and the tortoise -- slow movement of the underbelly of the human psyche which knows no change or shadow of turning." Physical distances are shrinking, too, and Rabbi Louis Finkelstein challenges us with the observation that "When the world was big we could afford to be small; now that it's so very small we have got to be big."

Indeed the subject is worthy: the struggle of people to cast aside prejudice and fear and to embrace every man, everywhere, as a brother under God. What then are our moral and spiritual resources for Brotherhood? It is time, past time, for a nation-wide inventory. Yet it is recognized that an inventory in itself is not enough. It is a beginning, not an end. But we must have it as a step in a process, just as must the businessman, the military leader, the service organization, and the individual person. Then we must act, prudently and forthrightly, on the basis of our inventory. We must finally achieve the equation that is our greatest challenge. We must learn to live together in mutual respect and understanding, dignifying differences. We must work cooperatively and constructively for the common good, in unity without uniformity. We must eliminate poverty and hunger and human desecration, cut down the things that kill the soul and spirit of men. We must bury bigotry and hatred. We must want peace and tranquility among men, and be willing to work for it -- not abstractly behind far-away ramparts, but concretely in our own families, neighborhoods and communities.

All of this is part of the "why" of this nation-wide survey of our moral and spiritual resources for Brotherhood. Harrison Smith in The Saturday Review has stated the case well:

> "All Americans have a part in what is happening to the world, however humble it may be or however dimly they comprehend it....People are no longer isolated units living in small communities, or even within the boundaries of nations; they belong to the whole world. Their responsibilities and their horizons have become limitless. Americans have been the first people to realize this and to attempt to give outward expression of their unity with the peoples of the earth. This immense conception has not been handed down to us by a ukase from above; it has become the common knowledge of everyone who reads newspapers, magazines or books, or who listens to the voices that come to us over the air. Scientists and intellectuals, taxi-cab drivers, farmers, office workers, mechanics, salesmen, and the heads of industries are aware of it....Americans are slowly becoming world citizens, and it may be our destiny, since in Russia the cosmopolitan mentality is regarded as fatal to Communism, to lead the people of the planet Earth to the only road which brings them not to destruction, but to a new life for mankind."

One implication of what Mr. Smith says is that the task at hand is not one suited exclusively for the intellectual dwelling in the so-called ivory tower, or the college professor, the scholar, the much-maligned idealist, the dreamer. The issue is as close to all of us as our neighbor next door. It begs for recognition in newspaper headlines daily, everywhere -- in the news of the United Nations, in the news of Congressional activities, in the news of crime and delinquency, in the news of graft and corruption, in the news of scoff-law tactics of seemingly responsible citizens, in the news of vice and immorality, in the news of investigations of investigations of investigations, in the news of pride and hatred and jealousy and greed, in the news about hydrogen bombs and nerve gas, in the news about family discord and broken homes, in the news about Communism and how best to confront it.

There is a common thread in all this: where are we today, in our beliefs and our values? In man's relationships to man, a field we call human relations, what are the applicable moral and spiritual resources we have, and to what extent are they operative or non-operative, and why? What can we do cooperatively to make them more operative, -- every day in every way? Why the gap between what we profess and what we practice -- e.g., in regard to race relations? Is this not a great common concern that should enlist the efforts of Protestants, Catholics and Jews? Is not religion itself being seriously challenged -- and all other of our free, democratic institutions? Is not our moral leadership of the free world at stake? Is not the Brotherhood of Man under God the plan of creation? And what of our Founding Fathers and what they saw for America -- what of our great American documents, the Declaration of Independence, the Bill of Rights, the Gettysburg address?

These are the questions involved in the "why" of this nation-wide study of our moral and spiritual resources for Brotherhood. If effectively analyzed and mobilized, might not these treasures of the human spirit undergird and fortify a new birth of liberty for America and the free world?

THE PLAN

GROWTH OF AN IDEA

The National Conference of Christians and Jews observed its silver anniversary in 1953. This organization of Protestants, Catholics and Jews was founded in 1928 by distinguished Americans including Charles Evans Hughes, Newton D. Baker, S. Parkes Cadman, Roger W. Straus, and Carlton J. H. Hayes "-to promote justice, amity, understanding and cooperation among Protestants, Catholics and Jews, and to analyze, moderate and finally eliminate intergroup prejudices which disfigure and distort religious, business, social and political relations, with a view to the establishment of a social order in which the religious ideals of brotherhood and justice shall become the standards of human relationships." Today the National Conference functions through more than sixty regional offices in this country and through five national Commissions geared to the institutional "trunklines" of our society. It is a civic, educational organization that has now been paralleled by similar movements in Canada, England, Hawaii, western Europe and northern Africa.

The theme selected for the anniversary year was: Moral and Spiritual Resources for Brotherhood. But it was immediately apparent that there was more here than a theme. For here was a statement of a great common concern of religiously minded people everywhere, and the National Conference has found from long experience that one of the best ways to develop needed communication and better understanding between people of diverse cultural background is to set them at work on projects of vital concern to all. Here was something where there was the possibility for speaking in a common voice, despite important differences.

NCCJ's Commission on Religious Organizations prepared and completed a study outline for church and synagogue leaders to use in assessing and pointing up our moral and spiritual resources for Brotherhood. Findings from a large number of study groups, organized through NCCJ's regional offices, were to be brought together, and a national meeting of religious leaders would be asked to produce a statement comparable to the PATTERNS FOR PEACE of some years ago. But as these plans developed it became clear that this was a project that concerned not only religious leaders but the entire community. The issues were of a kind that educators, businessmen, labor union members, scientists, young people and community leaders of all kinds would see clearly as their challenge, too, and about which all would have significant contributions to make. The National Conference has always worked chiefly with and through existing community organizations. And some of these organizations have already been doing some significant groundwork on this matter of moral and spiritual resources, e.g., the Advertising Council, the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, the Educational Policies Commission of the National Educational Association, the Race and Cultural Relations Department of the National Council of Churches, the Commission on American Citizenship of the Catholic University of America, the Jewish National Community Relations Advisory Council. Surely no one would deny the importance to this same idea of the on-going program of the great fraternal, civic, veterans, and service organizations of our nation, and, of course, the program of religious organizations of many different persuasions.

WHY COORDINATION BY THE NATIONAL CONFERENCE

Thus, the National Conference is simply the initiating and coordinating agency for the national survey. Such a task is one for which this organization is uniquely qualified: (a) Because of its philosophy - the idea of respecting and dignifying the right to be different on the one side, while seeking those areas of civic concern where bridges of understanding and good will can be built effectively; (b) Because of its structure - five national Commissions, developed in the main trunklines of social change in the community, and over 60 regional operations now spread throughout the country; and (c) Because of its program resources - making available many of the materials, tools and skills that will be needed to do this job well.

OVERALL DIRECTION OF THE PROJECT

At the invitation of the Hon. Lewis W. Douglas, former U. S. Ambassador to the Court of St. James', representatives of forty national organizations met in New York. A national committee to develop and guide the survey was formed under his chairmanship. These leaders were enthusiastic in their agreement that the project merited extraordinary attention and support from all the nation's religious and civic forces. The advisory assistance of a trio of nationally distinguished religious leaders was secured: Dr. F. Ernest Johnson, Rev. John Courtney Murray, S.J., and Rabbi Louis Finkelstein. An executive committee to the larger national committee was formed and has met several times since.

Membership on Mr. Douglas' committee is of individuals and not of organizations, Organizational relationship to the committee is flexible and informal; no formal super-organization is contemplated. The individuals on the committee are closely identified with national organizations, and in this way their organizations will be kept informed of developments and plans and guided in their cooperation in the project. Since the five national NCCJ Commissions and program committees related to NCCJ regional operations also comprise individuals closely identified with various community organizations at the national or local levels, communication with a considerable number of additional organizations will be facilitated.

Remaining faithful to its responsibility for coordination of the plans, the National Conference desires to avoid domination of the project. The democratic participation of many community organizations on an equal basis, and the right and prerogative of any organization to develop its own techniques and mode of participation in the project will be scrupulously respected.

OBJECTIVES OF THE PROJECT

The objectives of this nation-wide survey of our moral and spiritual resources for Brotherhood, as crystallized by the national committee under Mr. Douglas, are as follows:

1. To advance individual responsibility and the common good through the discovery and identification of our moral and spiritual resources for brotherhood

2. To relate these resources to the maintenance of individual freedom and national unity, and to the deepening of the sense of understanding and cooperation among all peoples at home and abroad.

3. To cooperate with governmental officials in ascertaining the areas of greatest need and primary concern.

4. To consider the ways these resources may be used, fortified and disseminated through churches and synagogues, schools and universities, community organizations, labor and management organizations and the media of mass communications.

5. To summarize and present these findings and recommendations to the American people through the President of the United States.

6. To integrate these findings and this emphasis into the programmatic activities of American institutions and organizations in the years ahead.

THE PROBLEM AREAS

A basic study guide, prepared by NCCJ's Commission on Religious Organizations, has been organized into seven sections, with each section devoted to a specific cluster of problems. To conduct a national survey on a realistic basis requires an even sharper focus. The following significant problem areas have been selected, therefore, as focal points for (1) programming, (2) questionnaires and report forms, and (3) preparation of background materials:

(1) Juvenile Delinquency

Juvenile Court workers know that many of their delinquent children get into trouble because they come from homes that have no unity, no real love, no true family life, even where homes have not been broken by divorce. Sociological studies have shown us staggering statistics of the impact on young lives of environmental factors in so-called underprivileged areas. We live in an increasingly complex society whose purposes are often lost to the individual in his specialized and over-specialized functions. Economic factors often add insecurity to confusion and lack of purpose in the minds of our youth. The rise in juvenile delinquency and adolescent crime demands a re-examination of both the knowledge and techniques used in treating this social problem. The pace of modern living, the necessity which sends many mothers to work outside the home, our highly organized social life which allows less and less time for family living, all place new strains upon the primary institution of the family. What opportunities for constructive social living are often unused even in the homes fortunate enough to have a religious foundation? How can we help families provide the ideal means of teaching good citizenship, wholesome social living? How can parents be helped to build in youth an understanding of the value and dignity of every human being, a respect for differences, the ability to cooperate effectively? How can we help parents better to utilize our moral and spiritual resources in rearing children of good will? How can we get parents to accept their responsibility to do their part in building sound value structures and character in their children instead of expecting the church, school, or club to do the whole job?

(2) Responsible World Leadership

In today's split world many observers see the great competition to be, not the technical race of armaments between East and West, but rather the race which goes on both in the East and the West between man's control of the powers of nature and his control of himself. The citizens of America view our new position of world leadership with mixed feelings and opinions. Are we prepared to accept the responsibilities of leadership in these crucial days? There is mounting evidence that many of our people believe that the price of world leadership is too high. This unwillingness to accept our responsibility to the world community expresses itself in increasingly frequent and unjustified attacks upon the United Nations, and in opposition to all forms of economic and technical assistance abroad. This moral isolationism fails to recognize the interdependence of all peoples and their mutual responsibility under God. We have proceeded on the assumption that genuine peace is inseparable from freedom, that a peace purchased at the price of surrender to totalitarian slavery would be worse than death. But we have never made explicit the moral implications of this choice, and therefore we have not been able to follow it through to all its consequences. What positive strategy can we develop? In what ways can we combat communist imperialism in addition to military and economic approaches? Why cannot we, out of our resources of faith, develop a liberating dynamic capable of meeting and defeating the dynamic of totalitarianism? In the light of such considerations, how can our moral and spiritual resources be marshalled to contribute most to international cooperation?

(3) Integrity in Civic Matters

Almost any issue of any newspaper in the country these days will set forth the problem for us. In certain instances racketeers and criminals of all sorts have been proven to have had the help, directly or indirectly, of corrupt public officials. In other instances certain groups are seen to have questionable -- even if legal -- influence upon political decisions affecting the common welfare. Some believe that a philosophy of "get as much as you can, and give as little as you have to," pervades present-day society. Religion confronts man with a moral law. Are certain segments of society ignorant of this law or merely indifferent to it? How can they be motivated to live up to it? What are the religious resources that can be summoned to create and sustain civic integrity? Is corruption in politics mainly a reflection of corruption in other aspects of our common life? Is it just as prevalent locally as it is nationally? What resources have we that could be brought to bear to improve the ethical standards of public life?

(4) Confronting Communism Responsibly

The rise of the Soviet Union as a world power in control of vast populations, with the definite policy of encouraging world revolution within most nations, brings with it critical issues to all persons whose values are those of Judaism or Christianity. Totalitarianism has been declared as something altogether new in the world, different from older tyrannies because of modern techniques at its disposal, the nature of its dictatorship, its atheism and its anti-Semitism, its utter disregard for what the free world regards as important. There is no doubt that these and many other aspects make Communism an unusual threat and an unusual test for those most deeply concerned with moral and religious resources for brotherhood. The fight against Communism involves important ethical issues. What are good methods and what are bad? How shall Communism be opposed in America so that the innocent shall not be injured, and that basic civil liberties and the American legal tradition be preserved?

SPECIFIC PROGRAMS AND APPROACH

Methods of participation in the project will vary due to the wide diversity of organizations whose cooperation is earnestly invited. However, if the programs of participation are kept within the general pattern and procedures of the project, this can be an enriching factor. Each participating organization will decide for itself, in view of its purposes, methods and structure, how best it can engage in this cooperative venture. For example, the problem of juvenile delinquency is so deep-rooted that all participating organizations in one way or another are attempting to cope with it. All would recognize that their individual efforts would be more effective if there was a reinforcing, cooperative effort being made in this area. All would welcome an opportunity to have available and share in the positive experiences and gains of other organizations. Knowledge of the varied experiences and techniques being employed elsewhere would have a stimulating effect on intra-organizational plans and programs. Participating organizations would not depart from developing those aspects and approaches to the problem of juvenile delinquency as they have in the past, but would now do so in a more concerted and effective manner. An organization of the type of the NCCJ would single out the area of intergroup conflict as its specialized concern. A youth-serving agency such as the Boy Scouts of America would continue and perhaps emphasize to a greater degree certain aspects of its on-going programs with youth. An action, civic organization such as the Jaycees might point the program of all its local chapters to one or two specific positive activities in the area of our concern. An educational institution might initiate needed research projects as demands for specific data multiply. Welfare organizations and corrective institutions might well cooperate and make their staff and plants available. The mutual benefits accruing to cooperating organizations due to the inter-relatedness of the project are obvious.

Thus, each participant might view the project in terms of: (1) the broad problems vital to the national interest in which all have a very real concern; (2) the role of various types of organizations or specialized agencies providing activities and data to cope with specific aspects of it; (3) the intra-organizational programs designed to implement this concern. In regard to the latter point, if the implementing program chosen to deal with one or more of these problems is a study group or round table, the members of such groups would face two basic questions: What do we believe about the issues implicit in these areas of discussion, and how can this belief, intelligently examined, guide our behavior? However, in sharpening the central issues, it is clear that there is considerably more to this survey of our moral and spiritual resources for brotherhood than the machinery of study groups. The discussion of issues and resources in diversified groups and the preparation of reports is only part of the focus. Fundamentally, it is problem-solving in community relations through a positive advance in individual responsibility by discovery and identification of our moral and spiritual resources for brotherhood that is the purpose of the project. Its success will be measured in terms of its effect upon concrete problems through action - solid, wise, constructive action in relation to difficult community problems. Experience with a number of groups in several communities already started on the survey indicates that discussion produces some very clear goals such as better housing or the integration of new population groups so essential to the full attainment of brotherhood in the community. The values and principles once identified are dynamic and soon find practical application. The project should be problem-centered insofar as possible.

When Phase two of the plan is activated, a report form to correlate all the findings and experiences, will be prepared and distributed. Ultimately the findings, conclusions, and recommendations from all groups in the community will be brought together first at several local conferences or institutes; secondly, at several regional conferences; and finally, at the national conference at the completion of the year-long program. The findings and recommendations of that meeting will find their way back to every community and serve as a basis for a continuing implementation of the project at the grass roots level.

THE EMPHASIS IS POSITIVE

Although a problem approach is proposed, the emphasis throughout will be positive. We begin with a realistic admission of the gap between our democratic prentensions and our practice, of the lag between our technical advance and our moral maturity. However, these challenging realities are sufficiently dramatized by the events of our time. What we need is not a review of our deficiencies, but a new look at our resources and a bold attempt to relate them anew to the life of our time. Thus the project anticipates both a method and an outcome which is positive.

---AND A WORD OF CAUTION

As people holding different religious convictions, we have certain beliefs and values we cling to independently of each other in the theological realm. Each group thus has something unique and important that it has contributed to the common pool of our moral and spiritual resources. These distinctive beliefs and values that are among our resources are not lost in a "melting pot." They can easily be identified, they have a distinct character that we recognize and respect and dignify for each group. But we do come together in common concern on some of these beliefs and values as they relate to civic affairs. The idea, for example, of the supreme importance of the individual personality is not an idea that is uniquely Protestant, Catholic or Jewish. It is a moral and spiritual resource that we share and one with which we might logically begin.

TIME-TABLE

In its time-table, the project falls into four major phases:

Phase One: ending in November, 1954. A period of organization, correspondence, inquiry and experiment, in order to build a body of experience and ascertain realistically and in report form what American institutions and organizations are doing and are prepared to do in this field. NCCJ local groups are already started on the project. An in-process report will be prepared by NCCJ for the national committee in September and October, 1954, and Mr. Douglas will present this preliminary report to the President of the United States on November 11, 1954. The data for this report will be secured from the answers to the questionnaire attached to this Prospectus. Only this phase requires action now.

Phase Two: At such time as the President and other interested governmental and non-governmental agencies decide to activate the project on a national basis, appropriate staffing, financial commitment, study, operation of trial programs in test cities, and the establishment of liaison contacts at all levels will be undertaken. This second phase may require six months to one year.

Phase Three: A call to the nation to participate in a one year concerted effort to reaffirm, reformulate and extend the moral and spiritual emphasis in every aspect of national life will initiate this phase. Following this call, extensive and intensive cooperative activities will be undertaken to the end that every possible interested institution and organization will realize in its own program those objectives of the project relevant to their operation. Directors of participating organizations are to assess their own organizations for purposes of: (1) self-examination -- of constituency, staff, and program; (2) clarification -- of goals, assumptions, values; (3) seeking of more effective means so that ever greater numbers may be led to act in terms of basic beliefs. Data and reports will be gathered from every corner of the nation, looking toward the national meeting which will climax the year-long program. At that time representatives of all participating groups from over the nation will assemble in Washington to assess progress, exchange experiences and plan specifically ways of fulfilling Objective #6: " - to integrate these findings and this emphasis into the programmatic activities of American institutions and organizations in the years ahead."

Phase Four: Post-Washington Meeting period to implement Objective #6. It is expected that the data secured through the program and the recommendations based on an analysis of the findings, will find their way into the future program planning of the religious, educational, civic, social and other organizations of our nation and make an impact on programs for better human relations in the years ahead. It is also expected that the participants in discussions will be better prepared, with this experience, to assist groups to which they are related in the development of their own programs in education for better human relations. Indeed, the process of thoughtful consideration of the issues and increasing sensitivity to the values involved may well be extended to more communities and to more groups within communities. One intention in the program is to promote personal growth in individuals via a process. The implication is that not only prejudice but ignorance and bad practices may be increasingly subject to the demands of reason. Through such a process more and more citizens may begin to participate in the activities of organizations dedicated to the improvement of group relations in the community setting. The cooperative nature of the project should serve to strengthen through cumulative impact the work of these organizations in a field vital to the national interest.

WHAT MUST BE DONE TO PARTICIPATE?

Action Required Now:

1. Complete and return the attached questionnaire with supporting exhibits by August 31, 1954.

2. Secure any additional information or clarification desired concerning the project from the National Conference of Christians and Jews, 381 Fourth Avenue, New York 16, New York. The full resources of local and national offices of the National Conference are available for consultant help, guidance, etc.

Action Required if Phase Two is Activated:

1. If your organization is one having local or sectional units or chapters, alert and inform these units about the project and urge their cooperation and participation at the local, regional or state levels, whichever may be appropriate and feasible, suggesting that help may be secured by calling upon the nearest regional office of the National Conference.

2. Begin to plan for the year-long program whose dates will be announced at the time of the call to the nation, perhaps by experimentation with discussion groups in a few places, perhaps by development of a few appropriate materials and tools for use within the framework of the particular organization and suited to its needs, structure and function.

3. Complete the report form which will be distributed and return it to Mr. Douglas and the national committee.

4. See that your organization is ably represented at the national conference in Washington climaxing the year-long program.

MATERIALS AVAILABLE

Some organizations already have available materials that are directly relevant to the project and which might prove useful to study groups organized immediately. For instance, there are the Advertising Council reports of American Round Table discussions of THE BASIC ELEMENTS OF A FREE DYNAMIC SOCIETY and THE MORAL AND RELIGIOUS BASIS OF THE AMERICAN SOCIETY. The National Congress of Parents and Teachers has produced an excellent discussion guide called MORAL AND SPIRITUAL EDUCATION IN HOME, SCHOOL AND COMMUNITY in connection with its Action Program theme for 1952-55, which is "...to emphasize moral and spiritual values." NCCJ materials available and in preparation as aids to the discovery and identification of our moral and spiritual resources are:

1) OUR MORAL AND RELIGIOUS RESOURCES

Contains pronouncements by major faiths and quotations from religious leaders on such questions as family life, civic integrity, social justice, communism, international relations and interreligious cooperation. GAINS THROUGH PARTICIPATION

Our American community organizations tend to be rather complex phenomena. Many of them have a large staff, numerous committees and sub-committees, sometimes sub-sub-committees, and in a good many cases operate on the basis of rather formidable budgets. Their purposes tend to become multiple. They are accustomed to being invited to cooperate in this and participate in that. Their support of an idea gives that idea integrity, prestige, influence, even power. To protect themselves, our community organizations sometimes are compelled, under the sheer pressure of choices that must be made, to invent tactful ways of saying no. There is the constant problem of determining what it is that is really important, what is merely urgent.

Of all this and its ramifications the National Conference, itself a national community organization, is quite aware. But there are issues facing us in our time that are both really important and urgent. It is our firm conviction that this matter of our moral and spiritual resources for Brotherhood is in that relatively exclusive category. And the challenge of the issues implied therein is one absolutely incumbent upon every community organization in our time - not solely the challenge of organizations like the National Conference that endeavor to make every week Brotherhood Week through a year-round program. Community organizations must march forwards, and cooperatively, especially in regard to the great issues of our day. There can be no evasion, no withdrawal. Frederick Lewis Allen has helped us in our common motivation with these words in the concluding chapter of his book, THE BIG CHANGE:

> "The story of the changes in the contours of American life that we have hammered out in the first fifty years of this twentieth century, is a triumphant story, however harsh may have been some of our experiences in the interim and however obscure may be the shape of the future. We would do well to think of our accomplishment thus far as but a preface to what we may accomplish in the second half of the century if we can continue to invent, improve and change - and can keep a good heart. The courageous nation, like the courageous man, is not unhappy at the thought of dangers beside the road ahead, but welcomes them as challenges to be faced and overwhelmed along an adventurous course."

RECEIVED APR 7 1956

Dear Editor:

Enclosed is a release regarding workshops in the field of human relations and intergroup education to be held during the summer of 1956 with which the National Conference of Christians and Jews will cooperate. The workshops have been grouped according to main sections of the nation with the hope that some of the listing, at least, would be included in an early issue of your publication. The cooperation of editors in giving publicity to this workshop activity in 1955 was most encouraging.

You will be interested to know that there were 1250 enrolled in the workshops with which we cooperated during the summer of 1955 and the records indicate that the quality of those participating was the best in the history of the workshop movement. A considerable percentage of those who enrolled received scholarship assistance through our various regional offices.

Please send me a copy of your publication in which an announcement regarding the 1956 workshops may appear.

Very truly yours,

Herbert L. Seamans

Dear George,

We have just received a copy of We Humans; CONGRATULATIONS for a job well done. This is one of the best discussion guides I have ever seen. It can be of great value in helping laymen understand racial and ethnic differences and basic human similarities.

As you probably remember SRC has twelve state organizations and I surely would like for them to have copies of this excellent guide. Could you please send me fifteen (15) copies for distribution to them ? If there would be a cost involved we could pay for the

A University faculty friend of mine looked it ove and at once asked the question, "Can we get them for use in our summer workshops ?" So I repeat the questio to you and ask the second half of that question: if so at what cost ?

TO: Mr. Fred Routh
Southern Regional Council

Dear Fred:

It was good to see you recently at the NAIRO Board meeting in Detroit. I promised you this letter, which I regret has been delayed because of my preoccupation with our Police Institute at Michigan State - but I told you that I would write you as soon as I could.

The Institute, by the way, was a great success, with 47 cities in 26 states represented in the total enrollment of 131 people.

You ask why NCCJ discontinued its annual national award to communities deemed to have progressed furthest in group relations within a given period of time. To begin with, such an award at Brotherhood Week time each year did have certain positive values or assets - for the community so honored, for NCCJ, etc. But I take it that you are interested in the negative side - which, of course, we finally decided outweighed the positive, so we discontinued the practice after the 1952 award. Actually, in 1953, Louisville was in line for the award - but in the final analysis, we made no award that year and discontinued the practice as of that time.

One reason was that our best advice indicated that in the Louisville case, such an award would actually have set back the clock in terms of group relations. Why? One reason was that publicity re: the award tended to play up the idea that it was an award for "good" group relations in an absolute sense, rather than in a comparative sense, i.e., a community was here a year ago, it is now here, great progress has been made in limited achievement of the goal, therefore the award. Thus, while the intention was to recognize and commend heartening progress, the tendency was to interpret it as an award for a de facto situation. I found this to be what happened in South Bend, which won the 1951 award just weeks before I transferred to Detroit. My successor in South Bend, John Kane, thus had all the headaches that went with the award - while at the same time he enjoyed certain dividends too, not to be underestimated. But the dividends tended to accrue more to NCCJ than to the community, these two elements not always being identical - as you know very well.

In short, anytime an award like this goes to a community in which there are still obvious evidences of segregation, discrimination, and injustice in group relations (and what community, North or South lacks these evidences?), you have a terrific interpretative task on your hands. It provides ammunition for those who want to close their eyes to these problems. The Chamber of Commerce beats the drums. It puts all kinds of new pressures upon leaders and groups seriously interested in solving the real problems. It made NCCJ the target of elements in the community all too aware of the existence of problems. Who were we trying to kid?

Another related point: it left us open to the charge that the award was mainly a not too thinly-veiled instrument for NCCJ public relations and fund raising. In South Bend after I left, the award was officially presented to the Mayor at an NCCJ fund-raising dinner. We made friends and enemies by this, depending upon where one looked for evidence.

Finally, the award tended to pit one NCCJ office off against others in a competitive battle in which many of our offices simply refused to become involved - because it was a competition based upon fundamental inequities. All the typical patterns of pressure tactics, lobbying, etc. began to be evident in the competition. Bad feeling was generated, the antithesis of Brotherhood, within our own organizational family.

That is about it as I recall the discussions on this matter, dating back now more than three years. Interestingly enough, no one has since advocated that we revive the award program.

All the best.

Cordially yours,

LOUIS A. RADELET

P.S. I know you will use the contents of this letter with all discretion.

TO: Selected Police and Community Relations Officials

Rec'd 6/18/56

FROM: Louis A. Radelet

SUBJECT: Survey of Interest - Your Cooperation Earnestly Enlisted.

As many of you know, we have cooperated the past two years (among other organizations) with the Department of Police Administration and Public Safety, Michigan State University, in a national Institute on Police-Community Relations. This has been a highly successful project, with this year's Institute, held May 13-18, attracting representation from 47 cities in 26 states.

You probably are familiar too with the pamphlets, on a wide variety of subjects, of the Public Affairs Committee - Maxwell Stewart, editor-in-chief. This organization has indicated to us considerable interest in the publication of a pamphlet on Police-Community Relations. It is evident that a well-prepared pamphlet on this subject by the Public Affairs Committee could be an effective instrument for advancing the objectives of desirable law enforcement-community relations. Presumably such a pamphlet would be written by one or more recognized authorities on the topic (not yet determined), and in its content would explore many of the interesting and challenging aspects of the problem. In short, we take for granted that it would be a quality piece of work.

Before undertaking the preparation of such a pamphlet, however, the Public Affairs Committee understandably desires some fairly definite indication of its potential market. They have come to us for help on this question. I have discussed with them the problem which all agencies face in the matter of reluctance to commit themselves to any number of copies of any literature item without having seen the product itself. The Public Affairs Committee understands this, but of course they have a problem too in this kind of thing. Normally they like to see a potential market for 100,000 copies of a pamphlet, before they proceed with its publication. In this case they are willing to settle for a potential market of only 50,000 copies. Our job is to determine if such a market exists, and provide them with that assurance.

All Public Affairs pamphlets sell at a basic rate of 25¢ per copy, but with quantity discounts. Thus, if an agency buys, let us say 10-99 copies of one pamphlet, the price would be 20¢ per copy; 100-249, 18¢ a copy; 250-499, 17¢; 500-999, 15¢; and 1000-4999, 14¢.

My two questions to you are now apparent: (1) Do you feel that a real need exists for such a pamphlet? and (2) If the pamphlet is produced, what is your best present estimate as to how many copies you would order from the Public Affairs Committee?

I would greatly appreciate your cooperation in writing me, by June 30 if possible, with your views on this matter.

Sincerest thanks and best wishes.

Dear Lou:

Many thanks for the note and the copies of your letters to Harold Fleming and George Mitchell. You mentioned that you have probably never met Harold. Let me say just a few words about him.

You will find that Harold Fleming is a most able professional person in the field of Human Relations. He does not believe in a one man show but prefers the team approach. He is a graduate of Harvard University, an old member of A.V.C., and a twentieth century liberal. He writes, speaks, and uses the King's English with great effectiveness. He is interested in close cooperation with other national agencies. Under his leadership those of us who are associated with SRC believe that we will far exceed our past performance. He is a native born Georgian who thinks like a world citizen. The entire staff and Board are well pleased with his selection as Executive Director. As two of my good friends, I am sure you will grow to know, respect, and care for each other.

Best personal regards.

Warmly,

Dear Roy:

Many thanks for the copy of the minutes of the January 28th meeting regarding clergy workshops. This is a fine summary of the meeting and you are to be congratulated for having a gal like Mary Howard to produce it. I will write you more extensively in the future and seek to answer some of the questions you raised.

The National Conference of Christians and Jews in Georgia

"Knowing that good will, fairness and justice among those of differing religious faith is the rock upon which this Nation was founded, and that this principle is the hope that these United States carries to a war-torn world, we, as members of the Atlanta Committee, take this means of assuring you that we sincerely believe we should preach and practice this doctrine."

Co-Chairmen, Atlanta Committee, National Conference of Christians and Jews

Purpose

THE National Conference of Christians and Jews, Inc., was founded in 1928 on the initiative of Charles Evans Hughes, Newton D. Baker, S. Parkes Cadman, and other distinguished Americans.

Its purpose is defined in its By-laws in the following terms:

"Believing in a spiritual interpretation of the universe and deriving its inspiration therefrom, the National Conference exists to promote justice, amity, understanding and cooperation among Protestants, Catholics and Jews in the United States, and to analyze, moderate and finally eliminate intergroup prejudices which disfigure and distort religious, business, social and political relations, with a view to the establishment of a social order in which the religious ideals of brotherhood and justice shall become the standards of human relationships."

Cooperation—Not Union

"The Conference is an association of individuals, not of officials commissioned by their respective religious bodies. It does not aim at any sort of amalgamation of religious bodies or at modifying any of the distinctive beliefs of its members."

The Conference holds and demonstrates that those who differ deeply in religious beliefs may work together in the American way toward mutual goals—such as amity and understanding among religious groups, social justice, religious liberty, freedom of speech, assembly, and press as provided in the Bill of Rights—ideals that can be fully realized only by intergroup cooperation.

Operating Principles

Education constitutes the keynote of the Conference program.

Many destructive prejudices derive in part from misinformation. Knowing from experience that distrust and fear can be largely dissolved and mutual confidence and respect created among Protestants, Catholics, Jews and others through effective use of the right kind of education, the Conference disseminates facts to offset rumors and untruth.

Timeliness of Effort

Attempts to blame minority groups for a country's political, economic, and social troubles have accompanied every period of calamity. The present is no exception.

There is this difference today: the propaganda of hate and division which is spreading virulent prejudice in every part of the United States is being met by counteractive efforts for understanding and cooperation.

Millions of Americans are at work for one objective: to make certain that no epidemic of rancor and bigotry shall be permitted to deprive us all of those fundamental rights which American youth are giving their lives to preserve.

The National Conference of Christians and Jews is a strategic organization by which you can extend your influence for goodwill in the most powerful institutions of society: the schools, the homes, the community action agencies, and the churches.

Recent Comment From a Founder

"This National Conference is devoted to the promotion of national unity—the unity of a free people with that respect for individual rights which makes possible the attainment of our common ends. I congratulate the members of the National Conference on its notable success in directing the thoughts of the American people to this essential objective and I trust that in the years before us, with the increasing need for that effort, the Conference will have a constantly widening influence."

—Hon. Charles Evans Hughes.

National Program

While the national program of the Conference is in a sense the aggregate of programs carried on in 3,000 cities and towns across the nation, certain projects which benefit the various local programs are undertaken on a general scale by the National Office. These projects are briefly reviewed below.

War Camp Program

Four and a half million officers and men in 497 Army and Navy camps have given earnest and appreciative attention to Conference trios of minister, priest, and rabbi. This orientation program has been given before 2,380 different war camp groups to date. The program was made possible because ranking officers in the Army and Navy, hundreds of camp commanders, and thousands of chaplains said: "National Conference teams build morale."

Over 4,000 pieces of literature, including Prayer Cards for three faiths, have been distributed to Army and Navy personnel.

Programs are booked and literature distributed through the Commission on Military Training Centers.

Commission on Educational Organizations

A group of leading educators, headed by Dr. Howard Wilson, of Harvard, is at work on a long range program in the schools and colleges. Their purpose is to provide a program of education for American youth which will enable them to understand and accept with enthusiasm the fact that our nation has become strong in culture, business, industry and spiritual life because of the contribution of the many peoples comprising it. A comprehensive study of textbooks used by the schools of the nation is now under way for the purpse of introducing materials designed to extend good will and understanding among religious groups.

The American Council on Education, with its 274 school administrator, teacher, and college organizations, works with the Conference for friendly relations among people of different cultural backgrounds as an important goal for all education in America.

Teachers meet in summer workshops at Harvard and Columbia Universities and in city and regional institutes to write units for teaching intergroup goodwill.

School systems, like Springfield, Massachusetts, and Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, have initiated extensive experiments to learn what can be done to strengthen the American ideal of fairness and mutual helpfulness.

Commission on Religious Organizations

A group of religious leaders headed by Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, Father Edward J. Walsh, and Rabbi Israel Goldstein, directs National Conference activity in churches, synagogues, and theological seminaries.

Twenty Protestant denominations with 25,000,000 members designated committees that will cooperate with the Conference to promote better intercultural and interfaith relations. The Commission gears its objectives with the church machinery for nationwide work.

Top-ranking Sunday school writers and publishers of all faiths produce study materials to create understanding and respect for all Americans.

Religious News Service

This branch of the Conference furnishes interfaith news, special articles and features to newspapers, general magazines, radio stations and the religious press.

Georgia Program

The National Conference opened an office in Atlanta on January 1, 1944, for the purpose of expanding its program in Georgia. For the past several years, all work of the Conference in Georgia has been under the direct supervision of the Southern Region Office in Washington, D. C. The new Georgia Area Office is a branch of the Southern Region Office but will be in position to cooperate more closely with Georgia committees.

Brotherhood Week

Built around Washington's Birthday, Conference Committees in Atlanta, Augusta, Columbus, Macon, and Savannah, and other Georgia communities sponsored a state-wide observance of Brotherhood Week. Trios representing the Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish faiths spoke at 14 meetings, and single speakers addressed 47 meetings, reaching at least 17,000 people.

All high schools in the state—public, private, and parochial (about 700)—were asked to have programs. Many of them held assembly programs on the theme of Brotherhood, and the film "The World We Live In" was shown to thousands of high school students.

Clergymen in leading Georgia cities were asked to give Brotherhood sermons on Sunday, February 20, or the nearest Sabbath to that date; and hundreds of them stressed from their pulpits that in America men and women of every faith, with no compromise of their convictions, can and must practice teamplay for common ends which concern all Americans.

Radio stations in the principal Georgia cities donated time for broadcasts by rabbis, priests, and ministers, and by business and civic leaders on the theme of Brotherhood.

Newspapers throughout Georgia, including the weeklies, carried news stories, editorials, and President Roosevelt's message concerning the Brotherhood Week observance.

Immediate Objectives

The goal of the National Conference of Christians and Jews in Georgia is to spread the ideals of amity, justice, and understanding among people of differing religious faiths as widely as possible. This will be done through sending trios representing the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths to address civic clubs, women's organizations, labor organizations, Parents and Teachers groups, religious conventions, assemblies in high schools, colleges and universities; and through the generous cooperation of the press and of the radio broadcasting stations.

It is the hope of the Conference to organize Round Tables of The National Conference of Christians and Jews in all Georgia cities. These Round Tables through their Executive Committees and general membership will deal with local problems in group relations and will cooperate in furthering the educational program.

The Atlanta Round Table is anxious that as many Georgians as possible go on record as wanting to keep America safe for differences by becoming members. There have been instances in other states where strong National Conference Round Tables have so influenced public opinion as to make the organization of certain un-American groups an actual impossibility.

It is the belief of the Conference that bigoted or intolerant people are unsuited to life in a democracy. The thinking of such people is unrealistic and their behaviour apt to be un-American.

Membership

The National Conference of Christians and Jews is essentially a laymen's organization, and anyone believing in the idea of brotherhood as exemplified in the Judeo-Christian religions is cordially invited to become a member of the Atlanta Round Table.

The work of the National Conference throughout the United States is entirely supported by voluntary contributions.

The present goal of the Atlanta Round Table is to increase its membership to 2,000. This will do at least two things: it will spread information helpful to the objectives of the Conference and it will provide the money needed to expand the educational program in Georgia and in the country as a whole.

Not less than $20,000 is needed: $10,000 for the expansion of the service in Georgia, and $10,000 for the war camp program and for national research and materials from which Georgia will directly benefit.

All members are kept informed of activities through frequent mailings of literature.

Memberships are classified as follows:

Sponsors . .	$100 and over
Contributors . .	$50 to $99
Sustaining . . .	$10 to $49
Regular	$ 5 to $ 9

Where Your Money Goes

The program of the National Conference is educational in character, and so carefully are its affairs managed that out of every $100 of funds subscribed, $86 are invested in direct and positive work to build good will and understanding among people of differing religious backgrounds. Of this $86, $40 are spent amongst our military population in army camps, naval, and air bases, and $46 amongst our civilian population (where the all-important school children are reached). Out of each $100, only $10 go for headquarters, planning and supervision, and less than $4 for public relations and cultivation of support.

Mr. Reed Sarratt

Winston-Salem, N.C.

Dear Mr. Sarratt,

Honored, and delighted to accept, for the luncheon panel on Saturday, October 9 at the Grove Park Inn at Asheville.

For others, as suggestions:

Harry Ashmore, Arkansas Gazette, whom of course you know. He has lately done an outstanding report for the Fund for the Advancement of Education on the whole schools business in the South, and is by all odd the best informed man on that subject. Books comes out from UNC Press May 16, and Ashmore will be in huge demand thereafter, but if you asked now you ought to be able to get him (and I suppose he would be at the meeting in any case?) Sound, wise views, not conservative, but judicious.

William Gordon. Managing Editor of the Atlanta World. The only Negro daily in this country, and he the only Negro Nieman Fellow. Been back on the paper about a year. Agrees that the South progresses, and lives in these parts by choice. Young, and with a modern viewpoint.

Thomas Young, of the Journal and Guide, in Norfolk. Able, informed, hard driving but balanced. His father's paper is in my opinion the best of the Negro newspapers published in this country. Often mentioned as a candidate for local office in Norfolk or Virginia.

Ashmore and either of the others, plus whatever I may put in, would give you a pretty fair presentation of the problem and the prospects.

Appreciatively,

George S. Mitchell

Dear George:

May I again express my appreciation to you for your part on the panel at the National Conference of Editorial Writers. Your very moving talk was one of the highlights of the whole Conference and the greatest complaint I heard was that so little time was devoted to this part of the program.

In the rush of activity, I failed to do anything about your expenses before you left. I discussed the matter later in the day with Don Shoemaker, our program chairman, and Harry Boyd, treasurer of the organization, and we agreed that Mr. Boyd should send you a check for $50 in the hope that this would cover your expenses. If you do not receive this check promptly and if it is insufficient to cover your expenses, I hope you will let me know.

Dear George:

You may not have seen the story in the Sunday Asheville Citizen-Times about our Saturday panel. I thought you might like to read it and enclose a clipping.

I agree with you that we didn't do the subject justice, and at first I was rather disturbed about the little bit of time we had. Mr. LeRoy King National Conference of Methodist Youth

Dear Mr. King:

If you will arrange for the calling of some fairly early gathering of people in Atlanta who might plan the workcamp you have in mind, I will be happy to go to such a meeting and put in my advice.

Generally speaking, I am doubtful of the wisdom of such a project in this city next summer. The times promise to be agitated. A workcamp is, as it intends to be, a visual demonstration in interracial activity. I have never made it a practice to tweak the nose of prejudice; I am sure that would not be the purpose of such a group, but unfortunately, Atlanta has a lot of people who would plaster their purposes on the group.

I would think it wiser to go to some rural point, such as, perhaps, the new meeting ground being built in Buckeye Cove near Ashville, North Carolina by the Fellowship of Southern Churches. The young people would have the experience of working together and the community around is not brought to boil.

But I could be persuaded to other views and would welcome the opportunity to talk to you or any of the others closely related to the project.

Sincerely,

George S. Mitchell,
Executive Director.

NOV 14 1955

Mr. George Mitchell

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

At the 1955 annual meeting of the National Conference of Methodist Youth top priority in projects was given to the development of an interracial workcamp in some section of the southeastern part of the United States. I was given the responsibility as Projects Secretary of exploring the possibilities of such a camp and of collecting enough data to report to the midwinter council meeting January 1-3, 1956.

Since last August personal contacts have been made with Bishop J. W. E. Bowen, Dr. James Thomas, Rev. George Tate, Rev. Julius Scott, and Rev. Earnest Smith to get their reactions towards having such a camp. They were all unanimously in favor of the idea and made some positive and constructive suggestions for the planning of such a project.

In consultation with Dr. James Thomas, of The Methodist Board of Education, he suggested names of many leading men in Atlanta, Georgia, who might be interested and sympathetic to such a workcamp. I might add that in talking with the above parties they all seemed to favor the site of the workcamp in Atlanta, Georgia. The purpose of such a workcamp is to provide opportunity for white and Negro students of our church around the country to come together for a period of a few weeks for manual labor in various communities of the city, for mutual study and sharing, and for actual work and guidance in many local MYF groups in the city. This is very similar to the pattern followed by the San Antonio racial workcamp which has been held the past two years and has been sponsored by the National Conference of Methodist Youth.

The Atlanta workcamp would provide an opportunity for the participants to make a very quiet and effective Christian witness in their interracial relationships. Any contemporary mood of the day calls for a persistent voice and effective action in witnessing for respectability of personality and acceptance of all peoples regardless of race or color as children of equal rank and opportunity under the fatherhood of our God and Lord. With this in mind the National Conference of Methodist Youth is seeking to give students an outlet for such an expression and an opportunity for service to their fellow man.

I am writing you this letter as a feeler. Since your name was given to us by Dr. James Thomas as a person who might be vitally interested and helpful in this project we should like to solicit your ideas and suggestions and have some reply from you relative to this proposed workcamp. Would you be so kind as to write at your earliest convenience regarding this proposed plan? Dr. Thomas will be in Atlanta in a few weeks and may be able to contact you and discuss the matter further. Meanwhile, I should appreciate hearing from you and will esteem it a privilege to have your friendship and support for this plan.

In order to make progress if there seems to be sufficient support from key people in the Atlanta area and city we shall seek to have an early meeting in Atlanta to make some definite plans. Among the many details which need to be considered are those of finances, inclusion of local youth and students as well as participating students from around the country, screening and acceptance of such workcampers from one major office, probably the office of the National Conference of Methodist Youth. These are just a few of the details which we shall be considering, but most important of all would be the purpose and primary emphasis of such a camp. I am looking forward to your reply.

Most sincerely,

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

Many thanks for your reply relative to our inquiry concerning the possibility of an interracial workcamp in Atlanta for the summer of 1956. It is gratifying to know of your interest and willingness to support such a project. It is equally thrilling to report that replies from all parties contacted express equal interest and desirability for such a workcamp.

Our next step is to arrange a meeting in Atlanta whereby a group of interested parties may come together for a few hours to discuss the proposal and to set the wheels moving for next summer's camp. In working closely with Dr. Jim Thomas on this matter, he has suggested that we attempt to steer clear of any meeting in January which may interfere with the closing semester of school. Initial meetings should be held in January, however, since there are so many details to discuss and clear if we are to have the camp next summer.

In order to facilitate procedure, may I suggest that we meet January 23 or 24, 1956, which is a Monday or Tuesday. If we can schedule the day, later we can arrange a mutual time for convening. If that date isn't possible, some previous weekend in January may be more desirable. Will you please indicate your preference on the enclosed post card and return post haste that we might have some definite schedule in mind? It is suggested that we meet at either Clark College or Gammon Theological Seminary. Could you state your preference on the card?

Again may I add how encouraging it is to have your word of endorsement for such a proposed workcamp which would make positive strides toward implementing the progress already being made toward better community cultural relationships in the nature and spirit of Christian fellowship. Please keep these dates in mind, and as soon as we receive replies from the various individuals contacted we shall send you word on definite time and place.

The National Conference of Methodist Youth joins me in wishing you and yours an abundantly happy and meaningful new year in 1956.

Atlanta, Georgia

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

Most of the group to whom we have written regarding the proposed workcamp in Atlanta for the summer of 1956 have replied. I am enheartened by the quick response and enthusiasm of each of these folks. Please accept my humble and profound appreciation for your interest in this proposed project.

Although a few of the persons contacted expressed regrets that they would not be able to meet on January 23 the majority seemed to prefer this day, so we are scheduling a meeting at Gammon Theological Seminary on Monday, January 23, beginning at 10:00 A.M. We may need to go over into the afternoon, so will plan to eat lunch at Gammon.

I hope that you can attend and will look forward with keen anticipation to our fellowship and the plans we project. Please be thinking particularly of such matters as type of workcamp needed, directorship, expenses, place for workcamp, housing, and size of workcamp, among many other factors. Your guidance and help on these matters will be most beneficial.

May this new year be the best and most abundant in every way for you.

Sincerely,

LeRoy King

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

Enclosed is a copy of the minutes of the preliminary workcamp planning committee which met in Atlanta on Monday, January 23. We had a very stimulating and encouraging meeting and regret deeply that you were unable to attend. These minutes will give you information on the results of our meeting.

As you will note, the next meeting date is scheduled for Monday, February 27, beginning at 10:00 A.M., and tentatively to be held at Gammon Theological Seminary. This committee is acting in an advisory capacity although certain members are exploring some of the needs and opportunities for such a workcamp for next summer. I hope that it will be possible for you to attend the meeting of this advisory committee this month. You can add much to the discussion in guiding us in the best procedures for the establishment of this interracial workcamp.

May I hear from you at your earliest convenience whether or not you will be able to attend the meeting in February?

Sincerely yours,

MINUTES

ATLANTA WORKCAMP PLANNING COMMITTEE

January 23, 1956

The first planning meeting for a proposed workcamp of college students in Atlanta, Georgia, was held at Gammon Theological Seminary on Monday, January 23. The meeting convened at 10:30 A.M. Those present were: Dr. G. Murray Branch, Morehouse College; Dr. B. K. Brazeal, Morehouse College: Rev. Sam Laird, Emory University; Rev. William Cole, North Georgia Conference Youth Director; Rev. John Tate, St. Mark Methodist Church; Mrs. M. E. Tilly, Southern Regional Council; Dr. A. S. Dickerson, district superintendent, Central Jurisdiction; Dr. Harry Richardson, Gammon Theological Seminary; Rev. LeRoy King, National Conference of Methodist Youth; Dr. C. S. Stinson, district superintendent, Central Jurisdiction; Dr. Harry Burney, district superintendent, Central Jurisdiction.

Sam Laird was selected to preside as chairman. LeRoy King made an opening statement bringing us up to date on what has happened thus far in relationship to this meeting. Action was begun by the National Conference of Methodist Youth, with the hope that some type of southeastern interracial workcamp might be held during the summer of 1956. The most favorable city seemed to be Atlanta, hence today's meeting. He stated the purposes for this workcamp:

To provide enriching experiences for interracial group living in a workcamp situation;

To provide opportunities for community Christian service in social service agencies and local churches in the Atlanta area;

To help students and youth learn how to live together harmoniously in an interracial atmosphere;

To bear a Christian witness on an interracial basis, showing a skeptical community that men can live together as brothers.

LeRoy told about the work done in San Antonio. Some of the things done: work on the Goodwill Industries building, YMCA painted, recreation facilities built, renovated rundown church. There are endless possibilities for manual labor. A local committee would first have to spot the areas of need.

Who directs a workcamp? It might be advantageous to have co-directors. Simple housing might be provided by churches or social agencies. How large should the workcamp be? Sixteen is ideal; ten to twelve, acceptable.

Expenses for delegates: $20 activities fee plus travel to site. National Conference has set aside $1000 for workcamp. How long would workcamp last? That would be a matter to decide. It might last six or seven weeks.

Question was asked: What social agencies might work cooperatively with this workcamp? The Wesley House, Bethlehem Center, possibly Boys' Clubs, nurseries, YM's and YW's, churches.

Early discussion centered around what type of workcamp we might want: either a (1) students in industry type, where individuals would secure daytime employment, or (2) an actual workcamp in which volunteer service is emphasized. Dr. Branch emphasized that, in selecting projects, we must be sure to get a balanced sample so that we don't aceentuate the thing we are trying to conquer. Discussion turned to: Who would direct the workcamp? LeRoy said he had several possibilities, most of them being theological students. Other possibilities: Sam Laird says Dick and Joan England, first year in theology, graduates of University of Miami, might be interested. Consensus of group is that we would want a couple, if possible. (San Antonio is paying $200 to director, $150 to co-director, plus travel)

Discussing possible housing, Dr. Richardson of Gammon explained the summer facilities. He said two apartments would be available to handle girls, and boys could stay in the dormitory. Meals would be a problem. If the Bethlehem Center gets moved into the new building, the old one would give space for keeping the group together. Gammon would have to chop the group up into segments. Clark College offers the best facilities, the group thinks.

Finances: LeRoy says there would be three main possible sources: (1) the National Conference and Board of Social and Economic Relations, (2) local groups - WSCS, etc. (3) conference agencies.

It was formally voted to have a workcamp.

John Tate made the motion that the workcamp be planned for 1957. Motion was seconded and discussed. Bill Cole spoke against motion, suggesting a workcamp for ten or twelve people in 1956 might be possible. Discussion turned to possible finances again. Everyone was definitely concerned that a favorable atmosphere be created in the conference and community agencies. Motion was defeated, four to two.

Dr. Richardson made a motion that final decision be postponed for thirty days as an exploration period to investigate type of workcamp, community acceptance and response, etc. LeRoy suggested three committees, and people were appointed:

Work projects committee - Dr. Richardson, Mrs. Tilly
Local church committee - Dr. Tate, Rev. A. S. Dickerson
Finance committee - Rev. LeRoy King

Various people were designated to contact agencies for possible financial support: Mrs. Tilly, the conference WSCS; John Tate, the conference Board of Missions; Sam Laird, the Southeastern Jurisdiction Council; Bill Cole, the conference Board of Education; Rev. Dickerson, the Negro churches.

The next meeting of this larger committee is scheduled for Monday, February 27, at 10:00 A.M. at Gammon Theological Seminary. Letters will be written to the entire committee reminding them of the meeting.

Respectfully submitted,

Bill Cole, Secretary

Dear Eulalie:

Thanks for the letter of April 16. I hope it will be possible for me to be with you all in August. I understand the hesitation on the part of the several cooperating groups in assuming the financial responsibilities involved and certainly would feel no affront if it were impossible. I would feel only regret that I couldn't accomodate the request. There is no immediate hurry on a decision yet invitations to speak keep coming in. But I would be reluctant to accept one at the period you mention for the Florida Convocation. I will hold open the proposed date until I hear definitely from Rev. Ashton.

Best regards.

Warmly,

Dear Dr. Mitchell:

It is a pleasure to inform you that you have been nominated by the Nominations Committee as a candidate for a member of Section III (Services to Agencies and Communities) of the National Conference of Social Work. This nomination is for the 1954 election, and persons elected will take office at the close of the 1954 Annual Meeting in Atlantic City. The term of office is three years.

I am enclosing a pamphlet which will give you information about the National Conference. You will find references to the Sections on pages 4 and 9. As indicated, the Sections have responsibility for planning the programs conducted at the time of the Annual Meeting. Most of the work is carried on by correspondence, since the Conference does not have funds available for travel expenses of Section members. However, the Section chairmen frequently meet with some or all of their Section members if they are traveling around the country.

We very much hope that you will accept this nomination. A postcard is enclosed for your convenience in replying, and we will look forward to hearing from you. If you have any questions about this, please do not hesitate to write me.

Sincerely yours,

FACTS

about the

NATIONAL CONFERENCE OF SOCIAL WORK

"The National Conference of Social Work is a voluntary association of individual and organization members who have joined the Conference to promote and share in discussion of the problems and methods identified with the field of social work and immediately related fields. The Conference is a forum for such discussion."

—from the Preamble to the Conference Constitution

IN 1874 . . . .

"The times called for a national clearinghouse of ideas and experience; a national medium for the exchange of opinion; a national forum in which to debate and appraise differing theories, policies, and practice; a platform from which could be presented fresh information on social problems and methods of dealing with them as the frontiers of knowledge were moved forward." (From Shelby M. Harrison's Foreword to "Trends in Social Work as Reflected in the Proceedings of the National Conference of Social Work, 1874-1946," by Frank Bruno.)

To serve those purposes, the Conference of Boards of Public Charities was organized by representatives of eight state boards of charities. The history of that organization, now known as the National Conference of Social Work, is the history of social work in this country.

Proof of that statement, if any is needed, may be found with all the drama of understatement in the Table of Contents of Mr. Bruno's book. Included there among the topics discussed at annual meetings are these:

From 1874-1898 . . . . protection of children; the English poor law in America; concern with the insane, the feebleminded, the delinquent; personnel in public service; the organization of charity; migration, immigration, and transiency.

From 1898-1924 . . . . child labor; the juvenile court; mothers' pensions; the recognition of social casework; the council of social agencies; the community chest; public relief emerging into public welfare; children's codes; the first world war.

From 1924-1946 . . . social insurance; social group work; prevention of delinquency; unemployment; social security; transients, immigrants and refugees; minority groups; social reform.

The Proceedings do more, of course, than record the shifting pattern of social problems. They record equally clearly the emergence of a profession.

IN 1948 . . . .

Leaders in the field felt that the time was ripe for an examination of the structure and functions of the various national organizations providing common services in the social welfare field. Members of the NCSW agreed that a study should be made of its structure and program in order (a) to determine whether it continued to serve a purpose in the total picture, and (b) if it did, to assure the social welfare community of a significant and vital organization geared to the national economic and social setting.

A Conference Study Committee, composed of 12 outstanding names in social welfare, was appointed to make this study.

IN 1949 . . . .

After a year of intensive work, that committee reported that the social welfare community in mid-twentieth century continued to need:

1. An autonomous organization, national and broadly inclusive in character, to assume primary responsibility for the forum and discussion function in the field of health and welfare.

2. An organization with unrestricted membership—paid and volunteer, lay and professional, sectarian and non-sectarian, individual and organizational—with officers and committees democratically chosen by majority vote.

3. An organization which would emphasize generic and basic subject matter in the field of health and welfare, leaving national functional agencies and other more restricted membership organizations responsible for specialized technical subject matter.

AND TODAY . . . .

The NCSW is an organization composed of individual and agency members representing all aspects of health and welfare. Its major function is to provide a dynamic educational forum for the critical examination of basic social welfare problems and issues.

In order that the NCSW may continue to provide a democratic forum for so wide a field and so many diverse elements, it is prohibited by its Constitution from taking positions on social issues.

As a basis for defining its particular service to the social welfare field, the membership agreed to accept the recommendations of the Study Committee on its major aims and objectives:

a. To provide a medium for the interchange of ideas and techniques between laymen and professional workers, sectarian and non-sectarian groups, racial groups, specialties within the field and public and voluntary agencies;

b. To assist in improving standards of performance in social welfare and to increase the effectiveness of the individual agencies.

c. To develop a better public understanding of welfare problems, needs, social welfare objectives, programs and methods;

d. To develop citizens' support of and participation in social welfare activities;

e. To emphasize the common elements present among workers and organizations concerned with social welfare programs and services;

f. To assist in sustaining morale among volunteer and paid workers of social welfare organizations;

g. To provide a chronological and cumulative record of basic developments in the field of social welfare;

h. To provide auspices and machinery for related groups.

THE SERVICES OF

1. The Annual Meeting

The Annual Meeting is scheduled in the Spring in one of those few cities which can provide adequate facilities and proper conditions. The Conference attempts to rotate the meetings from east to midwest to west and south, wherever proper facilities are available.

The Annual Meeting extends five or six days. It attracts 4,500 to 6,500 persons from 48 states and 2,000 communities. About 300 different meetings are scheduled with 500 speakers, discussants and presiding officers.

The Annual Meeting is a complex institution. The program is extremely diversified and many kinds of services and activities take place there. It reflects not only the complexity of social work, but also the thrift of social workers who seem to reason that since a basic forum is needed as many other services and purposes as possible should be combined with it.

Anyone may attend the meetings whether a member of the Conference or not. All must register. The Annual Meeting serves the entire social welfare community and not just the members of the NCSW.

A. The Central Meetings

Three types of meetings are planned by, and held directly under the auspices of, the NCSW:

GENERAL SESSIONS, addressed by nationally known figures on broad topics of basic concern to all in the health and welfare field.

SECTION MEETINGS dealing with generic subject matter in the fields of services to: (1) individuals and families; (2) groups and individuals in groups; (3) agencies and communities.

COMMON SERVICE MEETINGS dealing with specific non-technical content in the fields of social research and social studies, personnel, public relations, methods of social action, professional education for social welfare, and financing of social welfare services—subject material with which the practitioner, supervisor, administrator, consultant and board members should become acquainted.

THE CONFERENCE

B. Associate and Special Group Meetings

About 60 Associate and Special Groups plan their own meetings in conjunction with the Conference, making up a large part of the program meetings. These Associate and Special Groups are national organizations which can make real contributions to the enrichment of the Conference as a whole and which have met certain requirements. Some of these meetings are held separately in advance of the Annual Meeting; more are scheduled during it and on days assigned to them.

C. Extra-Program Meetings

There are hundreds of meetings held which do not appear in the program, as many groups and organizations take advantage of the presence of their constituents to hold their own meetings.

D. The Exhibits

There are over 100 consultation and exhibit booths set up by national and state social welfare organizations, and a few commercial organizations. There are special exhibits such as the Combined Book Exhibit, the Case Record Exhibit, the Library Exhibit, and the Film Showings. The Combined Book Exhibit is a relatively new book service; in it the Conference exhibits several hundred publications of leading social welfare and commercial publishers. Outstanding films in social welfare are selected and shown by a special committee of the Conference.

E. Consultations, Conferences, Interviews

Many attending the Annual Meeting take the opportunity to confer with outstanding experts in their particular fields in order that they may take back to their jobs and their communities the counsel of those with broader experience.

F. Employment Service

A special employment service is being provided by the U.S. Employment Service and state employment services at the Annual Meeting. Agencies seeking personnel and individuals attending the Annual Meeting who are seeking positions may register in advance at local offices of their state employment service or at the Annual Meeting.

Some of the national agencies in specialized fields also conduct employment activities at their exhibit booths at the Annual Meeting.

2. Publications

The Proceedings of the Annual Meetings constitute one of the most important publications in social work. They incorporate the General Sessions papers and selected papers from the Sections and Common Service Committee meetings. The Proceedings are distributed without charge to all members who pay dues of $7.50 or more. Additional Annual Meeting papers are published in low-cost volumes, conveniently grouped according to interests and sold at discounts to members.

In 1948 the NCSW published Trends in Social Work — as Reflected in the Proceedings of the National Conference of Social Work — 1874-1946 by Frank J. Bruno.

3. Book Service

Significant books in social welfare are selected and offered at discount to members who pay dues of $7.50 or more. This service is growing in popularity. A list of these books and current volumes of selected papers is available on request.

4. Services to State Conferences

Although state conferences of social work do not have any administrative relationship with the NCSW, they often pattern their meetings after it and look to the national staff for advice and counsel. The national office serves as the secretariat for the National Association of State Conferences for whom it conducts regional and national meetings. State conference materials are collected and distributed, an operations manual has been prepared for their use, and studies are occasionally made at their request. The NCSW is making every effort to offer increased service to state conferences and to establish closer working relationships with them.

5. Services to the International Conference of Social Work

The NCSW has had much to do with originating and fostering the ICSW, a worldwide forum organization for individuals and organizations concerned with meeting the social welfare needs of people. The Executive Secretary of the NCSW serves as Secretary-General of the International Conference.
The U.S. Committee of the ICSW is provided secretarial service by the National Social Welfare Assembly. ICSW memberships in the U.S.A. are serviced by the NSWA.

6. Regional Meetings

A new pattern of meetings was begun in 1950 and is expected to develop further. These are regional meetings held in cooperation with state conferences, drawing attendance from a region and leadership from anywhere. The subject matter which probably relates to some one specific subject or problem has national implications. Other national organizations may cooperate in sponsoring these meetings. They may be held anywhere and give various regions opportunities to participate in the discussion of important problems. These discussions may be preparatory to meetings scheduled later at national meetings.

7. Interpretation

The NCSW recognizes the unique opportunities provided by its Annual Meeting for the broadest kind of interpretation of the social welfare field. In order to make the most of this, as well as to secure increased public understanding of the specific problems and services discussed in as many of the meetings as possible, plans for publicity coverage are made with participating organizations well in advance of the Annual Meeting. During the meeting, an adequately staffed press room is maintained, and an increasing number of newspapers are assigning full-time reporters to its coverage.

> "The NCSW may be regarded properly as one of the most important forces in American social welfare. Throughout its history, its annual forums and publications have had significant educational values for workers and volunteers in welfare, health, recreation and related fields. It has had a constructive influence on the entire field of social welfare."
> from the Study Committee Report

HOW IT OPERATES

Officers and principal operating committees are elected by mail ballot of the members. These and the appointed committees bring nearly 200 members into active participation in administration or program, not including the 500 speakers, discussants and presiding officers in the program of the Annual Meeting.

The national office, located in Columbus, Ohio, is made up of a small year-round staff augmented at the time of the Annual Meeting by temporary personnel.

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE, composed of the officers and twenty-one other members, has overall responsibility for the program of the organization.

THE PROGRAM COMMITTEE is responsible for planning and organizing the Annual Meeting, and programs are based on their suggestions. Program building is a year-round process, in which the Program Committee, the Sections and the Common Service Committees enlist the participation of the entire Conference membership.

THE COMMITTEE ON NOMINATIONS seeks to identify new leadership developing in all parts of the country in order to fulfill most adequately the elective and appointive positions in the NCSW. Members are asked to submit the names of those whose local performance indicates a capacity to contribute to the enrichment of the program of the NCSW. First consideration for such posts is usually given to individual members of the Conference, although anyone who is either a paid or volunteer worker with a member agency is eligible.

MEMBERSHIP PARTICIPATION

Where program must stem from the grass roots and leadership must represent such a heterogeneous constituency, membership participation is of vital importance. It is imperative to have suggestions flowing in from all sections and all fields.

To facilitate membership participation and to assure representation from all sections of the country, nine members of the Executive Committee and nine members of the Committee on Nominations are to be elected on a regional basis according to a plan adopted in 1952 and being instituted progressively, 1, 4 and 7 in 1953, 2, 5 and 8 in 1954 and 3, 6 and 9 in 1955.

HOW IT IS FINANCED

The Conference has a budget of approximately $100,000.00. It operates with a slender margin of reserve. The budget has been examined and approved by the National Budget Committee. Contributions to the Conference are tax exempt.

Membership dues constitute the principal source of support. Attendance or registration fees at the Annual Meetings provide a necessary income which nevertheless falls far short of paying the cost of the meetings. Charges for exhibit booths and program space and other charges meet the costs of these specific services. Membership dues must meet most of the rest, including most of the cost of the Proceedings and the Conference Bulletins, which are distributed to members. Proceedings sold to non-members produce some income. Books offered at discount pay the cost of the service.

Efforts are being made to increase income from various sources.

> "Conferences and conventions are characteristic phenomena of the American way of life. Social welfare as a modern form of expression of society's concern for human beings is no exception to the rule . . . The NCSW should be continued in its present form . . . If the forum function is to be performed properly, it requires democratic control, broad individual and organizational participation and planning and independence of control."

MEMBE

QUALIFICATIONS—BENEFITS

Anyone interested in the purposes of the Conference may be a member. There are at present about 5,500 members, 4,300 individuals and 1,200 agencies. The individual members are remarkably heterogeneous, including many lay board members and volunteers, many doctors, ministers, educators and others in related fields, as well as a substantial proportion of paid social workers in all kinds of positions, in all fields and from over 2,000 communities in 48 states. There are no educational or other such requirements—except an interest and a basic agreement with the purpose.

Most members, coming to realize that the Conference is a continuing force and that it needs and deserves their continuing support, have become continuing members. The number of continuing members is increasing.

The more tangible benefits of membership are listed here:

Agency members pay less for those staff and board members certified to attend the Annual Meeting under the introductory offer system described elsewhere. Certificates or forms provided by the Conference are necessary for this purpose. Students have special rates but must be certified on special forms by their Deans or some faculty member. One-day attendance is allowed at a special fee. There are charges for attendance at single general sessions for persons who have not registered. Advance registrations may be made through the national office. The regular registration fees apply, but there is advantage in time saved.

HOTEL ACCOMMODATIONS

The Conference makes arrangements for the Convention Bureau or hotels to take care of hotel accommodations at the time of the Annual Meeting. Information may be secured by writing to the national office in Columbus.

Room 432, 63 Auburn Ave. NE
Atlanta 3, Georgia

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

The National Conference of Social Work and the Louisiana Conference of Social Welfare is sponsoring an Institute on "Methods of Social Action" in New Orleans, November 4 - 6 of this year.

We are very anxious to organize an exhibit of specially selected materials which would be helpful to the approximately 300 participants who will be attending from the six southern states. These materials should include examples of successful social action projects as well as resource material which would be helpful to an individual or organization with responsibilities in social action.

I am enclosing an outline of the program which will give you some further detail about the Institute to enable you to make a better selection of materials from your organization.

I would appreciate it if your contribution could be sent to Mrs. Jean Benson, c/o Y.W.C.A., 929 Gravier St. New Orleans, Louisiana. The materials should be mailed so that it will arrive on Thursday, October 29.

I will be most grateful for any other suggestions that you may have in respect to the program or special films or recordings which would make a contribution.

Sincerely yours,

Joe R. Hoffer

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

It is a pleasure to inform you that you have been elected a member of Section III (Services to Agencies and Communities) for a three-year period (1954-57).

As you probably know, Mr. Leo Perlis, National Director of the National CIO Community Services Committee, will be chairman of Section III for the coming year, and you will undoubtedly be hearing from him in the near future concerning his plans for carrying on the work of the Section. In the meantime, I am enclosing a copy of a Handbook for Section and Common Service Committee Members, which we hope you will find helpful. The other enclosure is a statement on basic issues for forum treatment prepared by the Executive Committee for the assistance of the Program Committee. You will find a reference to this on page 9 of the Handbook.

To Anna Hayden

Please do not hesitate to let us know if you have any questions about your assignment or if anything comes up in which you think we might be helpful.

PROGRAM COMMITTEE - MEMORANDUM NO. 2

Listed below are some basic issues and problems for forum treatment which the Executive Committee has outlined for the consideration of the 1955 Program Committee. In preparing the list the Committee took for granted that we have a continuing interest in the fields and subjects which have traditionally been the concern of the National Conference. This statement attempts to highlight some of the current concerns suggested by members of the Executive Committee. No attempt has been made to list the points in any priority order. It should be noted that the list was drawn just prior to the opening of this year's Annual Forum.

I. Gaining public understanding of the basic character of social welfare services in our social order; achieving wider public appreciation of the total constellation of welfare services in the nation.

II. How can we have a planned approach to meeting social need together with the preservation of voluntary citizen initiative and of the rights of specialized interest groups?

III. How can we assure that social welfare services receive the maximum benefit from citizen participation and from the contribution of the expert?

IV. Creative social planning in relation to the changing character of our population, family structure and communities. Social workers are in an excellent position and have a responsibility to know what is going on in relation to these changes and what the needs are and to interpret these changes. How can agencies meet the need for flexibility and adaptation? What are the implications in terms of decentralization of administration within the community, from one level of government to another (Federal-State), etc.?

V. Need for a dynamic restatement of government's responsibility for the welfare of the people. Need for a strategy of statesmanship in relating to other groups concerned with the same social ends -- housing, education, etc. How to stimulate social workers to recognize this?

VI. Recruitment for the field. How to make the most effective use of available personnel.

VII. The pursuit of the broad social objective of serving people involves both a concern for refining and improving our practice and relating ourselves to the larger social concerns of this period. How can we answer this challenge and fulfill these inseparable obligations?

VIII. Problems of support and financing.

Dear Agency Executive:

Do you believe that your agency benefits from the Annual Forums, the Proceedings and the other services of the National Conference of Social Work? Of course everyone in the field of social welfare benefits, and even the country as a whole gains in a broad general way, but I wonder whether you believe that you derive some more tangible and more direct benefits.

Do you send staff and board members to attend the Annual Forums? If so, can you do this regularly or only occasionally? How many times have you sent someone to the Annual Forum since 1949? Do your delegates come back with new ideas, with information about the way in which others meet problems comparable to yours, with solutions to some of your problems, better prepared to do their job in your agency?

If you benefit from the program of the Conference, I am sure you will agree that your agency ought to be a member, especially when I tell you that those who simply attend the Annual Forums pay only a small part of the cost of this service.

The Conference is supported largely from dues of individuals and agencies which hold continuing memberships whether they attend or send delegates to the Annual Forums regularly or not. As a matter of fact, very few of our members attend all of our meetings. They support the Conference because they realize the Conference is vital to them, that it must be kept going and that in the last analysis they benefit every year indirectly if not directly.

Perhaps budgetary problems have kept your agency from being a member. And this may be a bad time to try to secure approval for an item of this kind. If these are problems, won't you let us know? We hope you will seriously consider the matter and earnestly support our request that you become a member. A little membership folder which incorporates a schedule of membership dues and an application form is enclosed. If you want our twelve page folder giving you facts about the National Conference of Social Work, let us know.

82nd Annual Forum — San Francisco, Cal., May 29-June 3, 1955

May we hear from you soon? We hope you will become a member of the Conference beginning January 1, 1955. Whether you do or not, won't you tell us something of your experience with the Conference and answer some of my questions? Your answers will help us better serve social welfare.

Sincerely yours,

Joe R. Hoffer

MAR 3 1955

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

I have been authorized by the National Conference of Social Work to invite you to address one of the General Sessions at its meeting in San Francisco on Monday evening, May 30. The subject we would like you to speak on is "Segregation, Desegregation, and Integration." This is one of the five important questions which the Program Committee desire to have discussed at the General Sessions.

Free

I am not sure how familiar you are with the National Conference of Social Work, whose purpose is to provide a dynamic educational forum for the field of social welfare. The enclosed leaflet, "Facts About the National Conference of Social Work," contains additional information about the organization. The Annual Forum covers a period of a week, and we expect that the attendance in San Francisco will be between four and five thousand -- social workers and persons from related fields from all parts of the country. The theme of this year's Annual Forum is "Social Welfare 1955 - Progress, Problems, and Prospects."

In view of the tremendous significance of the Supreme Court decision regarding desegregation in the public schools, the Program Committee felt it was important to have one of the major speeches at San Francisco devoted to an over-all view of the situation as of that date, the problems and prospects and perhaps some indication of the implication of the decision for other aspects of community life. There would be no other speaker on the program of the General Session at which you would speak.

If it appears probable at this time that your schedule will permit you to accept, we do hope that you will consent to do so, because of the widespread desire of our members to hear you. If you have any questions before reaching a decision, I would be happy to answer them. I will be staying at the Carolina Inn in Chapel Hill, North Carolina, for the rest of this month and you could call me there. In any event, I will appreciate your sending me your reply at that address.

Sincerely yours,

Arthur J. Altmeyer

INTRODUCTION

The 1956 Annual Forum of the National Conference of Social Work will follow the general plan of organization recommended by the Conference Study Committee and described on pages 7 and 8 of the January 1949 issue of the Conference Bulletin. *

In its report the Study Committee had this to say about the role of the Conference:

> "If the forum function is to be performed properly, it requires democratic control, broad individual and organizational participation and planning, and independence of control."

The work of the Sections and Committees is of great importance in achieving this.

The purpose of this Handbook is to give the Section and Committee members in convenient form the basic information they will need in carrying on their work for the year. The Conference staff will be happy to receive comments on the Handbook and suggestions for ways in which it can be improved.

Joe R. Hoffer
Executive Secretary

April, 1955

*Copies of this issue are available on request from the Conference office.

I. THE PROGRAM COMMITTEE

The Committee which is particularly concerned with planning for the Annual Forum of the National Conference is the Program Committee. This Committee, subject only to final approval by the Conference Executive Committee, has full responsibility for the National Conference meetings at the Annual Forum. It has no control over the meetings of the Associate and Special Groups.

The Program Committee is composed of the President, Past President and Executive Secretary of the Conference, six members-at-large elected by the Executive Committee, the chairman of the three Sections and chairmen of the three Common Service Committees holding meetings in any given year.

The Program Committee has the following responsibilities in connection with the Annual Forum:

a. Selection of the theme, if there is to be one;

b. Outlining the subjects to be covered in the General Sessions and selection of a slate of speakers for the guidance of the President;

c. Developing a schedule of the time and number of meetings for the Sections and Committees;

d. Approval of the general outline of the programs being planned by the Sections and Committees.

II. ORGANIZATION OF THE ANNUAL FORUM

As indicated on page 3, the Program Committee is responsible for the General Session and the Section and Common Service Committee meetings at the Annual Forum. These are held on Sunday evening, Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

The three Sections are:

1. Section I - Services to Individuals and Families;
2. Section II - Services to Groups and Individuals in Groups;
3. Section III - Services to Agencies and Communities.

The three Sections will meet during the same meeting periods, and each Section may schedule several simultaneous group meetings.

At times when the Sections are not meeting, there will be meetings sponsored by the Common Service Committees. The following Committees will arrange meetings in 1956.

1. Financing of Social Welfare Services;
2. Methods of Social Action;
3. Personnel and Administration.

In order to relieve the over-crowding of the program which has developed in recent years, the other three Common Service Committees will not arrange meetings until 1957.

The time schedule of the 1956 meetings has not been finally settled and will have to be decided on by the Program Committee, probably at its October meeting. The time schedule in 1955 was as follows:

Monday	11:15 A. M.	-	12:45 P. M.	Sections
	2:00 P. M.	-	3:30 P. M.	Sections
	4:00 P. M.	-	5:30 P. M.	Committees
Wednesday	11:15 A. M.	-	12:45 P. M.	Sections
	2:00 P. M.	-	3:30 P. M.	Committees
Friday	9:15 A. M.	-	10:45 A. M.	Sections

Tuesday and Thursday at the Annual Forum are devoted to meetings of the Associate and Special Groups of the Conferene. These are of three types:

1. Combined Associate Group meetings. These are meetings which in recent years over forty of the Associate Groups have joined in sponsoring and planning. The idea of these meetings originated in the Joint Committee on Program Planning of the Conference and the National Social Welfare Assembly. They have been so well received that they have been adopted as a regular part of the Annual Forum structure. The organizations which participate in these meetings agree not to hold their own meetings in competition with the Combined meetings. A committee composed of representatives of eleven of the Associate Groups has the responsibility for selecting the subjects and appointing the program chairmen for the Combined meetings.

2. Joint Meetings. These are meetings sponsored by two or more Associate Groups having interests in a particular subject.

3. Individual Meetings. These are meetings arranged by a single organization.

III. RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE SECTIONS AND COMMITTEES*

The Sections consist of a chairman, a vice-chairman, and twelve members, all of whom are elected by the Conference membership. Each Section chairman has the privilege of adding up to three members to his Section if he considers that certain areas of interest, geographic regions, etc. should be represented.

The Common Service Committees are composed of a chairman, a vice-chairman, and ten members, all of whom are appointed by the Conference President. As in the case of the Sections, the chairmen may appoint up to three additional members to their Committees.

Each Section and Common Service Committee also has an Associate Group representative in its membership. The chief function of this representative is to serve as a channel between the Section or Committee and the Committee on Combined Associate Group Meetings.

The Sections and Committees are responsible for arranging the programs for the Section or Committee sessions at the 1956 Annual Forum of the Conference. This includes planning the program content, selecting and securing speakers and other program participants and preparing descriptive material about each meeting for the preliminary and final printed programs.

Each chairman is responsible for arranging for active participation of his Section or Committee members to carry out this responsibility. This may be done by correspondence, by meetings with small groups of the members or by meetings of the entire group. Unfortunately, no funds are available for meeting the expenses of Section or Committee meetings. Individual members may be given responsibility for developing segments of the program, but all material should be sent to the Conference office by the chairman.

* All references to Committees refer only to the three Common Service Committees which will be arranging sessions at the 1956 Annual Forum.

 An outline of the subject matter considered to fall within each Section or Committee appears in Appendix I (page 13)

IV. PROGRAM CONTENT

Criteria for Guidance of the Program Committee*

The following statement has been approved by the Conference Executive Committee for transmittal to the Program Committee. It contains no original material but is a presentation in an orderly form of statements which are set forth in the Study Committee report and elsewhere.

1. The meetings arranged by the Conference Program Committee should emphasize generic and basic subject matter, leaving to national functional agencies and professional membership associations (the Associate Groups) responsibilities for specialized and technical subject matter.

   Note: The final decision as to whether subject matter should be included in regular Conference sessions should be based on whether it is of sufficient interest and importance to warrant a general audience.

2. The program of the Annual Forum should provide for the following:

   a. Critical examination of basic social welfare problems and issues:

   b. Consideration, appraisal and discussion of current economic and social conditions affecting the field of social welfare;

   c. Reporting of accomplishments and undertakings;

   d. Submitting the results of studies and research;

   e. Raising questions, offering ideas, suggestions and recommendations which may be used by interested organizations as a basis for the formulation of platforms and the endorsement of specific proposals;

   f. Sharing of experiences.

3. In selecting subject matter for inclusion in the program of the Annual Forum, the Program Committee should consider the extent to which it will help in achieving one or more of the following objectives of the Annual Forum:

 Data as to why people attended certain meetings and what they thought of those meetings were collected at 24 meetings in Atlantic City in 1954. A summary of the results is given in Appendix III.

a. To provide a medium for the interchange of ideas and techniques between laymen and professional workers, sectarian and non-sectarian groups, racial groups, specialties within the field and public and voluntary agencies;*

b. To assist in improving standards of performance in social welfare and to increase the effectiveness of individual agencies;

c. To develop a better public understanding of welfare problems, needs, social welfare objectives, programs and methods;

d. To develop citizens' support of and participation in social welfare activities;

e. To emphasize the common elements present among workers and organizations concerned with social welfare programs and services;

f. To assist in sustaining morale among volunteer and paid workers of social welfare organizations;

g. To provide a chronological and cumulative record of basic developments in the field of social welfare.

4. It is not practicable to cover all aspects of the field of social welfare and all the special interests in each Annual Forum, the Program Committee should not attempt to do so.

5. In planning program content, the Program Committee should keep in mind that the Annual Forum audience consists of;

a. Individuals operating at all levels of responsibility, i. e. practitioners, supervisors, consultants, administrators, board members;

b. Individuals operating at all geographical levels, i. e. rural, small communities, large communities, state, regional, national and international

c. Individuals operating in agencies under public and voluntary auspices;

d. Paid and volunteer workers;

e. Professionally trained and non-professional workers.

* Information about the kinds of people that attend the Annual Forum was secured through a questionnaire distributed to all registrants at Cleveland in 1953. A summary of the results appears in Appendix II

6. In planning Section programs*, the Program Committee should attempt to cover the subject matter which would normally fall under the heading of (1) Services to Individuals and Families, (2) Services to Groups and Individuals in Groups, and (3) Services to Agencies and Communities. In addition, attention should be given in each Section to:

   a. Social welfare in special settings, e. g. courts and law enforcement, church, business and industry, formal education, health (hospitals, clinics), public programs (unique aspects), housing, disaster situations, etc.;

   b. Special problem areas (requiring a multi-functional approach), e. g. the aged, children, physically handicapped, youth, veterans, minority groups, migrants and transients, unmarried parents, alcoholics, delinquents, immigrants, etc.

7. In planning Common Service Committee programs*, the Program Committee should bear in mind that these sessions are not for the specialists in the various fields but are to cover subject matter which should be known and of concern to all social workers no matter what their specialty or level of operation.

Basic Problems and issue

To assist the Program Committee in its task of developing the Program for the 1956 Annual Forum, a statement on some of the basic issues and problems in the social welfare field which the Executive Committee believes particularly need attention in 1956 will be distributed to the Program Committee and to all members of the Sections and Common Service Committees.

Plan for Contributed Papers

An announcement has already appeared in the Conference Bulletin that persons who believe they would have a useful contribution to make to the 1956 program may submit an abstract or not more than 300 words summarizing the proposed paper. This should reach the Conference office by October 1, 1955. It should be accompanied by (1) an assurance that a full text of the paper will be made available in advance if requested; (2) an assurance that a final text of the paper will be ready in April, 1956, if the paper is to be on the program; and (3) a statement as to whether or not the author could, if invited, be in St. Louis to deliver the paper in person.

All abstracts received will immediately be forwarded to the members of appropriate Section or Committee for consideration along with other program suggestions. It is proposed that any such papers accepted for inclusion on the program whould be scattered through the regular sessions, indistinguishable from papers which may have been written at the explicit request of the Section or Committee.

V. CONDUCT OF MEETINGS AND INSTRUCTIONS TO PROGRAM PARTICIPANTS

The Joint Committee on Program Planning in 1951 became concerned about improving the conduct of meetings held at the time of the Annual Forum. A subcommittee was appointed to consider the subject, and a preliminary report was presented to the Joint Committee in May, 1951. Following discussion of that report, a revised report was prepared and approved by the Joint Committee at its meeting in October, 1951.

While recognizing that audience participation in meetings is not always possible or desirable, the Committee agreed that in general the greater the participation, the greater the impact or learning value of a meeting. It felt that people should not be asked to listen to the delivery of papers which can just as well -- or often better -- be read at home.

The suggestions in the report of the Joint Committee are contained in a leaflet on "Conduct of Meetings", which will be sent to members of the Program Committee and to all members of the Sections and the Common Service Committees.

Presiding Officers

The results of steps taken to date to evaluate the Annual Forum indicate that Conference members feel that in the past sufficient attention has not always been given to choosing well qualified presiding officers for meetings and instructing them adequately. Some suggestions on this point appear on page 4 and 5 of the leaflet "Suggestions for Conduct of Meetings" mentioned above.

Staff Aides

There will be a volunteer staff aide appointed for each meeting to check on the meeting room facilities, report on attendance and, in general, relieve the chairman of mechanical details so he will be free to devote himself to the successful conduct of the meeting.

Speakers

When speakers are invited, they should be told they will be asked to submit 5 copies of their manuscripts and 5 copies of a 300-word abstract by April, 1956. These are for the use of the Press Service and for consideration by the Editorial Committee for publication in the Proceedings and in the volumes of Selected Papers.

The leaflet "Information for Speakers" contains information about the preparation of manuscripts. A supply of these leaflets will be sent to each chairman for distribution to the speakers on his Section or Committee programs.

Approximately six weeks before the manuscripts are due, the Conference office will write to each speaker giving detailed instructions concerning the preparation and submission of papers and abstracts.

The Conference takes no responsibility for seeing that advance copies of main papers are sent to discussants. Where this is desired, the Section or Committee chairman must arrange it.

At the time of the Annual Forum it is the responsibility of the Section or Committee chairmen to secure any manuscripts which may not have been submitted on the date requested.

VI. LONG-RANGE PROGRAM PLANNING

The Conference Study Committee established several principles which bear a relationship to long range program planning. These include:

1. That it is impractical to attempt to cover all the subject matter in the social welfare field during any single Annual Forum.

2. That the effectiveness and value of the Conference will be increased if more continuity can be introduced into the Annual Forum programs;

3. That it is inefficient to plan an entire new program each year;

4. That the responsibility of the Program Committee will be lessened and its task brought into bounds if there are some continuing meetings;

5. That some subject and/or problem areas need to be treated over a period of several Annual Forums.

In line with these principles it is expected that the Program Committee and Sections and Common Service Committees will proceed with their program planning after careful consideration of what has appeared on the Annual Forum and other programs in previous years. It is hoped that it will also give attention to what may be appropriate for several years ahead.

It is anticipated that a systematic and continuous method of collecting program suggestions will be instituted. These will be presented to the Program Committee, and the Committee, keeping in mind the principles listed above, will have the responsibility for approving tentative commitments for the future programs. The Committee's recommendations are to be incorporated in the minutes of its final meeting.

APPENDIX I.

Suggested Classification of Subject Matter Based on Structure of the Annual Forum Program

The present Annual Forum structure was devised in order to provide for as much flexibility as possible, and therefore no hard and fast rules can or should be laid down as to what subject matter should be covered by each Section and Committee. On the other hand, it is felt that this suggestion classification may be helpful to members of the Program Committee, the Sections and the Committees as a basis for checking to see that important subjects are not left uncovered.

It was agreed by the Study Committee in developing the present structure that the General Sessions should be devoted to broad national and international social and economic issues including such questions as civil liberties. The primary criterion for determining shether a subject should be taken up in a General Session is whether the Program Committee considers it is of sufficient importance so that all those attending the Annual Forum should be informed about it. In view of this, the Sections and Committees should try to keep in mind the subjects to be covered in the General Sessions when formulating their own plans.

Sections

The Section Programs may include the following:

Generally speaking, the subject matter of the six Common Service Committees, some of which might be considered to fall within the scope of the Sections, should be left to the Common Service Committee concerned.

Common Service Committees

The Common Service programs may include the subject matter which falls within the general areas covered by their titles. It is anticipated that each Common Service Committee will utilize material from the related specialty outside the field of social welfare:

Committee on Public Relations - public relations
Committee on Planning Meetings in Social Welfare - adult education Committee on Social Research and Social Studies - social science research Committee on Personnel and Administration - personnel and management
(note: This Committee should deal with the role of the professional and the volunteer worker.)

*Section III may join with other Sections in dealing with this problem

Committee on Financing of Social Welfare Services - public financing foundations

Committee on Methods of Social Action - political science

Special Settings

Social work as practiced in the following special settings should be the concern of any or all of the Sections and Committees, depending on the particular problem involved:

1. Courts and law enforcement agencies
2. Church
3. Business and industry
4. Labor unions
5. Public schools
6. Hospitals, mental health clinics, rehabilitation centers, etc.

10. Minority groups - racial and religious
11. New communities
12. Physically and mentally handicapped
13. Unmarried parents
14. Veterans
15. Youth
16.

Other Professions

All Sections and Common Service Committee programs should, where appropriate, contain material on the contributions of and relationships to other professions, such as:

1. Social sciences (sociology, anthropology, psychology, economics)
2. Medicine
3. Education
4. Law
5. Clergy
6. Nursing
7. Home Economics
8. Business administration

International

All Section and Committee programs should, where suitable, reflect the increased importance of international social welfare. This may take the form of introducing examples and illustrations from other countries (by speakers from those countries, if possible). In addition, attention should be given to the nature of international welfare programs and the role of American social work in these programs.

OPERATION QUESTIONNAIRE

by Merriss Cornell

A Report on the Cleveland Analysis of Attendees

At Cleveland – 1953

This report is a summary of the study of registrants at the Cleveland Annual Meeting, 1953. The study was designed to help in the process of evaluating the National Conference, by providing information about the people who attend and some of their reasons for attending. Your Program Committee will use the results in planning future Annual Meetings. We are indebted to the many persons who participated in planning and carrying out the study to its completion as well as the registrants who provided the basic data. (See the Bulletin, Summer 1953 for more background on the study).

Most registrants cooperated in filling out the questionnaires. The 4698 questionnaires that were sufficiently complete to tabulate represented 9 out of 10 of the registrants. Some of the attendees in the rush to complete registration turned in blank or nearly blank questionnaires. Others went to the other extreme and checked too much.

WHO ATTENDS?

A little less than 90 per cent of the attendees reported that they were employed in social work. Lay attendance was small — 272 persons or 5.8 per cent. The only sizeable group among the lay persons were 97 housewives who were board members or volunteers. The following percentages are based on the 4698 attendees reporting:

	Per cent
Employed in social work	88.8
Other occupations—lay persons	5.8
Students	5.4

The 88.8 per cent who reported that they were employed in social work represented 4174 persons. The largest part of this group was employed in voluntary non-sectarian agencies:

		Per cent
Voluntary		60.6
Sectarian	17.6
Non-sectarian	43.0
Governmental		37.5
Others (and no report)		1.9

SPECIALTY

Specialty in social work was difficult to classify. One out of 8 attendees checked more than one specialty. Others did not find their specialty listed and may have checked a class that was not appropriate. In the following tabulation each specialty was counted whether checked alone or with another:

	Per cent
Child welfare	22.4
Group work and recreation	15.4
Family service	13.5
Medical social work	12.8
Community organization	12.6
Mental health services	12.6
Public assistance	9.6
Research	2.9
School social work	2.7
Other	11.3

Among the "others" were a variety of persons such as, teachers, administrators, clergy, and probation, correctional, and rehabilitation workers.

POSITION

Some have said that the administrator is about the only person who attends the Conference. The administrator did account for a little over one-third of the registrants but he was closely followed by the practitioner. The percentages in the following chart were based on the 4174 registrants employed in social work:

SALARY

The annual salaries of social workers attending the Conference were well above the salaries of all social workers reported in the Bureau of Labor Statistics study in 1950:

	Per cent Cleveland 1953	B.L.S. 1950
Under $3,600	19.1	71.0
$3,600 to $5,999	56.5	25.4
$6,000 and over	24.4	3.6

EXPENSES PAID?

The employing agency paid the expenses of nearly one-half of all the social workers attending at Cleveland. If the attendees from Cleveland Metropolitan Area were excluded, the proportion with all expenses paid would be increased by about four per cent. The following percentages are based on 4085 social workers who answered the question:

	Per cent
All or nearly all	49.3
Partial	21.9
None	28.8

Could we not find a way for more practitioners to attend this Social Welfare Forum? Many of our higher-salaried administrators have their expenses paid.

HERE, THERE, AND EVERYWHERE

The Conference can be proud of the wide geographical representation of its attendees. Of course, there were:

	Registrants	Per cent
From Cleveland Area	702	14.9
From Ohio	1161	24.7

But represented among the registrants were:

4 out of 5 of the 168 U. S. Metropolitan Areas
46 of the 48 States and the District of Columbia
4 U. S. Territories
3 Canadian Provinces
18 Foreign Countries

Besides Ohio there were seven other states with more than 100 registrants, they were in order:

	Registrants
New York	732
Michigan	341
Illinois	339
Pennsylvania	318
District of Columbia	140
Indiana	128
Massachusetts	111
California	86

GEOGRAPHIC LEVEL OF OPERATION

The Conference reaches down to the grass roots and at the same time has wide geographic representation. Nearly three-fifths of the social workers report that their agency operates on the local level:

	Per cent
Local level	56.9
State or district	24.4
National or regional	13.2

WHY ATTEND?

One of the biggest questions for the Conference planner is - why do people attend? Each person was asked to check three major reasons. A few persons checked more than three but more tended to check less than three. The percentages in the check are based on the total of 4698 attendees reporting:

MEMBERSHIP

Over two-thirds of the persons attending the National Conference reported affiliation thru either individual or agency membership. Many of the attendees failed to answer the questions about membership or did not know whether their agency had membership in the National Conference. The results were as follows:

Individual or agency membership	Per cent
Both	16.1
Individual only	21.6
Agency only	29.9
Neither	14.8
No report	17.6

DAILY ATTENDANCE

Closely related to reasons for attendance is the daily pattern. Monday, Wednesday, and Friday June 1, 3, and 5 were set aside for regular Conference Meetings with the opening session coming on Sunday evening Tuesday and Thursday June 2 and 4 plus the three early meeting days of Friday, Saturday, and Sunday were for Associate and other special Group Meetings. The average attendee stayed about four and one-half days. The days from Sunday thru Friday were by far the biggest. About 7 out of 8 persons were in attendance on Tuesday - the peak day. These percentages are also based on 4698 attendees:

		Per cent
Friday	May 29	9.0
Saturday	May 30	14.9
Sunday	May 31	50.8
Monday	June 1	78.8
Tuesday	June 2	87.3
Wednesday	June 3	83.5
Thursday	June 4	71.5
Friday	June 5	49.0

PAST ATTENDANCE

We were curious to learn what if any relationship existed between attendance at Cleveland in 1953 and attendance during recent years. Registrants were asked to check each of the last five meetings they had attended (1948 to 1952) or some earlier meeting. About 30 per cent of the 4698 attendees reporting checked no previous meeting. But among the other 70 per cent, every possible pattern of attendance was represented—from 322 persons reporting at least 6 straight years to 878 persons with but one prior year. The summary of all previous years checked is as follows:

	Per cent
No previous meeting	30.0
Chicago 1952	34.4
Atlantic City 1951	27.4
Atlantic City 1950	26.7
Cleveland 1949	31.7
Some earlier meeting	35.1

BUT WHAT NEXT?

We could now put together the imaginary "typical" attendee but we need to know something more important in our evaluation of Annual Meetings. We need to know how he thinks and reacts toward the various meetings and sessions, we need answers to such questions as:

Do you approve of the choice of topics for discussion? of speakers? of discussants? of panel participants? Which topics attracted large attendance? Did the group participate actively in the discussion?

These and many other questions would form a framework for a more complete evaluation. Let's learn more in '54!

Evaluation of 1954 Annual Forum – Operation QM.

by Merriss Cornell and Harold DeRolph

Editor's Note:

The second step in the evaluation of Annual Forums was taken in Atlantic City, following the analysis made in 1953 of the people who attended the forum in Cleveland. This second study is an attempt to answer some of the questions which developed out of that evaluation, specifically why persons attend certain meetings and how they evaluate these meetings.

Many individuals contributed to conducting this study. Credit is due particularly to Mrs. Sophia M. Robison, New York School of Social Work, Mrs. Elizabeth Herzog, Research Consultant Department of Health, Education and Welfare and Edward B. Olds, Adult Education Association of America, who set up the method for the study and formulated the questionnaire. The results were tabulated and summarized at the School of Social Administration, Ohio State University. The following article was prepared and written by Dr. Merriss Cornell, research professor, and Harold DeRolph, graduate assistant, who prepared tables of the tabulations for the program committee for use in their preparation for the 1955 Annual Forum.

Plans are being made to continue this study in San Francisco, the Conference believing that we need more information on what attenders want on the program of the various meetings they attend. Evaluation studies will be a continuous part of the Conference activity.

The questionnaires were distributed among the attenders at the four Common Service Committee meetings on Monday at 4 p. m. and the 20 Section meetings on Wednesday at 11:15 a. m. A total of 2389 completed questionnaires were received for the two days. The Wednesday meetings had the higher attendance as well as the larger percentage of questionnaires returned:

	Estimated Attendance	Questionnaires Number	Per cent
Monday	1450	601	41.4
Wednesday	2545	1788	70.3

More confidence can be placed upon the evaluations for the Wednesday meeting because of the 70 per cent returns. Possibly the late afternoon hour of the Monday meeting caused attenders to hurry out to other activities.

WHO ATTENDS?

In answering this question we must keep in mind that our information is based on questionnaires filled out by attenders of meetings on two days, not the total registrants. About one person in six attended both the Monday and Wednesday sessions.

SPECIALTY—The line-up of specialties is about the same as it was in 1953. The child welfare specialty leads with 20.4 per cent as compared with 22.4 per cent, the previous year. If we add up the specialties concerned with services to individuals and families we find that more than two-thirds are in this broader class. The following percentages are based on the 2309 persons reporting that they are employed in social work:

	Per cent
Child welfare	20.4
Family welfare	13.8
Medical social work	11.4
Psychiatric social work	11.1
Group work and recreation	10.5
Community organization	9.2
Public assistance	8.5
School social work	2.0
Public relations	1.8
Research	1.4
All other	9.7

POSITION—The administrators still lead among attenders but they dropped from 36.8 per cent at Cleveland to 31.5 at Atlantic City. This reduction may indicate that the administrators were out recruiting personnel rather than attending one of the meetings. The percentages are based on 2302 attenders reporting specialty:

	Per cent
Administrator	31.5
Practitioner	30.7
Supervisor	19.8
Consultant	7.3
Teacher	3.7
Other	7.0

AGENCY AUSPICES—The distribution here is almost identical to the report for the previous year. In this report we show a more detailed tabulation of the percentage of social workers employed in sectarian agencies:

Voluntary — non-sectarian		42.9
Voluntary — sectarian		18.8
Protestant	9.6
Jewish	5.0
Catholic	4.2
Governmental		34.4
Other		3.9

GEOGRAPHIC LEVEL OF OPERATION — The Annual Forum can well be pleased that nearly two-thirds of the attenders represent agencies operating on the neighborhood or local level. These attenders not only represent the largest group, 63.4 per cent, but also show an increase from 56.9 per cent for the 1953 Forum. The detailed percentages by level of operation are as follows:

	Per cent
Neighborhood (within a city)	11.1
Local (city or county)	52.3
District (within a state)	9.6
State	13.4
Regional	4.9
National	6.3
International	2.4

WHY CHOOSE THIS MEETING?

The key item in this study gave the attenders an opportunity to choose two reasons from a list of twelve statements. The percentages in the chart below are based on 2389 attenders, but each took their two choices. In any such selection it is difficult to determine how much the choices are affected by the order of the statement. One factor which seems to indicate that the attenders were discriminating, is that the reason checked most frequently was tenth in the list.

Reason	Per cent
To get some background or knowledge about a field which is not my specialty but which I'd like to be informed on	61.3
For my own continuing professional education	43.7
To keep in touch with modern thought in my own field of interest	40.3
To get specific help or answers to problems I am facing on my job	22.2
To see and hear a particular speaker—for example, a colorful or controversial figure, an outstanding leader, a gifted orator	12.9
To hear a controversial issue discussed, so that I can check my attitudes and make some analysis of the pro's and con's	8.8
I am expected to report back to my own agency on this particular meeting	3.7
All other reasons	7.1

More than three out of every five attenders chose a particular meeting to learn about a field other than their own. This general educational theme is carried on into all the leading choices — to continue learning — to keep in touch — to get answers. The more specific reasons, related to specific problems—to a particular speaker—to a controversial issue—are left to the lower choices. The surprise to the Program Committee is the small per cent checking—"I am expected to report back to my own agency . . . ."

This pattern of reasons for choice of meeting was consistent through all 24 meetings on both Monday and Wednesday. In 18 out of 24 meetings (three-fourths) the same first reason was picked. All other leading reasons would vary only one or two places.

HOW WERE THE MEETINGS RATED?

By circling the appropriate answer, each attender was asked to rate the individual meeting on the following scale: EXCELLENT;—GOOD;—AVERAGE;—BELOW AVERAGE;—POOR.

Each meeting was rated first, on an over-all basis; second, on physical arrangements; third, on audibility of speakers; and fourth, on competence of speakers. For obvious reasons, individual meetings are not identified. Ratings will be given for the following classes of meetings:

	Number of meetings
Monday, 4:00 P.M.
Common Service Committee Meetings	4
Wednesday, 11:15 A.M.
Section I—Services to Individuals and Families	12
Section II—Services to Groups and Individuals in Groups	5
Section III—Services to Agencies and Communities	3

In order to simplify, only the rating most frequently given for each meeting will be reported. In practically all cases it will represent the rating of from one-third to two-thirds of the attenders.

OVER-ALL RATING—These ratings are generally high for all 24 meetings. The Section I Meetings — received the highest set of ratings:

Classes of meetings	Meetings with rating of Excellent	Good
Common services		4
Section I	6	6
Section II	1	4
Section III	1	2
All 24 meetings	8	16

PHYSICAL ARRANGEMENTS—Much dissatisfaction is indicated with such things as ventilation, noise, acoustics, and seating comfort. In one meeting more poor ratings were given than any of the higher ratings.

Classes of meetings	Meetings with rating of Excellent	Good	Average	Poor
Common services		2	2
Section I	2	8	1	1
Section II		1	4
All 24 meetings	2	13	8	1

Two critical comments that appeared many times were the discomfort from heavy smoking and the noise made by late-comers. One attender puts it—"Why not close the door on late-comers? Symphony orchestras do it!"

AUDIBILITY OF SPEAKERS — Few meetings were criticized because of difficulty in hearing the speakers. However, one attender suggested the use of a portable microphone for questions from the floor.

Classes of meetings	Meetings with rating of Excellent	Good	Average
Common services		4
Section I	9	2	1
Section II	4	1
All 24 meetings	15	7	2

COMPETENCE OF SPEAKERS — The Program Committee was pleased with the consistently high ratings of the speakers. Many attenders lamented the fact that attendance at such an excellent meeting should be so poor. Some negative criticisms indicated material was too technical or that a good paper was spoiled by poor delivery.

Classes of meetings	Meetings with rating of Excellent	Good
Common services	1	3
Section I	10	2
Section II	4	1
Section III	1	2
All 24 meetings	16	8

TIME ALLOCATION — For this rating the attenders were asked to check: — TOO MUCH; — ENOUGH; — TOO LITTLE.

The time for speakers, discussants, and discussion from the floor was rated. The following percentages summarize the attenders reports for all 24 meetings:

	Percent rating
	Too much	Enough	Too little
Speakers	10.5	82.3	7.2
Discussants	21.5	70.4	8.1
Floor discussion	2.4	52.2	45.5

Here we have three important recommendations in planning future meetings:

1. For speakers the time allocation appears to be satisfactory. Only a slightly higher per cent of the attenders said "too much" rather than "too little."
2. The attenders lean toward the opinion that too much time is allocated for discussants. One person said papers were excellent and no discussants were needed. Others felt that discussants should discuss, not present a paper of their own.
3. For floor discussion, nearly one-half of the attenders agree that too little time is given. No single reason for this stands out. Some reported that too many papers were presented which left no time for discussion, or that the presiding officer consumed too much time. At one meeting, many people felt that the material presented was of a controversial nature which should have been resolved through discussion.

FORM OF ORGANIZATION — The attenders were asked—"Would some other form of organization have been preferable for this meeting?" Nearly all attenders at the 24 meetings agreed that the form was satisfactory. A few said that they would prefer the form of panel used on TV, with short presentations and more time for discussion among the panel and from the audience. The following percentages are based on 1950 attenders who answered the above question:

	Per cent
Yes — some other form	13.8
No — OK as it is	86.2

KIND OF SUBJECT—The last question asked was — "Does the subject of this meeting represent the kind of subject you want to hear discussed in Annual Forum sessions?" The 2167 attenders who answered this question were almost unanimous in their approval of the subject discussed:

	Per cent
Yes — approve	97.8
No — disapprove	2.2

Of course the attenders, in most all cases, had chosen the particular meeting because of its subject. Only a few said that a friend had persuaded them to come, or that they could not get to the meeting of their first choice for some reason or another.

To Conclude—The Attendees at the Annual Forum:

- Represent all areas of social work practice with the largest numbers in the family and child welfare specialties.
- Come to learn what's new in all fields of social work.
- Like the subjects chosen for discussion.
- Give high ratings to most all speakers.
- Complain about delivery of some speakers, heavy smoking in small rooms, and noise made by late comers.
- Would like more time to discuss the issues themselves.
- Think the TV type panel might be used to advantage to bring out more discussion.

Statement on Basic Problems and Issues

At its meeting on May 29, 1955, the Executive Committee discussed the preparation of a list of basic problems and issues needing forum treatment. It was agreed that the questions on the list which had been prepared last year for the 1955 Program Committee were of continuing concern and should be brought to the attention of the 1956 Program Committee for consideration. The items are:

1. Gaining public understanding of the basic character of social welfare services in our social order; achieving wider public appreciation of the total constellation of welfare services in the nation.

2. How can we have a planned approach to meeting social need together with the preservation of voluntary citizen initiative and of the rights of specialized interest groups?

3. How can we assure that social welfare services receive the maximum benefit from citizen participation and from the contribution of the expert?

4. Creative social planning in relation to the changing character of our population, family structure and communities. Social workers are in an excellent position to have a responsibility to know what is going on in relation to these changes and what the needs are and to interpret these changes. How can agencies meet the need for flexibility and adaptation? What are the implications in terms of decentralization of administration within the community, from one level of government to another (Federal-State), etc.?

5. Need for a dynamic restatement of government's responsibility for the welfare of the people. Need for a strategy of statesmanship in relating to other groups concerned with the same social ends -- housing, education, etc. How to stimulate social workers to recognize this?

6. Recruitment for the field. How to make the most effective use of available personnel.

7. The pursuit of the broad social objective of serving people involves both a concern for refining and improving our practice and relating ourselves to the larger social concerns of this period. How can we answer this challenge and fulfill these inseparable obligations?

8. Problems of support and financing.

In addition, the Executive Committee wishes to call the following points to the attention of the 1956 Program Committee for special consideration for the 1956 program:

1. It would be desirable to have a positive approach throughout the program with some assessment of accomplishment. One possibility would be to have the keynote speech along these lines.

2. Since the members appear to favor changing the name of the organization to National Conference on Social Welfare, the implications of this change should be reflected in the program. Such a change would indicate that there should be considerable emphasis on broad social issues.

3. The perennial question of the emphasis in the program on broad social problems and issues and on strengthening methods and techniques is not and "either/or" question. The important thing is to see that the program represents a balance between the two and does not go too far in either direction.

4. There are a number of timely problems which should be receiving greater attention from the social welfare field, or the field will lose them entirely. They are such things as: the chronically ill, vocational rehabilitation, corrections (probation, parole, protective services), administration of social services. It would be desirable to give special attention to some or all of them at the 1956 Annual Forum.

5. A stock-taking of social work in rural areas is needed, as this whole subject has been neglected in recent years.

6. The implications of suburban life for family should be analyzed and assessed. This is broader than the question of providing services for new communities and involves consideration of the problems created by the increasingly general pattern of the father working in one community and living in another.

7. Consideration of freedom and responsibility in a democratic society. It might be helpful to have a thoughtful analysis of this as there seems to be a good deal of confusion about the relationship between the two doctrines.

Note: No attempt has been made to list the points above in any priority order.

Memorandum To: Section III

From: Ruth M. Williams, Assistant Executive Secretary

Subject: Abstract of Paper

August 10, 1955

On page 9 of the Handbook for Section and Common Service Committee members sent you earlier you will find a brief description of the plan by which interested individuals can submit abstracts of papers they would like to have considered for presentation on the program of the Annual Forum. This plan is described in greater detail on the enclosed sheet.

Also enclosed is an abstract which has been received in our office. In submitting it Mr. Murase said the ideas for this paper developed from his preparation for, and experience from, a Fulbright assignment to Japan (1952-53), and from subsequent study in connection with teaching responsibility for a seminar in international social work at the school. He also indicated that:

1. A full text of the paper would be available in advance if requested;

2. The final text would be ready in April, 1956, if the paper were selected for the program;

3. He could be in St. Louis to deliver the paper in person.

Since it appears from the abstract that this paper might be of interest to any of the Sections, copies are being sent to the members of Sections I, II and III. You will undoubtedly be hearing from Miss Gifford about it.

NATIONAL CONFERENCE OF SOCIAL WORK

Abstract of Some Considerations From International Social Work

Submitted by: Kenneth Murase, Graduate School of Social Work, University of Washington, Seattle 5, Washington.

American social workers have contributed generously to international social welfare through participation in programs of technical assistance. In our concern, however, to be giving of our social work knowledge and skills, are we overlooking ideas and experiences that we may take from foreign countries to enrich our own social welfare programs, practice and training?

Social Welfare Programs

If our public social services continue to expand, much can be learned from countries where public programs are advanced. For example, we may learn:

(1) how, under programs of broad social security measures, the individual is protected from the depersonalizing impact of state welfare services (e.g. Australia);

(2) how social services, including family and health services, are integrated into a social insurance program (Brazil);

(3) how public programs and trade unions jointly administer services such as nurseries, kindergartens, children's theaters, summer camps and clinics (Poland); and

(4) how industries, where public programs are lacking, assume responsibility for health and welfare services (France).

Social Work Practice

As problems of basic human needs throughout the world are being met increasingly through social planning, what is the role of the social worker? Are there implications for practice in such developments:

(1) Skills from all three processes of casework, group work and community organization are utilized by multi-purpose social workers in community centers in many countries (e.g., Egypt).

(2) In community development programs, social workers coordinate their activities with those of nurses, mid-wives, nutritionists, teachers, etc., (India). Can we develop similar skills in the multi-discipline approach to community problems as well as to individual problems?

Social Work Education

The wide diversity of curriculum patterns of social work education in other countries may suggest certain adaptations:

(1) Students are rigorously trained to use social science tools for insight into the cultural, political, social and economic sources of social problems (e.g., Switizerland). In Columbia, the thesis is based upon an experiment that is not only new but also needed in the community. How can we identify and use more effectively appropriate materials from the social sciences to strengthen the scientific base of social work practice in this country?

(2) Social workers in other countries take an active role in the development of social policy. What can we learn from these countries about training for leadership?

NATIONAL CONFERENCE OF SOCIAL WORK

Plan for Submitting Abstracts of Paper

Despite every effort of National Conference Program Committees to secure as speakers at the Annual Forum not only the acknowledged leaders in the field but also qualified people who may not yet have achieved national recognition, it is inevitable that many with genuine and important contributions to make have been overlooked.

In an effort to remedy this situation and to extend participation in the Annual Forum programs as widely as possible, the Conference Executive Committee has approved a plan of "talent scouting." It goes without saying that there is a great deal of fine experimental work going on in local and state communities throughout the country. Because the purpose of the National Conference is to provide a democratic forum in which all diverse points of view may be heard, and in which all advances of professional knowledge may be shared, the Conference urges that individuals and organizations cast aside their traditional cloaks of modesty and make their experiences available to the field as a whole.

The procedure to be followed is this:

1. Any individual in the field of health and welfare, or in a related field, who believes that he or his organization has a contribution to make is asked to submit to the National Office of the Conference an abstract of not more than 300 words summarizing the proposed paper.

2. This abstract should be accompanied by:

   a. an assurance that a full text of the paper will be available for consideration in advance if requested;

   b. an assurance that a final text of the paper will be ready by April, 1956, if it is to be on the program;

   c. a statement as to whether or not the author could, if invited, be in St. Louis to deliver the paper in person.

3. To receive consideration for the 1956 Annual Forum, abstracts must reach the Conference office by October 1, 1955. Abstracts received after that date will be held over for the 1957 Program Committee.

4. All abstracts received will be forwarded to the appropriate Section or Committee for consideration along with other program suggestions. They will also be sent to the appropriate Associate Group when the subject matter falls within the range of interest of an organization. Any papers accepted for inclusion on the program will be scattered through the regular sessions, indistinguishable from those which have been written at the explicit request of the Section or Committee.

Abstract of A Method of Psychiatric Consultation with Community Agencies: A Progress Report

Submitted by: Jack Steneck, M. S. W., Barbara J. West, M. S. W., Nyla J. Cole, M. D., and Leonard H. Taboroff, M. D., from the Departments of Psychiatry and Pediatrics and The Utah Child Guidance Center, University of Utah College of Medicine, Salt Lake City, Utah

How can one relatively small Child Guidance Center meet the ever increasing demands of community and state agencies for Psychiatric services?

The Utah Child Guidance Center has been faced with this problem since its inception in 1949. Due to economic pressures, the number of professional staff has remained relatively unchanged in the face of increased referrals for diagnosis and treatment with the popularization of psychiatry. Many of these referrals were either inadequately prepared for psychiatric service or else could have been handled by the referral source itself or by other community agencies.

We have devised a somewhat unique method by which agencies are offered regularly scheduled psychiatric consultation on an "in-unit" basis, with follow-up consultation by the psychiatric social work staff. This paper will describe in detail our experiences and progress to date.

OCT 15 1955

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

It was with extreme regret that we learned of Selene Gifford's resignation as Chairman of Section 3 -- Services to Agencies and Communities, of the National Conference of Social Work. As Vice Chairman of this section, I was drafted to take her place, and I hope I can do only half as good a job as she would do. We are fortunate in that she is going to remain a member of our Section.

As I understand our assignment, it is to plan for four different Section meetings, two to be held on Monday of the conference, one on Wednesday, and one on Friday. We will have to relate the planning of these meetings to the programs of the various conference committees and associate groups, and to decide whether or not we wish to sponsor joint meetings with any committees or groups. I now have, in my possession, the conference programs for the past three years, together with conference program suggestions which have been received for our section for the past three years, program suggestions which have been received from the social research group which relate to our Section, the report of the Committee on Combined Associate Group Meetings, and the suggestions which were made for our Section at the Conference Program Committee meeting held last week.

It is admittedly quite an assignment to fit all of these things together, particularly within the framework of the total Conference program.

I think it would be highly important to have at least one meeting of our Section, but I am fearful of not being able to do this because of the wide geographical spread of our committee membership.

However, I would like to explore this matter further with you and the other members of the Committee. I would appreciate it therefore, if you could return the enclosed card to me at your earliest convenience indicating whether or not you could attend a Section meeting to be held on Friday, November 11, 1955.

If it turns out that enough members of the group could meet on that date, we would hold it then, and if not, we would have to set up a procedure to handle the assignment by correspondence.

October 12, 1955

I know that you have received some material from the conference office which may or may not make it clear as to what our assignment is. I therefore would plan to cover this in an all-day meeting, if we have one. If not, we would have to work out some plan of doing it by correspondence.

I am very happy that you are a member of our Section, and I hope that you will bear with me in carrying out our assignment. Thanks a lot.

Cordially yours,

Daniel R. Elliott

Enclosed is an abstract which has been received in the Conference office for consideration as a part of the program of the St. Louis Annual Forum.

National Conference of Social Work

Abstract of The Interplay of Constructive-Minded Professional and Non-Professional Citizens in Laying the Groundwork for a Youth Bureau in a City of 75,000

Submitted by: Paul J. Woolf, Executive Director, Family Service Association, Mt. Vernont, N. Y.; Chairman, Sub-Committee #2 of the Mayor's (Mt. Vernon) Committee on the Needs of Youth; Chairman, Mental Hygiene Committee, Community Welfare Council, Mt. Vernon, New York

How often have we heard someone excuse himself from action by asking "What can one person do about it?" This paper tries to answer that question, giving a detailed account of what went on in the community, together with an analysis of factors favoring and militating against the success of such interplay.

The stimulus was a fire started in a High School by some children. Spontaneous and immediate use of community resentment was the opportunity for a constructive act: the formation of the Mayor's City-wide Committee to Combat Juvenile Delinquency. Later constructively revised as the Mayor's Needs of Youth Committee.

Construction of the Mayor's Committee, and the subcommittees. Method of running the subcommittees, with special emphasis on the one assigned to evaluate current resources and to make recommendations as to how to supplement these.

Mutual education by committee members. Reading assignment. Frequency of meetings. Interviews with key people in Youth agencies: Board of Education, Children's Court, Juvenile Aid Bureau, SPCC. Use of GAP Questionnaire, and of research by the Leisure Time Committee of the Community Welfare Council. Collaboration with the Mental Hygiene Committee of the Welfare Council, including some joint meetings.

Reports of the subcommittee to the Mayor's Executive Committee. The major final recommendation set forth in the final report was suggested in the first report, but subsequent time was spent evaluating existing facilities, matching these against needs, evaluating alternative plans, building up respect for the committee in the Executive Committee, in the community. Working with the State Youth Commission.

Presentation of the final report to the Executive Committee, and by the latter to the Mayor. Problems of timing, and of politics. Preparation for meeting with the Chairman of the Health and Welfare Committee of the Common Council. Final outcome.

Lesson to be learned: While most people cannot do much alone, in collaboration with other construtive-minded citizens, working as a team, each contributing his own particular skills, several individuals can achieve a great deal.

I have compiled the reports about the convenient dates for a meeting.

The consensus of opinion is that the meeting of the Program Committee will be held in New Orleans on Friday, September 21, 1956, at 3:00 p.m., 700 Lafayette Street, Welfare Department Board Room.

The National Conference cannot pay expenses for anyone to come to this meeting. If you happen to be in New Orleans, I sincerely hope you can plan to come to the meeting.

If you cannot come to the meeting, will you please send me comments because the discussion will be on those subjects which the Committee wants me to present to the National Program Committee for approval for the conference.

Re: Abstracts Received from Rilma Buckman, Gertrude Binder and Sylvan S. Furman

I noted on my return to the office that abstracts from the above named persons have been sent to all members of the Committee.

I have received a comment from Mr. Pettit in regard to the one from Gertrude Binder.

I have reviewed the abstracts of these people. My personal opinion is that the ones from Gertrude Binder and from Sylvan Furman would not be of general interest and I question whether there would be an audience sufficient to giving the time for these subjects.

I have not arrived at any decision in regard to the abstract from Miss Buckman. Perhaps the content of her paper is not within my area of competency and I hesitate about making any decision as to whether we could use Miss Buckman for one of the meetings, have her give the abstract of her paper and then open the meeting for discussion. I do not know whether this discussion would lead to problems of community organization in small communities for we do not have a meeting scheduled for this group, or whether you think this subject would be of interest to the attendance of people at the Conference. I am asking for your help in evaluating Miss Buckman's paper.

May I hear from you as soon as possible because if you believe that it is advisable to accept her offer, we do have to begin to make immediate plans. I shall abide by your decisions.

NATIONAL CONFERENCE ON SOCIAL WELFARE

Abstract of Community Organization is Social Work Process

Submitted by: David M. Austin, Chairman, Eastern Massachusetts Chapter, NASW, 43 Mt. Vernon Street, Boston, Mass.

Social work is a service profession. Historically social work has developed three major service areas.

1. Service to individuals
2. Service to groups
3. Service to communities

In each area there is a problem, a client, and a professional worker. Communities have problems when a large number of individuals have similar problems. A community can be considered as a client with a developing awareness of a problem and requesting help. The professional social worker serves the client community through the inter-group.

Community organization has often been identified with a series of supportive activities such as fund-raising, research, etc. These activities are part of the work of a community welfare agency but are not basic community organization service.

Community organization service involves three major stages. First, analysis and diagnosis; second, development of a plan of action; third, carrying out the plan of action.

The basic skill of the social worker is a skill in human relationships. This can be used in a one-to-one situation, in a one-to-group situation or in a worker and inter-group situation. The community organization worker uses the worker and inter-group situation primarily but he also operates in the other two situations. The community organization worker uses the generic skills common to all of social work plus special knowledge required by the agency setting.

Dear Mr. Dunbar:

This will confirm our telephone conversation and tell you how delighted we are that you can participate in a session of our section in the National Conference on Social Welfare. Section VI in the Conference deals with Methods of Social Action and in six sessions during the week, May 23 to May 28, issues of concern to social welfare leaders will be discussed.

The first session of our Section will be Monday morning, May 24, 11:15 - 12:45. The general title for the session is Civil Rights and Civil Disobedience. Mr. William L. Taylor, General Counsel for the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights will speak on the subject "An Appraisal of the Strategies of Protest." He will have thirty minutes for his presentation after which we would like to have you, in the role of discussant, take twenty minutes to make comments, highlighting certain points, raising questions and helping sharpen the issues as a basis for a general discussion during the last thirty minutes of the session when participants will have an opportunity to ask questions.

Monday afternoon from 2:00 - 3:30 the second session is scheduled. The general subject is "Implementing Civil Rights Laws: Legal Enforcement and Voluntary Compliance." Mr. Taylor and Mr. Clarence Mitchell of the NAACP will be speakers in this session, Mr. Taylor dealing primarily with responsibilities for legal enforcement and Mr. Mitchell with voluntary aspects of enforcement, also indicating areas where further legislation is needed. There will be thirty minutes following their presentations for discussion and questions from the floor. We would like very much to have you in this afternoon session, serving as an additional resource during the discussion and question period.

The Conference will be held in Atlantic City. I do not yet have information about where our sessions will be held so will have to send this information later. We appreciate so much your willingness to participate in these important sessions and look forward to working with you.

Dear Mr. Taylor:

This will confirm the conversation I had with you in your office and tell you how gratifying it is to know that you will speak in two of our section sessions in the National Conference on Social Welfare.

The first session Monday morning, May 24, 11:15 to 12:45 has been given the general title Civil Rights and Civil Disobedience. In the preliminary program the subject for your paper has been listed as "An Appraisal of the Strategies of Protest." If you decide on a different title as you develop your talk, we can substitute it in the final printed program. If your paper were ready by the first week in May it would give Mr. Dunbar an opportunity to read it and prepare his remarks as a discussant.

The second session, Monday afternoon, May 24, 2:00 to 3:30 focuses on "Implementing Civil Rights Laws: Legal Enforcement and Voluntary Compliance." We would like to have you deal with enforcement under the law - what the law requires and the government methods and resources for securing compliance. We have asked Clarence Mitchell to deal with ways of securing voluntary compliance and the role of voluntary agencies and organizations in helping to implement the law along with securing additional legislation where needed. We are suggesting that each of you take twenty-five minutes for your presentations, leaving thirty minutes for questions from the floor.

I am enclosing copies of the letters I have sent to Leslie Dunbar and Clarence Mitchell about these two sessions.

We appreciate so much your cooperation and the kind of leadership you are giving in the Civil Rights Commission.

Sincerely,

Ethlyn Christensen, Chairman

It always helps if our speakers have prepared papers. I am aware of the difficulty of finding time to write a paper, but if it is at all possible we would be grateful because we use these after the Conference as resource material in many useful ways.

I have asked Mr. Dunbar to stay for the afternoon session and participate as a resource in the question period. It would be very good if you could be with us in the Monday morning session, 11:15 to 12:45 to serve as a resource in a similar way.

Dear Mr. Dunbar:

You have received a copy of the Conference Bulletin which contains the preliminary program of the Annual Forum of the National Conference on Social Welfare to be held in Atlantic City, May 23-28. Since it is difficult to find ones way through such an extensive program, I am enclosing a copy of the schedule for Section VI sessions.

The session in which you will participate on Monday, May 24, 11:15-12:45 does not have a meeting place listed. All speakers and leaders are asked to register as soon as they arrive. At that time they will receive a copy of the final program which will contain information about the location of meetings. The information desk located in the registration area will be glad to answer any questions. I will be at the Ambassador Hotel. For your convenience in making hotel reservations you will find a reservation information form on the back of the Preliminary Program sent you from the National Conference office.

I have written Mr. Taylor to ask if he could send us his paper as soon as possible so that you would have an opportunity to see it in advance. We knowhow many demands there are on his energies and the difficulty of finding time to prepare a paper. I am hopeful, however, that we will have one soon. You, of course, already know something of Mr. Taylor's approach since you have been in other meetings with him.

We look forward to seeing you in Atlantic City. If you arrive Sunday evening, we may have an opportunity to get together before the Monday morning session.

Dear Miss Christensen:

Thank you for your letter of April 26. I am enclosing a biographical sketch and, as you suggested, copies of my speech of last year at the Civil Liberties Clearing House conference. Mr. Dunbar, I believe, has a copy because he has commented on it in a speech of his own. But you may want to send him an additional copy anyway.

I intend to bring the speech up to date, but I may not be able to do so until shortly before the session. In this connection, you will recall that when we first talked of the conference, I suggested that it might be helpful in updating the speech if you could identify some of the particular problems faced by social workers in this area so that I might try to address myself to them. I know this may be difficult to do since you are in the midst of making preparations for the conference, but if you have any thoughts on the matter I would appreciate receiving them.

Thanks also for your kind words and good wishes. I look forward to seeing you on May 24.

Dear Mr. Taylor:

I am enclosing a copy of the schedule and program for the Section VI - Methods of Social Action sessions at the National Conference on Social Welfare. We believe that in light of current developments we did well in determining that the focus for this year's sessions should be on Civil Rights and Civil Liberties. It is especially gratifying to know that you will be speaking in two of our most important sessions, those at 11:15 - 12:45 and at 2:00 - 3:30 on Monday, May 24.

At the morning session, 11:15-12:45, Mr. Paul Mendenhall, Staff Representative, AFL-CIO Community Service Activities, will preside. The afternoon session 2:00-3:30 will be Chaired by James Brindle, President, Health Insurance Plan of Greater New York. Would you please send me biographical material which they can use in introducing you. I have sent a copy of my February 15th letter to you to each of the chairmen so they are familiar with the plan for the sessions. Mr. Dunbar will be the discussant following your presentation in the morning and you and Clarence Mitchell will share the time in the afternoon.

When I talked with you I suggested that the paper you gave at the Civil Liberties Clearing House Conference a year ago on Civil Rights and Civil Disobedience could very well be the basis for your presentation in our morning session at the National Conference on Social Welfare. You thought at the time that it might need some revision because of changes in the situation since then. If you have had an opportunity to make revisions and have a paper prepared, I would appreciate having three copies, one for Mr. Dunbar, one for Mr. Mendenhall and one for me. I know the many demands on your time and can well understand that you may not have had an opportunity to rewrite your original paper. If not, I wonder if you think the paper you have could be sent to Mr. Dunbar and Mr. Mendenhall as the basis for your presentation, with the understanding that you would make some revisions. I will see that they get copies if you will send them to me.

For your convenience in making hotel reservations you will find a reservation information form on the back of the Preliminary Program sent you from the Conference office. The Information desk located in the registration area will be glad to answer any questions. We look forward to having you with us in Atlantic City.

I want to take this opportunity, though belatedly, to congratulate you on your appointment as Staff Director of the Commission on Civil Rights. We are grateful to have a person of your qualities directing the Commission.

Memorandum To: Program Participants, Atlantic City Annual Forum

From: Joe R. Hoffer, Executive Secretary

The Welfare Administration, at the invitation of the NCSW Program Committee, has prepared a seventy-five page booklet summarizing twelve recent Federal Laws which we feel are most likely to receive attention at the Annual Forum. Copies will be distributed without charge to all Forum attenders at the Registration Desk.

Since printing schedules have made it impossible to provide copies to program participants prior to their registration in Atlantic City, we are including an outline of its contents so that you may avoid duplicating the material covered in preparing your manuscript. The twelve laws summarized are as follows:

1. Juvenile Delinquency and Youth Offenses Control Act of 1961-P.L. 87-274
2. Manpower Development and Training Act of 1962 - P.L. 87-415
3. Public Welfare Amendments of 1962 - P.L. 87-543
4. Maternal and Child Health and Mental Retardation Planning Amendments of 1963 - P.L. 88-156
5. Mental Retardation Facilities and Community Mental Hea lth Construction Act of 1963 - P.L. 88-164
6. Vocational Education Act of 1963 - P.L. 88-210
7. Manpower Development and Training Amendements of 1963 - P.L.88-214
8. Civil Rights Act of 1964 - P.L.88-352
9. Juvenile Delinquency and Youth Offenses Control Act Extension - P.L. 88-368
10. Economic Opportunity Act of 1964 - P.L. 88-452
11. Foster Care for Dependent Children - P.L. 88-641
12. OASDI, and Other Amendments to the Social Security Act - P.L. 88-650

The purpose of the pamphlet as stated by the Welfare Department "is to summarize those Federal Laws which have substantial and significant import for the welfare community". We believe that it will be especially important in relation to the theme for this year's Annual Forum - "Social Change through Social Welfare and the Law".

Dear Mr. Dunbar:

I am enclosing a copy of a paper Mr. Taylor gave a year ago. He is revising it to bring it up to date in terms of developments since then, but he will be dealing with some of the basic ideas in this paper in his presentation in Atlantic City. He is trying to get his written revision to us before the Conference begins but, understandably, the pressure of his work makes it diffixult to find the time needed. He says he thinks you already have a copy of this paper and that you are familiar with his thoughts on the subject.

If you by any chance have time to write your comments, it would be helpful because of our desire to use Conference papers for educational purposes in a variety of gatherings and training sessions.

We look forward to seeing you in Atlantic City.

Remarks on William I. Taylor's Presentation,
"An Appraisal of the Strategies of Protest,"
National Conference on Social Welfare,
Atlantic City, May 24, 1965

I heard Mr. Taylor deliver this paper, in its earlier form, last year, and I have since then had occasion to speak of it as the most valuable recent statement on this subject that I know of. I have, as Mr. Taylor knows, some quite substantial disagreements with it, but they have not deterred him from saying the same things again. So I have not persuaded him, and shall not attempt to persuade you. My reason for declining another debate with him is twofold: In the first place, my disagreements are essentially philosophical, and I hesitate to presume on the attention or time of social workers to discuss philosophy. In the second place, my agreements with Mr. Taylor are larger and more important than my disagreements.

His is a good analysis because it strikes against loose thinking and loose terminology. The term "civil disobedience" has become lately hardly more than a tag, a verbal hiccup, used interchangeably with a lot of other words, such as "demonstrations," "mass protests," "picketing," "sit-ins," etc. Mr. Taylor has told us clearly what is the truth, that much of the civil rights direct action movement has been an appeal for the protection of the law or a use of the law's privileges, and not a disobedience of the law.

The idea of civil disobedience is an old one, going back at least to the Biblical account of the refusal of Daniel and his friends to bow down to Nebuchadnezzar's golden idol, and to Sophocles' great play, Antigone. In the later, patient working out of western ethics, the idea secured the sanction of natural law, and became part of the moral tradition of western civilization. I see no point in arguing again or anew the case for it. Few if any of us would deny that there is a moral right and, in some cases, a moral duty to disobey morally vicious laws, at least when they issue from illegitimate governments. I think it is safe to say that an ultimate right of civil disobedience is part of the moral consensus of western civilization, recognized by all its great religions.

At the same time, that moral consensus and those religions have instructed us not to engage in civil disobedience lightly, without urgent cause. So I think we should not talk lightly or loosely about the subject, and Mr. Taylor's paper is good for us because it says to many of us, stop your loose talk. It says to us that we should not indulge in the conceit of believing and asserting that we act on a great and hallowed moral principle when in fact what we are doing is something quite different. Most of the so-called civil disobedience of the last few years has been simply a use of one kind of power against other kinds of power.

But something has been taking place these late years which has been different, and which is not, I think, fairly captured by Mr. Taylor's analysis. We are all greatly dependent on the lawyers to guide us, to keep us out of trouble and get us out of trouble, and, in America at least, to govern us. But we need not necessarily concede to the lawyers the right to describe our world and its values for us.

The old moral principle of civil disobedience is very hard to track down in the complexities of American law, with its federal system and its doctrines of judicial review. But it is not hard to track down the fact that during the past decade thousands of individuals have offered themselves for arrest, imprisonment, and punishment, and have done so undertain of their personal fates or the law's outcome. They have, in short, been willing to suffer, and many, many of them have suffered. They have thought of themselves as civilly disobedient, and if the lawyers wish and will later came along and say that they were not disobedimnt, that is nice, but somewhat after the fact.

I think that what we have seen in the direct action movement has been an appeal not to the moral conscience of the nation, but to its political principles. I think we have seen the development of mass protest as a method of political change. I think we have been told that for many Americans the established processes of political change are considered worthless. I think that many people besides Negroes have received the message, and that direct action demonstration and protest has become a part of American political life, at least for the present and immediate future. I think that from the University of California to Westchester County highway construction to New York City tennis courts, the message has been picked up.

We need to ponder this. We need to recognize that the legal and political institutions we have so proudly built up do not work satisfyingly for many people in many situations. We need to ask why, and while we are looking for an answer, we need sympathetically to concede that those who make their protests in novel and even radical form may be laying the groundwork for a new and better democracy.

Dear Mr. Dunbar:

Thank you very much for sending your comments on Mr. Taylor's paper. We appreciate somuch your taking time to write these comments for us. They' are very helpful and we will be using them along with the paper in some of our YWCA Training sessions.

I am enclosing a copy of Mr. Pemberton's paper on "Is There a Moral Right to Violate the Law?". I know you heard his address, but I thought you might like to have a copy of his paper.

Thank you so much for your contribution in the sessions at the Welfare Conference. What you did there has value beyond the sessions themselves, since we will be using the material in many groups.

Dear Mrs. Williams,

We do thank you for your kind letter about the Q and A pamphlet. Twenty were sent to you at Miami yesterday.

I'll hope mightily that you persuade many of the State groups to order good big blocks. The matters needs understanding and just a little of that will melt a lot of confusion and some prejudice. And I can see local discussion groups on this issue building a first bridge between PTA's, and t eachers, and everybody. Further, I can see a lot of signs of cities and counties being ready now to elect or appoint Negro persons to local school boards. They tell me my remarks on that point at Miami were disliked by some present, but surely that's right and ought now to be done.

Oklahoma in June is beyond any present probabilities, but I like Oklahoma and will hope for some way to show up!

Let us know when you come to Atlanta.

Sincerely,

George S. Mitchell

Dear Dr. Mitchell:

Thank you for your letter concerning the two pamphlets that state the case so well for the case now before the Supreme Court. I have studied both of them with a great deal of interest and I do not hesitate to say that they should be in the hands of all who will be affected by any decision that is made.

The budget of our national organization has been made and approved by that body and we have no item that would cover the cost of these copies in large numbers to our state branches. Our is not a rich body and I hesitate to go over the ruling of the body. But this concise and helpful material must reach our constituency.

I am therefore ordering 20 copies of " Questions and Answers" from you. I will in turn forward one to each state president and ask that they order them. I will also acquaint them with the excellent checklist. It so happens that our Executive Committee will sit as our Intergroup Committee and meet with the comparable group of the white national P.T.A. ina meeting in Montgomery, Ala. Feb. 6 and 7. I will take my copies to present to them (other group) with the hope that they will be interested in using them too. It would be superb if I could place a copy with each of them. There will be about 5 of them.

I will go to Langston University the week-end of January 29-30 th to check plans for our national convention there about the third week of June. Would you by any chance be in that area during that time? (I refer to the June date).

It was with sincere regret that I had to be in New York when you visited here in November. The Community Council is still plugging away. It will be my privilege to appear on a panel in our local school board building this month. The program is sponsored by the Council and our discussion will be on the segregation case with all its implications.

Please accept my humble congratulations . You and the Southern Region Council are rendering invaluable service to this great country.

Mrs Thelma S Pegram, President
Virginia Congress P T A Covington, Virginia

Dear Mrs Pegram:

A recent issue of the JOURNAL AND GUIDE gave us news of your election as President of the Virginia Congress of Colored Parents and Teachers. We would like to propose that the Virginia Congress buy enough copies of the enclosed two pamphlets - or the QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS one only if need be - for each or at least many of your local groups to get them. The pamphlets are geared to local discussion group use. The first one develops the issue and the second enables a group to move on fact finding about their local school differences.

The Virginia Council of Churches has already sent out sixty or so and the Department of Christian Social Relations of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Richmond has sent out a goodly quantity. The Virginia State Teachers Association expects to get several hundred and send them out. Reverend W Carrol Brook, at Staunton, Virginia, Acting Chairman of a special subcommittee of the Virginia Council of Churches has mailed out forty or so to county school board people in the state.

Elsewhere in the South, the two booklets have been sent about amazingly. The Mississippi State Department of Education bought a thousand of each. The Southern Presbyterians have bought about two thousand. The Board of Education of the Methodist Church has sent them out to Superintendents for Southeastern and South-central jurisdictions. The Southern Baptist Convention got two hundred fifty. The Girl Scouts and the YMCA and the YWCA and the National Council of Negro Women and a whole long list of organizations have similarly helped in getting it spread around.

The QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS goes at ten cents each in quantity and the CHECK LIST at eight cents.

These are the precious weeks for getting sound understanding of the issues. People are still open minded in a way that they won't be after the Supreme Court's decision comes out.

I do hope that you will consider carefully whether you can be helpful with this effort.

Sincerely yours

George S Mitchell

Portsmouth Site Of 1954 PTA Sessions

Prizes Awarded At Lawrenceville To Outstanding Units In State

By P. BERNARD YOUNG JR.

LAWRENCEVILLE, Va.

The 26th annual convention of the Virginia Congress of Colored Parents and Teachers closed its three-day session here at Russell High School Friday afternoon after choosing Portsmouth as its next year's meeting place and adopting resolutions encouraging support of anti-segregation cases, payment of poll taxes, and voting in all elections.

The two hundred registered delegates and visitors, representing over five thousand active members in scores of PTA units throughout the commonwealth, concerned with the official theme, "For each child an equal chance", declared in the resolutions that:

"Whereas the NAACP has been carrying on a fight to end segregation on public carriers and in public programs, be it resolved that we as individuals support the organization with its efforts."

THE CLOSING SESSION was highlighted by the election of officers and the distribution of various prizes to outstanding member units for membership growth and other accomplishments.

New by-laws and constitution were adopted by the convention, eliminating the post of executive secretary as an elective office and providing for an executive committee to replace a formerly elected board of managers. Mrs. S. M. Burrell of Richmond had been serving as the executive secretary.

Mrs. Grayce S. Hudley, of Chase City, resigned as vice-president, and Mrs. Clara Faulcon, of Hampton, and Mrs. Eunice Minnis, of Norfolk, resigned as recording and corresponding secretaries, respectively. Under the new by-laws, the corresponding secretaryship was dispensed with and a new post created, that of historian.

THE ELECTION OF the following was by unanimous standing vote:

Mrs. Thelma M. Pegram, Covington, president; Alfred K. Talbot Jr., Purcellville, first vice-president; Ira Warmack, Roanoke, second vice-president; Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson, Lawrenceville, recording secretary; Mrs. Juanita Peyton, Newport News, treasurer, and Henry A. Davis Jr., Norfolk, a past president, historian. The executive committee will choose an executive secretary.

In other resolutions the PTA Congress decided that unit names that are similar be hereafter identified by name and number to simplify identification; urged more support of the organization's Founder's Day programs; advocated that a state wide radio or TV program, or both, be a feature of future Founder's Day celebrations during February; directed that reports in the future be mimeographed and provided delegates to reduce the time consumed by verbal reports, or the reading of written reports.

TROPHIES WERE awarded as follows:

Clara L. K. Bailey Cup, donated by the Portsmouth Council, for increased membership, to Greenbriar School, Hampton.

John M. Gandy Cup, donated by the Roanoke Council, for the largest increase in membership by a local council, to the Richmond and Vicinity Council, which added 939 members during the past year.

Past Presidents' Cup, for the largest percentage of increased membership, to District Nine, accepted by Ira Warmack of Roanoke for Harrison School there.

The John M. Bott Cup, provided by his widow, for the largest council membership, to the Richmond and Vicinity Council.

The Founder's Day Cup went to the Hampton PTA Council for having raised the largest amount of money during Founder's Day celebration. This cup was donated by the Lynchburg PTA Council.

CERTIFICATES RECOGNIZING high percentage increases in active membership also went to the Greenbriar and Harrison Schools of Hampton and Roanoke.

Banners went to the Lylburn Downing School of Lexington and the Harrison School of Roanoke PTAs.

Prizes went to Mrs. Floria Friend of Richmond as the oldest delegate present. She is 63. Mrs. Velora Johns of Hopeville was recognized as the youngest delegate. She is 22. The prize for the delegate having the largest number of children went to Mrs. Ethel Duckett, Roanoke, and Mrs. Ethel Williams, of Portsmouth, both of whom have eight children.

THE PUBLIC SESSION held Thursday night, featuring an address by President Earl H. McClenney of St. Paul's Polytechnic Institute here, drew a capacity audience of over 600 to the auditorium of Russell High School.

Among the special guests were Mrs. A. S. Younger, president of the West Virginia Colored PTA Congress, and Mrs. Mayme Williams of Miami, Fla., president of the National Congress of PTA.

Thanks,too,for the letter. I agree wholeheartedly with your opinion expressed about school board members. Our progress in this area is certainly too spotty. Dear Mayme:

I was down home for a very few days for Christmas. Tried to get in touch with you but no luck. I did get to talk with Mike Ross and he told me about the good developments in the Dade County Council on Community Relations. I'm really quite impressed with our "baby."

The work with the Southern Regional Council goes well and I find it very enjoyable working with George Mitchell. He is a guy, as you know, of great vision and unusual courage and terrific endurance. The relationship in the office is a free and easy democratic one in which we all feel free to discuss what is going on. It is a real pleasure to work with an organization of this persuasion. While I miss you all and Miami very much, I am thankful that I took this job even though it meant living in Atlanta.

Mayme, I was wondering if it would be possible for your group, the National Congress of Colored Parents and Teachers, to use our pamphlet on the public school decision, Answers for Action, through your state organizations. I have been traveling over the twelve Southern states from Virginia out to Texas and from Florida up to Kentucky and I discover that in both the white and Negro teachers groups there is not a very thorough understanding of what is involved in the transition that faces us at this time. I believe this pamphlet in the hands of the proper Negro and white leadership would greatly assist the South to make a peaceful and timely transition to an integrated school system. We still have several thousand copies on hand and can supply them to your group at sixteen cents each in bulk quantities.

As you are well aware, the rough states are going to be South Carolina, Georgia, Northern Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and upper Louisiana. I believe that Texas, Arkansas, Tennessee, Kentucky, most of Virginia, and North Carolina and also the large metropolitan areas of Florida and New Orleans can make this transition without too much difficulty. It would be my hope that we can utilize every step of progress any place in the South to speed up the process throughout the rest of the South.

If we can make considerable progress in the more progressive areas the "hold-back" areas will feel pretty much alone and are far more apt to come along.

Drop me a note and let me know what you are doing at Booker T. and what is happening in Date County in general. I surely miss the opportunities we used to have to get together and talk about what is going on. There is an advantage to having a job in which you get the overall view but there is a frustration in it in that you don't really dig very deeply below the surface in any given community and while you may see the early sprouting of that which you have helped create you never really see the roots nor the bearing of fruit of that which you have planted. I believe, though, that at this time in the history of our nation the contribution I can make will be far greater here in this program than it would be as an academician, no matter at what school I might have taught.

My very best regards to your good husband, to my other friends down there. I shall always remember what you said the night you presented me with the brief case for the group. I shall remember it with pride because of the people you represented and I shall remember it with humility because of the much larger task that yet remains to be done and the knowledge that I can play such a small part in it.

PREPARING TO MEET TODAY'S CHALLENGES
OUR ACTION PROGRAM

National Congress of Colored Parents and Teachers

I. Support of the PTA Objects, Constitution and By-laws, Principles and Policies.

1. We shall continue to give full support to these basic ideas and philosophy, and make them dynamic in our programs and procedures.

II. Development of the theme: "MEETING TODAY'S CHALLENGE."

1. Being fully aware of the need for making our theme a functional one, we pledge ourselves to work unceasingly to improve our homes, our schools and our communities.

2. There is a great need for homes where children are loved and are secure. There is a need for closer relationship with the schools, and for equal educational opportunities for all. We desire communities where the democratic concept is practical and where all children and youth are protected.

3. We accept this challenge of our time. Let us dedicate ourselves to meet it.

III. Other specific ways to make our Action Program effective:

1. There is great need to gear our programs and activities in the following areas:

a. Character and Spiritual Education
(Spiritual enrichment and moral responsibility)

b. Human Relation
(Understanding the community and the people who live in it.)

c. Physical and Mental Health
(Why people act as they do. How mental and physical health affect the personality.

d. Parent Education
Encourage Study Groups - Citizenship and parental responsibility combined with the willingness to learn and grow)

e. Occupation Skills
(Help youths to select, train for and find their vocations. Cooperate in providing for vocational education)

f. Juvenile Protection
(Emphasis on adequate protection and prevention. Provide leisure time activities for children and youth.

The needs of children and youth will be better met if we as parent teacher members provide opportunities and create favorable conditions for the development of this Action Program.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

The June 1956 annuanl convention of the National Congress of Colored Parents and Teachers will mark the 30th Anniversary of this organization - thirty consecutive years of study and labor for the improvement of children and youth through parent education. We feel sure that each of us on reviewing the results will be able to note gaps that would not now exist had we but worked more assiduously. We are grateful for the accomplishments thus far.

Beginning in May 1926 with four states, Alabama, Delaware, Florida and Georgia, the roster grew to include all the states in our country that separated its children because of race. These were twenty in number and the District of Columbia, providing a goodly number of mothers and fathers, teaches and other interested persons cooperating to help children. This was a step forward.

New Mexico was the first state to inform us "we think it wise to discontinue membership with the National Congress of Colored Parents and Teachers as there is little separation here because of race." This was another step forward as their name was removed from the roll. The president of the now vanishing New Jersey Congress of Colored Parents and Teachers, visited the annual convention to announce that as the schools were integrating it seemed wise for the PTAs to follow. More progress. In June 1955 the state president of Kansas, Missouri and a representative of the District of Columbia Congress came to the annual convention to sever relations with the segregated body, the schools in their respective states to a very great extent having integrated. From these different points of view, the National Congress of Colored Parents and Teachers marches on advancing as it diminishes.

It is a happy incident that a few of those who were instrumental in the organization of the Congress are living today to witness the fruits of their forward thinking. Mrs. Henry R. Butler, Sr., living then in Atlanta, Georgia, who led the group, and became the first president, and subsequently, the second president; Mrs. Pearl Smith, Savannah, Georgia, who seconded the motion that the states working separately should combine and form a national body. Because of their vision, thousands of local parent teacher members have been trained to plan and work together under the same leadership though living far apart; interest in the home and community life of children and youth has been advanced adding to their well being, comfort and joy; mothers and fathers are striving harder to meet the challenges of parenthood; communities are more cognizant of the fact they have the responsibility to provide a suitable atmosphere for their young citizens; there has been coperation with school teachers and officials in securing increased opportunities for the educational advancement of children. None of these jobs is in any sense complete, but there is a recognition of what ought to be done and an attempt to do something, and some things have been accomplished.

In these days of changing society, this thirtieth birtday presents a tremendous challenge to each local unit to cultivate even greater diligence to a sense of duty, faith in themselves and the cause they have espoused, and with all courage to endure.

At the coming 30th annual convention in Louisiana in June, the Congress will evaluate its program, celebrate its victories and study to salvage its defeats. Each of the sixteen remaining states will be proud to report the part it has played in promoting the onward march of the National Congress of Colored Parents and Teachers.

Dover, Delaware

Dear Mrs. Henry:

Many thanks for your kind letter of February 2nd inviting me to participate in a workshop session on Monday, June 20th, in San Antonio, Texas. I shall be pleased to attend this session and to speak on the subject, "Steps to Meet Pressing Problems," which I assume will deal specifically with the problem of desegregation and integration in the public schools. I will, of course, be glad to serve as a consultant on that topic for that day.

The financial responsibility for this service will be cost of transportation to San Antonio and return to Atlanta. The most reasonable method of transportation is night air coach and I shall be pleased to use this method. If it is possible to find any additional funds, a modest honorarium for the Southern Regional Council would be appreciated but my services are available, of course, without the honorarium.

May I suggest that your Texas organization (which will be acting, no doubt, as host to the convention) contact our Executive Secretary for our Texas Commission on Race Relations: Mr. Thomas S. Sutherland, 309 West 21st Street, Austin, Texas. I believe you will find him to be of service to you in many ways and he will be glad to offer you his full cooperation.

Mrs. Charles Williams, your president, has long been a good friend of mine. I taught at the University of Miami in the Department of Human Relations and knew her down home on several different university projects and committees. I also had the pleasure of being a fellow graduate student with her at the Center for Human Relations Studies, New York University.

Thank you very much for asking me to participate in this workshop and I shall look forward to seeing you in Texas if opportunity for our meeting does not present itself prior to that.

Cordially yours,

Dear Mayme:

Thank you for your good letter of March 31 confirming your invitation to me to attend and speak at the annual convention of the National Congress of Colored Parents and Teachers. I have noted on my calendar the dates of June 18 and 19 for Shreveport and will count on being there this time for sure.

You ask about the financial considerations involved. They are these: transportation round-trip, Atlanta to Shreveport, plus living costs while in Shreveport. It would be nice if you all could find a fifty dollar honorarium for the Southern Regional Council. Most groups usually do this when either George Mitchell or I speak to them, but let it be said my coming is not dependent on any honorarium.

I have read with interest your Annual Report summary to the National Board of Managers and find that you have been a most capable President and a most active person during your tenure in office. My congratulations to you on a job so obvisouly well done.

I too enjoyed seeing you in Memphis and meeting your good friend. Alice Spearman of South Carolina did relay your message to me and I was deeply appreciative. Alice said that you were one of the most wonderful persons she had ever met and that you exuded goodness as few others she had ever known. I trust that Irene was a great success in her address to the Dade County Council. I was interested in receiving an announcement from them regarding the meeting. There is great need for local councils and local effort to see us through these challenging and exciting times.

When next I get to Miami I shall certainly stop by to see you.

My best regards to my many friends down there. I think of you all so often and miss the good times we used to have together.

Warmly,

Frederick B. Routh

PREPARING TO MEET TODAY'S CHALLENGES
OUR ACTION PROGRAM

National Congress of Colored Parents and Teachers

I. Support of the PTA Objects, Constitution and By-laws, Principles and Policies.

1. We shall continue to give full support to these basic ideas and philosophy, and make them dynamic in our programs and procedures.

II. Development of the theme: "MEETING TODAY'S CHALLENGE."

1. Being fully aware of the need for making our theme a functional one, we pledge ourselves to work unceasingly to improve our homes, our schools and our communities.

2. There is a great need for homes where children are loved and are secure. There is a need for closer relationship with the schools, and for equal educational opportunities for all. We desire communities where the democratic concept is practical and where all children and youth are protected.

3. We accept this challenge of our time. Let us dedicate ourselves to meet it.

III. Other specific ways to make our Action Program effective:

1. There is great need to gear our programs and activities in the following areas:

a. Character and Spiritual Education
(Spiritual enrichment and moral responsibility)

b. Human Relation
(Understanding the community and the people who live in it.)

c. Physical and Mental Health
(Why people act as they do. How mental and physical health affect the personality.

d. Parent Education
Encourage Study Groups - Citizenship and parental responsibility combined with the willingness to learn and grow)

e. Occupation Skills
(Help youths to select, train for and find their vocations. Cooperate in providing for vocational education)

f. Juvenile Protection
(Emphasis on adequate protection and prevention. Provide leisure time activities for children and youth.

The needs of children and youth will be better met if we as parent teacher members provide opportunities and create favorable conditions for the development of this Action Program.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

The June 1956 annuanl convention of the National Congress of Colored Parents and Teachers will mark the 30th Anniversary of this organization - thirty consecutive years of study and labor for the improvement of children and youth through parent education. We feel sure that each of us on reviewing the results will be able to note gaps that would not now exist had we but worked more assiduously. We are grateful for the accomplishments thus far.

Beginning in May 1926 with four states, Alabama, Delaware, Florida and Georgia, the roster grew to include all the states in our country that separated its children because of race. These were twenty in number and the District of Columbia, providing a goodly number of mothers and fathers, teaches and other interested persons cooperating to help children. This was a step forward.

New Mexico was the first state to inform us "we think it wise to discontinue membership with the National Congress of Colored Parents and Teachers as there is little separation here because of race." This was another step forward as their name was removed from the roll. The president of the now vanishing New Jersey Congress of Colored Parents and Teachers, visited the annual convention to announce that as the schools were integrating it seemed wise for the PTAs to follow. More progress. In June 1955 the state president of Kansas, Missouri and a representative of the District of Columbia Congress came to the annual convention to sever relations with the segregated body, the schools in their respective states to a very great extent having integrated. From these different points of view, the National Congress of Colored Parents and Teachers marches on advancing as it diminishes.

It is a happy incident that a few of those who were instrumental in the organization of the Congress are living today to witness the fruits of their forward thinking. Mrs. Henry R. Butler, Sr., living then in Atlanta, Georgia, who led the group, and became the first president, and subsequently, the second president; Mrs. Pearl Smith, Savannah, Georgia, who seconded the motion that the states working separately should combine and form a national body. Because of their vision, thousands of local parent teacher members have been trained to plan and work together under the same leadership though living far apart; interest in the home and community life of children and youth has been advanced adding to their well being, comfort and joy; mothers and fathers are striving harder to meet the challenges of parenthood; communities are more cognizant of the fact they have the responsibility to provide a suitable atmosphere for their young citizens; there has been coperation with school teachers and officials in securing increased opportunities for the educational advancement of children. None of these jobs is in any sense complete, but there is a recognition of what ought to be done and an attempt to do something, and some things have been accomplished.

In these days of changing society, this thirtieth birtday presents a tremendous challenge to each local unit to cultivate even greater diligence to a sense of duty, faith in themselves and the cause they have espoused, and with all courage to endure.

At the coming 30th annual convention in Louisiana in June, the Congress will evaluate its program, celebrate its victories and study to salvage its defeats. Each of the sixteen remaining states will be proud to report the part it has played in promoting the onward march of the National Congress of Colored Parents and Teachers.

TRINITY

(Tune, "America")

Georgia Douglas Johnson

Dedicated to the National Congress of Colored Parents and Teachers

My mother, kind and true,
I sing a song to you
In grateful praise.
Long may your tender light
Make earth's dark places bright
And lead my steps aright
Through life's dark ways.

My father, strong and brave,
Fighting my strength to save
For coming years.
Oh may I worthy prove
Of your great faith and love
And grow in strength above
My simple fears.

My teacher, patient, kind,
Guiding my heart and mind
In wisdom's ways.
Oh may I grow to be
A rich and fruitful tree,
That your dear eyes may see
Fair harvest days.

My parents, teacher, three,
Earth's perfect trinity,
God gave you me,
Like clay into your hand
To mould me for the land
'Til I am strong to stand
For destiny!

Dear Fred:

It was so good to see you in Memphis recently-even tho briefly. And thanks for the encouragement-because I was surely pessimistic that morning. Thanks,too,for your letter of explanation about the San Antonio convention. All is forgiven. I knew there had to be a sound reason for your absence.

I am happy that you thought the 1956 convention date might fit into your busy schedule. We meet in Shreveport as I told you. We have 16 states left now. It will be our 30th anniversary. The convention theme is: Thirty Year Building Together. The 1956-57 theme (working theme) will be: Building Together.

The afternoons of June 18 and 19,we will have workshop sessions on the core idea of building together for children . We would benefit from your attendance . Especially would we like for you to speak to the delegates on the afternoon of the 19th before we go into the final workshop session. Built around the idea ; Putting Our Ideas To Work. It would certainly be inspirational as well as serving to five factual material to a group needing it.

Be frank about the financial considerations involved. And let me hear from you as soon as possible.

I have been to New Orleans and Texas since I saw you in early March. I hope Mrs. Spearman relayed my message to you. It was a joy to meet her and to work with her at the recent S.C.-P.T.A convention in Columbia.

Things are shaping up fast on many fronts. Keep your good work up. Come to Florida (Miami) when you can. We anticipate the visit of Irene with great pleasure.

Observations

It has been gratifying to observe a new and more truly demoratic trend in our country. Let us not fail to accept our responsibility as leaders, for molding positive concepts of "liberty, freedom and justice for all."

While much remains for us to do, it is encouraging to note that we have come a long way in 29 years. State Congress programs conventions and projects have taken on a "new look". This is commendable!

At least 3 state congress branches will dissolve this year: Missouri, Washington and Kansas. Other fringe states will follow in the foreseeable future. Their support and fellowship will be greatly missed, but this simply follows the democratic and PTA way.

Many invitations were not accepted, because of expenses involved.

The prestige of the PTA is rising. Let us be careful and not misuse our influence.

RE: ANNUAL SUMMARY REPORT, 1955-56

Introductory Statement

We have reached the thirtieth milestone in the journey of our organization. The welfare of children and youth has been our chief concern throughout the years. If there has been failure in this responsibility to our children, let us take up the cause and with new energy, vision and courage, meet this new challenge.

The past year has been a full one. With spreading, interest in our Congress, the responsibilities of the president have increased likewise. As I review my year, as your president, a feeling of gratitude is uppermost, for you have been loyal, kind, patient and cooperative. I am truly grateful!

Dear Mayme:

It was truly a joy to be with you and the other participants at the 30th Annual Conference of the NCCPT in Shreveport. I enjoyed the sessions very much and thought that the group had gotten down to brass tacks in a hurry and this impressed me. Dr. Davis and Dr. Caliver surely made great addresses to the assembly. I thought little Mrs. Burr was a real addition to the gathering too. But, as usual, the star performer in my book was my good friend from Miami - Mayme Williams.

Enclosed is my expense account for the conference. Note that there are three nights of hotel bill, one of those being in Oklahoma City in between the two conferences, and since I billed the ADL for the air transportation, I figured I had better not bill them for the extra nights' lodging.

It was wonderful to be with you and I hope that it may be possible for me to stop off at the Encampment for Citizenship sometime during its session.

Warmly,

Dear Mayme:

The two checks came through as promised and many, many thanks for them.

Enclosed is a letter acknowledging them to your Treasurer, Mr. L. A. Toney.

Believe me, it was a real pleasure to be with your group, and to see the active interest they have in furthering the cause of democracy in the South.

Best personal regards.

Dear Mr. Toney:

We have received your two checks - one for my expenses in attending the National Convention of the NCCPT, and one for fifty dollars as an honorarium for services rendered.

We wish to thank you very much for these two checks. I have donated the honorarium to the Southern Regional Council, because I believe it will further the work in which we are both engaged, and because I was on the Council's salary during the time I was at the National Convention.

This money is of considerable help to the Council at this time for, like many organizations, the last few weeks of the fiscal year are always the driest.

Thank you for your generosity and kindness.

Best personal regards.

Dear Mayme:

I have just come across an article about and a picture of a good friend of mine on page 9 of the May issue of Better Schools. The heading on the article reads "Negro PTA Group Works Toward Own Dissolution." The picture is labeled "Mrs. Williams."

I think the goal of eventually merging the NCCPT with the National Congress of Parents and Teachers is a good one, but I would caution you against too rapid dissolution of state chapters in the deep South. Until the regular PTA has a practice of "open occupancy" for the seats in its circle, there is a real need for the NCCPT.

Warm regards to all my friends, but best to you.

Always,

Thirtieth Annual Convention

REPORT OF THE INTERGROUP RELATIONS COMMITTEE

"And I saw in my dreams" is a phrase that recurs in John Bunyan's account of Christian's adventures in Pilgrim's Progress. Fifty-nine years ago-- and thirty years ago, another adventure started with a dream--a vision with roots in the reality of great accomplishment--objects so real and sure that in all these years they stand firm and steadfast.

Founders, leaders, throughout this country and several territories, have served well their day and passed on, handing us the torch to hold it high!

During these years of the existences of the Congress there have been many changes made in its methods and points-of-view of projects and activities as we took on new leadership; but not a change in its unity of purpose and its steadfast goal --"An equal chance for every child, irrespective of race, creed, or national origin."

The past year in the P.T.A. has been the same as any other year. There have been 365 days--180 school days--nine intensive months of active participation in the P.T.A.--three months of gathering new ideas and study for another year's challenge and opportunity. Problems have been faced, solutions attempted in some immediate and specific study on long-range activities in the light of present-day realities. We have shared our faith and our disappointments-- our fears and our hopes, never for a moment losing sight in our united efforts to know the child, and to know the factors that influence his whole life--physicial, mental, social, and spiritual growth.

In the light of this brief background review, what have been the OBJECTIVES of the Intergroup Relations Committee?

1) To develop a workable philosophy in human relations and intergroup education on the local level. Nothing becomes real until it becomes local.

2) To develop wholesome attitudes and ease tensions--for greater understanding, and to provide a basis for sound psychological adjustments essential to workable solutions.

3) To promote a study in both home and school of the great historical documents of citizenship and democracy-- the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States, the Charter of the United Nations -- that we may be aware of the problems, grave problems, facing today's leaders in trying to build a united world.

4) Provide occasions to seek out leaders in all communities where integration is being tried, or where planning committees or groups are engaged in efforts to encourage such integration. Such an exchange would be helpful as well as inspiring and might serve to promote favorable action at the community level.

5) To continue joint meetings to discuss common interests and concerns on National, State and local levels, for better understanding of goals

6) To rededicate ourselves to the Objects and Permanent Platform of the National Congress and bring to full realization the Pledge to Children and Youth which was adopted at the Midcentury White House Conference

SCATTERED POINTS OF VIEW

Scattered points of view have been indicated in the following suggestions:

1. Interchange meetings of small groups of parents of both races for informal discussions on the basis of the issue.

2. A factual report from states on how integration has succeeded in communities where it has been tried.

3. Insistence that compliance with the law is a part of good citizenship and a moral responsibility.

4. Community workshops with parents participating, in which basic aspects of integration would be discussed in non-technical terms.

5. Scientific studies of such terms as: prejudice, race amalgamation, and miscegenation.

6. Getting minority groups of parents of all races working together on projects other than race projects--for example, united community funds; boy and girl scouts; juvenile delinquency programs, community wide recreation, health, art and music programs; civil defense; and other welfare programs.

SCATTERED POINTS OF VIEW REGARDING WORKABLE SOLUTIONS OF INTEGRATION IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS:

1. Integration of the first four years of grade school immediately, then upward one grade a year. This would give considerable time for adult and community readiness.

2. Integration of the first eight grades immediately, then upward, year by year.

3. Removal of all segregation machinery, with assignment of pupils according to school districts that have been set up honestly.

4. The Southern Regional Council Idea: Form local "interracial" councils, study the facts, work on projects of common interests, and develop a broader sense of community betterment. Begin the integration process at points of least resistance.

5. The St. Louis, Missouri, Idea: Form community-wide human relations councils--bringing together groups working for community betterment and improvement in all areas. Include school integration as a "deliberate objective," and urge all-out integration community-wide including pupils, teachers, all.

6. Informal interracial groups meeting on common community problems--making good will and friendship - to relieve tensions and fears.

7. Exchange of speakers for various occasions in school and community and publicity regarding the condition of Negro schools and the economic burden of a dual system.

STATEMENT OF PURPOSE AND RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE JOINT MEETINGS OF REPRESENTATIVES FROM THE NATIONAL CONGRESS OF PARENTS AND TEACHERS AND THE NATIONAL CONGRESS OF COLORED PARENTS AND TEACHERS (As revised at the meeting in Chicago, January 22, 1956)

One of our most important considerations is the matter of interracial and intercultural attitudes and activities. Anything we can do together to demonstrate that different races and cultures can live together with respect for each other's contributions, with each accepting responsibility for the common good, and with fair treatment for all, will be a significant contribution to the national welfare and to the future good of all children. This is an ideal toward which we must work in practical ways.

RECOMMENDATIONS

I. That it be recommended to each state congress that a committee in group relations be set up on local level, and State level.

II. That such committees sponsor regularly scheduled conferences at which they will:
   a. Assess the existing situation in the field of group relations
   b. Plan for future activities on the basis of need.
   c. Stimulate definite programs of action--national, state, local.

III. That state and local parent-teacher groups:

   a. Encourage school authorities--
      1. To expand school curricula so that all children will be given the opportunity to develop the skills, intelligence, and moral character that will enable them to learn how to live successfully as individuals and as family members and at the same time to make a living for themselves and others.
      2. To equalize the personnel and physical facilities of school systems in the form of transportation, buildings, and instructional equipment, in order that such expanded curricula may be fully effective.

   c. Promote parent education through-- study groups to improve home, school, and community living; personal contact; cooperation with adult education agencies; extension courses

   d. Initiate action to secure adequate housing for all citizens that children may grow up in decent communities.

   e. Sponsor citizenship institutes and conferences and educational programs for those voting for the first time

IV. That state and local groups follow up the White House Conference on Education through cooperation in futhering state and local conferences on education.

Despite this plans for an all-out departmental session, organizing 6 groups in the State in promoting study to create better interracial relations among members of the PTA and the community in general, and to increase the awareness of all regarding the role of Intergroup relations in achieving our new responsibilities in this changing society, as we move forward Building Together.

It was good meeting both you and Mr. Anthony in Atlanta last week. I appreciate your helpful cooperation and assure you any help you folks can give us in connection with our efforts to learn more facts about our field of work and the current population shifts that are taking place will be sincerely appreciated.

As you have opportunity to be alerted to any situations where local Scouting people may need assistance and guidance in the area of racial relationships, we shall be grateful if you will share this information with us. The Big Cook-Out

What happens when 50,000 hungry Boy Scouts drop in for chow

By J. P. McEvoy

"BE PREPARED" is the Boy Scout motto—but when Lord Baden-Powell, who founded the Boy Scout movement 50 years ago was asked, "Be prepared for what?" he replied airily, "For any old thing," and added, "Don't press. Easy does it when you're dealing with boys. The Zulu hunters have a wise saying, 'Softly, softly, catchee monkey.' "

Last July the general staff of the Boy Scouts of America had good reasons for remembering this bit of wisdom when they ran a week-long 27,000-tent encampment at historic Valley Forge. Fifty thousand Jamboreeing Boy Scouts poured in from cities, towns and farms all over the United States—each Scout brimming with high spirits, bubbling enterprise and frightening energy.

For more than two years scoutmasters had been preparing to transport, tent and feed these 50,000 hungry boys with mouths gaping like so many baby robins. Where were those cows to give 75,000 extra quarts of milk everyday for a week and then disappear? Those frantic hens under strict orders to lay 100,000 eggs per breakfast; those 1300 steers to provide steaks for just one meal; that nightly convoy of trucks loaded with, among other provisions, tons of bread? Those 45,000 pounds of hamburger, glaciers of ice cream, oceans of soft drinks (one incredible item: 100,000 Cokes a day)—and 17 miles of hot dogs?

The men who ran Operation Jamboree were not experts in logistics. They were just gifted amateurs who liked boys and had a lot of horse sense. "Let's take this in stride," said Dr. Arthur A. Schuck, Chief Scout Executive. "Look at it from the boys' angle—as a picnic, only a big one." Softly, softly, catchee monkey.

"Green Bar Bill" Hillcourt, the Boy Scouts' chief Scoutcraft expert, reassured everybody: "Boy Scouts have been camping and cooking for themselves for 50 years. Let's start with our basic unit, the Patrol. That's ten mouths. So let's think of this Jamboree as 5000 families of ten all cooking and eating the same meal at the same time three times a day."

Skeptics said it couldn't be done this amateurish way. They expected to find history repeating itself at Valley Forge—only now it would be 50,000 starving boys instead of Washington's 11,000 hungry soldiers.

To their surprise they found a healthy army of boys cooking their own meals around 5000 charcoal fires. No mess tents, no field kitchens, no long chow lines and—happy days—no dishwashing!

"How do you do it?" they asked O. B. Evenson, responsible for getting all this done without snafus.

"We started with boy-proof menus," he said. "We drew on many years of camping experience all over America. We have 3,200,000 Scouts in this country and 558 permanent camping sites; next to the government, we have the largest camping areas in the country.

"One of our big problems was to cut waste. If we guessed wrong ordering one item—say, one ounce too much for a hamburger, this would waste more than a ton and a half of meat in a single meal. At a previous Jamboree we overestimated the boys' appetite for peanut butter. At the end I called up the supplier. 'We have some peanut butter left over.'

" 'Send it back,' he said good-naturedly. I said, 'I think I ought to tell you we have a carload of it.'

"There was a long pause. Finally he said, 'If you'll pardon the expression, that's a helluva lot of peanut butter, but send it back anyway.'

"We couldn't have leftovers—boys might start using spoiled food—so we eliminated refrigerators. The exact amount of food for three meals a day for ten mouths multiplied by 5000 Patrols was planned, packaged and delivered nightly by truck convoy with detailed instructions for preparing each meal (labeled by men who understood boys, "READ FULL INSTRUCTIONS TWICE BEFORE STARTING"). With the day's food came the exact number of necessary paper plates, cups, etc., together with waterproof paper bags for rubbish and garbage disposal."

"We couldn't have begun to do this," said Dr. Schuck, "without all the good will for the Boy Scouts, which is huge and heart-warming. The government, the armed services, big business and little businessmen, churches, service clubs, communities and individuals all helped us. The Army set up a complete field hospital and hundreds of Reserve doctors gave us their services."

The State of Pennsylvania spent $30,000 to kill the poison ivy, a major problem in the 1950 Jamboree.

But even Boy Scout leaders can't think of everything. There were June bugs, which invented a Boy Scout game of their own: crawling into the sleeping boys' ears. More than 200 boys were in the Army Hospital at one time having these playful bugs extracted.

The Jamboree was paid for by the Scouts themselves—each boy contributing $50—a total of some $2,500,000. But there were "Trading Posts" on the grounds where the Scouts got candy and soft drinks; the profits from these will be refunded to the boys. (After the last Jamboree, each refund amounted to $13.50.)

Some $500,000 was spent just to equip Valley Forge with five miles of sewers, twelve miles of electric lines, a telephone system, etc. The Scouts used up $600,000 worth of food and supplies, roughly 108 carloads. Each boy paid his own transportation from all over the United States, Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico, unless sponsored by some local organization or individual. Most of them came by special trains on long sight-seeing detours. (The railroads gave them bargain rates—so did the bus lines.)

I lived in the middle of this buzzing Jamboree for a week in my field-office trailer, with thousands of Boy Scouts milling all around me, cracking bull whips, swapping Texas horned toads for squirrel tails, and marching up and down and around.

When I heard that all 50,000 of them would march into the arena with such exquisite timing that the last boy would sit down in the last seat one minute before curtain time, I said, "This I've got to see!"

I saw it. From all over this 2000 acres of scattered encampments, endless columns of boys like hordes of army ants could be seen coming from every direction. There was no military precision, no barking of orders. Shuffle, shuffle, "softly, softly," row after row they filed into place in the arena and acre by acre they filled it up and sat down. Sure enough, one minute before curtain time, the last two boys sat down, at opposite ends of the topmost row.

I went looking for the genius who passed this miracle and I found a retired Army officer, Col. Frank W.

Bryant, who started as a Boy Scout 47 years ago and has been working with and for them ever since.

"I have done this for every national Jamboree," he said, whipping out a slide rule, and a collection of topographical maps, aerial photos and logarithm tables. "It's really very simple. Let's assume a march rate for each boy of 1000 feet in five minutes to pass a given point."

"You've left me behind already," I said. "Just tell me how you do it."

"Actually," he said, "I worked it out first at our Jamboree in Washington in 1937. The boys were camped all over—around the Washington Monument, clear out to where the Pentagon is now. President Roosevelt wanted to review them, but we tried something different. We lined the boys up on both sides of Connecticut Avenue and passed him in review. The President liked the idea so much he had it repeated by the troops in Casablanca. Now, as I was saying, if the farthest boy is 9000 feet away, and the nearest one only 500, we start the farthest marching first and . . ."

Last August Boy Scouts traveled from 62 countries to the international Jamboree in England celebrating the 100th anniversary of the birth of Sir Robert Stephenson Smyth Baden-Powell, the British soldier whose book Scouting for Boys was responsible for the founding of the movement 50 years ago. We sent a delegation of 1750 Scouts especially selected to honor the man whose genius and whose profound understanding of the boy heart and mind are the foundation of Scouting.

What was Baden-Powell's genius? First, he recognized the importance to boys of their "gang," with their own boy leader, and he based the Boy Scout Patrol unit on this basic principle. He knew, too, that while boys like to play games, they also respond gratefully and bravely to real responsibility.

Baden-Powell tucked into Scouting everything good and useful he could remember. "Scout Law" and "Scout Honor" grew out of the chivalrous code of King Arthur's knights; the techniques of outdoor life from his own hunting in India and soldiering in Africa, plus the survival skills of the primitive tribes. He was fascinated by Huckleberry Finn and Tom Sawyer, by the devilishly clever deductions of Sherlock Holmes. He was entranced with Houdini and Red Indians, trappers, frontiersmen and lone scouts.

He knew, too, that boys don't like "Don't," so the Scout Law states everything affirmatively: "A Scout is Trustworthy, Loyal," etc. He knew that you can lead boys but you can't drive them. At the closing ceremonies of the Jamboree at Valley Forge, I saw one man on the stage hold up three fingers of his right hand—the Scout signal for silence—and 50,000 skylarking youngsters instantly quieted down to complete stillness, something a thousand barking drill sergeants couldn't have accomplished. "Softly, softly, catchee monkey."

Dear Mr. Sweazey:

Enclosed you will find the few clippings from our files which seem to have some bearing on your interests. On checking, we determined that none of the statistical data available would be of help since only areas of population loss were dealt with. My apologies that it took so long to cast up so little.

It was a pleasure to get to know you during your recent visit to Atlanta. I trust that occasions will arise in the future when we can be of more help.

Best wishes.

Dear Co-worker:

The 39th Annual Observance of Race Relations Sunday will be February 11, 1962. The theme is, "By This Shall All Men Know...".

The Race Relations Sunday Message was prepared by Dr. Roswell P. Barnes, Executive Secretary, The United States Conference for the World Council of Churches.

The Message stresses that "...the only sure test for the disciple of Christ is love". The attitude of love must be manifested in behavior. This requires support of laws and participation in community action to further justice and freedom for people of all races. Suggestions and resources for action are included with the Message.

It is gratifying that a larger number of churches each year are using this observance to evaluate continuing programs of action and to launch new ones.

Last year about 70,000 copies of the Message were used in pulpits, radio stations, and other media of public communication. The increase each year, recently, in the use of the Message is encouraging. We appreciate your part in spreading last year's Message throughout the Nation.

A copy of the 1962 Message is enclosed and may be purchased at $2.50 a hundred or 5¢ each. Again this year the Department desires to be a partner with you in distributing it; therefore, with each order of 1,000 copies we will include 250 copies more without charge. Your cooperation and your order will be appreciated.

May we have your order at your earliest convenience to facilitate prompt delivery. An order blank is enclosed.

A Message

RACE RELATIONS SUNDAY

February 11, 1962

Issued by

THE EXECUTIVE BOARD OF
THE DIVISION OF CHRISTIAN LIFE AND WORK
THE NATIONAL COUNCIL OF THE CHURCHES
OF CHRIST IN THE U. S. A.

"BY THIS SHALL ALL MEN KNOW . . ."

"A new commandment I give to you, that you love one another; even as I have loved you, that you also love one another. By this all men will know that you are my disciples, if you have love for one another." John 13:34-35
(Revised Standard Version)

How do people know who and what we are? Only God really knows. He knows us better than we know ourselves. But other people know much about us. One of the most important things for them to know is whether we are disciples of Jesus Christ. How, then, do they know that?

Superficially we distinguish one person from another by his appearance; thus we know something about him from a picture of him. We know about his ideas by analyzing what he has said and written. We know more about him by gathering estimates of him by those who live, work, and play with him.

But to know him well we must understand his basic absorbing commitments, his ultimate purposes. For this we must observe his attitude toward other people, how he reacts to all sorts and conditions of men. Is he sensitive to their individual situations? How does he respond to their needs? Is he contemptuous of them in the mass, or is he compassionate? Does he "look down" upon people of other races?

Jesus Christ said: "By this all men will know that you are my disciples, if you have love for one another." Thus is the Christian to be judged – by his attitude of love manifested in his behavior. Thus is he to be known for what he is.

The ideas a person holds about race relations are important; but they are not enough to characterize him as a Christian. Any person with a lively concern for justice may have valid ideas about race. If a person is a disciple of Christ, he goes beyond justice – he loves. He loves all of God's children for whom Christ died. Justice is inextricably involved in such love.

Profession of faith in Christ is essential to discipleship; but it must go beyond mere assent of the mind. Faith that is acceptable to God and convincing to men gives evidence of itself in the attitude of love, expressing itself in behavior. Yet even good behavior, in itself, may reveal only conformity or consent to prevailing social patterns – a matter of good manners – adopted in order to avoid embarrassment. It may be for effect.

So the only sure test, for the disciple of Christ, is love.

Love is not reserved for those who are congenial or who are of the same race and nationality. "And if you salute only your brethren, what more are you doing than others?" Moreover, we are commanded to love not only those who love us, but even our enemies.

This test of Christian discipleship is not easy. It may at first be rebuffed by those who have been hurt so much that they fear being hurt again by exposing themselves to another rejection. But persistent Christian love, which is costly, is eventually reconciling, healing, and restorative; for it is a witness to God's love. And God's love is the fact of which we constantly need to be reminded.

We are known better by our attitude of love than by our arguments for what we believe to be right in the matter of race relations or anything else. Unless we have love, argument may be a kind of combat, with loyalty to truth being confused with pride in our own ideas.

Love marks the difference between the disciples of Christ and the doer of good for the sake of credit for righteousness. Christ so loved us that He gave His life for blundering and wilful sinners of all nations and races.

The Church of Christ is to be known by the same test that He set for His disciples. In the Church especially, we are called to "have love for one another" across all lines of difference that so often divide people and are so often the occasion for antagonisms.

Love repudiates and casts out whatever gives offense or causes humiliation to others. A church must therefore achieve and demonstrate a unity which manifests the attitudes demanded by Christian faith and discipline. Because of its professed allegiance and standards, it should be a fellowship distinguishable from that of other agencies in the community.

It is not enough for a church to conform to the best practices in the society around it. Rather, it is bound by the test Christ set for His disciples and by which they are to be known. It acknowledges His Lordship; it must so manifest it that all men may know His will for men. A church must be faithful to its calling regardless of what others may think or do.

Christian love requires that we support laws to further justice and freedom in the rights of full citizenship, education, employment, and residence. Above all, we who profess to be disciples of Christ have something even more essential to contribute to race relations – the new commandment to love one another as He loves us. The Church needs this active love. Our nation needs it. The world needs it.

On this Race Relations Sunday we should look into our own hearts, repent for our failures and hypocrisies, thank God for His love for all men, and rejoice that we are called by Christ to be His disciples. We must witness to the oneness of God's family through our churches and in our communities. Only then can justice, freedom and human dignity become manifest through love in our world. "By this all men will know . . .".

The National Council of Churches is indebted to Dr. Roswell P. Barnes for drafting this Message. Dr. Barnes is Executive Secretary, The United States Conference for the World Council of Churches.

SUGGESTIONS AND RESOURCES FOR ACTION

Prepared by

THE DEPARTMENT OF RACIAL AND CULTURAL RELATIONS

I. Local church groups can take community action by:

1. Working to bring about desegregation and integration of public schools through (a) securing facts about the situation; (b) discussing, formulating and evaluating concrete proposals for constructive action; (c) making the facts and proposals known to the community; (d) cooperating with other community organizations which work to improve race relations.

2. Supporting legislation designed to guarantee full opportunity for all people regardless of race, color or nationality.
3. Protesting against legislation aimed at maintaining segregation and racial discrimination.
4. Urging the elimination of segregation on buses and public transportation.
5. Supporting the movement to eliminate racial discrimination at lunch counters, restaurants and other places of public accommodation.
6. Working with employer's groups, professional organizations and unions to establish employment practices based on character and ability rather than on race, color, creed or national origin.
7. Discussing the facts regarding segregation in housing and cooperating with agencies working to develop "open occupancy" housing.
8. Working to assure all persons the opportunity to register and to exercise the right to vote.

II. Local churches can take action within their own organization by:

1. Re-examining continuously in the light of the Gospel their attitudes and behavior regarding race relations and committing themselves to carry out their Christian responsibility.
2. Finding out what the policy of their denomination is regarding race relations and studying the implications of the policy statement in the light of the Christian Gospel.
3. Organizing a church committee to develop and carry out a program of race relations.
4. Opening membership in the local church and its organizations to all people, making this fact known in the community and seeking to win others to Christ regardless of race.
5. Exhibiting firm behavior patterns of acceptance when the question of a racially inclusive fellowship is discussed in the church and when the first persons of another race visit or are received into the church.
6. Selecting professional and volunteer church leadership on the basis of qualifications rather than race.
7. Conducting study groups, forums and other activities to gather the facts about race relations in the community, and making plans for a race relations program that runs throughout the year.
8. Conducting worship services for God's guidance in the improvement of race relations. (A "Worship Program For Race Relations Services" is available from the Department of Racial and Cultural Relations, The National Council of Churches, 475 Riverside Drive, New York 27, New York. 4¢ each; $3.00 per hundred.)

III. Organizational Resources:

Church groups who plan to work for the improvement of race relations within their own organization or in their communities will be able to get information and counsel through:

1. Their denominational divisions or departments of social education and action.
2. State or city councils of churches.

Dear Dr. Letts:

We have learned with much sadness that Will Campbell is resigning from his post with the National Council of Churches of Christ. Will's ministry, these last few years, has been truly a gift. I think no one has spoken more tellingly and, in a fundamental sense, with more sophistication to the churches and church-goers in the South. For those of us engaged actively in race relations work, Will has been a beloved pastor. We are deeply hopeful that he will find a way to continue his ministry. I believe that I speak for many others than myself in expressing to you gratitude for having, this many years, made it possible for him to do what he does so uniquely well.

With best regards,

Sincerely yours,

MEETING OF

FEBRUARY 10 1964

SOUTHERN FIELD SERVICE
(A Proposal for discussion)

A SUMMARY OF PROPOSAL AND GOALS:

It is proposed that the member communions of the National Council of Churches engage in a concerted effort to meet the racial crisis which faces out nation through the establishment of a Southern Field Service, (tentative title for use in this paper) under the coordination of the Commission on Religion and Race of the NCC. Briefly, the Southern Field Service would consist of teams of denominational persons working in the hard-core states of the deep South, namely South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana. The team in each state would consist of two persons, one Negro and one white, who would have the task of contacting key churchmen in the South both lay and clerical for the purpose of furthering their readiness and capacity for leadership in the desegregation of Church and society. This is based on the premise that the problems of local communities must eventually be solved by the citizens of those communities, both white and Negro. The teams would be involved in the process of bringing together churchmen in leadership positions for consideration of their community situation and the role of the churches in it, as well as needs within the churches themselves. It should be understood that all references to the churches refer to both Negro and white congregations. Although there is very little communication between whites and Negroes in the South at this time, it is assumed that a common faith in Jesus Christ as Divine Lord and Savior does give one common ground on which leadership of the churches can meet for constructive dialogue. The real purpose here is to build up a core of responsible leadership working toward the integration of the churches and their involvement in community desegregation matters, before a major crisis develops. The Southern Field Service would seek voluntary efforts towards desegregation, and have responsible persons to call on when a crisis develops. An underlying assumption is that this work must point toward the recovery of the integrity of the churches if they are to have a role in the life of the South after the racial struggle has passed the point of major crisis and becomes the quieter movement toward a fully integrated society.

PROPOSED FIELD STAFF

Following is an attempt to describe the type of person best suited for the job envisaged: the methods to be used in carrying out the generally described task: relationships to be maintained: financing administration and possible staff sources.

A. Type of person needed:

The character, training and personality of the persons involved in the proposed field program are of paramount importance in establishing a worthwhile project. These must be persons who are completely convinced of the churches' role in the racial struggle and have solved any problems they might have had in their own minds about relationships with those of other races. There is no time and the South is no place for the resolution of personal problems concerning race. Therefore, what is needed are persons mature in their own faith and with a full understanding of the racial situation. Preference should be given to persons who have served churches in the South or who have lived in the area. Much of the Southern mindset and fear can be best learned through such exposure, while at the same time making it easier for the field person to be accepted. This does not rule out the possibility of using theological students, or men newly out of seminary if they have a full measure of maturity and judgement.

The personalities of these field persons are of vital importance. They must be secure enough in themselves to be at ease in person-to-person confrontations, undeterred by the hostility which they will inevitably find. They must be able to accept without complaint living under "hardship" conditions, and not let physical pressures interfere with their work.

B. METHODS OF OPERATION:

It should be said from the beginning that there are no hard and fast fules as to best methods to be used in bettering human relations in the South. Methods of operation will be dictated by circumstances in particular localities, so only the most general outline can be suggested here.

Working in close concert with his white or Negro compatriot and without publicity, the field worker could first use the contacts which can be made through his own demonination or through one of the member communions participating in the program. In most cases this would obviously be a local pastor. This contact would idealy be used to establish contacts with other clergy in the community who would be approached on the basis of the churches' common concern for racial justice. The clergy would then be used as a means of meeting key laymen in the area whose public or private stance gives hope that they want to work for a solution to their local problems. With the white field person operating initially in the white community, and the Negro field person carrying on the same kind of work in the Negro community, ideally their contacts should be working toward a face-to-face confrontation of white and Negro leadership. The leadership to be brought together should be based on an analysis of the real sources of power in a particular community, since the publicly designated leadership and those who really wield maximum influence are often entirely different. Also, such confrontations should be thought of from the beginning as not mere "brotherhood meetings", but gatherings where the grievances of the Negro community can be aired for movement towards a resolution of common problems.

While CORR will maintain close contact with the National offices of the Negro action groups, it is expected that field teams would immediately get to know local affiliates of these groups and inform them that work is being done in the area. Every attempt should be made to determine what the action groups are planning and some assessment should be made of the quality of leadership and the inability to follow through. If direct action programs have been either initiated or are being planned by local action groups, the field teams would be expected to determine if the churches have a role to play in such activities and make recommendations for concerted actions to the national office. Any recommendations for participation in demonstrations and the like would be discussed with leadership from the denominational race commissions before final decisions are made. If a decision is made to participate in demonstrations, it is assumed that the denominational commissions would cooperate fully in providing the necessary personnel and resources.

C. MAINTAINING COMMUNICATION AND COORDINATION:

One of the primary needs of the present day is full and accurate information on conditions in the South. The field teams related to CORR would be expected to supply regular reports on conditions as they see them from the viewpoint of the churches' commitments and interests. The CORR office would take on the responsibility of disseminating the information received from the field to all denominational commissions involved in the program. In the like manner, it is assumed that denominational offices would keep the CORR office informed of their plans and programs in order that there can be one central point where facts are available essential to the planning and carrying out of coordinated activities. The crisis we face demands maximum use of the resources available to the churches, and there is more than enough for all to do without setting up competing programs in the same area.

D. ADMINISTRATION AND FINANCING:

The overall administration of the Southern Field Service would be under the direction of the Direct or of Community Action for CORR. His responsibilities would encompass deployment of field teams, compilation and distribution of field reports of the denominational offices, finances and related problems of administration to be added to the other commitments his office already has.

Direct field supervision of the teams would be the responsibility of an associate director of community action who would visit the teams in the field, investigate areas where no field teams are working, deal directly with the Southern offices of the action groups, and coordinate the activities of any particular team with others working in the South. He would be expected to be on hand when a crisis develops and have overall direction of concerted participation in demonstrations or other direct action programs.

At this point, it is impossible to draw up a realistic budget for this proposal. The CORR budget does not have the money necessary for the ten men needed in the five states already listed. It is hoped that this problem can be dealt with through the use of coopted persons from denominational staffs whereever possible, or that denominational race commissions would assume the financial responsibility for one or more field persons from their own budgets, with the understanding that their services would be used in the cooperative program. Already, there have been tentative commitments made in this way.

In planning a realistic budget, we should think of persons who could be committed to a minimum of six months to this work and wherever possible strive for a one-year commitment. The latter case would probably mean the added expense of moving a man with his family to some Southern location. The judgement of all the staffs which might be involved in this program is needed to arrive at a realistic financial projection.

E. CONCLUSION:

This paper is not presented as the final work on the matter of setting up a Southern field service. Rather, it is designed to give us a starting point for discussion of the problems we all face when we consider working in the South. If it is the judgement of the group that we should undertake this project, then by all means, we must get underway immediately.

Consultation In Bangkok Offers Peace Solutions In Vietnam

An international church consultation on Vietnam held in Bangkok, Thailand Dec. 1-4, between delegations of the East Asia Christian Conference and the National Council of Churches, USA, brought together 18 church leaders of East and West for a "frank and healthy exchange of views."

Their report, which includes nine recommendations toward ending the conflict and bringing peace to Vietnam, emphasizes that while the delegates did not profess to speak for the churches and councils they represented, "we nevertheless feel bound to report on our discussions."

All possible initiatives were called for in the report "to move action from the battlefield to the negotiating table." Among the recommendations were the cessation of bombing by both U.S. and South Vietnamese forces to create better conditions for negotiations; support of the United Nations General Secretary in his efforts to start negotiations; a restudy of the Geneva Conference of 1954; and recognition of "the importance of Asian countries, not directly involved in the conflict, making available their good offices in seeking ... the way to solutions."

Speaking as "churchmen from different backgrounds but tied together by our common faith," the consultants became "increasingly aware" of the differing presuppositions many held. Desiring "neither to overlook nor to overemphasize these differences," the report noted that the exchange of views "at times resulted in a change of opinion."

Delegates from the National Council included Dr. David R. Hunter, deputy general secretary; Dr. David M. Stowe, associate general secretary for Overseas Ministries; Dr. Leonard J. Kramer, associate director of the International Affairs Commission; and Mrs. Stuart Sinclair, president of United Church Women.

Head of the U.S. group was Dr. Norman J. Baugher, general secretary, Church of the Brethren, an NCC vice-president. Also Robert W. Mance, M.D., a vice-president; Dr. Edwin H. Tuller, general secretary, American Baptist Convention; and Dr. William Bradley, now a consultant to the Rockefeller Foundation in Bangkok.

Dr. O. Frederick Nolde, director of the Commission of the Churches on International Affairs of the World Council, was consultant to both groups.

Dr. Spike Looks Ahead To Negroes' Future

The feeling of helpless frustration as the Negro sees the "public spotlight suddenly turned out" on the civil rights front was described to members of the General Board by the retiring director of the NCC Commission on Religion and Race. The Rev. Dr. Robert W. Spike has accepted an appointment to head a new department of the ministry at the University of Chicago Divinity School.

The nation appears to be returning to "business as usual" in civil rights, he said, while the Negro is still denied equal access to the nation's stockpile of riches -- homes, jobs, equal schooling and equal treatment before the law.

Dr. Spike was especially critical of the report on Negro family structure by the former Assistant Secretary of Labor Daniel P. Moynihan, which he called "insulting or at best insensitive" and "a classic example of the mechanical planning approach."

"The Negro community, being human, does not like being the object of social engineering much better that it did being the object of social harassment," Dr. Spike told Board members. White and black must work together, he warned, while "gearing up" to attack the more subtle forms of discrimination.

"Beyond the remaining justice issues," said the speaker, "there are enormous areas that need increased attention." These he listed as: economic opportunity; a new program of public works; new and better housing; upgraded education; the involvement of the whole community; and new minimum wage legislation.

Dr. Spike received a standing ovation at the close of his address to the Board at its fall meeting in Madison, Wisconsin.

The Rev. Dr. Benjamin F. Payton has been named director of the Commission on Religion and Race of the National Council of Churches. He succeeds the Rev. Dr. Robert W. Spike who leaves the Council to take up a newly created post at the University of Chicago Divinity School.

Dr. R.H. Edwin Espy, NCC general secretary, and the Rev. Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, stated clerk of the United Presbyterian Church, USA, and chairman of the Commission, announced Dr. Payton's appointment jointly on Dec. 9. He will take up his new duties on January 1.

A native of South Carolina, Dr. Payton comes to the Council from the Protestant Council of the City of New York where he served as director of its Office of Religion and Race. An ordained minister of the National Baptist Convention, USA, he was assistant professor of sociology and social ethics at Howard University, Washington, D.C., where he directed the University's Community Service Project, an experimental anti-poverty program. A graduate of South Carolina State College, Dr. Payton has degrees from Harvard Divinity School and Columbia University and earned his Ph.D. at Yale in sociology of religion and social ethics. From 1955 to 1958, he was pastor of Ebenezer Baptist Church in Boston, Mass.

Massachusetts Council Calls For Recognition of Communist China

A major resolution, on which work had been going on since last January, was adopted Nov. 30 by the Board of Directors of the Massachusetts Council of Churches. The session at which the resolution was adopted by 24 for, four against, and three abstaining, was presided over by the new Council president, Richard R. Higgins.

In four sections, the resolution 1) urges the United States Government to press negotiations with the People's Republic of China for the extension of non-strategic trade, for ready access to news, for inclusion of mainland Chinese in scientific and other conferences, for freedom of travel, and for cultural exchanges.

2) The U.S. Government is urged to consult with other nations in seeking ways to provide for responsible representation of the People's Republic in test ban treaties, disarmament discussions and deliberations of the United Nations ... with due regard for the welfare and political self-determination of the people of Taiwan.

3) The U.S. Government is further urged to take steps to move toward diplomatic recognition of the de facto government of mainland China.

4) The 1,800 member churches of the Massachusetts Council are urged to "build informed opinion" and take advantage of any opportunities for the exchange of information and visitors with the Chinese mainland churches.

Dr. Forrest L. Knapp is general secretary of the Massachusetts Council of Churches.

United Presbyterian Leader To Head United Church Women

Lauding "her wealth of experience in world-wide Christian leadership in which she has proved her capacity to work creatively with people of all communions, races and nations," Dr. R.H. Edwin Espy announced the appointment of Miss Margaret Shannon as the new executive director of United Church Women. The National Council's general secretary was joined in the announcement by Mrs. Stuart Sinclair, national UCW president.

Miss Shannon comes to the National Council from her post as associate general secretary for ecumenical relations of the United Presbyterian Commission on Ecumenical Mission and Relations. She succeeds Mrs. W. Murdoch MacLeod, who is retiring after 17 years of service as executive director, and takes up her new duties on Jan. 1.

Following a term of teaching at Beirut College for Women (1933-36), Miss Shannon was director of the Westminster Foundation at Ohio University. In 1940, she became secretary for Women's Program of her Church's Board of Foreign Missions. A member of the General Board of the National Council and of the Board of Managers of United Church Women, Margaret Shannon has also served on committees of the World Presbyterian Alliance and the U.S. Conference of the World Council of Churches.

Group Named To Evaluate Delta Ministry

The General Board of the National Council of Churches, at its fall meeting in Madison, Wisconsin, named the Hon. Brooks Hays to head a committee to evaluate the National Council's Delta Ministry. A former Congressman from Arkansas and former president of the Southern Baptist Convention, he has been an adviser to Presidents John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson, and is now a visiting professor at Rutgers University. Vice-chairman of the committee is Dr. Herman Morse, director of the Institute of Strategic Studies of the United Presbyterian Church, USA.

The Delta Ministry is a long-term interdenominational program of the National Council to improve economic, social and health conditions among the poor in the Mississippi Delta.

In Brief: Dr. W.A. Visser 't Hooft, general secretary of the World Council of Churches, was the speaker at the luncheon meeting on Dec. 7 of the Friends of the World Council of Churches in New York City. At the Amsterdam Assembly, he said, we promised to stay together, at Evanston, to grow together, and at New Delhi, to work toward unity. While advances have been made, the World Council leader said that in respect to full inter-communion, progress has been slow. The annual meeting of the WCC policy-making Central Committee will be held in Geneva, Feb. 8-17, 1966.

--- Reports of children's Halloween collections for UNICEF in Evansville, Ind., showed receipts of "a whopping total of nearly $2,900" topping last year by $1,000, says the Evansville Council of Churches. The Council's challenge prize of $25 went to the Youth Department of Simpson Methodist Church and the check was sent in its name to UNICEF.

--- The Rev. Louis A. Saunders, executive director of the Fort Worth Council of Churches for the past nine years, has been named executive secretary of the Greater Dallas Council of Churches. He succeeds Dr. Luther A. Holcomb, who recently resigned to serve the U.S. Commission on Equal Opportunity in Washington, D.C.

PROPOSAL FOR A PROGRAM OF COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT
AMONG THE RESIDENTS OF THE DELTA AREA OF THE STATE OF MISSISSIPPI

The achieving of racial justice throughout the nation must dominate the concerns of every christian and every church. It is not alone because of how massively serious is the risk of a major rupture in the American society, but this injustice is a fundamental affront to the moral foundations of Christianity. The delta area of the State of Mississippi manifests in full display the total complexities of the problem of racial justice - it is a disaster area and at the same time pivotal for healing and redemption in all areas. The interlocking of this problem on a national scale marks a major watershed in the life of the nation - especially as to the impossibility of solving this national problem by local means alone. The moral mandate that compels Christians anywhere to help all brothers everywhere demands this need be met. At such times and places in history the role of home missions has been decisive, e.g., the migrant ministry - will it be again? It took local groups 35 years before they accepted the migrant ministry as their own - how long will it take them to assume full responsibility for providing equality of economic and social as well as religious opportunity?

I. CHARACTERISTICS OF THE DELTA

The delta is the area bordering the Mississippi River from Memphis, Tenn. to Vicksburg, Miss. that the following counties comprise: Bolivar, Coahoma, Humphreys, Issaquena, Leflore, Quitman, Sharky, Sunflower, Tallahatchie, Tunica, and Washington. Seven other counties are partly Delta: Carrol, Grenada, Holmes, Panola, Warren, Yalobasha, and Yazoo. The part-Delta counties are not included in the following selected examples taken from a more complete analysis done by Mr. Jesse Morris, a young agricultural economist. Tables are not included for purposes of brevity but they are available.

A. MORTALITY RATES

In every county except Quitman and Washington the death rate for whites was higher than the state average, and with the exception of Sunflower still higher for the nonwhites.

B. HOUSING

Of the 13,370 houses in Leflore County, 4,998 had no flush toilets, 6,218 had no bathtub or shower, 6,028 were classified as less than sound, and 3,700 had no piped water.

C. EDUCATION

In the Delta there are only 14 schools accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools - all of them white. There is no accredited Negro school, and in Tunica County with 5 times as many Negroes as Whites, there is no Negro high school. The school census for the other ten Delta counties is 36,652 for whites and 78,956 for Negroes.

D. INCOME

The median income per person in the Delta for nonwhites is $456.00. This is in part a result of a large percent of the population being tenant farmers. However, the medium income of whites is but $1,850. The main problem at this point is the concentration of wealth among the few, e.g., on an average 5% of the farms control 50% of all farmland.

E. SOME REMEDIAL ALTERNATIVES

1. Emigration

The people of the Delta themselves attempt to find relief from their plight by leaving the Delta. However, in most instances, this turns out to be no solution at all. The people who migrate usually go to large urban areas in the North or West. The emigrants from the Delta are largely unskilled and uneducated. The urban centers have no place for these people except the slum and the relief roll; this adds immensly to their problems, and provides no meaningful solution to the plight of the Delta migrant.

2. Government Programs

The federal government is acutely aware of the situation that besets such regions as the delta, and together with state governments, has initiated a number of programs and agencies to deal specifically with these low-income rural areas. Four important ones are the Farmers' Home Administration, the Rural Areas Development, Area Redevelopment Administration, and the Manpower Retraining and Development Act. These programs could and should be able to do considerable good. However, they are not doing nearly as much as they could, and more important, where they do lend some assistance, it is not given to the people who need it most. Two factors are responsible for the lack of effectiveness of government programs:

(a) The people who are in most need do not know about them, or if they do know about them, they do not know how to take advantage of them. A farmer whose income is below $1000 a year does not have time from a practical standpoint to be out organizing other poor farmers in order to improve their conditions of life. In many instances he would be fired from his job as an "agitator" or "trouble maker" if he tried.

(b) The federal government's policy of local control allows local governments to thwart the intent of the federal program.

3. Commodity Distribution

In a country that prides itself on being the agricultural giant of the world and has irrefutable evidence of the fact in the form of billions of dollars worth of stored surplus commodities, the fact that there are persons living in the Delta who are hungry is not only a national disgrace but a national crime. An increased and more equitable distribution of these commodities is immediately necessary.

II. ACTION BY THE NATIONAL COUNCIL OF CHURCHES

Early in the summer of 1963 the Commission on Religion and Race of the National Council of Churches received a request from residents of the Delta that ways be found for the churches through their national agencies to become involved in a program of community development. This request was referred to the staff of the Division of Home Missions. Since the request was originally from the Negro community, staff of the Division convened a meeting in early October of representatives of the Negro action groups (NAACP, CORE, SCLC, SNCC) who work in the Delta, as well as a limited number of representatives of the white community of Mississippi.

A. Meeting at Jackson, Mississippi

The primary focus of this meeting was on the needs of the area as seen by this group, and the development of an agenda for a future more representative meeting to be held in the area. A report on contrasting points of view was prepared by staff and is available. It was agreed that the civil rights situation in Mississippi was such that the meeting had best be held in Memphis, Tennessee. The Memphis meeting was set for November 1. Invitations were extended to heads of most of the missions boards related to the Division of Home Missions, to several denominational boards having responsibility in the area of direct relief, and to representatives of the Negro community of Mississippi. The denominational executives were requested to invite persons from the immediate area involved to be a part of the consultation.

B. Meeting at Memphis, Tennessee

There was substantial representation at the meeting from the national boards. Pastors and judicatorial executives were present from the Methodist Church, the Lutheran Church in America, and the Protestant Episcopal Church. Other denominations that were represented included the Church of the Brethren, the American Baptist Convention, the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., the United Church of Christ, and the Mennonite Brethren. Representatives of the Fellowship of Southern Churchmen, the Congress on Racial Equality, and the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee were present. Other Negro action groups had planned to be present, but scheduling problems interfered. There was general agreement on the following points:

1. That mechanization of the cotton industry has seriously aggravated the chronic economic problems of the area.
2. That this is an area of great contrast between wealth and poverty.
3. That from the point of view of education, health service, economic and political opportunity, the Negro population of this area was greatly deprived.
4. That at the present time communications between the white and Negro community are unhealthy.
5. That the situation as it is leaves much to be desired, and that immediate as well as long range remedial steps are necessary.

C. Community Development

It was generally agreed that a program of self-help should be initiated within the delta, and that such a program fell within the historic concerns of the home missions enterprise of the United States. Such a program would have as its objectives:

1. To help establish communications between the white and the Negro community.
2. To help the people identify their common problems, needs and concerns, especially those relating to their life and status as residents of the Mississippi Delta, such as employment, welfare, housing, education, legal matters, and others.
3. To establish contact between all the low-income farmers in the area and the various federal programs available for the rural poor.

4. To organize local self help groups such as Rural Areas Development committees, secure representation for all farmers on the ASCS committees, and secure from unemployed farmers and farm youth some participants for the Manpower Retraining Act and other such programs.

5. To help the people draw future potential leaders from their midst, and to help such persons acquire the knowledge and skills for competent and responsible leadership within the democratic setting of an American community.

6. To develop indigenous centers which would assist in the process of fundamental education, continuing education, communications, and planning. The beginnings of such a program are already in process. A special project of training leaders (to train others) in the skills of programmed learning will occur in the summer of 1964.

7. To provide channels for special distributions of food and clothing.

It is anticipated that the constant focus of the above activities would be that of personal and community need. Through the above processes it is felt that local organization and structure should be established to assist in a democratic process of social and economic redevelopment to the end of providing a better life for all.

D. Implementation

1. This program would be implemented by a specialized staff from the region that would work on a coordinate decentralized basis in each of the fifteen counties involved. To give coordination and direction to the total project, a project director with competent clerical assistance is a necessary first step. Staff functions would be primarily focussed on stimulating community development.

2. The program should be carried out over a minimum of five years and should be evaluated annually. Even though it is proposed to be a five-year program, the task in the area is of such significant proportions that the basic commitment will need to be for at least a decade, and possibly two.

3. That a project committee be established which will include representation of all of the church interests involved; representation from the local community both Negro and white; representation from the Negro action groups; and representation from necessary governmental, educational, and welfare interests. This is a project of the National Council of Churches and will involve many units of church life, but for administrative purposes, the Division of Home Missions at the request of the Commission on Race, accepted the administrative responsibility and has agreed to seek to secure financial support and to provide technical services such as the recruitment and training of staff and technical supervision of project operation.

Minimal Project Costs

Project director, clerical help, office and travel		$ 25,000.00
Up to fifteen field workers to be provided either by denominations and ecumenical organizations to the extent that they are available, or by special recruitment and funds	$10,000 each (including auto and travel)	$ 150,000.00
Overall development, program, and administration		$ 35,000.00
Rent, educational materials and tools		$ 25,000.00
Moving expenses and equipment (nonrecurring)		$ 25,000.00
	(maximum)	$ 260,000.00

E. Extra-United States Involvement

Because of the critical nature of the problem, and based on their experience in many parts of the world exploratory discussions have been held as to the possibility of inviting the World Council of Churches through its Division of Inter-Church Aid to participate in this project.

Dear Mrs Gottsegen:

Many thanks for your kind letter of October 9.

I send you several copies of the pamphlet described in the New York Times story; and some also of a follow-up one which we only got out yesterday.

We propose the two for use by local discussion groups. Wherever even a small number of people come together and explore the issue and then find the facts, the chances are that that group will influence public opinion in the community when the Court gives its decision.

Our friends in the national offices of A D L and A J C are getting the first pamphlet out in some numbers. I do hope either or both will be of interest to you; and if you can contrive a way to get them widely used we will be extremely grateful. We can sell Questions and Answers in modest quantities at 12¢ each; and in vast quantitie at 10¢! For Check List, the prices are: small numbers - 10¢; large numbers - 8¢.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Dr. Mitchell:

"The New York Times" recently mentioned a study issued by your organization with regard to the recent Supreme Court cases involving educational segregation. As Chairman of District Affairs, for the Washington section of the above organization, I should like very much to receive a copy of this work. As you know, one of the cases involved the segregated Public School system of the District of Columbia.

If there is a fee involved, please let me know.

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

I am writing to follow-up the discussion which you had with our National President, Mrs. Moise Cahn, in Ann Arbor, Michigan, in the middle of August.

At that time you talked to her about what women's organizations could do to help prepare the way for desegregation in the schools in the South. You talked about their being local cooperation to study such matters as population distribution, school district divisions, where children live in relation to the schools, size of classes and matters of this kind. You said at that time that studies of this kind are taking place in some Southern communities. We would greatly appreciate any information which your office may have about these activities and any guidance that might be available for the most effective way of carrying on such programs.

Mrs. Cahn will be in Washington on September 18th at the meeting of the group of national organizations which are considering desegregation. Would it be possible for you to bring with you to the Washington meeting some of the factual material about these activities so that you and Mrs. Cahn could discuss it further at that time?

Thank you so much for your cooperation.

Delegates representing 94 Local Councils and twenty National Affiliate Organizations of the National Council of Negro Women, meeting in Washington in it's Biennial Session, November 12, 13, and 14, will elect new officers for a two year term, take up the matter of the revision of it's constitution and consider the proposal that the organization's name be changed.

Proposals for the adoption of a new name to include all American women without regard to race, creed or color in nationwide integrated council program has come from several regions over the country. These areas reflect wide spread opinion that the present name of the council has served its purpose of welding together Negro Women's Organizational efforts. They now propose that NCNW take the leadership in the program of integration on every local and national level.

Constitutional changes provide for the election of four National VicePresidents who will be closely related to the work of the Administration at headquarters. A plan for the extension of Regional Divisions will include for the first time states of the Pacific northwest in Region VIII.

Because of the far reaching decisions which the delegates must consider, this convention is regarded as one of the most important in Council history.

Chairman of the Constitution Committee is Attorney Marjorie Lawson of Washington, D. C. Sue Bailey Thurman, recently of San Francisco and now a resident of Boston, is chairman of the Nominating Committee.

Dear Mrs Maise:

Nice to talk with you a day or two ago and particularly nice to find someone who understood and caught fire at once.

I send you separately ten copies of Questions and Answers and ten copies of Check List. These are for free for your use. The Questions and Answers costs 12¢ each, plus postage, in quantities, and the Check List at 8¢ plus postage.

These are precious weeks in which to get a real educational job done. No group could be more useful than your members. Washington, D. C. -------- Thirty outstanding women in various local councils throughout the country have accepted key rolls in a one-day work session on "The Council Woman Working in Her Community For a Better World", which is to highlight the first day of the National Council of Negro Women's Biennial Meeting on November 12, 13, 14, 1953 at the Departmental Auditorium of the United States Department of Labor in Washington, D. "Invitations to participate in the workshops have been extended to these leaders with the hope of clarifying thinking on and interpreting approaches to the immediate problems faced within the organization and within the communities in America's march toward a better world", said Dr. Dorothy B. Ferebee, National President.

The National Council of Negro Women, composed of 850,000 women from many national organizations, believes that this is the moment when a conserted effort must be made to alert each woman to the needs of her community, to think through practical techniques for more effective leadership, and to stimulate anew, the need for better informed citizens about problems on the local, national and international scene.

Mrs. Vivian Carter Mason who was elected as the third national president of the National Council of Negro Women on Saturday, November 15, 1953 in Washington, D. C., at the Biennial Convention was born in Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania. When an infant her parents, Reverend and Mrs. George Cook Carter, moved to Auburn, New York, where she was brought up. She completed her elementary and high school training in that city and was graduated from the University of Chicago with a PhB degree, specializing in political economy and social welfare. She has had graduate work in psychiatry at Fordham University and public administration at New York University. Mrs. Mason was a professional social worker for more than 25 years. She has been a secretary in the Young Women's Christian Association in Baltimore, Maryland; Brooklyn, New York and Norfolk, Virginia. For a number of years she was employed by the Department of Welfare in New York City in the capacity of case supervisor and district office administrator. Early in the 1940's she was appointed to the highest Civil Service position in the Department of Welfare ever obtained by a Negro, that of Director of the Division of Social Service. In this position, in which she had over-all supervision of more than 4,000 employees, her responsibilities entailed policy making, maintaining welfare standards, recruitment and training of personnel and many other duties. She resigned this position following injury in a train accident.

Mrs. Mason is an ardent civic worker. When living in New York City, she founded The Committee of 100 Women, an organization which has given thousands of dollars in camp scholarships to under-privileged children. She has been made honorary president of this outstanding group. She was formerly a member of the Board of Directors of the Katy Ferguson Home for Unmarried Mothers and of the Personnel Committee of the National Board of the Young Women's Christian Association. When a resident of New York City she was active in many other phases of community welfare.

Returning to live in Norfolk, Virginia from New York City in 1945, she has been closely connected with that community. In Norfolk, she founded the Women's Council for Interracial Cooperation, a group of Negro and white women that has grown from 30 to 400 members. This unique organization tackles difficult community problems on the interracial level; thinking, planning and taking action together on problems of a civic and social welfare nature. Outstanding personalities including, Mrs. Harper Sibley; Mrs. Helen Gahagan Douglas, former congresswoman; J. Saunders Redding; Mrs. Olive Goldman, formerly a member of the United Nation's Commission on The Status of Women; Paul Williams, former president of the Southern Council; George Mitchell, Executive Director of the Southern Council; Mrs. M. E. Tilly, and many others have been brought to Norfolk by this group for public lectures.

Mrs. Mason has had considerable experience in the writing field, she is the editor of the Golden Jubilee Year Book, a historical record of the Daughters of Elks. She has written special articles for the New York Amsterdam News and the Norfolk Journal and Guide. For some time, she also wrote a column, the Guide Post, for the latter newspaper.

In Norfolk she was the only Negro woman cited by the Norfolk Ledger Dispatch on the occasion of the 100th anniversary of that newspaper. She was praised for the high quality of her civic and social welfare contributions to the community. She has been honored by the Norfolk Chapter of the Zeta Phi Beta Sorority and the Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity. For three years Mrs. Mason was the uptown chairman for the March of Dimes, organizing over 100 women each year who were successful in raising large sums of money for this cause. She represented the Norfolk Chapter for Infantile Paralysis at the annual meeting at Tuskegee Institute.

Mrs. Mason is known as a consistent and vigorous fighter for the rights of people. She has appeared before the Norfolk City Council on numerous occasions and before the Norfolk members of the State Legislature. Her appeal to them to end segregation on common carriers in the state of Virginia was described in an editorial in the Virginia Pilot as a dignified and forceful presentation which left no doubt as to the validity of her petition.

She came into the Council soon after it was organized by its Founder, President Emeritus, Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune, and since then has worked intimately with the President Emeritus and her successor, Dr. Dorothy B. Ferebee. On a national level she has been elected to Chairman of the Executive Board and as a Vice-President. As a member of the Executive Committee she was closely involved in the operations of the organization and frequently represented the Council at meetings and conferences. At one period, she was Executive Director of the Council. On the local level she became completely familiar with local problems and programs for she was the organizer and four year president of the New York Council. From 1949 to 1953, she was the president of the Norfolk Council of the National Council. Her wide range of experience in the organization is unusual for it has given her a rich and varied experience. Mrs. Mason has traveled extensively in Europe, in the West Indies and has represented the National Council in the Convention of the Women of Haiti in 1951. As president of the Norfolk Council she has been responsible for the entertainment of several German women brought to the United States under the auspices of the Women's Bureau and the State Department.

Mrs. Mason is the wife of William Thomas Mason, Superintendent of the Norfolk Community Hospital and president of W. T. Mason and Company, Real Estate, Insurance and Brokerage Firm. They have one son, Attorney William T. Mason, Jr., a practicing lawyer in Norfolk. She is the sister of Mrs. Anita Bogarte Crump of Mt. Vernon, New York, Commissioner Elmer A. Carter, Oscar S. Carter, Wheeler and Reginald Carter.

Mrs. Mason is a member of the Board of Directors of the Child and Family Service and Chairman of the Personnel Committee; a member of the National Committee for the Improvement of Nursing Services; of the Evaluatory Committee on Education of the Booker T. Washington High School; of the Norfolk Chapter of the National Infantile Paralysis Foundation; of the Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority; National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; the Young Women's Christian Association, and of the Daughters of Elks. She has been given the highest honor conferred by this fraternal group, that of Past Grand Daughter Ruler. She is Chairman of the Achievement Committee of the Daughters of Elks. Her social clubs include the Norfolk Chapter of the Links, the Women's Club, the MRS Club, the Husband and Wives Club and the Hoylites. She is a Presbyterian.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Mrs. William Thomas Mason
COlumbia 5-4434

Washington, D. C. -- The National Council of Negro Women, following program directives emanating from the Community Workshops conducted at the annual convention held in November in Washington, D. C., have issued a special bulletin to all local and junior councils and national affiliated organizations urging them to prepare their communities for a possible decision outlawing segregation in the public schools of the nation. Intergroup meetings of local leaders of both races, discussion sessions on the whys and wherefores of legal action now in the hands of the Supreme Court, the studied use of information pamphlets issued by the Southern Regional Council on the "Schools and The Supreme Court", were some of the recommendations to the entire membership of the National Council of Negro Women.

Mrs. William Thomas Mason, the newly elected national president of the organization stated today: "Negro and white citizens must prepare for the great change in an orderly, civilized and democratic manner. America has an unprecedented opportunity to take a 'soul size' step in establishing and maintaining one more vital life link, welding together the people of America for mutual progress and protection. Education for democracy and for living cannot possibly be achieved in a segregated school system. The nation's schools are our first line of defense. Children and adults, too, learn by precept and example. One without the other is meaningless. I believe that the vast majority of American people are willing and desire to see our school system reflect the theory and practice of American democracy. The fateful decision of the Supreme Court will hasten or delay the realization of the dream and hope that millions of people long for.....and have struggled for for decades past to secure".

The National Council of Negro Women has also issued strong endorsements of the annual March of Dimes campaign, requesting council members to volunteer their services in every possible way for this worthy cause.

Included also in the memorandum is a similar request to support and help in local community drives sponsored by the American Red Cross. Members of the National Council of Negro Women have rendered notable service in helping to put over community activities of these two groups.

Miss Fannie Williams of New Orleans, Louisiana returned to her home recently from New York City where she attended a nationwide conference of the National Foundation For Infantile Paralysis representing the National Council of Negro Women at a three day meeting at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel.

A program directive sent to the local councils of the National Council of Negro Women reminded these groups to emphasize three programs which have traditionally received special stress during the months of December, January and February. These programs include the National Council Founder's Day, honoring the organization's Founder, President Emeritus, Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, during December; the National Carver Day Celebration, in January, -- a program initiated by Dr. Alma Illery of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, newly elected National Chaplain of the National Council of Negro Women; the February observance of National Negro History Week.

Mrs. William T. Mason, president of the National Council, sees in the observance of Negro History Week an unusual opportunity to disseminate information about the fine cultural heritage of the Negro and feels that this holds special significance during these times when interracial groups all over the country are discussing the possible decision outlawing segregation in the public schools of the nation.

In keeping with the policy of rotating representation on important committees of the National Council of Negro Women, Mrs. Marjorie McKenzie Lawson of Washington, D. C., third vice president of the organization, will represent the Council at a closed meeting of major and recognized organizations called by Dr. Channing H. Tobias of the NAACP. The meeting will be held at the Willkie Memorial Building in New York City during December.

Dear Mrs. Mason,

The Atlanta Chapter of the American Veterans' Committee wants some help, for a strategically useful cause, from the Committee on Community Projects.

You'll see all the papers, of course, in due time. Scheme is to do a real job in integrating into Atlanta and the nearby South all to 270-odd foreign students who are at the various Atlanta colleges in an ordinary year.

A lot of things do some token hospitality for the people with whitish skins, but few are the people who try to be honest about the twelve or fifteen African students (mostly at Morehouse). AVC would do right. Quarterly institutes, numerous smaller workshops, ten field trips. A.V.C. in this city has a good record. They've persisted, when many chapters haven't, they've been honest in every way (social included) in their meetings and their work. And, what's as important, they've been a little planning and cause-to-happen nucleus for a lot of good things in local affairs, including our Georgia political affairs.

I back them. Though I'm a veteran of nothing.

Sincerely,

George S. Mitchell

Dear Mrs. Maise,

Here's a letter I sent (through you for forwarding) to Mrs. Jones in Florence.

So glad you are coming to the Carolinas for the organizing trip. I thought I would list for you a few people in the various cities, being white people, who would be friendly. I don't know that you would make any use of these contacts, but there they are. It would be most friendly if you could call them at some stage during your visit. Alternatively, if you would like for them to be in touch with you you could let me know where you could be reached in each place. But the simple thing is for you to know of these friendly persons, and ask their help and cooperation if that should seem in any place useful.

Sincerely,

George S. Mitchell

REGION III

WORKSHOP SESSION

Saturday, April 24, 1954

THEME: Our Responsibility for Improving Community Relations At Home and Abroad.

PLAN: After a brief explanation of the National Council Program by the Executive Director, Noamah W. Maise, each of the five leaders will be asked to set the stage for his group discussion with a twenty minute or less presentation. An opportunity will be given for the delegates to choose one of the five discussion groups which will be informally conducted by the leaders. A recorder will be on hand and an assistant leader will be appointed for each section on Friday evening. It may be well for the leaders to give the summary in the afternoon so the entire group will have the benefit of the several discussions.

Our over-all aim should be to make the presentation and the discussion periods challenging but practical and down-to-earth so that conferees may take home definite ideas on how to set up and move ahead with council program.

GROUP I Mrs. Arnetta Wallace, leader.

1. Leadership - The Key to good Program.

2. The Junior Council Potential.

3. Our National Affiliates at work in the Local Council.

Guide lines:

1. Since the council is made up of a diverse cross section of a given community, the leadership to do an effective job must be of the highest possible caliber. How shall we stretch one sights to secure, further develop and maintain good and dedicated leaders? What is included in the responsibilities of offices?

2. Develop for the group the strengthening influence of a junior council. Bring out the fact the junior council is set up and sponsored by the local council and is one of its leadership responsibilities.

3. Discuss the importance of affiliate group and other local group representation and support on the local level, etc.

GROUP II Mrs. Fannye Ayer Ponder, leader.

1. Review the Purposes of the National Council of Negro Women.

2. The Local Council and Community Service.

3. Life Membership.

Guide Lines:

1. It may be well to have the group ~~as it relates~~ to read the purposes together, commenting on each purpose as it relates to program.

2. Discuss the spark sometimes provided by the development of direct service projects. The unmet needs which sometimes must be met by local councils until such time as tax or community chest supported facilities may be provided.

3. The significance of Life Membership.

GROUP III Mrs. Henrine Ward Banks, leader.

1. Financing the Local and National Programs.

2. How do you see a Labor and Industry Committee function in a local council; an International Committee?

3. Current program emphasis - Social Welfare and Public Relations.

Guide lines:

1. Discuss the basic national Budget in relation to program. How shall we accumulate our "local fair share?"

2. Do you know the labor laws as they apply to women and children? What are the job opportunities for women in your community? Are there chances for wider job opportunities for women in your community? What can council women do? Discuss the down-to-earth reasons why a representative group like the Council could be effective in this area or program.

Point out the basic need to be aware of World problems; to know about people of other lands; mention our national support of U. N., World's Health Organization, our affiliation with Women of the World, etc; thal local council programs in these areas have been highly successful community wide efforts. Mention entertaining and planning discussion groups for foreign visitors - these may be arranged by national office in cooperation with the State Department, Women's Bureau.

3. Show why we decide on a special program emphasis each year at Convention time; how this gives local groups an opportunity to concentrate on setting up specific active committees not for one year but on a continuing basis.

GROUP IV Miss Anne Hawkins, leader.

1. Public Relations.

2. Youth Conservation.

Guide lines:

1. You may want to point out that although it is necessary to set up a good Public Relations Committee whose duty it would be to establish productive channels for publicity, much depends on having a good strong program to sell; that a good Public Relations Program is a part of all that we do. Mention the effectiveness of having a proper letterhead for correspondence and a correspondence committee.

2. Use as an example of the development of a program which will "sell" in any community, our Youth Conservation Program.

GROUP V Mr. George Mitchell, leader.

1. Religious Education and Fellowship.

2. Citizenship Education.

3. Education - where we are now.

Guide lines:

The opportunity afforded by Religious Education and Fellowship to "deepen our dicipleship." A recital of some of the many effective methods employed for citizenship Education - what can Council women do, and in general, stimulate our thinking out of your wonderful and wide experience.

POSSIBLE QUESTIONS WHICH WILL COME FROM THE GROUP MEMBERS.

GROUP I

Is the boldly aggressive leader necessarily the better choice?

GROUP II

Are all local councils required to have a constitution? Does this constitution conform in full to that of national? What officers would be included in a model local council? How can we help our members to place the council itself above personal considerations? Would it be advisable to hold leadership workshops, using outside experts for training purposes? Have we fully explored community resources, the churches, our affiliate organizations for recruiting potential council leaders? Do our council groups give young women a real chance for leadership development and service? What are some of the programs of a service nature which councils may sponsor without large outlays of cash? Do many of our groups sponsor recreation groups for the aged? Would these be practical projects? Do any of our local groups find it possible to sponsor teen age canteens? What are some of the pitfalls involved in these projects? Do life members pay dues in the local council? Why? Should local council membership committees try to secure Life members for the National Council?

GROUP III

Please share your thinking on how we may best interpret the need for full support of our national Budget? Please let us share your ideas for more or less painless ways to raise money. What are your practical suggestions for conducting more productive membership campaigns? Will our National Program Department chairman be responsible for guiding our local committees in program planning? If our local chairman, say of Labor & Industry, has questions re, setting up her work, should she correspond with the National Office or directly to the head of the Labor & Industry Department? How can we secure information about the Labor situation in a given community? When the delegates at the National Convention decide to emphasize a special area of program (this year it is Social Welfare and Public Relations), does this mean the local council must give major attention to these programs? Please elaborate on, or give an opportunity for persons who have illustrations for successful Social Welfare projects and activities to share these with the conference.

GROUP IV

What is considered the most effective means of publicizing on local activities? Do most of our council groups have Public Relations Committees? What is the function of such a committee? Would it follow that the Public Relations Chairman work closely with the chairman of the program committee? How can radio and T. V. best be employed as a public relations medium? Should we not send to the National Office information about our local papers so they may receive national press releases?

GROUP V

What is the best way to go about organizing a program for an Inter-Cultural Committee? What are some of the subjects which such groups discuss with mutual profit? What should we be attempting to do in relation to the question of Integration of the Schools? How do we go about finding out the people of other races who should be willing to meet with our committees? Why is it that many of our own people fear integrated schools? Does the Southern Regional Council offer any kind of special service to groups? What is the cost of your publication, the New South? Are there others?

Mr. George Mitchell
Executive Director
Southern Regional Council
63 Auburn Avenue, N. E.
Atlanta 3, Georgia

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

This hour must indeed be one that is filled with great joy and some trepidation for you who have labored so long and arduously in the field of education and human relations. All of us must rejoice in this epoch-making decision of the Supreme Court, giving thanks to the Justices and to persons like yourself who carried on the struggle to reveal the truth, thereby giving lasting witness--"Know the truth and the truth shall make you free."

A great task is ahead of us, as no one on the southern scene knows better than you. All of us in our several ways must try to work together, so that the goals that we seek will be assured--if not to-day, at least in the discernible future.

The National Council of Negro Women has an unprecedented opportunity and duty to make a lasting contribution to the betterment of human relations and to give vital impetus to a new day in American Education and Community Living.

We have in mind three things for the National Council to do:

1. To alert all local councils to their responsibility to join with local, county, and state school authorities in helping to devise ways and means of implementing this decision in the best interest of the children and the community.

2. To provide skilled leadership in the areas of education, human relations and citizenship education in order that honorable and acceptable courses of action, leading to implementation, may be utilized.

3. To prepare a brief to be presented to the Supreme Court in October, recommending method, timing and implementation of the decision.

To accomplish these ends the National Council is preparing a statement and instructions to local councils through the Sub-Committee on School Administration, of the Education Department of the National Council. The second activity, and the most important one, is a conference that is being called on Saturday, June 19, at National Council Headquarters, starting at 10:00 A. M., and consisting of Heads of our National Organizations, the Chairmen and Co-Chairmen of the Education, Human Relations and Citizenship Education Departments, together with authorities in the field of education and human relations. Here is where you come in--we should like for you to be a member of the conference, giving us the benefit of your remarkable experience and of your thinking, along the lines outlined above.

We need you very much and welcome suggestions of other persons whom you think should be invited. We had thought of the Attorney General, Herbert Brownell, Jr., Mr.Nabritt of Howard University, Dr. Charles Johnson, Hortense Powdermaker of Long Island University, Mrs. Alice Jaffee, former President of the Women's Council for Interracial Cooperation, of Norfolk, Virginia, Mrs. Tilley of Atlanta, Georgia, and others.

We were very delighted to hear of the grant which the Ford Foundation made to the Southern Regional Council, and thought it the most deserving award they had made. I do not know how the Fund operates, but would there be any possibility of the Southern Regional Council helping us to finance this important meeting? You know the National Council of Negro Women is limited in its funds, and altho this conference is so vitally important, we are not in position to finance it as it should be, and therefore must turn to friends for whatever assistance they can give.

We hope you will be able to attend and give us whatever help you can.

With our very best wishes.

Sincerely yours,

Vivian C Mason

SPECIAL

Mrs. William Thomas Mason, President of the National Council of Negro Women, 1318 Vermont Avenue, N . W., Washington, D. C., has announced her withdrawal as delegate to the International Conference to be held by the International Council of Women in Helsinki, Finland, June 7 to June 18, and the appointment of Dr. Arenia C. Mallory, First Vice-President of the National Council of Negro Women and President of Saint's Industrial School in Lexington, Mississippi, in her stead.

In a communication to the Board of Directors Mrs. Mason stated, "First things must come first. Because of the momentous aftermath of the recent Supreme Court decision in desegregating schools, the National Council of Negro Women has an unprecedented opportunity and duty, to make a lasting contribution to the implementation of this epoch making decision. To that end a conference of heads of national member organizations, chairmen and vice-chairmen of the Education, Human Relations, and Citizenship Education Departments of the National Council, and outstanding authorities in education and human relations, is being called for Saturday, June 19, at National Council Headquarters in Washington. They will study and draft a recommended course of action for the National Council of Negro Women."

Mrs. Mason further stated: "The next few weeks are to be devoted to this enterprise, and everything else is superseded by the urgency of this crisis in education and human relations. Therefore it is impossible for the President to be out of the country at this crucial time. However, the National Council of Negro Women will be ably and competently represented by Dr. Mallory, thus insuring the unbroken attendance of the National Council of Negro Women at the International Conferences of the International Council of Women."

Dear Mrs. Mason:

Thank you for your letter of August 4th to Dr. Mitchell. We have read with interest the proposal of the National Council of Negro Women for work in local communities in the interest of implementation of the Supreme Court's decision on public schools. There will be many opportunities in the months ahead for cooperation between members of the National Council of Negro Women and members of state organizations affiliated with the Southern Regional Council.

As you may know, the grant to the Council from the Ford Fund for the Republic in very large part was to make possible the equipment of our state units with professional staff. The central office is to be primarily concerned with coordinating the work of the state units, and with supplying information, and publication of materials which would be helpful to all groups working on our common concerns.

We have sent you, under separate cover, a copy of Answers for Action (another copy enclosed), designed for use by groups interested in helping to create a climate of opinion for implementation of the Court's decision. This pamphlet is available at a price of $15.00 per hundred copies. We will appreciate your efforts to help promote its use with groups with which you have contacts.

We regret that we are not in a position to "loan" staff, nor to contribute financially to the National Council of Negro Women. We hope, however, that you will urge your membership to work with the program of Council units wherever possible. If Dr. Mitchell, who is out of the office for the next several weeks, can give you suggestions about other approaches to the Ford Foundation, I am sure he will write to you.

Mr. George Mitchell
Executive Director
Southern Regional Council
Auburn Avenue
Atlanta, Georgia

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

We were extremely sorry that you were unable to attend the conference called by the National Council of Negro Women on June 19. It was a most important, stimulating and challenging meeting, out of it came a dynamic program of action for our organization.

The broad program of citizenship education was outlined together with the basic principle for the implementation of the Supreme Court decision. The plan calls for planned workshops in a great many communities, the development of interracial groups of women and the training of skilled leadership to carry through the work necessary for the implementation of the Supreme Court decision on schools desegregation.

We believe that the National Council of Negro Women can be a tremendously effective instrument in the development of a climate of public opinion persuasive to the idea of integration of schools. We know that there is a very long hard task ahead of us, that it requires dedicated, sound planning and activities to achieve the results that we all seek. The program which was outlined at the June 19 meeting calls for a carefully documented pamphlet designed to inform and to open new vistas of understanding about education, the Negro in public schools, and the results already achieved throughout the nation in non-segregated schools, in areas where segregation was carried out by law.

RECEIVED
AUG 6 1954
Southern Regional Council

My personal experience as the founder of the Women's Council for Interracial Cooperation in Norfolk, Virginia, has convinced me without a doubt that one of the best means for changing the climate of public opinion in any locality, is through Negro and white women in an organization dedicated to that purpose. In talking with the owner of one of the local newspapers in Norfolk, he stated that undoubtedly the Women's Council for Interracial Cooperation has been the prime factor in changing the race relations in that city. What can be done in Norfolk can be done in many other communities, urban and rural. We have developed techniques and know-how in organizing groups of Negro and white women and creating a climate of acceptability on the local level. This experience helps to support our assertions that the foundation for the desegregation of public schools will be achieved by and through the citizens of the locality and the most important element in that citizenry is women.

We are extremely anxious, Mr. Mitchell, to conclude plans for a concentrated project as contained in the outline enclosed. We are soliciting financial contributions from the Southern Regional Council which will enable us to move forward immediately. We know that the Southern Regional Council has made a magnificent contribution to the final decision of the Supreme Court and will continue to achieve great results in the field of education and human relations. We rejoiced with you in the wonderful grant from the Ford Foundation and hope that there will be some means whereby you can give financial support to our project. We had asked the Fund for Adult Education for assistance in this respect and received this reply today; "There is no doubt that your proposal to us is worthwhile, but our resources are limited, and we have focused our program sharply on study and discussion projects in liberal education for adults. This kind of a program falls outside the stated limits of your activities. It is, therefore, impossible for us to give aid to you in your project." Can you tell us what other department of the Ford Foundation we may appeal to for assistance with this project?

We are very much in need of a research worker in connection with the project and wonder if you would loan us such a worker to help assemble the material which will be part of a guide book for local communities.

We will be very grateful for any assistance you can give.

Sincerely yours,

Virginia C. Mason

NATIONAL COUNCIL OF NEGRO WOMEN

PROJECT IN LOCAL COMMUNITIES TO FOSTER

THE IMPLEMENTATION OF THE SUPREME COURT DECISION

OUTLAWING SEGREGATION IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Background and History: The National Council of Negro Women is a coordinating, planning body. It was founded and organized in 1935 by Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune to meet the need for united planning and concerted action for the economic, social, educational and cultural welfare of Negro women in local communities and on national and international levels. It has brought together national organizations of Negro women to achieve the numerical strength and stature necessary for representation at home and abroad. To further implement the broad program of the National Council of Negro Women councils were organized in local communities. In 1953, there are 20 affiliated organizations and 90 local councils capable of reaching some 850,000 women, through program development on the local level.

The Board of Directors, made up of the Executive Committee, seven Regional Directors, heads of affiliated organizations, presidents of local councils and heads of committees, is the governing body. A small staff, operating out of the headquarters building in Washington, D. C., consists of the Executive Director, an Administrative Secretary, a Clerk-Typist and a Secretary to the President.

The National Council of Negro Women takes the Initiative in Planning for Non-Segregated Schools.

On June 19, 1954, at National Council Headquarters, heads of National Organizations affiliated with the National Council of Negro Women, officers, chairmen of the Human Relations and Education Departments, members at large and experts in the field of education met at the call of the president to explore the implications of the Supreme Court decision and to recommend plans for the implementation in an orderly manner as free from tension and conflict as possible. It was recognized that there were many formidable obstacles in the pathway of this objective but none so great that "they could not be met by cooperative efforts of law-abiding, sane, reasonable, loyal Americans working together." This basic truth has become the corner stone of the plans which the National Council of Negro Women presents as an instrument in achieving non-segregated schools in the United States.

The Problem

The initial work and long time follow-up on changing the segregated school is a delicate and complicated task calling for a high order of experience in human relations, of leadership and concrete knowledge of the conditions, aims and goals of education. It requires specific knowledge of the problem of education on national and local levels, it demands individuals trained in working with groups, especially women's groups, as they function on a complex organized level.

Citizens Responsibility for Non-Segregated Schools. Citizens in the local community will in the final analysis determine how throughly schools in their locality will become integrated. They will determine the apathy or energy of local school authorities in moving toward non-segregation. Therefore, the person identified most closely with schools should be contacted and his cooperation obtained. Women are the closest to schools in their communities. They comprise for the most part the membership in PTAs, they know the teachers, they bring the new pupil to school, school problems and child problems are discussed with the mothers. They personify the growing awareness of American people, of individual and group responsibility for public schools. It is important too, that the vast majority of teachers are women.

The sustained action necessary demands that a program be set up and followed:

I. To create a climate of acceptance.
In order to create a climate of acceptance of the decision the following must be achieved:

a. Organize opportunities for discussion in interracial groups to help promote understanding of the significance of the decision.

b. Bring together persons of all races of similar interests and backgrounds to encourage understanding and cooperative effort.

c. Seek the interest and cooperation of editors, particularly in the Southern states to aid in gaining sympathetic, enlightened public opinion.

d. Make use of the natural opportunities of women as homemakers to influence and foster the growth of positive, democratic attitudes in the home by enlisting the help of leaders of Parent-Teacher Associations to secure unity of effort and to build goodwill.

e. Give guidance to youth and adults to enable them to develop attitudes and patterns of behaviour so necessary to good Human Relations.

f. Urge and work with Church leaders to recognize and accept the decision and to meet this challenge to our democratic and Christian principles.

II. Mobilize the support of local and state officials.

a. Wherever needed work for the appointment of State and local Human Relations Commissions with bi-racial membership and local government support.

b. Study the composition and function of local school boards.

c. Develop objectives so that the single school provides a better school system and a better education for every child.

III. Make preparation for integrated living a significant part of the daily program of the National Council of Negro Women.

a. Support measures to eliminate discrimination and segregation, and to raise the level of participation of minorities in housing, employment, recreation, health services and political life. Develop citizenship responsibility for registering, voting, understanding of local issues and evaluation of candidates for public office.

b. Face up to the issues now with a program of constructive action in all aspects of human relations. Gather the facts of "what's happening in your town" in order that the National Council of Negro Women may be an effective clearing house of vital information on local experiences.

The Project

To organize groups of Negro and white women on the local level who will as an ultimate force, united and strong, develop a climate of acceptance and a program of action in implementing the Supreme Court decision following the outline above.

The setting has begun to take shape. Outstanding church women's organizations have come out with bold and imaginative statements in support of the decision. Women's organizations of civic and welfare nature have made public pronouncements. Individuals on the local level have written hundreds of letters to local newspapers in support of non-segregation. Youth has spoken in positive terms. Yet there is a vast area of public opinion which is either bitter or yet unformed. Many are strenously opposed to any and all aspects of non-segregated schools. Two courses are open and must be taken. First, the white women who have been courageous enough to take a positive stand must be grouped together along with informed Negro women in the localities to think, plan and carry out a course of action to coincide with the decision. The bitter opponents must be helped in subtle ways to change their thinking. Those who are in the process of forming their opinions must have the advantage of the more positive viewpoint. These objectives are difficult to achieve but therein lies the core of changing public opinion. These diverse segments can, by planned courses of action, be drawn and involved in the desegregation of schools for these objectives are outside the area of legal pressures. In the south, especially the deep south, there is probably no other solution, if the objectives are to be accomplished without serious setbacks or in an atmosphere of hatred, tension, conflict or perhaps even violence.

It is a task that will tax all the resources of human relations, but it is our conviction that once women are banded together with these objectives in view, no matter how slow the process may seem in the beginning, eventually progress in non-segregation in public schools and other areas will become a reality.

The National Council of Negro Women closely allied with women's organizations. The National Council of Negro Women has long enjoyed close association with the outstanding women's organizations including: the American Association of University Women, Business and Professional Women, General Federation of Women Clubs , League of Women voters, National Council of Cathelic Women, National Council of Jewish Women, National Council of Women of the United States (of which the National Council of Negro Women is a member), National Nurses League, United Church Women, the Young Women's Christian Association and others. The National Council of Negro Women has worked with these organizations in many projects affecting women, serving on joint committees, planning and attending joint conferences, exchanging speakers and experts in various fields of endeavor and in general developing relationships of accord and mutual effort. There are three reasons why the National Council of Negro Women is preeminently equipped to undertake this project.

MILLERS FALLS

1. With its prestige and cooperative association with the women's groups it is in a position to secure the interest and influence of women's organizations on national and local levels. The National Council of Negro Women is a natural instrument to bring together interracial groups of women to study the problems and plan constructive action on the local level. The National Council of Negro Women can weld together a courageous, intelligent and resourceful group of women in a given community.

2. Because of the organizational structure of the National Council of Negro Women it is geared to work with local units of national organizations. These local units of the National Council of Negro Women represent a cross section of women within whose ranks may be found professional workers, trained technicians, industrial and factory employees and housewives. This great variety gives ample opportunity to develop leadership on the local level. It is advantageous to the project for local units to be organized so that the leadership for setting up and maintaining interracial groups is sustained. Since this project is an essential part of the National Council of Negro Women's program, it is almost mandatory. This is important in relation to the acceptance of the project on the local level by the groups of organized white women in the local community.

What will be done on the local level to carry out the project of creating a climate of acceptance followed by constructive action to implementing the Supreme Court decision.

1. The National Council of Negro Women proposes to engage two Field Secretaries, qualified by education, experience and natural aptitude to work on this project in local communities.

2. These secretaries will carry out a program of leadership, training and the development of interracial groups of women on the basis described elsewhere.

3. They will organize units of the National Council of Negro Women as a continuing means of keeping the organized interracial groups functioning.

4. They will interpret to the local community, through organized groups, churches, workshops and institutes, the problems of education and the ways and means by which a single educational system can develop the American child and the American community on the highest level.

5. They will be equipped with special brochures, books, courses of instruction, films, charts and other media necessary to put across ideas.

It is most important that participating leadership be developed on the local level. Negro citizens need to be undergirded by information, by reaffirmation in their duties as citizens. They need to be strengthened and encouraged in meeting effectively what will be a situation of crisis for sometime to come.

Specific territory to be covered. The Field Secretaries would cover the states of Maryland, Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Tennessee, Oklahoma, Missouri, Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Illinois and Kentucky.

Conclusion

The decision of May 17, 1954, was not an end but a beginning. It confronts us with new opportunities for making a reality our American concept of democracy. The task of implementing the decision will not be easy. But, with the same unity of purpose and unity of action with which we united in the National Council of Negro Women, we know that full integration can be achieved. We are determined to demonstrate that all problems in human relations can be met by the cooperative efforts of law-abiding, sane, reasonable, loyal Americans working together.

This great task confronts the women of the nation for they must lay a foundation which will be secure, honorable and forward moving, so that a new day in human relations and American education can be achieved.

Dear Mrs. Mason:

I come back to your letter of August 4, which Mrs. Hamilton answered.

You have got hold of an excellent thing which ought to be pushed. One would think that the initiative properly lies with the white people in each Southern community, but we all know from experience that if the Negro women will make first moves, cooperation in honest effective planning can be had. I would dearly like to see you get the money to do what you want to do.

Any chance that the Newport News shipyard people would put it up? One of the leading figures, name begins with "B" -- lately retired, and such a man with influence surviving in a great Company might be able to pry loose the funds.

Otherwise you could try the Fund for the Republic, One East 54th Street, New York City, where the man to be addressed is Mr. David Freeman. Or, if you go to New York, drop in and see the Doris Duke Foundation people where the Secretary is Miss Sophie Van Theiss.

There is real power in what you want to do. I had a pleasant talk the other day with Mrs. James C. Chambers.

While you are digging for money, why not try out, with some local branches, the use of either our pamphlet or the one that the Public Affairs Committee did, called Segregation and the Schools? If you can get provided to some foundation a detailed description of the procedure and consequences of two or three local discussion enterprises, I should think they would help you.

You will remember that we chatted briefly at the meeting of the various agencies which followed the Herald-Tribune Forum.

I send you a copy of the Council's most recent bulletin, Answers for Action.

Could you not work out some arrangement by which the local branches of your Association were supplied with copies of this?

It compresses the findings of the Ashmore study, reviews the laws, and tells the things to do. It is best used by local white and Negro discussion groups -- preferably women.

We have sold it in great proportions to long strings of organizations which are using it in that way. It can be had in quantity at 16¢ apiece.

Do ponder and see.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Naomah W. Maise, Executive Director
Columbia 5-4434

March 2, 1955

Over 800 members and friends of the National Council of Negro Women attended its imminently successful Brotherhood Luncheon honoring Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, Founder, President Emeritus of the organization. The event was held in the spacious and beautifully appointed Grand Ball Room of the Willard Hotel in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. William T. Mason, president of the Council presided. Mrs. A. Carrington Ewell was general chairman. Mrs. Howard Thurman, Chairman of the 20th Anniversary formally opened the celebration with a brief ceremony which included the reading of the Council pledge.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, the principal speaker, herself a life member of the Council said "The work of Mrs. Bethune and the National Council of Negro Women has been not only for your own people but for the general interest of the country." She reminded the audience that the time for giving lip service to the ideal of Brotherhood is past; that instead, actual practices must follow if we are to strengthen our democracy and live securely within ourselves.

Mrs. Bethune, who was presented by Lt. Lawrence Oxley, spoke briefly in her inimitable manner. She said in part "On this splendid occasion our many friends show by their very presence their endorsement of the efforts of the Council to bring mankind nearer to God; to take away the spirit of segregation and to bind us together as one." She said she was aware of an underlying spiritual note in the program which formally opened the 20th year celebration of the Council and threw out a challenge for the present and the future saying, "Keep your hand in God's hand and your foot firmly on the ground as together we build a bridge to the fellowship the world needs today."

The concluding feature of the Luncheon program was the awarding of three citations for meritorious service. Dr. Auguste Hoffmann of Berlin, President of the German Federation of University Women, was cited for "leadership in the field of international understanding and good will." Mrs. Jane Morrow Spaulding, Consultant to the Division of Community Program Development, Foreign Operations Administration and Treasurer of the National Council of Negro Women, was cited for "the inspiration you have brought to American womanhood, through your contribution of loyal and unselfish service to human welfare." The popular CBS television star of "Toast of the Town," Ed Sullivan, was honored as a symbol of brotherhood throughout the country, for his "creative skill in helping America recognize and appreciate individual worth and talent and for the tremendous vitality and stimulus you have brought to the ideals of brotherhood."

The soloist for the Luncheon was Padrica Mendez from Jacksonville, Florida. Miss Mendez, a highly talented young musician who is a sophomore student at Bethune-Cookman College won the hearts of the large and enthusiastic luncheon audience as she displayed an unusually rich and well controlled voice in her two numbers: "I Vow I Shall Do All In My Power" by Bizet and "The Kiss" by Luigi Arditi. Luncheon music was furnished by John Hoskins, pianist and Maurice Jones, violinist. Mr. Hoskins also served as accompanist for Miss Mendez.

The Euphonic Chorale, a Washington singing unit under the direction of Henry Brooks Shepard, sang "Let Us Break Bread Together" in connection with the 20th Anniversary Ceremony and "The Battle Hymn of The Republic" at the conclusion of the program.

My dear Mr. Mitchell:

The Annual Spring Conference of Regions III and IV of the National Council of Negro Women will be held at historic Bethune-Cookman College, Daytona Beach, Florida, April 8 through 10. This occasion, part of the 20th Anniversary Celebration of the Council, marks the first pilgrimage to the College built by our Founder, President Emeritus, Mary McLeod Bethune.

One of two workshops will be on Education. We hope to explore factually and humanistically the elements involved in the program of school integration, some of the major problems of education across the board, and perhaps find some solutions to enable our children to have one American school system dedicated to true education -- that of developing the will and the way for people to live with each other without fear and animosity -- each helping the other to attain the best he is capable of.

We realize this is somewhat a large order but feel optimistic that with skilled and sincere discussants we can achieve some valuable results. That is why we are asking you to be a speaker at this workshop, because of your unique experience and achievements in creating understanding and acceptance of racial relations just as other relationships are created and maintained. As an authority on conditions and attitudes in the South, we believe that this conference would be immeasurably lessened if you fail to be there. It is extremely important now because of the program of organization that the Southern Regional Council is conducting. Mrs. Iola Jones of Florence, South Carolina, Regional Director, feels strongly about your coming as we all do, and also requests that we write Mrs. Alice Spearman of Columbia South Carolina.

We earnestly hope you can come. An early reply will be appreciated.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mrs. Maise:

I am happy to come down to Daytona Beach April 9th, because I like what the National Council does and because I like what you do and feel confidence in the additional things you will do. I had been pretty strict with my rule about only leaving town when people could pay the expenses, but in this instance we will find the money necessary for the travel.

Hitch is that I have promised by now to be in Jackson, Mississippi on the evening of Friday, April 8th, and I must therefore depend on the planes to get me to Daytona the next morning. Ordinarily I don't do that; I go by train in order to be sure to get where I am supposed to be. But this time I don't see any help for it except to trust to the planes. And the plane schedule is a little risky. I have to get up in Jackson for a four o'clock morning flight, come through to New Orleans, and make a close connection at Jacksonville, Florida. If all works, I arrive at the airport at Daytona Beach 12:45 p.m. Saturday, April 9th. If all does not work, I don't know what happens.

Anyway, assuming the plane runs and runs tolerably on time, I will undertake to be available to you at least for the dessert part of the luncheon on April 9th, and for as much use as you wish to make of me that afternoon.

Sincerely,

Your letter came and we are happy that your schedule is clear, especially for Saturday April 9, when our Luncheon and afternoon workshop will be held at Bethune-Cookman College.

We did not mention travel expenses because we simply do not have same on hand. The Regional Treasuries can take care of board and room, but would be ever so grateful if you can persuade the Southern Regional Council to get you down to us. There will come a day when we will be able to defray such expenses, but right now there is continued hard sledding and we have to ask our friends to come to the rescue.

NATIONAL COUNCIL OF NEGRO WOMEN
1318 Vermont Avenue, N. W.
Washington, D. C.

August 8, 1956

Copy of letter to National Organizations concerning Convention - Conference.

One of the most cherished aspects of life in the United States is the continuing contribution which women's organizations have made to human welfare. These organizations have spearheaded many reforms, advanced cultural development and in many instances have been the conscience of the nation.

The people of this country are faced with many problems but none more far-reaching than the struggle for full human and civil rights for every segment of the population. These goals have been accentuated by the decision of the Supreme Court of May 17, declaring that segregated public school education is illegal.

While many states hastened to comply with the decision and have already achieved excellent results, in other states a different situation has prevailed. A wave of hostility against Negroes and others has extended deep into the normal processes of the community. Tensions exist and there seems to be very little constructive action to remove or allay these tensions. Such a situation can become dangerous indeed and flare out in many directions.

Many organizations representing varied interests have passed clear cut and courageous resolutions in support of integrated education, open housing, fair employment practices and full citizenship participation. Women's organizations have been in the forefront of this direct effort to influence public opinion and alert the nation to its moral responsibilities.

There is still however a wide gap between ideals and achievements. Men and women from every section of our country have been troubled and wonder how we can build upon the positive achievements that have been made by people of good will planning and working together.

The National Council of Negro Women believes that women's organizations with their vast resources of experience and influence can bring about changes in local communities so that public opinion in support of law and order will be articulate and effective. If women can come together in small groups and frankly and freely discuss the impediments to human and civil rights perhaps there will come about stronger implementation of there resolute position taken by these groups in support of these rights.

To that end the National Council of Negro Women invites you to join in an Interracial Conference to be held on Friday and Saturday, November 16 and 17 at the Willard Hotel, Washington, D. C. The theme of this conference is, "Women Working Together Can Surmount Barriers to Civil and Human Rights."

Each organization is asked to send ten delegates representing as many sections of the country as possible, for all parts of the United States have problems demanding solutions.

Will you also submit at your earliest convenience six questions or problems relating to the subject of human and civil rights which women face in their home towns for which no satisfactory answers have been found. Enclosed please find an Informational Bulletin concerning the conference.

We look forward to your interest and concern and hope for your participation in this enterprise in human relations.

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

The National Council of Negro Women is holding an Interracial Conference of Women on Friday, November 16 and Saturday, November 17, 1956 at the Willard Hotel, Washington, D. C. At this time Negro and white women from all sections of the United States, some leaders in their local communities, others, leaders in national organizations, will come together in small face to face groups to discuss the theme; "Women Working Together Can Surmount Barriers to Human and Civil Rights."

We need your help. First, will you let us know the white women of the South who are persons of good will, working steadily although perhaps now quietly to bring about justice for all the citizens of the South and in so doing to relieve tensions caused by fears. We know Mrs. M. E. Tilly and Miss Lillian Smith. Are there other women who would come to our Conference-Convention and help us think through ways of acting to make real the principles set forth in the Supreme Court Decision of May 17, 1954.

For your information, we enclose the conference's tentative bulletin, a copy of the letter to national organizations and a National Council Brochure. Second, will you please arrange to come to the Conference, November 16th and 17th, as a consultant, one of the experts to sit in with a discussion group and share with us your rich experience in human relations.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mrs. Tilly:

The National Council of Negro Women founded and organized by the late Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune is carrying on in the spirit of our beloved leader.

On Friday, November 16 and Saturday, November 17, 1956, there will be an Interracial Conference of women leaders from all regions of the United States to discuss in small groups the means of implementing the theme, "Women Working Together Can Surmount Barriers to Human and Civil Rights." It is our conviction that such rights and responsibilities enunciated by the Supreme Court Decision of May 17, 1954 and by many women's organizations in courageous resolutions need to be coordinated in local communities where tensions between the races is undermining our cooperative experiences for the welfare of all the citizens.

We are very anxious for you to attend this conference which follows the 21st Annual Convention of the National Council of Negro Women so that all the delegates might benefit from your unique experiences and achievements in the development of a better America.

Enclosed for your information is a copy of the letter sent to National Women's Organizations, a bulletin about the convention conference and a recent pamphlet depicting the purpose and program of the National Council.

More details will be sent you later when we hear from you.

Sincerely yours,
Vinda Carter Mason

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

The time is fast approaching for the Interracial Conference of Women, Friday, November 16, and Saturday, November 17, 1956, at the Willard Hotel, Washington, D. C.

We thank you for helping us in suggesting women to be invited and also for asking Mrs. Tilly to send us names.

We are depending upon you to come to Washington from the meeting in Williamsburg to help us as a Consultant. We have not yet solved the question of expenses mentioned in your letter of August 28th, either for you or the other consultants whose names appear on the preliminary announcement, copies of which are enclosed. We do hope that finances will not keep you from joining us in this important Conference of Women.

Dear Mrs. Mason:

I'll be glad to come to the Washington meeting November 16th and 17th, but it will be necessary for somebody to pay my expenses. They won't be much, because I'll be at Williamsburg officially November 15th, and from Williamsburg to Washington and back, plus a night's keep in Washington, will hardly break you.

I have asked Mrs. Tilly to write you about the various ladies. She's away for a few days, but will be back soon, and will write you.

Dear Mrs. Mason:

I do declare there ought to be some way for your conference to find the funds to move me from the Williamsburg area to Washington and back one hundred miles South on Friday, November 16th!

I have been mighty firm about the rule that I don't go around making speeches unless people find the freight.

So to be consistent, I will have to back out of the show November 16th unless somebody can find the few dollars involved.

I hate this because I like what you and your group do, and think it of greatest importance.

PURPOSE:

This conference is to analyze and to discuss frankly, conditions creating tensions in many sections of the country, which prevent full citizenship to one-tenth of the population -- the Negro minority; to clarify misconceptions and "racial myths" and to devise ways and means whereby women working together can safeguard and extend human and civil rights.

BACKGROUND:

On June 15, 1954, presidents of national organizations affiliated with the National Council of Negro Women met to consider policies and to recommend a program of action. Their conclusion was that "there were many formidable obstacles in the pathway of implementation of the Supreme Court Decision of May 17, 1954, but none were so great that they could not be met by cooperative efforts of law abiding, sane, reasonable and loyal Americans working together."

On October 15, 1954, heads of women's organizations met at Council House at the invitation of the National Council of Negro Women to discuss the action that had been taken by their organizations following the decision and aspects of human relations involved in the maintenance of human and civil rights.

During 1955, the National Council of Negro Women conducted a survey of the accomplishments of women's organizations in establishing policies and programs concerned with human and civil rights.

All national women's organizations concerned with programs to improve conditions of life through religious, educational, welfare, civic, social, cultural, business and professional activities.

WHY A CONFERENCE

Many women's organizations and others have long been concerned with building an America where equal opportunity would be the cornerstone of community living. Encouraging progress has marked each decade but in some areas progress has been retarded by arbitrary impediments. Following the Supreme Court decision of May 17, 1954, a number of states and communities set about complying with the decision and integrated schools previously segregated. It is a tribute to state and school officials that they successfully carried out the law of the land in keeping with the high ideals of American life.

ACTION BY ORGANIZATIONS

Organizations and individuals approved the action of the high tribunal and took decisive steps to create understanding and support among their members. Many forthright and challenging resolutions were passed by these organizations and programs initiated to bring about eventual compliance throughout the country.

PRESENT SITUATION

Serious disorders and violence have marked the refusal of some states to consider compliance. This problem goes far beyond the immediate situation of integration. It strikes at the very heart and core of what America has endeavored to promote throughout its history—that is the doctrine of law and order in the conduct of all our affairs, whether on local, state, national or international levels.

QUESTIONS FOR WOMEN

How can women whose organizations have gone on record in support of principles of law and order relate themselves to each other in the local community?

What are the barriers preventing women from getting together in towns and cities to coordinate their programs in this respect?

How can the corporate strength and spiritual resources of women be utilized in overcoming the confusion of our times?

CHALLENGE TO WOMEN

Women have been eminently successful in sorting out and tackling vexing problems whether in child care, welfare services, education, health care, the aged, juvenile delinquency and disaster relief, to note a few. The problems of human and civil rights for one-tenth of the population—the Negro minority—loom precariously in housing, employment, education, exercise of the right to vote, and to organize for advancement.

In the Interracial Conference of Women, the core of the 21st Annual Convention of the National Council of Negro Women, the belief is manifest that American women thinking and talking together will feel impelled to take the leadership in their communities to insure human dignity and the rights of every individual as guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States.

WHO IS INVITED

Organizations of women concerned with programs to improve conditions of life through religious, educational, welfare, civic, social, cultural, business and professional activities, and individuals interested in the same ends.

FORMAT

Conferees will assemble in small groups after the opening. Each group will include a Chairman, a Consultant and a Summarizer. Questions previously selected will be the focal point to begin discussions.

Dear Members of the Press:

We of the National Council of Negro Women thank you for the cooperation you have given our National Council through your columns in support of our program. Without your interest and cooperation the Council would not be able to effectively report the progress it has made to date.

There is no doubt that the National Council of Negro Women is one of the finest organizations in the world among women. It is the first of its kind among our women to unite women's national organizations into a council which focuses the union and leadership potential of women organizations into channels of united activity, planning and registration of opinion. We have come a long way since 1935, the year of our establishment by Mary McLeod Bethune whose dream was to found an organization where women of all backgrounds and interest could work together for the common good.

We are about to embark on our 1959 Mobilization Campaign to reach women in all communities and relate them to the National Council of Negro Women as members and dynamic supporters of our Council.

This can be done if we can get your cooperation to help us herald to the women of our country the importance of the National Council of Negro Women and the support it needs in its effort to develop relationship and solidarity in the leadership activities of women.

Confidentally, as a newspaper woman, I am of the opinion that we of the press through our columns do an effective and most commendable job of molding opinion, and directing it into proper channels. Our influence is an important one and ranks high among the opinion media of the world.

With the sincere hope that I can count on you to make the National Council of Negro Women's Mobilization Campaign a real boost, I remain

Yours very truly,

Dear Mr. Fleming:

We invite you to participate in an important working conference bringing together persons whose responsibilities relate them to policy and program within national organizations.

Realizing the urgency of the situation confronting 1,765 school children and their parents in Prince Edward County, Virginia, the National Council of Negro Women is calling an Emergency Conference of organizations concerned with the progress of American ideals in education and human relations. The country's first county-wide shutdown of public schools to avert integration calls for the best help that we can give individually and together at this midpoint in the school year.

The Conference will be held in the Community Room of the WASHINGTON POST Building, 1515 L Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., Saturday, January 16, from 10:00 A. M. until 5:00 P. M.

It is the purpose of the Conference to help us get full information on the situation and to do coordinated thinking and planning of what must and can be done to resolve it. Preliminary studies make clear that there are specific ways in which organizations who share the concern may help to make a difference, especially in the face of problems threatening the morale of both children and parents. The enclosed statement prepared by the Prince Edward County Christian Association gives some background information.

With the contribution you can make to our day's work we are confident that organizations eager to assume responsibility will be able to see more clearly the issues and elements involved and the kinds of assistance each can give.

Because time is of the essence we should appreciate knowing as quickly as possible whether we may count upon your participation in this important cooperative effort that has bearing on the future of our children and our schools.

Sincerely yours,

Dorothy Height

PRINCE EDWARD COUNTY SITUATION

For your information

NEW DEVELOPMENTS CREATE NEW CRISIS

Public schools in Prince Edward County were closed last Fall to circumvent the Federal Court Order for integration. Meanwhile makeshift private schools have been provided for white children but 1,765 Negro pupils have had to do without schooling. Now a newly organized group of white citizens known as Southside Schools, Inc. has developed a plan to set up private education facilities for schoolless Negro children.

The Negro citizens have rejected the proposal and they want to continue to work for the operation of public schools on an integrated basis. Despite this fact, the Southside Schools, Inc., including many of the leaders in the White Citizens Council, is making appeals to Negro parents asking them to make application for the children to attend the private schools.

The pressures mount as parents are faced with their devotion to democratic principles and the fact that they see their children out of school without even the benefit of community social agencies to meet some of the needs of young people. The text of the letter stated below reflects some of the elements with which parents are being confronted. The need for the creative help and contribution of organizations across the country is critical if the morale of both children and parents is to be sustained.

"Southside Schools, Inc., has been formed to provide schools for those Negro children who have not been able to get an education since the public schools were closed this Fall. It is our intention to set up good schools, get qualified teachers, and so that the Negro children of this County will not lose time from school, to run these schools at least 180 days which is a full school year. The actual location of the schools and the securing of the teachers will be determined after all applications have been received.

There are funds available from the State of Virginia to pay tuition for children when public schools are closed. The Board of this corporation has set a tuition charge of $240 per child. Therefore, each parent can apply for this money after enrolling, which will pay for educating your child. How to do this will be explained to you and help given by this corporation after your child is enrolled in school.

Enclosed is an application for registration. Please fill it out and return it to Southside Schools, Inc., P. O. Box 164, Farmville, Va., as soon as possible but not later than January 15, 1960. No application received after January 15 will be accepted.

We urge you to mail your application immediately as we must know as soon as possible how many pupils to prepare for."

PRINCE EDWARD COUNTY CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
P E C C A
309 Franklin Street
Farmville, Virginia

Prepared by: Rev. L. Francis Griffin, President

BACKGROUND: Prince Edward County is one of the several Virginia Counties situated in the so-called "BLACK BELT" of Virginia. The "BLACK BELT" is a rather loosely defined geographical political area where the Negro population approximates or exceeds the white population.

Racial patterns evident in Virginia's "BLACK BELT" follow very closely the patterns found in similar densely populated Negro areas of other southern states, included among which are South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi.

Prince Edward County, like many of her counterparts in many of the above mentioned states, has traditionally been a strict adherent to the "separate but unequal" doctrine in all matters pertaining to race. Voting has been discouraged. Public employment offers only the most menial job opportunities to the Negro, and even in these he is the last to be hired and the first to be fired. In private employment the same discriminatory pattern follows. More than likely the few who satisfy the prejudiced whims of the white employer hold such privileged employment with tenure that is in direct proportion to the degree to which they are willing to forfeit their dignity, manhood and citizenship rights as free Americans. Public educational opportunities at all levels (elementary, secondary and collegiate) have followed the same pattern.

DEEP SCARS: Negro parents, having been conditioned by the innumerable overt and subtle practices of racial discrimination, found themselves at the mid-century mark (1950) frustrated and in a position bordering on utter despair.

OUR CHILDREN: However, in April of 1951, the Bibical passage "...And a little child shall lead them", came into play. The Negro High School population, numbering 456, noting that their parents were either unable to, reluctant, or indifferent toward doing anything about the educational discrimination they and other Negro pupils were forced to suffer, startled the world with the now famous R. R. Moton High School Strike.

These galant young Americans of color, appealed to their parents for support and received it. The children and their parents appealed to the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People for assistance and received such.

The Prince Edward County authorities refused to give any consideration to the requests of these children and their parents in their quest for nondiscriminatory public educational opportunties. To secure the constitutional rights of their children, action in the Federal Courts followed.

THE TAIL WAGS THE DOG: Three years later, the Supreme Court of the United States, in its now famous May 17, 1954, decision declared racial segregation in public education to be unconstitutional. The NAACP, heralding the Supreme Court decision as being the law of the land, was jubilant in its expectations that at long last democracy in education would find its way into the public schools of Prince Edward County. However, history has proved otherwise, for it has been made unmistakably clear that the Constitution of the United States and the Court's interpretation thereof mean little if anything when prejudiced southern whites such as those at the helm of authority in Prince Edward County are confronted by Negroes who seek and demand their basic constitutional rights.

Five years after the historic May 17, 1954, United States Supreme Court decision, and nine years after legal action was instituted, Federal Court orders remain unobeyed.

When the Supreme Court declined to grant a stay of the lower court's order requiring integration of the County public schools beginning September 1959, the Prince Edward County Board of Supervisors (the lawmaking body of the County) declined to appropriate funds to operate any public school. No tax was levied for public school purposes.

As a result of this defiant and undemocratic action by the Board of Supervisors, more than 3,300 children of both races are confronted with the specter of educational malnutrition.

The segregationists of the County, waving the Confederate battle flag, proclaim in loud and uncouth terms, "There will be no racial mixing in the public schools, regardless of the cost".

PRIVATE VERSUS PUBLIC SCHOOLS: These benighted and confused people are attempting to delude the county's white population into believing that private schools are the answer to the white children's educational malnutrition. This same group has constantly appealed to certain elements of the Negro community to forfeit the Negro children's dignity and constitutional rights by the acceptance of a pre-1954 status quo; i.e., the Negroes of Prince Edward County will meekly and without complaint return to a rigid and complete racially segregated society.

We realize that in a representative democracy such as ours our governmental processes will become stagnant unless the education of citizens is broad enought to encourage maximum interest and participation according to one's ability without being hampered by artificial barriers and restrictions. Our advocacy of public education is strengthened when we realize that we no longer live in a provincial society. Today, we are part and parcel of a space age society and being such, if we expect the youth of Prince Edward County to compete with the other youth of this nation and of the world as equals, we must provide for them the strongest system of public education possible. To rely on private education to fill these modern-day needs is utter folly.

NOT WITHOUT BLAME: As Negro citizens of Prince Edward County, we recognize our shortcomings. We, who constitute roughly 43% of the total population, unequivocally declare that our political and civic shortcomings are many.

WE REAFFIRM: However, at this late date, we have elected not to spend these precious days at the "wailing wall". We reaffirm our faith in constitutional law and order as interpreted by the Supreme Court of the United States; we revere and commend our great champion of equality and justice - The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and we pledge our accelerated moral, spiritual and financial support toward the furtherance of its Christian and democratic objectives.

We view the present prevailing situation in Prince Edward County as tragic.

It becomes even more tragic when we realize that, in a nation whose swaddling cloth was the Bill of Rights, we have lost the spiritual and democratic identity so vital and necessary for the preservation of a Christian democracy.

We believe the problem of Prince Edward County is not only one which has basic legal implications, but that it is also a religious and moral one. One that must be solved in light of Christian love, and creative altruism. Therefore, we, the Negro citizens of Prince Edward County, are irrevocably committed to this Christian democratic solution.

P E C C A: Confronted with the above realities, we have elected to organize ourselves into the Prince Edward County Christian Association - PECCA. This association is governed by a constitution which is rigid in its objectives, but elastic enough to permit us to deal with all of the problems that now hamper our complete acceptance as first-class citizens.

We believe that under the determined Christian and democratic leadership of this organization, the citizens of Prince Edward County will move steadily toward a lasting and just solution to this present problem. However, we humbly recognize that all of our efforts, regardless of our determination, will fall short of our stated objectives unless we receive from outside sources, strong, fortifying support.

To be effective, this support must of necessity be three-fold: spiritual, inspirational and financial.

NO MAN IS AN ISLAND: Believing that no man is an island unto himself, we prayerfully ask that you weigh our current perplexing problem as it presents itself in our county and lend your support to help effect its permanent and lasting solution. For what we do in Prince Edward County, we do not alone for ourselves, but for all disadvantaged and underprivileged people everywhere.

Dear Mrs. Mason:

Nothing would please us more than to be able to respond affirmatively to your letter of March 26 outlining the financial needs for your One-Day Conference. As you know, however, our funds are granted and budgeted for fairly well specified program plans, and we simply are not able to grant money in support of meetings, even such a valuable one as you are having. I might add that if the Conference plans to prepare and distribute a report of its proceedings or conclusions, we might be able to make a contribution to that.

As to your query about speakers, some names occur to me. I am sure you will know Mrs. Ella Baker and Mrs. Septima Clark; in looking over your program it seems to me there are several places where these two ladies might help. They are two exceptional people. Heslip Lee of the Virginia Council on Human Relations would be a resource on whom you could call, and so would be his assistant, Mr. Ocie Lee Smith, who is especially good in matters of farm and small-town problems. You may not know that the Virginia Council has recently employed a field consultant to work in the area of employment. He is Mr. Gregory Shinert formerly the Executive Director of the Missouri Commission on Human Rights.

Immediately before joining the Virginia Council staff he was working for the Department of Defense in merit employment. Tinsley Spraggins, whom I am sure you know, would be excellent on your politics panel. Kenneth Morland at Randolph-Macon Woman's College would be good either on education or the family or the community. Constance Curry, Director of the National Student Association's Southern Project, with offices at 41 Exchange Place, S. E., Atlanta, might be a possible discussant for your panel on the family. I doubt that you could get Paul Green at the University of North Carolina, but if you could, he would be the best person I can think of to deal with the arts. Another person who occurs to me is William Stryon, the novelist. I don't know this man at all, but he has written some good things, and either now lives or has lived in Norfolk.

We are enclosing a Publications List. If there is anything on it which you would like to have for your conference, please let me know.

With best regards,

Sincerely yours,

Leslie W. Dunbar

NORFOLK COUNCIL
NATIONAL COUNCIL OF NEGRO WOMEN, INC.

Mr. Leslie Dunbar
Executive Director
Southern Regional Council
5 Forsyth Street, N.W.
Atlanta 3, Georgia

RECEIVED
MAR 28 1963
RECEIVED

Dear Mr. Dunbar:

Reports coming in from the Southern Regional Council are uniformly execllent. Excerpts are frequently used in my speeches and never fail to pinpoint the idea I am trying to convey.

The Norfolk Council of the National Council of Negro Women, Inc. (tax exempt) will hold a One Day Conference on Saturday, May 25th at the Golden Triangle Hotel, Norfolk, Virginia. This meeting will climax Mary McLeod Bethune Week eminating from Washington, D.C. beginning May 18th.

The purpose of this Conference an observance of the Centennial of the Emancipation Proclamation is to briefly remind Negro women of their heritage of courageous struggle and achievement; simultaneously but on a broader scale to challenge them to more dynamic and consistent action as organizations and individuals.

Enclosed please find a brief resume' of Conference content. Our basic problem is finance. Some funds will be raised from the luncheon-conference fee but there is a desire to make a contribution to the Bethune Educational and Memorial Fund if possible from the net proceeds. This will not be a very large amount as the price of the Conference ticket is $5.00.

The estimated budget for this Conference is as follows:

1.	Travel and hospitality of participants	$ 945.00
2.	Printing	274.00
*3.	Honorariums	350.00
	Total	$1,569.00

*Not all persons will receive an honorarium. Speakers connected with government, large corporations and organizations are asked to contribute their services.

Do you think it is possible for the Southern Regional Council to make a contribution to this endeavor?

The Conference is needed very much indeed. There is an air of lethargy and perhaps even self satisfaction that prevades many of our communities. Integration of schools, even though token, admission to "downtown" eating accommodations and the lessening of tensions seem to lull many persons and organizations into inaction or at best superficial concern for problems of a very serious nature.

A jolt or a shakeup brought about by exposure to these problems by qualified experts could result in tangible efforts to stem the tide of "drop-outs", to induce more young women to study for diversified professions, to backup Negro artists, shut-out in great measure from TV and the theater to create family clinics and other resources for strengthening family life and to arouse interest in the growing importance of women in the new African and far East countries.

Any suggestions as to speakers, printed materials and possible sources of assistance will be warmly welcomed. I am grateful for all your kindnesses in this regard.

Sincerely yours,

Vivian C Mason

9:40 to 10:15 A.M.----------Opening
Keynote address
Announcements

10:30 to 12:30 P.M.----------Panel Meetings

Panel Sections

Following the address the delegates and other participants will proceed to the panel sections which they have selected previously. In these separate panel meetings a keynote address will be given by one or more authorities in the field followed by comments, questions and general discussion.

It is hoped that three questions will be answered by the panel participants:

1. How can Negro women use the achievements of the past to fortify the present and future?

2. What objectives should Negro women seek now and how can these be achieved?

3. What new and intensified old programs can women's organizations promote to more rapidly and effectively achieve the goals sought?

ORGANIZATION OF PANEL SECTIONS

Each panel section will have four officials:

The Convener
A Recorder
A Summarizer
A Hostess

The convener will be responsible for the usual duties. The recorder will keep a record as to the general discussion and the content of the keynoter's address. The summarizer will relate the address and discussion to the questions set forth as panel discussion objectives. The summarizers will make a brief report during the luncheon meeting.

PANELS

The following subjects suggest themselves as pertinent to the theme of the Conference:

I. THE WORLD OF WORK

A. Preparation for employment in a changing economy.
B. Prospects of new opportunities.
C. Protection of women who work.

Note: We would like very much to have Mrs. Dollie Robinson serve as the keynoter for this section. A discussant from the women's division of AFL-CIO would be able to pinpoint the relationship of organized labor to the Negro woman worker.

II. EDUCATION

A. Problems of education
B. Shoreing up the educational process.
C. The adult learner in an era of change.

Note: We would like for the keynoter to be Edward A. Mearns, Jr., who made the report on "Public Schools - Southern States" for the United States Commissioner on Civil Rights. A discussant from the National Education Association and the United States Department of Health, Education and Welfare would be most helpful. A local school authority will also serve on the panel.

III. POLITICS

A. The uses of political action.
B. Participation by sex.
C. Politics a barometer of social changes.

Note: Representatives of the Democrats and Republicans would share the role of keynoters for this section. The local president of The League of Women Voters and the head of The Tidewater Voter's Registration Project would serve as discussants. If at all possible Mrs. Margaret Price and her Republican counterpart would serve as keynoters.

IV. FAMILY

A. The fabric of American family life - dterioration or manifestation of new and modified cultures.

B. Economic and world forces - impact on family life.
C. Population explosion.

Note: We have a number of persons in mind as keynoters but would like suggestions from you. One of the persons is a teacher at Atlantic University. He has made several studies of Negro family life and is a versatile speaker. As discussants, leaders of youth groups would be very helpful. In addition, we will if at all possible try and get Mrs. Mamie Clarke, the wife of Dr. Kenneth Clarke to serve as a discussant.

V. THE ARTS (music, sculpture, painting and the theater)

A. Creativity in the arts (quality and quantity).

B. Art as a media for strengthening essential relationships (the home, the school, the community, the nation and the world).
C. Promotion of individual and community levels of the arts.

Note: It is not always possible to secure an excellent artist who is also a good speaker, we had hoped to secure Richard Barthe, the sculpture, William Grant Still, the composer or persons or similiar caliber to serve as the keynoters for this section.

VI. THE PROFESSIONS (medicine, law, research, science, business, etc.)

A. The scope and utilization of knowledge and skills facing new demands.
B. The acceleration of women into new and old fields.

Note: This panel section would be attended mostly by senior high school and college students in the area. Such persons as Dr. Dorothy Ferebee, Dr. Jane Wright, the research cancer specialist, Mary Tobias, personnel director of one of the large New York department stores, Hilda Simms, actress in "The Nurses", a T.V. program, Labonnie Bianchi, the electrical engineer in Martin Marietta's Nuclear Division in Baltimore and others whose background, training and profession are unusual.

VII. THE COMMUNITY

A. The ties between good citizenship and good housing.
B. Resources for achieving housing goals.
C. Resources in the community.
D. Relating the individual and groups to the community as a whole.

Note: Experts in the field of Housing and Community Relationships would be needed in this section. Local Housing officials and a realtor would be asked to serve as discussants.

VIII. WOMEN THE WORLD OVER

A. People to people strengthen democracies.
B. Similarities and differences-the key to unity.
C. Knowledge and mutual activities undergrids progress everywhere.

Note: Miss Angie Brooks of Liberia, United Nations representative from Liberia has been suggested as the keynoter for this section. Representatives of other countries such as India, Ceylon, Indonesia, Pakistan and new countries in Africa have been thought of as those who would be special invited guests. Perhaps two or three of these women would serve as discussants to this section.

AFTERNOON SESSION

Two luncheon speakers are scheduled for the luncheon meeting. One would be a woman from a foreign country the other an outstanding Negro woman who will present the basic philosophy and goals of achievements for women, stressing the Negro woman. Panel summarizers will give brief reports of each section. The meeting will conclude and be followed by a reception for the distinguished visitors.

NCNW Training Workshops-Sunflower County, June 27-28, 1967

A two-day workshop designed as a pilot effort to bridge the gap in communications between government representatives and the rural poor they serve. Planned in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Agriculture and financed by a grant from the Office of Economic Opportunity.

A great deal of planning has gone into this two-day Workshop and into the securing of a enabling grant. We consider this a pilot endeavor for future service by NCNW-WIMS in Southern rural settings.

You may expect our report on the completed Workshop in Sunflower County by the end of the summer. Your reactions, questions and continuing interest and support are invited as NCNW continues to expand its Workshops in Mississippi program.

Method and Aims of Workshop Program

Over the past three years the National Council of Negro Women has developed a constructive new approach to the acute problems of the rural poor. Our Workshops in Mississippi program offers "technical assistance" to women determined to better the lives of their families and communities.

NCNW designed this as a limited program, confined to one state and built deliberately from its own particular organizational strengths: outreach and training skill. By thus concentrating our efforts, developing contacts and ways of working both among Mississippi women and the various government agencies charged with serving their needs, we have been able to put to the test the philosophy behind NCNW's pragmatic social-action techniques.

Our approach is to concentrate on an immediate, personal answering of demands. This is training-in-action: inducing people and institutions to learn to move in new ways to achieve simple human goals.

We ask the women who take part in our Mississippi Workshops: "What do you need?" then take on the job of finding out where in government such services or resources exist, and how the women can go about securing them for their communities. We assemble the people with the ability, will and power to fill these specific needs.

We offer to the government agencies an opportunity to carry out their tasks by seeing that services reach the people who need them most. We ask agency officials to recognize how urgent it is to change old patterns of work.

Each actual Workshop is only one step in an unrelenting effort to create, for the women of Mississippi, the maneuverability they must have to press for what they know they need. If a logical first course of action hits up against a "stone wall" of procedure or of direct opposition, NCNW enters with strategic "technical assistance," either to chip away what looked like stone or to go clear around walls -- discovering new ways to fill the same basic demand. (Example: When the cost of the school lunch program soared beyond reach for the poorest families in one area, NCNW explored new opportunities for Mississippi school children to secure school breakfasts under an experimental USDA and OEO program administered federally as part of the Child Nutrition Act of 1966.) In all instances, invaluable assistance is afforded by the network of well-placed, sympathetic Mississippians, developed over the years by NCNW. Our contacts in universities, colleges, government, industry, voluntary organizations cut across all specialized fields of interest and give the women indirect access to the state's most knowledgeable people and, on occasion, citizens who can exercise effective political leverage.

Our two recent workshops (a planning session in Jackson, November 1966, followed by a January 1967 weekend workshop in Oxford) provide concrete evidence of the willingness, determination and ability of Mississippi's low-income, Negro rural women to improve the quality of life for their families and communities.

Some 43 Negro women participated in the January Workshop, hammering out a variety of proposals for community services and resources. Each of these is currently being followed through by the women in their communities and by NCNW through appropriate governmental channels.

Introducing a New Objective: Better USDA Services for Mississippi's Poor

The Agriculture specialists who attended the January Mississippi Women's Workshop were briefed on who the women were: that many came from farm families with as little as $300 to $400 annual cash income and that some had virtually no income at all. Despite assurance that they could cope with this, the representatives showed no signs that they could come seriously to grips with the women's real problems. The basic question of the Mississippi women -- "how do you feed a family without cash to buy food?" -- was either parried deftly with a smooth recitation of what the Department could and could not do, or answered flatly and repeatedly by the advice that they go to welfare.

In February, WIMS staff met with high-level USDA officials in Washington to discuss the gulf separating Department representatives and the people they are intended to serve, bringing along a tape recording of pertinent sessions. (All Workshop sessions were, as usual, recorded.) This tape offered dramatic evidence of the appalling "communications gap," which has kept federal government services from reaching the target population. It was an articulate example as it played back the words of a roomful of grumbling, angry women convinced that USDA had nothing to offer them.

NCNW was asked to suggest a plan of work to bridge the gap in communications and thus facilitate more effective use of resources. Polly Cowan, WIMS Chairman, NCNW National President Dorothy I. Height and WIMS program director Helen Rachlin proposed that NCNW could reach the low-income women, bring them together with the professional USDA personnel, set up a training session of "consultation" designed to build a better understanding between the two groups. Women delegates would be treated as consultants: they could meet with professionals in a new relationship of equality. It was hoped that this would lead to more relevant services and greater use of the new food-stamp program and other USDA services by the families which need them most.

The End Result: A Multi-Service Pilot Training Session

After a series of meetings with Agriculture personnel down the line, plus OEO-Agriculture liaison and OEO rural-services officials, a pilot training program was approved. Out of four choices, USDA selected Sunflower as the pilot County. The OEO agreed to fund the program -- with the understanding that USDA would work on a plan to employ these sub-professional women as "outreach" people in their home communities.

While the following official proposal specifically mentions representatives of Agriculture, it has broadened the training plan to include representatives from the many agencies which operate in the county:

> This is a proposal for a workshop in communications involving the poor and representatives of government agencies. Twenty women selected by the National Council of Negro Women from the rural areas of Sunflower County, Mississippi, will meet with representatives of the Community Action Program, the Technical Action Panel of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, and other Federal, State and Local government departments.

It is not possible to predict how the assorted government agencies now scheduled into the training program will fulfill their roles. Coordination problems have been many and difficult. WIMS is currently doing all it can to insure that women will not be brought in to Indianola to be "talked at" irrelevantly. It remains our intention to have each person at the Workshop -- government representative or rural housewife -- listening with a new sense of purpose, thinking about old problems in new ways, and fulfilling the USDA's recently stated goal of a "one-stop" service concept in every rural county to enable local leaders to "tap all government services that can be used to turn dreams into reality."

FOREWORD

This compilation of statements by some of the leading authorities in education, housing, race relations, civil rights, etc., is intended to be a spur to participants in the Interracial Conference of Women sponsored by the National Council of Negro Women to seriously study the drama of Negro life in the United States today.

The theme of the Conference, "Women Working Together Can Surmount Barriers to Human and Civil Rights" is based upon the well-known fact that the power of women to develop sound public opinion and affect changes is almost an axiom. One of the techniques they have used in successful causes is the dissemination of truth, the day in and day out resourceful, persistent reiteration of facts in concurrence with revelant programs of action.

In the struggle to bring about the realization of human and civil rights as contained in the Constitution of the United States and the Charter of the United Nations, there is the paramount requirement that all who have taken or are trying to help others take an affirmative position must be undergirded by widespread knowledge of cause and effect sothat as individuals they will not be confounded by momentary eclipses of reality and truth.

The National Council of Negro Women is most appreciative of the courageous, dedicated men and women who have participated in this Conference in any way. They have made a significant contribution in strengthening and extending the endeavors and determination of American people to maintain law and order and to continue to strive toward goals that will insure human dignity and human rights to every man, woman and child within the borders of this country.

October 29, 1956

PROGRAM GOALS

Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune founded and organized the National Council of Negro Women in 1935 for the purpose of planning and directing Negro women to greater economic, social, educational and cultural development in local communities and on the national and international levels. The aspects of our national program are therefore varied and include departments which deal specifically with citizenship education, education, human relations, international relations, labor and industry, library and museum, public relations, religious education and fellowship, social welfare and youth conservation. The national program committee regards the Interracial Conference as an integral part of our entire program. The Conference represents a technique which we intend to use to synthesize and evaluate the manner in which our various departments are functioning and developing.

During the recent years many events have occurred which affect women everywhere. The members of the National Council of Negro Women are trying to sense the meaning of our times by focussing attention upon new responsibilities in this changing social order. We realize that we must carefully consider the conflicts in human and civil liberties which confront us daily. Therefore, the assembling of delegates, consultants and visitors in a conference to discuss barriers to civil and human rights, and methods of surmounting the same, becomes not only an occasion for inquiry and analysis but one of dedication to a righteous cause.

There is the hope that this conference will serve as a pattern for subsequent meetings of this type in other sections. It is the desire of the Program Committee that the deliberations of this Conference will promote understanding and stimulate us to action as we return to our respective communities.

CRISIS AND OPPORTUNITY IN RACE RELATIONS

By Herman Long, Director
Race Relations Department, Fisk University

The present moment of our national experience, as seen in the perspective of current public debate, propaganda and political reaction over school desegregation, is certainly one of important crisis. For those aspects of human relations which are characterized in public thought and usage by racial definition, the crisis is at once poignant, insistent, pervasive. It is reflected in the news headlines and television features where even the small events, considered unimportant and commonplace in normal times, are highlighted in dramatic emphasis. The local bigots, largely well-known and discredited by responsible elements of their own communities, now become national figures and make easy claim for attention in the national press. They, along with their counterparts of greater prestige in politics and public office, are paraded before the public eye and become, perforce, influencers of opinion and attitude. In the distortions of perspective, the making important of what is usually inconsequential, and the obscuring of central human values the crisis in race relations is pointedly symbolized.

Increased tension and anxiety further reflect the crisis, but they are neither its cause nor its most important feature. What is more significant, perhaps, is that the issues have become commonly felt, publicly recognized and inescapable. Though orientation to these issues by the public may remain confused, partly because of the propaganda claims attending them, the issues nevertheless contain an urgent demand for resolution. Crisis thus portends impending change, and the telling issues cannot be held in indefinite suspension, allowing for time to dissipate them. In this sense, the crisis of desegregation and integration is also one of opportunity. Resolution can mean a huge thrust forward into new avenues of human freedom and social experience, the casting off of provincial attitudes and the emergence of a more liberating perspective.

But the opposite alternative is likewise present. Crisis can also be resolved by reaction. New racial propaganda of major proportions has emerged. It is not new in substance and attack, for it is a reincarnation of the older beliefs of innate racial inferiority and the appeals to "white supremacy." But its guise is subtle, exploiting uncertainties and half-truths, and it may be dressed up in the authoritative format of a national magazine or the widely-publicized hearings of a congressional committee. Moreover, the issues now lie in the domain of public politics, and they remain dependent upon the hazards, uncertainties and imponderables of the political process. Even though the present force of reaction may not be strong enough to "turn back the clock" of constructive change in racial and human relations, an ominous shadow of possibility remains.

The resistance and deliberate measures to circumvent the decisions of federal courts which outlaw state-imposed racial segregation have placed the particular issues of race in much larger and important context. It is not only a matter of racial justice but human freedom; not only civil rights but the basic civil liberties which undergird them; not only of maintaining law and order but preserving the federal establishment and national integrity. We have, in the present crisis, therefore, the joining of several issues essential to the democratic life, and they are reflected in the vicious attacks now being waged: attacks upon the Supreme Court and efforts to restrict its authority; attacks upon the federal jurisdiction, as shown in efforts of nullification and interposition; intrusions upon individual freedoms of thought and association, through repressive state laws; the rise of state autocracy under the guise of states' rights; and the general effort to substitute public opinion for constitutional law as the ultimate dictate of individual rights.

The tasks before us in human relations exist on a broad and decisive front. They are the crucial tests of democracy itself and require the widest possible involvement of groups dedicated to the democratic ideal -- civic, religious, business, labor and women's groups. The N.A.A.C.P., American Jewish Congress, American Jewish Committee, Urban League, and Anti-defamation League of B'nai B'rith -- to mention only a few -- have long stood courageously at the frontier; but the issues now demand the enlistment of other national groups in this and other unfinished tasks of democracy.

Statement

by Herbert Brownell, Jr.
Attorney General, Washington, D.C.

I wish to extend my greetings to the National Council of Negro Women on the occasion of its 21st Annual Convention which will place special emphasis on interracial problems.

The theme of your meeting, its purpose and deeply dedicated approach should go a long way toward helping to spread the gospel of better human relations throughout the United States. There is a universal and heart-warming appeal in your determination to sit down together as citizens of this Republic and pursue the immediate objective which, as described to me, is to "devise ways and means whereby women working together can safeguard and extend human and civil rights."

You who are seeking to sweep away the last vestiges of prejudice and give to all, regardless of race, creed or color, the rights guaranteed to them may well ask how can you help. What can we do to supplement the work of government agencies charged with the enforcement of the civil rights statutes.

I would break down the great need of today into two categories. Both are of equal importance. No great human gains can be made without invoking a program of public education which will convince the most adamant dissenter that prejudice is evil and soul destroying, and tears at the very foundations of our way of life. Unhappy is the man or the woman who pursues it, and sad is the plight of the bewildered victim. Facing bitter hostility and deprivation of his inalienable rights, he is left to wonder if the humanities prescribed in the Constitution are beyond his reach because his skin happens to be darker than his neighbor's. Above all, we must have a common patience and understand that the reforms we propose cannot be accomplished overnight by the mere stroke of a pen or the execution of a court edict. The will to make our chosen course prevail must be so strong that each separate obstacle encountered along the way can be met with calmness and abiding respect for law and order.

We also need to face up to the ugly fact that irresponsible action, if left uncurbed, tends to become a progressive, more violent chain reaction that tends to get out of bounds; one that callously tramples on everything - life, liberty and property - that may stand in the way of its force.

Much remains to be done in the legislative field. The Eisenhower Administration's proposals consist of four major points:

1. Creation of a bipartisan Commission of six persons who would have subpoena powers to investigate allegations that in certain areas of our country the Negro citizens have, on a wholesale basis, been denied the right to vote. The Commission would establish the facts not only to complete the public's education in this area, but to find out whether new Federal laws are necessary to eliminate this practice which would seem clearly unconstitutional if proved.

2. Creation of a Civil Rights Division in the Department of Justice. Thus, a Presidential appointee, confirmed by the Senate, would take over all the responsibility in the civil rights area.

3. Establishment in the Department of Justice of authority to prosecute civilly in the civil rights field. Thus, injunction actions could be instituted in an effort to prevent violations of civil rights before they happen.

4. Elimination of a loophole in present civil rights laws. Presently, prosecutions may be instituted only where public officials deprive men and women of their civil rights. The proposed legislative action would permit prosecution where one private citizen is deprived of his civil rights by another private citizen.

It is my firm belief that once every citizen finds he can go to the polls without fear of prejudice and feel that he is a working partner in the administration of the affairs of the United States, we shall have opened the door to solution of most of our problems in the field of civil rights.

We have made strides toward our goal. There is no doubt about that. But much remains to be done in the name of justice for all.

STATEMENT ON CIVIL RIGHTS FOR THE
NATIONAL COUNCIL OF NEGRO WOMEN, INC.

By Patrick Murphy Malin, Executive Director
American Civil Liberties Union
170 Fifth Avenue
New York 10, N.Y.

The present civil rights crisis, focussed on the struggle of American Negroes to achieve the full equality guaranteed by the Constitution, is not a post-war phenomenon or a transitory event. The present conflict is one phase - a vitally important phase - of the continuing drive by all minority groups and their supporters to bring the actual practice of equality squarely into line with the constitutional principle -- to make the ideal of justice a reality.

Measured by the slow process of social reform, the civil rights campaign is moving ahead quickly. Sparked by a general national determination to erase discrimination from American life, the Supreme Court decisions, notably in the field of education, are the high-mark of this effort. For the first time in our history the full power of our highest court is solidly behind the idea that members of minority groups are entitled to equal treatment.

But the Supreme Court's decision, like all legal decisions, must be put into effect. The problem of compliance is a formidable one, for at the root of discrimination and segregation lies prejudice and fear, emotional hurdles which are difficult to overcome. How can compliance be achieved? A few suggestions may be offered:

(1) prime recognition in all our activity that the decision of the Supreme Court is the law of the land and our citizens and public officials must both obey and enforce the law; and recognition that democracy grew strong through the public school system, which must be preserved throughout the country;

(2) where violence occurs or is threatened, emphasis must be placed on upholding the law. A firm determination to support integration is important, but it should be expressed with an understanding of the difficulties of social change. A spirit of revenge will increase rather than diminish opposition.

(3) recognition that the attitude toward compliance will be different in various parts of the country, as recent events have shown, and that automatic and full compliance cannot swiftly be expected. As the Supreme Court has said, local circumstances must dictate the speed with which communities move ahead. However, we should emphasize that delays cannot be a disguise for evasion;

(4) in the South, which is most affected by the Supreme Court decision, the lead toward compliance - by exhortation and self-practice - must be taken by churches and labor unions, the mass social groups which have direct contact with large numbers of people.

Dependence on the Supreme Court decision, or the several administrative decisions attacking discrimination, are not the entire answer. In most areas our laws do not sufficiently protect civil rights. The South's reaction to recent civil rights advances, in some instances, has been to assault Negroes physically and intimidate them when they sought to vote. Adoption of federal legislation to protect the safety of the individual and his right to vote is an urgent necessity, and the civil rights program proposed by the President last Spring and endorsed by leaders of both parties should be vigorously pushed in the next Congress.

This program is of immediate importance, but these other important objectives should not be lost sight of: (a) ending discrimination in housing; (b) fair employment practices; (c) total elimination of discrimination in public accommodations, transportation and the armed forces.

To complete this unfinished business, in the spirit of recent fine decisions by the courts and executive agencies, we need to use various methods and at various speeds. Legislative, executive and judicial actions, on local, state and federal levels, should be used severally or in one combination or another, depending on the specific job to be done and its particular circumstances; so should the manifold types of private effort, organized and unorganized, by which much of our past progress has been achieved. The most important thing is to move toward the goal as quickly and surely as we can, with an accurate sense of what each specific job requires at any given moment.

The spotlight in the current crisis is properly trained on the South, but the civil rights struggle is not only a sectional problem. It is a national problem. Discrimination and segregation, no matter where it occurs, should be opposed.

We must achieve equal treatment for Negroes in the North's public housing developments, as well as in the South's public schools; we must achieve equal treatment by the police and the courts for Puerto Ricans in New York, Mexican-Americans in the Southwest, and citizens of Asiatic extraction on the Pacific Coast; we must achieve equal treatment for American Indians in their negotiations with the Department of the Interior, and for Jews in their access to medical schools and hotels.

Statement by Roy Wilkins, Executive Secretary,
National Association for the Advancement of Colored People
20 West 40th Street, New York 18, N. Y.

I am delighted to know of the Interracial Conference of Women to be held November 16-17 under the sponsorship of the National Council of Negro Women.

In the pressing task of securing human and civil rights, the understanding and active support of the women of the nation are of the utmost importance. The great enemy of progress in this field is ignorance, ignorance of both white and colored people of the facts, the issues, and the procedures necessary to embark on a sensible and just program looking toward a solution.

Much of the misunderstanding today, and the consequent standstill on the civil rights front, has been due to misinformation spread assiduously by the enemies of the Negro and other minorities. I am certain you have noted the linking of vicious and filthy anti-semitic sentiments with anti-Negro propaganda, and the blanketing of both of these with subtle and overt insinuations as to communism.

The people and organized groups engaged in this kind of campaign are also the enemies of freedom as typified by the American heritage. They could not succeed if people generally were in possession of the facts. The women of America can set this thing straight. They can aid immeasurably in spreading the knowledge that will permit the overwhelming majority of fair-minded citizens of both races to work toward the kind of society in which no segment of the population will suffer racial and religious discrimination imposed by government.

Statement by Don Shoemaker, Executive Director
Southern Education Reporting Service
Nashville, Tennessee

Approximately 570 school districts or school units of the 4,700 such areas having Negro students in the South had begun some measure of public school desegregation during the 1955-56 school year, bringing roughly 260,000 Negro children into "integrated situations."

In preparation for the 1956-57 school year, some 245 more school districts with about 50,000 Negro children have indicated the desegregation process will be started. This will leave more than two million Negro pupils in segregated schools.

At the level of higher education, 106 of the 208 colleges and universities supported by public funds in the region now accept Negroes in practice or in theory. At last count, 95 to 98 formerly all-white publicly-supported institutions actually had Negro students enrolled. With the exception of Mississippi, Alabama, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, the southern states now admit Negroes to their tax-supported colleges and universities. While the number of Negroes who have enrolled in formerly all-white colleges and universities is not accurately known (few institutions keep records of race), a study of this situation being readied for publication places their number at about 2,000, with Negro enrollment in no case exceeding one or two per cent.

Against these measures of compliance with the Supreme Court decisions of May 1954 and 1955 must be balanced a strong effort of resistance, centered primarily in the Deep South states of Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina and spreading into the Mid-South states of Arkansas and Florida. Indicative of this resistance movement on the official levels is the enactment of some 84 pieces of pro-segregation legislation since May, 1954, with 59 of these measures winning approval in the 1956 legislative sessions of eight states. These include pupil assignment plans based on various factors other than race, resolutions of interposition and protest and plans for closing public schools when desegregation is imminent.

At the unofficial level, resistance to desegregation has crystallized in the formation of some 46 organizations primarily or solely for the purpose of supporting maintenance of segregated public schools. The Citizens Council movement, the largest of these organizations, now claims half a million members in 11 states.

The 17 states and the District of Columbia which practiced segregation by statute may be divided into three general groupings. Such desegregation as has occurred is largely limited to the border region which includes Delaware, Maryland, West Virginia, Kentucky, Missouri, Oklahoma, Texas and the District of Columbia.

In Delaware, some 21 of the state's 103 school districts, most of them in the northernmost county of New Castle, have desegregated. Also included are the capital city of Dover and one other Kent County community. In the remaining areas resistance is strong. Eight school boards have been named in suits brought by the NAACP seeking to end segregation practices. Official state policy favors desegregation, but the state board of education has been made a party to the suits for its refusal to order local school boards to desegregate.

Eight of Maryland's 23 counties and Baltimore City began desegregation last year. Two other counties adopted transfer policies without regard to race, but no applications for transfer being received, no desegregation occurred. For the 1956-57 school year, seven other counties have announced desegregation plans. Five more counties have lay advisory groups at work on the problem, leaving only one county——Caroline——which has made no move toward compliance.

Of West Virginia's 55 county school systems, all but three have begun the desegregation process or have announced plans to do so. West Virginia's university system was one of the first to lower all racial barriers after the 1954 decision, and now one formerly all-Negro college has a majority of white students, though it has retained a Negro administration.

In Kentucky, 41 of the state's 184 school districts having school age Negroes began desegregation last school year, and "nearly every" district is expected to have some measure of desegregation in some school program this fall.

Missouri, using a variety of methods ranging from immediate to gradual, had placed 58,000 of its 67,000 Negro pupils in integrated situations last year, and prospects were for 4,500 of the 9,000 remaining in segregated systems to be added to this group in the fall. During 1955-56, 114 of 224 districts with Negro students had some measure of desegregation.

Oklahoma last year had desegregation in 119 of its 1,650 school districts and likely will see desegregation occur in 31 more this fall. The State Department of Public Instruction has implemented its policy in favor of desegregation by a financial policy which places the burden of maintaining segregated schools on the localities.

Desegregation in Texas has taken place in 66 of the state's 1,800 school districts, all of it in the south and west portions of the state, where about 10 per cent of Texas' Negroes live. Some 10,500 Negro pupils are reported in integrated situations, and about 1,650 in mixed classes.

The Mid-South group of states includes Arkansas, Tennessee, North Carolina, Virginia and, by reason of attitude rather than geography, Florida. In all of these states, state and/or federal courts have declared school segregation laws unconstitutional.

However, desegregation in Arkansas has been limited to three small districts with less than 50 Negro students involved. In Tennessee, only the federal city of Oak Ridge, with about Negro students, had desegregated last year. For the coming year, Clinton in Anderson County has, under compulsion of court order, admitted 12 Negro students to its formerly all-white high school.

North Carolina, Virginia and Florida have no public school desegregation, though two recent court orders in Virginia have directed desegregation during the next school year.

No desegregation at any level save the colleges of Louisiana has occurred in the Deep South states which also include Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina. A federal district court has held Louisiana segregation laws unconstitutional, and the South Carolina segregation laws were directly at issue in the U. S. Supreme Court in 1954.

Thus it can fairly be said that the present period is one of legislation and litigation. For along with the 80-odd pieces of legislation enacted on the subject of school segregation, the period has seen 95 court cases taken into state and federal courts. In general the cases so far settled have adhered to the non-segregation principles enunciated by the Supreme Court, with the courts in areas of relatively small Negro percentages setting deadlines for compliance and, except in two recent Virginia decisions, no such deadlines established in strongly resisting states. Emerging from the courts as the legal doctrine of widest applicability is the precedent that in cases involving claims of constitutional rights (in these cases the right to non-discrimination in educational facilities), administrative remedies such as are established in pupil assignment laws should be exhausted before turning to federal courts for relief.

Areas of the school segregation-desegregation issue about which relatively little is known include questions of teacher tenure and school operation costs. While some teachers have been discharged for reasons of race and others which have been displaced when desegregation has resulted in school consolidation, it is estimated that not more than 500 of the South's 75,000 Negro teachers have been directly affected.

Also, school cost considerations have varied from district to district, with some districts benefitting financially by desegregation and others finding their costs rising.

These areas may well be investigated with profit.

"THE NEGRO WORKER IN AMERICAN INDUSTRY"

by

Julius A. Thomas, Director
Department of Industrial Relations
National Urban League
1133 Broadway, New York 10, New York

Any description of the status of Negro workers in American Industry must necessarily deal with a number of pertinent facts -- some good -- others not so good. On the favorable side, the most significant fact is this: During the past fifteen years, Negroes have steadily improved their precarious position in several important industries. On the other hand, there are vast areas of industrial employment from which Negroes are all but excluded. This article is an attempt to evaluate the changing fortunes of Negro industrial workers. It is written from the vantage point of thirty years of experience as a staff member of the National Urban League, an organization which, for forty-four years, has worked to expand employment opportunities for Negroes.

Where We Stand -- Today

The nation's Negro population is a working population. About 63 percent of all Negroes aged fourteen years or over were in the labor force in 1950 compared with about 57 percent of all whites. The proportion of males in the labor force was the same for both groups -- 84 percent -- but for women, the rate for Negroes was 45 percent, while that for whites was about 30 percent. Altogether, the Negro labor force in the nation includes 3,882,000 men and 2,043,000 women.

What Jobs Do Negroes Get?

According to the Dictionary of Occupations, Negroes will be found in every one of the thousands of occupations listed, but the overwhelming majority of both male and female workers are concentrated in the unskilled, semi-skilled and service occupations. Only 8 percent of all Negro workmen were employed as craftsmen in 1950. For white workers, 19 percent were in this category. Two percent of Negro males were in professional occupations compared with 8 percent for whites. Twenty-two percent of all employed Negro men were in manufacturing, compared with 27 percent of whites. About 3 percent of Negro males were in clerical occupations, while 6 percent of white men were in this category.

Among Negro women, 60 percent were in service occupations in 1950. There was a sharp increase in the number of Negro women in clerical occupations between 1940 and 1950, but the 4 percent so employed in no way compares with the 30 percent of white women in clerical employment. About 15 percent of Negro women workers were semi-skilled operatives, considerably below the 20 percent of white women. Six percent of Negro women were in professional occupations, compared with 12 percent of whites.

What Does the Negro Earn?

In 1950, the urban Negro family earned an average of $1869.50 yearly, while the urban white family earned $3445.00 annually. The Negro's earnings were just 54 percent of the income of his white neighbor. The average individual Negro wage and salary worker earned $1300 annually in 1950, which was about 52 percent of the $2500 earned by the individual white worker. The depressed earning power of the majority of Negro wage-earners constitutes one of the most serious economic problems faced by Negroes and the nation as a whole. Although Negro family and individual incomes have more than trebled since 1939, the inescapable fact is that Negroes do not enjoy equal employment opportunity in most areas of our economy.

One important reason for the recent improvement in the economic fortunes of Negroes has been the shift from agricultural labor to industrial employment. In 1940, one-third of the nation's workers were in agricultural employment. By 1950, only 18.2 percent of the labor force was in agricultural occupations. While Negro workers shared in this significant occupational shift, the number of Negro agricultural workers in 1950 was disproportionately high. Only 12.5 percent of white workers were in agriculture compared with 16.4 percent of Negroes.

Against this background, the Negro industrial worker must be viewed as a comparative newcomer. As such, he has encountered many obstacles, some of which he has not yet overcome. Because most jobs in manufacturing industries pay better wages than casual, unskilled labor, white workers have resisted the entry of Negro workers. Even when a few Negroes are employed, the practice has been to confine them to certain jobs -- frequently referred to as "Negro jobs." As a rule, these have been the unskilled, low-paying, and often undesirable (for white workers) jobs. The Negro industrial worker is further handicapped by the fact that he has had few opportunities for the kind of training that would prepare him for factory employment. The segregated high schools in the South are rarely equipped to give Negro boys basic training for industrial work. Few Negro colleges have adequate training facilities for technical and industrial work. To enter industrial employment, Negroes have had to fight first for any kind of job and continue to fight for on-the-job training and upgrading to better-paying jobs.

In an increasing number of industries, Negroes are making real progress. This progress has been spotty, however, and the majority of Negroes are still classified as unskilled laborers in most southern industries and in a good many outside of the South. Almost 1,000,000 Negro males in the South were employed as unskilled laborers. They constituted 41 percent of the total male Negro population in the area. Negro women workers in all sections of the nation have fewer occupational choices than Negro men. In the South, for example, 500,000 Negro women were private household workers, and another 185,000 were employed in service jobs other than in private households. Only 15,000 Negro women in the South were employed in sales jobs out of a total of 338,000. Of the 953,000 female clerical and kindred workers in the South, only 20,000 were Negroes. In the professions, Negro women accounted for 81,000 of the total 524,000 women in this category in the South. The majority of this number were school teachers.

Undoubtedly the Negro industrial worker has enjoyed more opportunities in the North, East, West, and Middle West. Two world wars and the more rapid industrialization of these areas have increased the demand for industrial workers. The more liberal racial attitudes in these areas have yielded to these pressures, thus permitting the employment of Negroes in a wider range of jobs. The large industrial centers, such as Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago, Philadelphia, New York, and Pittsburgh have become the "promised land" for literally thousands of Negro job-seekers. But even in these cities racial discrimination persists. Moreover, the untrained Negro farm laborer or casual worker is seriously disadvantaged as a competitor in a highly industrial economic setting.

What About the Negro As An Industrial Worker?

Is he efficient and dependable? Does he create problems? In the writer's opinion, these are academic questions. Human behavior, whether on the job, or in any other activity, is difficult to classify by race. Most of the generalizations about Negro performance fall in the category of sheer nonsense and idle speculation. The vast majority of employers who now use Negro workers in semi-skilled and skilled jobs in industry readily admit that race makes no difference in performance. Given the same opportunity and the same prospects for the rewards of efficient work, the Negro worker is just as capable as any other worker. This fact has been clearly established through numerous studies and investigations, but the Negro worker often finds himself "on trial", so to speak.

How Have Labor Unions Affected the Status of Negro Industrial Workers?

During the past two decades, labor unions have become increasingly important in the lives of industrial workers. Although only about 15 million workers, one-fourth of the labor force, are presently organized, most of the important manufacturing industries are well organized. It is reliably estimated that almost 1,500,000 Negroes are among the total organized labor force. Although neither of the two major branches of the labor movement -- the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations - has released exact figures on racial membership, the best information available indicates that there are about 750,000 Negroes in the AFL, 450,000 in the CIO, and 300,000 in the United Mine Workers and other independent unions.

Unquestionably, Negro workers have gotten many benefits as a result of union membership. In 1930, only about 200,000 Negro workers were members of labor unions. The vast majority of Negro workers were subject to exploitation that was often raw and brutal. Wages were pitifully low. Working conditions were at times almost unbearable. Job security was seldom enjoyed by Negroes. Opportunities for advancement came only as the employer felt disposed to grant them.

The Negro union member is definitely in a healthier position today. His earnings have increased along with other workers covered by a labor-management contract. Where unions have improved working conditions, Negro workers have shared on equal terms with other workers. In most unions, the right to advancement is clearly established for all workers. Health services, insurance benefits, paid vacations, pensions, and other so-called "fringe" benefits are now enjoyed by thousands of Negro industrial workers. Slowly but surely the Negro is losing his identity as an unwelcomed threat to the security of white wage-earners. He is becoming an integral part of the national labor force subject to economic changes affecting all workers.

It would be most heartening indeed if it could be said that unions pose no problems at all for Negro workers. But no honest labor leader would dare to make such a statement. There are too many unions which insist upon setting up segregated unions. Most of them are in the South where competition for jobs is often racial. These segregated unions frequently create situations in which whites will not work with Negro union members. In some cases, Negro union members cannot be employed until all white members are working. These and other unfair union practices deny Negroes maximum benefits from their union membership.

In spite of the liberal pronouncements of some international and national unions, racial discrimination is practiced by too many local unions affiliated with these bodies. Negro membership is discouraged and, at times, denied Negroes in many of the AFL metal trades and craft unions. Since union membership is a prerequisite to employment in such trades as plumbing, electrical work, printing, structural steel work, and the like, very few Negroes have been able to enter these fields. The picture becomes even worse in the matter of apprenticeship opportunities and in-plant training. Negroes are rarely able to get the kind of training that is available to the average white youth. Until the labor movement, particularly the craft unions, take definite action on some of these problems, Negroes will make little progress in these fields.

The organization of the mass production industries by the CIO has improved the lot of the Negro industrial worker in many ways. Relatively little formal training or experience is required to qualify for entrance jobs in many mass production and assembly line operations. The job-seeker who is willing to learn has many opportunities for training on the job and advancing to higher-rated jobs. Since few Negroes have been able to get technical training before entering the labor force, it can be said that the assembly line, whatever disadvantages it may have, has made it much easier for Negroes to move into manufacturing industries.

What About the Negro Technical and Professional Worker?

For a good many reasons, Negroes until recently have made little progress in these fields. The first and most important has been racial discrimination. Until World War II, a Negro engineer or scientist simply didn't get hired by the large manufacturing industries. It wasn't the policy to employ Negroes in these jobs, and nobody took the time to argue the point. One result was the realization on the part of Negroes that this was an "area of exclusion", so far as they were concerned, and they didn't consider these fields when choosing a vocation. The production of Negro engineers by our educational institutions scarcely totals 150 per year, despite an urgent need for all kinds of technicians and scientists. Racial discrimination is on the way out in the technical fields. Such companies as General Electric, Western Electric, Sperry Corporation, International Telephone and Telegraph, General Cable, Standard Oil, Carrier Corporation, and others too numerous to mention are seeking engineers, chemists, physicists, and other technically prepared Negro young people. The problem now is to increase the number who can qualify, and that job has not been seriously tackled.

The employment of Negro non-technical management personnel has not kept pace with other trends in industrial employment. A few companies have begun to employ business administration and accounting majors. Fewer still are employing the liberal arts graduate who eventually qualifies for a supervisory management job. The fear, of course, is that white workers will refuse to work under the direction and supervision of a Negro. As long as we cling to our simple notions about race and "acceptable" relations between Negro and white workers, this will remain one of the difficult employment areas.

What About Legal Attacks On Employment Discrimination?

In twelve states and thirty-one cities, there are laws and ordinances that prohibit racial and religious discrimination in employment. They are exercising a tremendous influence on discriminatory employment and labor union practices. Although six or seven years are hardly enough in which to measure the effectiveness of most such laws, the plain fact is that they have created a new context in which to view this problem. To the knowledge of the writer, scores of employers will admit that the existence of these laws has greatly influenced their attitudes and actions on this subject. It is to be regretted, however, that attempts to get federal legislation have bogged down in the mire of political double-talk. The need for federal action on this problem becomes more and more urgent when one observes the pattern of employment in the railroad industry; the communications industry, especially in the South; the banking industry; the publishing industry, and many others in which Negroes have made little progress during the past two decades.

Some conclusions can be drawn from a careful analysis of the position of Negroes in our industrial economy, and most of them are on the favorable side.

....The Negro worker, like his white brother, has left the farm and found a place in industry. True, the Negro is about twenty years behind in making the transition, but his place appears to be pretty secure.

....The opportunities for well-trained people are rapidly increasing. Technically trained young people are very much in demand and will be for many years.

....Opportunities for trained Negro women are rapidly expanding. Competent office personnel are being sought in almost every industrial center, except in the South. It is reasonable to expect changes in the South as a result of the Supreme Court's recent decision banning segregated schools.

....It has been clearly demonstrated that legal attacks on racial discrimination in employment are productive. Employment discrimination has been banned in twelve states, and other progressive states may be expected to enact such laws during the next few years.

....Finally, there is growing recognition of the fact that employment discrimination is wasteful and indefensible. How to take full advantage of these trends is the problem facing a large part of the Negro working population in every section of the nation.

The questions to which we usually address ourselves, and I thing they are the same questions that you would like to have answered, are:

1) How do we proceed in our efforts to change the patterns of racial employment in these communities where discrimination is flagrantly practiced?

   I would assume that a good many of your conferees will be coming from different cities in the United States. Not having all of the specific facts about these cities, it might be suggested that one of the things needed at this time is a careful examination of racial employment practices in the cities represented at this conference.

2) What help can you expect from your white conferees in approaching the owners and operators of many of the business and industrial concerns that persist in discriminating against Negroes?

   Occasionally we find it very helpful to interest important women's groups, such as the League of Women Voters, the Junior League, the various church clubs, and other women's civic groups. Many of their husbands and relatives are connected with some of these business establishments, and a little prodding will often result in some attention to the problem. I would strongly suggest, therefore, that you talk to that point.

3) How do you reach a community to make it aware of the pernicious effects of racial discrimination in employment?

   As I have indicated above, one characteristic of the present economic situation is that too many Negro families have insufficient income and are, therefore, unable to provide proper housing, recreation, health service, and education for their children. This means that Negro family life is handicapped. It also means that a much larger percentage of Negro women are forced into the labor market because the husband or father is unable to earn enough money to maintain the family as it should be. I believe any thoughtful group will understand the implications of this general situation, and this seems to me a very important point to emphasize.

National Council of Negro Women, Inc., on the occasion of their Twenty-first Annual Convention
November 16, 1956 - Washington, D.C.

THE NEW ROLES OF WOMEN

A realistic appraisal of women's employment in late 1956 reveals several factors of very great significance. One is the degree to which women have been integrated into this Nation's great working population of some 69½ million persons. Another is the fact that employment horizons for women are constantly widening, offering to those who are qualified opportunities undreamed of in earlier periods.

The extent of the progress women have made over the years is illustrated by the well-known statement of Harriet Martineau, a visitor to North America in the mid-1800s. Miss Martineau, according to reports, was not impressed by the position of women in the new continent to the west. She was, in fact, "surprised to find them occupying a very subordinate position in a country calling itself free and to find that they had entered only seven paying occupations."

Harriet Martineau was indeed correct, for the occupations which women performed for pay were few indeed, including only teaching, factory work, household work, and the jobs of seamstress, tailoress, milliner, and dressmaker.

But to the Harriet Martineaus who visit the United States today, the picture is in striking contrast, because at least some women are reported in each of the 446 occupations listed by the decennial census. There are women physicians and surgeons, women chemists, women engineers, and women technicians of all kinds. And, as formerly, women also are in the majority among teachers, nurses, dietitians, librarians, and office workers of many kinds. But the fact that women are entering new areas of work is of great significance, for it indicates that the barriers to employment as well as to training are being continuously overcome. The surmounting of these barriers is of great importance not only to the individual but to the Nation as well. To the former it indicates that qualified women can aspire to practically any kind of work. To the United States of America it means that women not only are an integral part of the labor force, but that they possess skills which are in great demand and that other women have the potentiality for developing such skills.

The future for all women workers is promising, and this includes the Negro women who are presently in the labor force and the young people who will increase their ranks in coming years. Over the past decade, we have seen a growing number of Negro women enter into professional and clerical jobs, into sales and service jobs, into factory and other operative jobs, and into some of the crafts. A number of Negro women also are in the employ of their Government, serving with distinction in many capacities.

As we plan for the future of women workers, we must endeavor to search for and then help develop the many skills our woman population possesses. These skills, as noted before, are needed to maintain and improve the social and economic structure of our great republic. The full development of skills also has another objective, that of bringing satisfaction and fulfillment to the individual concerned. It is in this framework that we as women and as citizens can perhaps make our greatest contribution, because inherent in the realization of individual accomplishment is the factor of motivation.

One of our greatest challenges, in my opinion, is to provide the motivation which will enable our young people to lead happy and useful adult lives. The young people of today will make the decisions of tomorrow. Their adequate preparation for the world of work and for their place in the community is therefore not only desirable but essential to progress and to an understanding between peoples the world over. Our task then becomes clearly defined. We must be ever ready to help young people, to understand them, to advise them, and above all to motivate them toward the acceptance of the great responsibilities which will be theirs in this second half of the Twentieth Century. Women everywhere, because of their particular roles in life, are equipped to fulfill this special mission. This is especially true of the members of the National Council of Negro Women, an organization which can offer the prestige of leadership as well as the human understanding so vital in meeting today's problems.

Recent Developments in Urban Housing and Their Implications for Minorities

IT IS PERHAPS indicative of a significant trend in governmental policy that a paper concerned with recent trends in urban housing will deal for the most part with privately financed construction. This is in striking contrast to earlier concern of this Institute with public housing and its problems. It should be observed at the outset, however, that, in my opinion, there is no less need for public housing today than there has been in the past, and that much of what is termed privately financed construction enjoys some form of public assistance. One of the great apprehensions I have in the current situation is the tendency of advocates of various programs to imply or state that one special tool or one identified approach offers the answer to the housing problem of American cities. Basic to anything I may say subsequently is my firm conviction that the housing problem of our cities is so complex and so vast in its magnitude that it cannot be conceived of in terms of public housing versus private housing or urban renewal versus new construction. Of necessity, any successful approach must be a synthesis of these various devices—a synthesis which becomes difficult to effect, since each element has become identified with its own proponents and the principal champions of each have often been the most deadly foes of some of the others.

I sometimes feel that the prevalent segmented approach-orientation reflects failure to outline clearly and categorically the goals of a housing program for America. It seems obvious, however, that certain elements must be involved. First and foremost, housing is for people, and it is adequate housing only when and if it meets the needs and suits the paying ability of the population. Secondly, a sound housing program must be developed within a concept of effective city planning. Of course, today most professionals in the field give lip service to the importance of planning. However, there is far from complete agreement as to what good city planning involves, although progress has been made in realizing that we must be concerned with land use and the provision of those services and institutions which are needed in a modern community. Current discussions of slums and blight remind me of the general condemnation of sin. Few, if any, will be in favor of these social ills, but there is a vast difference between being against sin and knowing what to do to eradicate it. Similarly, opposition to slums is far from commitment for their eradication or realization of the painful and slow process that is involved in effecting this objective.

There is one significant contribution which has been made by emphasis upon urban renewal. We have for the first time thought and spoken in terms of doing a complete job of wiping out and controlling substandard housing. This has its advantages and its disadvantages. Among the former is the obvious one that a thorough rather than a piece-meal job is involved, and secondly, the stage is set for demonstrating the need for a combination of the various tools and approaches to achieve the announced goal. By the same token, a tremendous potential of public support is created since the total approach inspires and arouses local pride in its achievement. And finally, there are possibilities in this program for securing the maximim cooperation between local, state, and Federal governments in carrying out programs for urban renewal. Theoretically, at least, there should also be a favorable climate for cooperation between public and private housing.

Among the disadvantages, the major one is already apparent. Because of the very magnitude of this undertaking, it can, and often does, bog down in execution. We are, therefore, faced with the possibility that urban renewal may be talked rather than executed; that it may become the subject of a tremendous promotional program which will excite the imagination of the people without at the same time providing effective vehicles for its execution. Actually, our horizons have been lifted and our concepts have been broadened at the same time that results have not been commensurate with the thinking, the planning and the hopes which have brought urban renewal into the foreground as a program for housing in American cities.

When we turn from this general discussion to the implications of urban renewal for minority groups, we are still, as we were a decade ago, largely in the realm of conjecture. In my book, The Negro Ghetto (New York, 1948), I devoted a chapter to this subject under the title "Urban Redevelopment—A Threat or an Opportunity." In my opinion, the current situation may be summarized by substituting "Urban Renewal" for the term "Urban Redevelopment." Today, even more than in 1948, the threat in urban renewal looms large and has been documented by experience. On the other hand, the opportunities under this program for establishing racially integrated neighborhoods remain as a possibility and a challenge to those concerned with good housing and sound human relations.

Such progress as has been made to date in urban renewal has raised serious questions and created serious problems among minority groups. As one would expect, the displacement of non-whites under this program of slum clearance and rehabilitation has been disproportionately high. While this was almost an inevitable consequence of the program, it has been greater than it might have been because of the administrative policies adopted by the Federal government and by local authorities. The basic law which provides Federal assistance for the purchase of blighted and slum areas and their re-sale at a marked down figure to redevelopers also provides for the acquisition and resale of vacant sites. Despite this fact, few vacant sites have been included in the program to date. Thus we have the appalling situation of developing a program which reduces the supply of low cost housing at a time when there is an existing shortage of shelter of this type.

The idea of slum clearance germinated during the depression when there were many vacancies, so that substandard properties could be torn down and families relocated with a minimum of difficulty. That concept was carried over and still persists despite the fact that the Defense Production Program, World War II and its aftermath occasioned large-scale migrations to urban centers and created an entirely different housing supply situation.

During the last decade we have been faced with a housing picture which makes slum clearance workable only if it is coordinated with a large construction program and if that construction program is of such a nature as to provide additional units for low and middle income families of both sale and rental types. Many of the champions of urban renewal have attempted to get around the situation by reviving the ghost of what some of us thought was a repudiated concept. I refer to the filtering down or upgrading process which says in effect that any increase in the supply of housing immediately eases the pressure for dwelling units in all segments of the market. The October 1953 issue of House and Home, which contains one of the best and most comprehensive statements on urban renewal, puts the issue in these words:

> This high volume of new construction [required to facilitate urban renewal] need not necessarily mean building any great number of new homes specifically for occupancy by the people moved out of the slums. With more than 31 million people moving from house to house each year, the entire US population changes homes on an average of every five years, and surveys show that every good new house makes it possible for as many as 13 families to play musical chairs and each move to a nicer home. The end of this upgrading process is that for each good new home built one less family will have to live herded into an overcrowded slum tenement, or one more unit unfit for human use can be junked.

One difficulty with this concept is that it assumes away the problem which faces minority groups in their quest for shelter. The filtering down process is based on the existence of a free competitive housing market. Residential segregation repudiates the basic idea of free competition in the housing market and, to the extent that any segment of the population is denied free access to the total housing market, the filtering down process must bog down. Nor is this all. Slums and blight are not alone reflections of physical decay. Occupancy patterns and standards are equally important; and as a matter of fact they often precede and forecast the physical deterioration. The type of overcrowding and improvised living which follows in the wake of the geographic expansion of the racial ghetto into surrounding areas of housing ill-designed to meet the pocket books of low-income families of minority groups has been and remains a principal factor in the spread of blight and generation of slums.

This, too, is in part a reflection of administrative inadequacies in the execution of urban renewal programs. One of the Federal government's requirements is a workable program which requires, among other things, a relocation program and adequate local building codes. The latter would include, in addition to minimum physical housing standards, prescribed occupancy standards. As a matter of fact, workable programs have been no more than promises and intentions; thus slum clearance has frequently been initiated at a time when there were no effective limitations upon overcrowding and doubling up. A program which in theory would expose the need for and require the creation of additional housing units for displaced families has, in practice, proceeded without occasioning the prescribed increase in dwelling accommodations. We clear one slum only to create others.

There is also another basic consideration which must be kept in mind. It is the fact that in most instances rehabilitation involves a major change in cost of the new housing. In practically all instances, slum clearance and re-building by private enterprise on the land made available through urban renewal produces much higher-priced housing. Thus, urban renewal has generated two major problems: it creates the need for relocation housing for those families which are initially displaced, and it involves permanent displacement of a large segment of the families now living in the areas affected by the new program.

From the beginning of the urban renewal program relocation has been a major problem. Problems of large dimensions developed in cities like Chicago, Detroit and New York, where low income families were forced out by economic and political pressures or were required to purchase second-hand properties at inflated prices or were further overcrowded in contiguous areas which were already substandard or in the process of becoming substandard due to over-occupancy. With the exception of those families which qualified for the available public housing (in which they had priority) the relocation experience was generally unfortunate and often fraught with extreme hardship for those involved. At the same time, priority for displaced families in public housing projects, when combined with concentration of urban renewal areas in sites inhabited largely by non-whites, has increased the proportion of colored tenants in subsidized projects. As a consequence, many racially integrated public housing projects in the North are becoming predominantly or exclusively Negro developments.

We are discovering, too, that relocation has often created additional slums and brought blight into new areas. This is particularly true where minority group families are concerned, since contrary to the filtering down theory, they do not have access to the total housing supply and are relegated to only a segment of the total housing market. There is danger that unless and until additional housing available at low rentals or selling prices and open to all ethnic groups is provided simultaneously with the demolition of substandard houses, we will often tear down slums in one neighborhood only to spread blight and create slums elsewhere. In Washington, D. C., for example, where relocation to date has been carried out with care and adequate records reflecting where families have moved, some of the older Negro occupied areas have been adversely affected. Southwest Washington is being cleared only at the price of creating the need for additional clearance in Northwest Washington. When the latter is begun, there will be another movement of Negro displaced families into established colored areas and their environs so that the process will begin anew. Here, again, is a graphic illustration of the fact that enforced residential segregation stands as an insuperable barrier in most cities to an effective, comprehensive program for housing reform.

There is still another development which has particular pertinence to the status of non-white families. It is the result of selecting for urban renewal sites in which whites and non-whites now live side by side under substandard conditions. In some instances in southern and border cities, it is planned to redevelop these areas for the exclusive occupancy of white families. Even when this is not clearly indicated in the local plans, it will sometimes become a de facto situation due to elimination of minority groups on economic rather than racial grounds. Where in a few cities there has been a protest against this, a compromise has been reached involving a re-use for other than residential purposes. Thus, a slum area formerly housing both Negro and white families will be proposed as the location for industry or a public institution. Here, again, urban renewal becomes an instrument for wiping out racially integrated living in one area at the same time that it fails to provide for an equal degree of racial integration on the site or in another section of the city.

As pessimistic as this picture may be in its current stage, there is one ray of hope which should not be ignored. It arises from the fact that a real job of urban renewal cannot be effected unless the defects which have been outlined above are corrected. It is, I believe, significant that in Washington, D. C., where a total program has been envisioned and outlined, redevelopers have been committed from the outset to a program of open occupancy in the new housing which will be built in renewal areas. This means that there will be white and non-white families living together in a limited amount of public housing and in privately-financed middle and upper income housing. Actually, with the exception of the public housing developments, the degree of non-white participation will be relatively small, due to income distribution among non-whites. It will be significant, however, insofar as this represents the stamp of governmental approval on open occupancy housing at the higher income ranges where prestige values are significant. By the same token, there is every reason to believe that outside of public housing, the concentration of lower income non-whites in racial ghettos will probably increase under the new program. This, of course, will be facilitated and accelerated by the escape from the city which is offered to white families of moderate income into the suburban areas outside the limits of the Nation's capital.

Already there are unmistakable evidences that urban renewal, while failing to date to solve the housing problems of minorities, is forcing public officials and private developers to face up to the problem. A few are realizing the impedement to their objectives inherent in residential segregation and its restrictions upon maximum utilization of the housing supply. Others are talking and thinking in terms of more and better Negro housing; all—or almost all—have come to realize that something has to be done in the realm of housing for minorities. As James Downs, Coordinator of Housing and Rehabilitation of Chicago, recently observed:

> Not only do we have to build houses to accommodate both the people who are now overcrowded and the growth of our population, but we also have to be willing to move the people into them. Up to now racial tension has prevented us from doing so. . . . Eventually we must lower the density in overcrowded areas by allowing people to move directly to outlying districts.

By definition, a successful program for comprehensive slum eradication and prevention must provide decent housing for all elments in the population. This is the logic of urban renewal. Its translation into fact will be long and difficult. Surely it will require all the tools we now have and many new ones. In many cities it is impossible of achievement within the pattern of residential segregation. Only time can tell where and how the compromises and advances will be made.

As urban renewal takes the spotlight on the national scene, there are other developments in certain areas which deserve attention. As an official of the State of New York, I may be pardoned if I pay special attention to the Empire State. This is not entirely chauvinism, since there are at least two recent developments which are somewhat peculiar to the State of New York and have direct bearing upon the housing of non-whites. The first of these is a new housing program designed to meet the needs of a neglected segment of the housing market. The second is in the form of two laws extending existing non-discriminatory housing regulations.

In the last Legislature of the State of New York the Mitchell-Lama bill was passed. This law provides for the financing and other assistance to housing for income groups somewhat higher than those now eligible for existing public housing projects and yet lower than the income groups served by privately-financed construction. In addition to government loans for fifty years, the legislation permits real estate tax adjustments up to fifty percent of the full value of the property or any increase of the value of the property over the assessed value for a period of thirty years. This Act permits limited profit companies and cooperatives to borrow ninety percent of the cost of housing for fifty years and it will provide in the State of New York modern and desirable shelter for some of those who have been in the "no man's land" in housing in the past.

It is the intention of the State Division of Housing to see that there is no discrimination in this program, and to take positive steps to assure participation of non-whites in the projects under the Mitchell-Lama law. In addition to providing housing for non-white families within the eligible income ranges, this program will supply additional evidence that open occupancy and racially integrated housing is successful. Because of the income structures in our communities, there is little danger that the project so developed will become entirely or disproportionately highly inhabited by minority groups, except in those instances where the location of the project mitigates against the attraction of a sizeable proportion of white tenants. Since such instances will surely be the exception rather than the rule, we shall have for the first time a program which will be integrated from the start and remain in such occupancy patterns over a long period of time.

The second important development in the State of New York was the passage of two anti-discrimination laws in housing. Both are identified as Metcalf-Baker Bills. The first extends the jurisdiction of the State Commission Against Discrimination to the enforcement of the anti-discrimination provisions governing public housing already contained in the Wicks-Austin Act. This in effect means that the State Commission Against Discrimination is now responsible for enforcement of non-discrimination in all public housing projects, in Title I redevelopment areas and in other housing constructed with State assistance, either in the form of tax concessions or use of eminent domain. This provision will accelerate the advance already made in breaking down discrimination in public housing in upstate New York and in the existing limited dividend housing companies under the jurisdiction of the Division. It should also go far in protecting the rights of minorities to participate in the Title I urban renewal developments throughout the State.

An even more important bill was the second Metcalf-Baker law which bans racial discrimination in Veterans Administration and Federal Housing Authority insured housing. Now, for the first time, there is a non-discrimination clause governing a significant segment of new housing produced in outlying areas where racial discrimination has been standard practice and where its existence and countenance by the Federal government has given aid and support to residential segregation in the second-hand housing market. Consequently, effective enforcement of the provisions of the law will not only augment the supply of housing available to minority groups, but also facilitate a significant change in practice and policies in areas which heretofore were typified by racial exclusiveness—areas which gave prestige-support to racial discrimination in housing in other sections of our cities. It is our feeling that this fact alone will do much to support and accelerate acceptance and development of non-discrimination policies in what has heretofore been considered publicly assisted housing. By working simultaneously on the traditional public housing programs and the FHA and VA insured housing developments there should be mutual support and significant results.

All of these recent trends suggest that residential segregation is being supported and extended in certain quarters while it is being challenged and weakened in others. Not mentioned above is the continuing movement of non-whites into existing housing in new areas of our cities —a trend which has been more than offset by the accelerated movement of whites from older houses in the cities to new homes in all-white suburban areas.

We are now in a period of change—change as reflected in spatial patterns and in public policy. It is a change supported by higher earnings of non-whites and by a climate of liberalism in racial relations in the Nation. Still it is clear that housing has not yet caught up to the pace of integration which is characteristic of other areas in American life. It is, however, fast becoming the number one item in democracy's unfinished business.

Cole Denies HHFA Helps Segregation

HHFA Administrator Albert Cole last month denied charges by the National Committee Against Discrimination in Housing that Federal housing policies encourage the spread of segregation.

The Committee had written President Eisenhower in August, that "despite your declaration that federal authority and funds should not be used to perpetuate or promote segregation . . . federal housing programs continue to reinforce and spread segregation."

Specific examples of Federal aid to segregated housing were cited in public housing, FHA- and VA-insured private housing. The Committee asked for a conference with the President, and noted that a sim-

Open Occupancy Grows In Private Housing

The number of private open occupancy housing developments around the country is growing. Whether motivated by ideals or dollars, these projects have been successful — once they have hurdled difficult problems of land and financing.

Fifty unrestricted developments, ranging from 10 to 300 units, were found this year in a survey made for the Commission on Race and Housing.

Trends has collected information on several outstanding developments through interviews and correspondence. Projects of single-family houses are reported in this issue. Future articles will cover rental and other multi-family developments.

Sunnyhills, Calif.

Potentially largest of open-occupancy developments is Sunnyhills, a new subdivision with capacity for 1500 homes, sponsored by the United Auto Workers in Milpitas, Calif. It is a success story today after three years of struggle.

The UAW got into the housing business reluctantly but determinedly when a Ford plant employing 3500 members moved 60 miles from Richmond to Milpitas. Although new tracts were booming, the union found costs inflated and no houses available for 225 Negro members.

Shortly after Ford announced its projected move in 1953, the local union's housing committee surveyed the membership and found over 300 ready to buy a moderately priced house in an open-occupancy tract. The committee then talked with countless

Builders Tell How To Aid Integration

Builders of integrated projects offer these tips for success:

- Project should offer equal—if possible, superior — value to competing all-white developments.
- Site should be good, and not near Negro or changing neighborhoods. Some isolation may be desirable, to avoid reaction of neighbors.
- Sales staff must fully understand and believe in integration policy.
- Promotion should be chiefly to white market; word of mouth will reach Negroes. Do not advertise "inter-racial." This means "Negro" to many.
- Where nonwhite demand is heavy, some occupancy control seems necessary.
- Land and financing remain the chief blocks; once these are located, experience shows a good chance of success.

builders and received many offers — but every builder insisted that "we can't build in the same location for your white and nonwhite members."

Finally, a builder agreed to try open occupancy, but he was repeatedly blocked in attempts to obtain land. Then, with the help of the local FHA Race Relations Advisor, Bob Pitts, another builder was found who already had land near Milpitas.

But no mortgage commitment could be obtained without staggering premiums. Bill Oliver, Co-Director of the International UAW's Fair Practices and Anti-Discrimination Department, and Phil Buskirk of the American Friends Service Committee flew to New York. The Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. agreed to take the mortgages on the same basis as other loans in the area.

Opposition from local governmental bodies came next. Without warning, or explanation, costs and requirements for sanitation and water facilities were sharply raised. A neighboring subdivider organized protest meetings and filed suit to prevent the Board of Supervisors from approving the UAW subdivision's plans. At this point the builder gave up, and the project seemed licked.

In November 1955, the UAW found a new firm willing to develop the project. The chief opposition—the adjoining subdivision of partly occupied and partly unsold homes — was also bought out.

Sales Boom

The new joint subdivision was opened last winter with a successful Christmas party for residents and prospective buyers —the latter including some Negro families. Eighty white families had been living in the original restricted tract; few have moved out since the advent of the new UAW open-occupancy policy. Existing houses sold slowly through the winter, but since Spring, when the first new UAW-sponsored models were put on view, sales have boomed.

In August, an FHA official said that "the level of 6 sales a week since July 4 hasn't been equalled by any developer in the country."

Eight models are now available, ranging from $10,700 to $16,000 for 3 bedroom 1½ bath homes. Sales are handled by two real-estate firms, one interracial, one white. Not all of the new homebuyers are Ford Workers. About one-third of new sales have been made to Negroes, who now are about one-tenth of Sunnyhills' residents. Salesmen have encouraged scattering of Negro families throughout the development.

Although in an earlier stage the union proudly released stories about its new "interracial" project, present promotion does not mention this aspect. Brochures stress "the West's first true planned community" with illustrations of the new school, recreation center, shopping center, $53-monthly payments, etc. The International UAW has taken an option on adjoining land for future development. Local 560 has purchased 8½ acres for a union center and recreation area.

UAW was helped in its long struggle to develop this project by many community groups in the area concerned with democratic living opportunities. The American Friends Service Committee's full-time Community Relations Secretary, Phil Buskirk, works closely with the union, the community and the building industry. Councils for Civic Unity, ministers' and other groups have helped. The AFL building trades unions cooperated by setting up a committee on building standards to guarantee good value in the project.

Buskirk and Arnold Callan, UAW Sub-Regional Director, are enthusiastic about prospects for integration in Sunnyhills and its important effect on the surrounding Santa Clara Valley. Local opposition has calmed down, and thousands of new residents pouring into the area give it a flexible character, suitable for further interracial development, they believe.

Concord Park, Pa.

Most publicized of new developments is Concord Park, a project of 139 moderately priced homes in suburban Philadelphia, now almost completely sold on a 55%-45% white-Negro controlled occupancy basis.

Morris Milgram, a young Philadelphia builder, became convinced in 1952 of the need and feasibility of building unrestricted housing. But his personal conviction proved insufficient to secure financing until he joined forces in 1953 with George Otto, a Quaker and established community developer of conservative reputation. Together, they formed Concord Park, Inc. a stock corporation with a respected Board of Directors. Within a year, members of the Society of Friends and other interested persons oversubscribed a $150,000 stock issue. Construction funds were then pledged by a local bank.

The corporation purchased a 50-acre site in Trevose, Pa. relatively isolated from other housing developments. Then followed a difficult 17-month period seeking mortgage sources for homebuyers. Over 2 dozen institutions turned them down. Mortgage and loan associations, union and church pension funds and savings banks all thought the project too risky.

In 1954, after some houses were already up, the Bowery Savings Bank of New York agreed to take a majority of the mortgages, some at par, some at 1½% discount.

The original occupancy goal was simulation of Philadelphia's population — about 80% white and 20% Negro. Promotion was aimed at the white market, with general press and radio advertising and special mailings to lists of liberal and peace organizations. But the first rush of buyers were overwhelmingly Negro.

Milgram attributes this to the simple fact of pent-up demand; less than 1% of new housing had been available previously to the Negro 20% of the population. But he also holds responsible an original sales force, trained in conventional real estate practices, which regarded Concord Park as a Negro development and concentrated on Negro sales, often discouraging white applicants.

Controls Set

Although some of the Board felt that the intense Negro housing demand should be met, the corporation decided that if Concord Park was to be an example of a true interracial community, some controls must be imposed.

The pattern of 55%-45% enables salesmen to state that "the majority of residents will be white families." Although there were fears that Negroes would resent this policy, Milgram reports that those turned down or put on the waiting list until there are sufficient white sales, appreciate this aim.

In April 1955, a new sales manager, dedicated to the open-occupancy goal, came to the project, and sales to white families mounted. Today, with all but 16 houses

Detailed and evaluated case studies of open-occupancy housing developments will be published early in 1957 as part of a comprehensive study by the Commission on Race and Housing.

Operating under a $235,000 grant from the Fund for the Republic, the independent Commission, chaired by Earl B. Schwulst, President of the Bowery Savings Bank of New York, is conducting 24 research projects on minority housing.

A report on a questionnaire survey prepared by The Committee on Civil Rights in East Manhattan will also be available this fall.

sold, Concord Park is an integrated as well as interracial community, in the opinion of its builder and residents. A number of community organizations — womens' clubs, girl scouts, the civic association—have interracial membership with officers of both races.

Although most of the original stockholders and the builders were prepared to make no profit on their pioneering investment in Concord Park, by June of this year, backers had received two dividends. In view of the lack of experience which led to an expensive trial and error process, backers feel that future projects may prove even better investments.

Milgram and Otto are now completing Greenbelt Knoll, 19 contemporary homes of outstanding design on an attractive wooded site, selling from $19,000-$24,000. Eleven homes have been bought to date, one by Milgram himself. Benefiting from experience, occupancy in this development will be controlled at two-thirds white and one-third Negro.

"Hell's Half Acre"

In Madison, Wisconsin, builder J. J. Sinaiko has since 1952 put up 36 low-cost prefabricated homes and sold half to white and half to Negro families. Eight of these houses sold at $12,400, five at $9500 and 22 at $6250.

Sinaiko's lowest-priced house was a prefab by National Homes, its price kept down by his purchase from the city of tax-delinquent lots in a then-blighted area known as "Hell's Half Acre."

Today, stimulated by Sinaiko's new building, a concerted cleanup campaign by city agencies and neighborhood groups has helped transform the area into "a good residential neighborhood where Negro and white homeowners live amicably side by side" according to Madison's Capital Times.

Prior to Sinaiko's activity, there had been no building in the area since 1910-25. A few Negro families had moved in during the 20's, but even today, the neighborhood remains predominantly white. Two of Sinaiko's original purchasers have resold to white families since 1953. There have been no panic sales or hostility evidenced to Negroes. Values have definitely improved. Six new homes are being built in the area, one by a Negro family.

Although Sinaiko originally expected to sell most of his houses to Negroes, he has been forced instead to set a white "quota" and to solicit Negro purchases through church groups to assure balanced sales. He attributes this to absence of comparable low-cost housing in Madison, and the relatively small Negro population.

Sinaiko's chief problem has been financing. His current project of 20 homes at $9500 was turned down by five mortgage brokers. He has recently secured financing through the efforts of the Voluntary Home Mortgage Credit Program from the New York Life Insurance Company, but delays have added to his costs. Although in 1954 he stated "there are now no insurmountable problems in the way of producing low income open occupancy housing wherever it is needed," today Sinaiko feels that "unless the money market changes, this is an exceedingly speculative venture and should be processed with great care."

Yellow Springs, Ohio

The Porter Construction Company has put up 42 prefabricated homes in Yellow Springs, Ohio and to date sold 13 to white and 9 to Negro families.

Builder William Hooper says: "We started our subdivision on an open-occupancy basis because we felt this was the only logical way to add to a village that was already largely integrated." A controlled occupancy policy was soon found necessary to keep the project from becoming predominantly Negro, even though no publicity had mentioned the tract's unrestricted policy. Hooper says that about 30% of the total occupants will be Negro families.

Initial mortgage financing was secured from a local bank without difficulty, but when the bank was unable to supply further needed funds, Hooper had great trouble finding additional financing. "The mixed character of the subdivision is the only aspect that has made this difficult" he believes.

Relations among families in Westgate are very good, Hooper reports, and community reaction has in general been positive. He admits that some sales were lost because of belief that the project would be all or predominantly Negro, and his unwillingness to publicize a quota policy.

"Although I'm a builder first and interested in aiding mixed housing second, I would like to encourage other builders to take a lead in this field" Hooper declares.

Scattered Lots in Minneapolis

In Minneapolis, builder Edward N. Tilsen has since 1944 sold 44 single homes on lots scattered in a 20 square block predominantly white area to 40 Negro and 4 white families. Despite the heavy Negro proportion of sales, the scattered locations have produced an integrated neighborhood, less than 20% of which is Negro.

Homes in the $12,000 range were promoted chiefly to the Negro market. Considerable panic selling followed the first purchases by Negroes, some of it encouraged by real estate brokers, according to the Minneapolis Urban League, which helped Tilsen with promotion. Today, about two years later, a stabilized pattern appears to be holding.

Shelton Granger of the Urban League notes that "although this project has worked it has not proven effective in changing attitudes of builders in suburban communities."

Groups Buy Land

Another approach has been taken by middle-income groups in Connecticut, Illinois and California, who have bought land together, then sold lots on an unrestricted basis.

Village Creek, Conn.

In 1949, a group of New Yorkers bought an attractive parcel of land in Norwalk, Conn., then sold lots with covenants prohibiting discrimination. Much of the land was isolated, bordering on Long Island Sound and marshland, but one close neighbor worked hard to stop them. Roger Willcox, builder, and one of the origin-

NCDH Meeting in N.Y. Seeks Housing for All

"Rebuilding Our Cities for Everybody" is the theme of the Annual Meeting of the National Committee Against Discrimination in Housing, at the Hotel Park Lane in New York City on October 12.

Panel sessions will discuss "Keys to Desegregation" in public housing policy; "Neighborhood Stabilization;" and "Toward a Free Market in Private Housing — The Role of Builder, Lender, Broker and Neighbor." Leaders from all segments of public and private housing will participate.

An evening dinner session will feature major addresses by Robert C. Weaver, Administrator, New York State Temporary Housing Rent Commission; Lloyd Garrison, prominent civil rights attorney and advisor to Adlai Stevenson; and George Doub, U. S. Assistant Attorney General, who has handled housing cases for the Eisenhower Administration.

Presentation of the First Annual Walter White Award for Outstanding Achievement in the Field of Intergroup Relations and Housing will be made at the evening session. The award will be made by a committee composed of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Oscar Hammerstein II, Judge J. Waties Waring, Ben Fisher of the United Steelworkers and Reginald Johnson of the National Urban League.

Minorities Get Little Aid From 1956 Housing Act

After a bitter fight, chiefly over public housing provisions, in the last minutes before its July adjournment Congress enacted a 1956 Housing Act which failed to meet the needs outlined by groups concerned with minority housing, but which in the words of the industry publication House and Home, "has something for nearly everyone." Chief provisions affecting housing for minorities:

Low-Rent Public Housing. Authorizes 35,000 units of public housing per year for the next two years, in addition to the balance of uncommitted units authorized under the Housing Act of 1955.

Before a locality is eligible for any public housing, its "workable program" for the prevention and elimination of slums must be approved by HHFA.

Urban Renewal. Relocation payments for those displaced by urban renewal operations will be reimbursed by the Federal Government up to $100 per individual or family and $2,000 for a business.

Authorizes federal funds for preliminary studies of the feasibility of urban renewal programs, and for longer-range programs.

FHA. Rental Housing (Section 207). Increases the FHA-insured mortgage from 80% to 90% of estimated value of the project and increases the mortgage ceilings to $8100 per unit for four-family structures and $8400 per unit for elevator buildings.

Single Family Homes (Section 203). Existing houses may now get the same FHA mortgage terms as new houses.

Cooperative Housing (Section 213). Reduces the proportion of veterans needed in a cooperative to qualify it for a 95% FHA-insured mortgage and expands the definition of veterans to include World War I as well as World War II and Korea.

Permits construction of a project while a cooperative group is being organized, and permits FHA to insure mortgages where the developer certifies that he intends to sell the project to a non-profit cooperative at actual project cost within two years after completion.

Provides an FHA staff to help non-profit cooperative groups.

Low-Cost Housing for Displaced Families (Section 221). Increases mortgage ceilings to $9,000 and $10,000 in high-cost areas. Increases the maximum repayment period to 40 years and increases the ratio of loan to value to 100% of appraised value.

Repairs and Improvements (Title I). Increases the maximum loan for improvement of single-family homes to $3,500 and increases the maximum repayment period to five years.

FNMA Secondary Market Operations. Gives FNMA new authority to make advance commitment to purchase FHA-and VA-insured mortgages.

Housing Research. Authorizes program of housing research to provide data on the nation's housing inventory, the need for low and middle income housing and the housing market demand.

Brokerage Firm to Aid Minorities in Suburbs

A real estate brokerage firm has been set up in Ardmore, Pa. to sell houses to minority group families in suburban Philadelphia. The Society of Friends and other religious groups took the initiative in organizing the company.

An executive secretary, real estate broker and insurance broker form the staff of Friends Suburban Housing Inc., a licensed real estate corporation. Initial expenses will be covered by issuing shares of stock; to date 143 persons have subscribed $4300. It is expected that the usual 5% brokerage fee will eventually make the operation self-supporting.

In the first two months a number of listings were obtained and one sale, in an established fine neighborhood, was made to a Negro family.

One Market FHA Goal Official Tells Brokers

"The essential encouragement which FHA is giving to the matter of minority group housing is and must continue to be in the direction of the one market concept," Deputy FHA Commissioner Charles E. Sigety told the National Association of Real Estate Brokers, meeting in August in Los Angeles.

Sigety noted the tremendous growth of the Negro market, and the need for more information on housing demand and present restrictive factors.

The FHA official mentioned 39 integrated private housing developments throughout the country which have received FHA insurance. "The fact that these integrated projects have been successful has led other sponsors to submit proposals to our offices," he said.

Cole Denies Bias

ilar letter, written to him one year previously, had never received a reply.

Mr. Cole replied for the President in mid-September that "his present schedule makes it impossible to arrange the conference with your committee." Cole indicated his own sympathy with the aims of the Committee, but disagreement with measures it had recommended. He cited information previously made public by him, showing that Federal housing programs are aiding minority housing.

Answers One Year Later

The Committee's charges had originally been made to Mr. Cole in June 1955 in a letter written at the request of Senator Prescott Bush of Connecticut. Bush forwarded the letter to Cole. In May of this year, almost one year later, Cole released to the press his reply to Senator Bush, denying the Committee's complaints. He cited programs previously reported in his testimony at Congressional hearings on the 1956 Housing bill (see Trends, August issue) to show that the Federal Government's objective is "the realization of a good home in a decent neighborhood for all Americans," and that "our efforts in this direction have been vigorous, continuing, and I believe, productive."

Chief actions cited by Cole were a 1954 conference on minority housing with industry and civic leaders, the Voluntary Home Mortgage Credit Program's loans for 1800 units of minority housing, and the provision of public housing for large percentages of minority families needing low-rent housing. He reiterated that in policies of tenant selection and relocation housing "we should rely heavily on local responsibility and local wisdom to work out solutions, with appropriate assistance, stimulation and leadership from the Federal Government which is continually "seeking to find new and better ways . . . for the elimination of racial discrimination in housing."

In July, The National Committee Against Discrimination in Housing wrote Senator Bush that Mr. Cole's answer did not deny the basic charge of Federal aid to segregation, "which is a clear abdication of federal responsibility and in violation of decisions by the Supreme Court." His reply, it was pointed out, merely reported attempts by his agency to foster production of "minority housing." His statement that Federal encouragement had led to production of much new housing for minorities was termed vague. Figures showing specific results were requested.

CORRESPONDENTS REPORT:

Champaign-Urbana

1455 citizens of these two adjoining towns in Illinois have signed an Open Letter, appearing as a full page advertisement in two local papers, affirming their belief in an unsegregated community, and their welcome for neighbors "on a personal basis without regard to race, creed, or country of origin."

The Open Letter, a brief statement of dedication to equality in personal practices, was prepared by a group of citizens who had first been aroused by anti-Negro incidents in the South. Meeting to discuss what they could do to help, they realized that serious employment and housing problems and definite segregation existed for Negroes in their own town. Because many realtors stated that "we wouldn't mind selling or renting to Negroes but neighbors wouldn't stand for it," the group felt that a public announcement would show the community that there were "neighbors" who would stand for it.

On Palm Sunday, every church in the two towns offered copies of the Open Letter to its congregation. Forms were taken home and mailed in individually to avoid group pressure. After publication of the Letter, favorable newspaper comment was received, and no unfavorable reaction was publicly expressed. A chief reaction was surprise from citizens who had been unaware that Negroes faced difficulties. Organizers of the campaign felt an important dividend was the educational effect from many discussions provoked by the Open Letter. A Council for Community Integration has been formed to put the principles of the Open Letter into practice.

Brooklyn

Twenty-nine womens' organizations, working with the Kings County Council of the New York State Commission Against Discrimination, have issued a "Statement on Democratic Housing" affirming their belief that all persons should have equal opportunity to rent, buy or build anywhere in Brooklyn, and expressing their personal welcome to all good neighbors.

The group included Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish organizations, Sororities, parents' and health groups, and women's clubs. News stories quoting the statement were carried in all major New York City newspapers. As a follow up, an institute with the housing industry is planned.

Philadelphia

The city's Human Relations Commission has started a thorough study of the integration program of the Philadelphia Housing Authority, under the direction of Dr. Robert B. Johnson. It is expected to be completed by early Fall.

Houston

The NAACP has requested a hearing on desegregation of San Felipe Courts, Houston's largest public housing project. The all white project, built in 1938 in a predominantly Negro area near the city's center, displaced many Negro families, who were relocated in other Negro public housing projects. Today San Felipe has 650 white residents and 340 vacancies. Housing officials attribute the vacancies to the fact that the project is in a predominantly Negro area. They admit that there is a great need among Negroes for housing and that if Negroes were admitted there would be no vacancies.

Richmond, Calif.

New housing now being planned to replace temporary government war housing which had been operated on an integrated basis, will not be available to nonwhites. The number of new housing units will be less than those destroyed, and tenant removal and demolition of structures has been started far in advance of any new building. Civic groups had previously warned of inadequate protection for resident minority families in the Public Housing Administration's program for disposal of its war housing.

Portland

A survey recently completed by the Portland Urban League has produced evidence that entrance of nonwhite families into new neighborhoods has not affected property values and that although many people say they would not object to Negroes living nearby, most believe their neighbors would.

A market price study revealed a general upward trend in test and control areas, and showed that general characteristics of house and neighborhoods affected selling prices more than racial factors. An attitude study found that about 50% of those interviewed favored integration in housing, but that two-thirds of those living in close proximity to nonwhites answered favorably.

The survey has been widely circulated by the Urban League, and a housing program is now underway based on its findings.

Nonwhite Dispersion Opens D.C. Market

Increasing residential dispersion of nonwhite families in Washington, D. C. has opened up the housing market and made the urban renewal relocation program far more successful than that of more restricted cities, reports George Nesbitt in the August issue of Land Economics.

The writer, a racial relations specialist in the Urban Renewal Administration, discusses in detail the increasing pattern of residential dispersion in the nation's capital over the past 15 years. The scattering of nonwhite families has proceeded in an orderly fashion, he reports, and for the most part without expressions of violent opposition and "panic selling," nor has it occurred only or chiefly in deteriorating neighborhoods. This has happened despite a network of property groups organized to oppose nonwhite entry into neighborhoods, and—until recently—segregation in public housing and schools.

Favorable factors in Nesbitt's view were the large volume of new home construction for rental and sale in Washington, a significant portion of which was available to nonwhites, the suburban movement leaving housing available in various sections of the city, the unusually high average of nonwhite family incomes, and a deep-rooted tradition of home ownership among Washington Negroes of all income levels.

Relocation Aided

Nesbitt points out that the dispersion trend has given the city opportunity for more rational planning and management of its land use and housing supply. For example, 1,000 nonwhite families were relocated in all parts of the city from its first re-development area in what Housing Administrator Cole termed "the most successful undertaking of its kind yet carried out in any American city."

"Freed from the pressure of excessive pent up nonwhite housing need," Nesbitt notes, "a renewal program can attack racial minority congestion community wide, enjoy an expeditious relocation operation, expect a greater degree of citizen acceptance and look forward to surer, more lasting upgrading in renewed areas."

Nesbitt notes that the Washington experience should now accumulate evidence challenging assumptions that nonwhites "like to live that way," "are happier with their own," "won't move far out," "won't maintain property" and the like. First hand experience is now available, he believes, which will shift the focus of the industry from racial factors and fears to more objective realities.

Bankers Approve Negro Loans

A published report of the Committee on Financing Minority Housing of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America states that "the Negro market . . . will provide a growing source of desirable loan business," and declares that "where such loans have been well conceived, they have ordinarily been successful."

The Committee urges that lenders concentrate on the availability of more sites for Negro families, as the "key obstacle to a more rapid expansion of effective demand."

In a questionnaire circulated to over 1300 lenders, the Committee found little evidence of bias as motivation for not lending to Negroes. However, evidence of fear and uncertainty, based on lack of knowledge of characteristics of the Negro market, was noted.

A tendency of lenders to lump Negro borrowers as a group, rather than to treat them as separate individuals with the same consideration as white borrowers, was criticized by the Committee.

The report concluded that wherever loans had been made to minority families based on the same criteria used for the white market, they have "without exception been successful."

Catholic Digest Sees Gap In Principle and Practice

"Eight out of ten whites agree with the Declaration of Independence that 'all men are created equal'. Seven out of ten say they like, rather than dislike most Negroes. Yet only four out of ten would be willing to live next door to Negroes. Only five out of ten would be willing to live in the same neighborhood."

"Of northern whites who express a wish to do away with segregation, a good fourth say they would refuse to live next door to Negroes."

These statements, illustrating a wide gap between principle and practice, are quoted from a recent nationwide survey made by the Catholic Digest, reported in its August issue. Two-thousand interviews in all parts of the country revealed that "in theory most whites accept Negroes; in practice, few do." "The only explanation for the contradictory answers" concludes the Digest, "is that many whites are guilty of contradictory thinking."

Congress Studies Housing

A study of the relationship between income and housing is underway this fall by the Senate Banking Committee in response to proposals for a middle-income housing program. Other housing studies will examine FHA's management and sale of foreclosed property, and review the banking and credit picture.

CAA Bars Separate Facilities

Segregated airport facilities may no longer be constructed with federal funds, the Civil Aeronautics Authority announced in May. The C.A.A. had projected expenditures of some $63 million of federal funds for the year starting July 1.

Party Platforms Ignore Testimony on Housing Bias

The National Committee Against Discrimination in Housing asked platform committees of both political parties in August for a plank pledging executive action to bar segregation in all federally-assisted housing programs. Platforms adopted by Republican and Democratic parties bore no evidence of this testimony.

Presidential candidates of both parties have expressed themselves on the problem of housing discrimination. President Eisenhower in 1954 pledged strengthening of administrative policies" . . . to assure equal opportunity for all citizens to acquire . . . good and well located homes," and said that where Federal funds and authority were involved there should be no discrimination. Adlai Stevenson, on several occasions, has declared that housing segregation in the North is as serious a problem as school segregation in the South, and was reported by the New York Times to have placed equality in housing ahead of equality in public education on his list of civil rights priorities.

Renewal Institutes Set

The National Urban League has scheduled a series of 10 regional institutes on urban renewal, for exchange of ideas and facts among planners, housers and intergroup relations specialists.

Institutes have been held in Elizabeth, New Jersey, and Warren, Ohio, each covering a number of cities in the area. Further institutes this year are scheduled for Detroit (late November) Oklahoma City (early December) and Washington, D. C. Institutes will be held in Kansas City, (January), Chicago (early Spring), and three other as yet undetermined regional centers.

Nonwhite Market Surveys Measure Housing Demand

Studies of the nonwhite market made by the Federal Housing Administration in a number of cities have revealed population increases, gains in income, and the specific price brackets in which minority families need and can pay for housing.

To date, FHA has made 59 specific studies and devoted a substantial part of 40 other studies to the nonwhite market. Ninety-three other studies contain some information in this area. Thirty-five studies were made in 1956, and studies are now under way in Seattle, Portland and Cleveland. Underlying data is available to local groups.

FHA's goal of minority market studies in all its 168 Standard Metropolitan Areas has been limited by lack of funds and personnel. Local groups may submit requests for such studies in their area, and may find it useful to work with FHA market analysts in setting up specific questions needing answers.

Urban League

The Urban League of Columbus Ohio has prepared its own survey of the nonwhite market, and is now circulating to the housing industry specific information on income, size of families, desires for rental and purchase at different price levels and other relevant information.

Wagner Names Group To Speed Integration

The Mayor of New York City has appointed a committee to help formulate public housing policy to advance integration, following conferences with representatives of civic groups concerned about residential segregation in the city.

On August 1, representatives of 18 major New York Civic agencies, under leadership of the New York State Committee Against Discrimination in Housing presented a "site-selection" statement to the Mayor. The statement urged a 2-year moratorium on selection of sites in areas of heavy minority concentration, location of new housing on vacant land, management policies designed to promote integration in public housing, and consideration of race-relations factors in all city planning, with the aim of fostering residential integration.

Following the meeting, the Mayor appointed a committee composed of the City Planning Commission Chairman, the Director of the city's Commission on Intergroup Relations, the Executive Director of the New York Housing Authority, and an Assistant to the Mayor.

The New York Journal-American editorialized: "Racial bias is deplorable anywhere. It is particularly deplorable if expenditure of public money tends to promote it."

Legal Action

Savannah Appeal Heard

Argument on an appeal from a District Court decision upholding segregation in Savannah public housing projects was heard before the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals on October 8th.

Attorneys for the NAACP seek an injunction to prevent allocation of federal funds for construction of segregated public housing. The case against the Savannah Housing Authority was dismissed by the District Court last October.

FHA Case Set for January

January 10, 1957, is the new trial date for a major case testing discrimination in selling FHA-insured housing in Sacramento, California. NAACP attorneys are challenging the right of the Sacramento Real Estate Board and individual builders to restrict sale and rental of housing receiving federal mortgage insurance. Trial was put over from an original July date. (The above cases were reported in detail in the August Trends)

LAW ENFORCEMENT

New York: Metcalf-Baker Law

Fifteen cases involving private housing discrimination have been filed with the New York State Commission Against Discrimination in the first two months of its new jurisdiction over FHA and VA-aided housing. The Commission also received reports of the first voluntary compliance in a private rental project.

Chairman Charles Abrams reported last month that nearly 300 Negro families had recently acquired residence in Title I developments where tenants were predominantly white, and that no friction had occurred. He also noted that there had been no reduction in new construction because of the new anti-discrimination laws.

"Experience . . . has shown," said Mr. Abrams, "that if compliance with the law begins with the initial renting of the developments, few difficulties are experienced thereafter." Builders' fears that renting to minority families would discourage others have not been realized, he stated. Moreover, he added, recent studies show that the demand among Negros for privately built houses was not large enough to justify fears of "inundation."

Mr. Abrams also reported "widespread pledges of cooperation" from realtors and builders to see that minority applicants were considered on the same basis as others.

Other steps taken in enforcement of the law:

- FHA and VA have agreed to send the Commission periodic lists of all federally-insured housing. These lists may be made available to interested groups and those seeking housing. Both agencies have agreed to revise a sticker used on builders' application forms to set forth provisions of the anti-discrimination law and SCAD's jurisdiction.

- FHA and VA have assigned representatives to work closely with SCAD and with lenders and builders, to promote compliance.

- SCAD has written builders, realtors, lenders, mayors of cities and Boards of Supervisors, outlining the law's provisions and the availability of SCAD's Housing Division for aid.

Ed Rutledge, SCAD housing director, noted that a drop in FHA commitments may be expected in the months ahead, because its interest rate is restricted to 4½% and banks can now get higher rates on conventional loans.

Los Angeles: Redevelopment

In 1951, after a hard battle, community groups won a city ordinance providing that all plans and contracts for redevelopment should specifically prohibit discrimination and segregation. This year, the first major redevelopment project in the Bunker Hill Area got under way. The Los Angeles County Conference on Community Relations protested that initial plans contained no anti-discrimination provisions. The City Attorney recently ruled that the city ordinance was "advisory" only, and that another specific resolution must be passed by the City Council to apply its provisions to the Bunker Hill project. Another hard fight is anticipated. The NAACP has indicated that it will file suit if anti-discrimination provisions are not included.

Providence: Public Housing

Civic organizations united in the Rhode Island Committee on Discrimination in Housing have been conducting a battle with the local Housing Authority on its segregation policies for many years. In 1950, the City Council of Providence passed a resolution opposing racial discrimination or segregation in any publicly supported housing. In 1952 a formal documented complaint of segregation was submitted to the State Commission Against Discrimination. The Housing Authority continued to claim that its "separate but equal" policies did not violate the law.

In July, a Providence Journal reporter unearthed a never-publicized 1952 opinion of the State's Attorney General, declaring the Housing Authority's practice of segregating Negro families in separate projects or separate units of projects to be in violation of the State Anti-Discrimination law. Despite repeated complaints by civic groups, the opinion had never been made public by SCAD.

The Journal termed the Commission's silence on the ruling "a shameful suppression" and declared "The Commission's resignation is not too high a price to pay for restoration of public confidence in the administration of Rhode Island's anti-discrimination law."

The Committee Against Discrimination in Housing has submitted a complaint to the Public Housing Administration in Washington and has been advised that the situation will be investigated. The State Commission's reaction to the publicity on its suppression of the Attorney General's decision is also awaited, while some groups are considering court action.

Open Occupancy

ators of the community, feels that this opposition contributed to long delays in approval of mortgage financing by FHA.

Lots sold from $500-$3000, and included beach rights and community property. Buyers put up and financed their own houses, which range from $8000-$50,000. Negro buyers had no trouble getting financing, Willcox reports. Today the community is about two-thirds white, one-third Negro. Original buyers were New York commuters, but recently some Norwalk residents, including a few local Negroes, have bought lots. 42 houses have been built to date on 72 available lots.

All sales have been by word-of-mouth. There has been no advertising. Willcox reports that after about 20 lots had been sold to whites, real effort was made to locate Negro buyers. After the first sale to a Negro, he recalls, "the grapevine in Harlem must have really gone to work. In the next 2 weeks, 16 lots were sold to Negroes." Some of our original people began to worry that the balance might be tipped, that this might become a majority Negro community." We talked it over with our first Negro buyer and she felt the same way. The grapevine then went to work in reverse. For 2 months not a single Negro prospect showed up. We never had a quota, but the approximate two-third, one-third ratio has remained, even with considerable resale of lots."

Lawrence Tract

In California, a small tract was bought by members of the Palo Alto Fair Play Council five years ago, to be developed as a demonstration in interracial living. Lots were sold to equal numbers of Negroes, Orientals and Caucasians. Today fourteen families have built houses conforming to high architectural standards and live in close neighborly relations. Provision has been made for the group to buy back a house if it cannot immediately be sold so as to maintain the racial balance. The neighboring area has undergone rapid development since the tract was started, and has become integrated to some extent, as builders have put up homes for a few minority families.

York Cooperative

In 1944, a small group of Church of the Brethren members started a housing cooperative in a Chicago suburb. Membership soon included families of Catholic, Jewish and other Protestant denominations. A Japanese-American family was admitted without question in 1945, but when a Negro lawyer, who had done legal work for the Co-op applied for membership in 1946, a heated issue arose.

The membership finally voted by a bare majority to maintain the open membership policy, which is a part of every Rochdale cooperative's by-laws.

Some families withdrew, but new white families entered the co-op along with later Oriental, Negro and interracial families. Today, its 72 families are predominantly Caucasian. About one-sixth are Negro.

At one period, a flood of Negro applications produced fears that the pressure for housing would lead through turnover to a heavily Negro community. The problem was discussed, and all members agreed that maintenance of an interracial community was a mutual goal. Membership now seems stable and the Co-op has a waiting list of racial composition similar to present membership.

The Co-op had no difficulty in original land purchase nor in later purchase of additional land. There has been considerable neighborhood opposition. When the first Negro family joined, petitions were circulated and a public protest meeting was held. Members of the Co-op presented their views and stood their ground. Recently, efforts to zone the Co-op out of the local school district were defeated with the aid of the Superintendant of Schools. Today, relations with the surrounding community have improved considerably, and neighboring land has been developed into subdivisions, with no effect noted on sales or prices.

The membership of a local council is composed of representatives of local branches of national organizations affiliated with the National Council of Negro Women and other women who subscribe to its purposes. There are 21 national organizations and 90 local and junior councils. They are capable of reaching some 850,000 women.

Governing Body: The Board of Directors is the governing body of the council and is made up of the officers of the National Council of Negro Women, the presidents of national organizations, the presidents of local and junior councils, the chairmen of standing committees and national departments and the nine

Mrs. Vivian Carter Mason of Norfolk, Virginia, was elected president of NCNW on Saturday, November 14th and was installed with a new slate of officers at the colorful dinner meeting; which closed the recent 3 day Biennial Convention Meeting held in Washington, D. C. The meeting was attended by some 500 women from affiliate groups and local councils from all over the country. The Founder, President Emeritus, Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune attended the convention and participated fully in the proceedings. Other National Officers include: 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and 4th VICE PRESIDENTS, respectively, Dr. Arenia Mallory, Lexington, Mississippi; Dr. Nancy Woolridge, Hampton, Virginia; Attorney Marjorie Lawson, Washington, D. C.; Dr. Rosa Gragg, Detroit, Michigan; RECORDING SECRETARY, Mrs. Marion Bluitt, Washington, D. C.; ASSISTANT RECORDING SECRETARY, Mrs. Dorothy Lymas, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; TREASURER, Mrs. Jane M. Spaulding, Washington, D. C.; PARLIAMENTARIAN, Mrs. Henrine W. Banks, Indianapolis, Indiana; HISTORIAN, Mrs. Ruth Caston Mueller, Washington, D. C.; CHAPLAIN, Dr. Alma Illery, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; NATIONAL ORGANIZER FOR JUNIOR COUNCILS, Mrs. Helen Meade, New York City; DIRECTOR OF FINE ARTS, Mrs. Ethel Ramos Harris, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE AT LARGE, Mrs. Josephine Brown, Lansing, Michigan; Mrs. Lula L. Campbell, Denver, Colorado; Mrs. Jeanne D. Dago, Chicago, Illinois; Mrs. Vivian Alleyne, Baltimore, Maryland; Mrs. Nettie Carter Jackson, Staten Island, New York; Mrs. Daisy Lampkin, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; Mrs. Fannye Ayer Ponder, St. Petersburg, Florida; Mrs. Belzora S. Ward, Birmingham, Alabama; Mrs. Thelma Young, Wilmington, Delaware. REGIONAL DIRECTORS, Region I, Mrs. Daisy S. George, New York City; Region II, Mrs. Aliene Ewell, Washington, D. C.; Region III, Mrs. Iola Jones, Florence, South Carolina; Region IV, Mrs. Gwendolyn Floyd, Little Rock, Arkansas; Region V, Miss Bessie B. Garvin, East Saint Louis, Illinois; Region VI, Mrs. Helen Garland, Long Beach, California.

Dr. Lester Granger, Executive Director of the National Urban League, addressed the dinner meeting and challenged the group to analyze its program, scrutinizing every detail of program emphasis, in the light of the rapidly changing times in which we live and work. He stressed his belief in the strength of the organization and in its potential facetiously referring to the cliche "I would be the last person to underestimate the power of a woman's organization". Seriously, Dr. Granger warned that cliches tend to date individuals and organizations and we are past the point of referring to such phrases as "The New Negro", "A set of circumstances" and subsequently the newer term "militant" used to describe a certain action process. He said that just as medical treatment is successful or unsuccessful a program is effectual or ineffectual and even though there are gradations in the quality of the product we need no stock phrase to express what we mean.

Delegates to the convention especially enjoyed and profited by full participation in a well planned workshop program which occupied a prominent place on the full convention program. The theme of the workshop was "THE COUNCIL WOMAN WORKING IN THE COMMUNITY FOR A BETTER WORLD." The Coordinator for the workshops was Miss Dorothy I. Height of New York City, who is an expert in this area of work. Dr. Nancy B. Woolridge, of Hampton, Virginia gave a brilliant total summary at the close of the day. Individual reporters from the discussion groups were -- Mrs. Mattie Grant of Los Angeles, Mrs. R. Stillmon Smith, President of the Women's Auxiliary to the National Medical Association, Mrs. Gussella Anderson, Florence, South Carolina, Mrs. Katherine Wetmore, New Jersey, Mrs. Jean Scott, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, Mrs. Eloise Richardson, Annapolis, Maryland, Dr. Sadie M. Yancey, Washington, D. C., Mrs. Charlotte Moton Hubbard, Washington, D. C.

In her summary Dr. Woolridge. electrified the group with her brilliant analysis of the four main areas of thought in the workshop reports: (1) Cooperation in general effort and in relationship with other agencies; (2) A fine quality of self analysis and self appraisal. Dr. Woolridge said it seemed clear that we had; (a) examined our prejudices, faced them squarely; (b) examined our program critically and seriously; (c) examined our abilities and our hearts in relation to the job at hand. (3) The development of good human relations was a third theme which ran all through the several reports. The groups were concerned with getting along with peoples of other temperaments, other races, etc. She said mutual concern for the many psychological elements involved in the area of integration also came through the thread of the more general interest in human relations, i.e., the natural human reactions to threats of one's vested interests, one's economic and personal security and of general fears in this total connection. (4) Methods of technique in program building.

The convention group with Miss Patsy Graves as chairman of the Resolutions Committee ratified resolutions on Civil Rights, the United Nations, the Bricker Amendment, South Africa, the McCarran Act, Genocide, Juvenile Deliquency, Housing, Foster Home and Adoptive Care for Negro Children, Cooperation with Other Groups and on a reaffirmation of the Council's faith in our American form of government.

Spelled out in brief the Council will vigorously support efforts to eliminate every form of local segregation and will institute active educational programs and workshops aimed at the successful achievement of full integration in all areas.

The Council reaffirmed its faith in the United Nations; in its aims and objectives and pledged a more vigorous program of participation by its entire membership in activities which disseminate information about U.N. throughout the nation.

The Bricker Amendment was opposed by the Council.

In the resolution on South Africa the convention group went on record as strongly urging the United States to exercise its strongest efforts in the U.N. and through direct negotiations to convince the Union of South Africa that it should abandon apartheid and adopt policies consistent with principals of the U.N. and with the democratic aims asserted by the free world.

The McCarran Act was vigorously opposed by the group.

In its Housing resolution the Council restated its strong conviction in that adequate housing for all segments of the American population is a continuing need and pressing necessity.

The resolution on Our National Life read as follows:

"WHEREAS:"

"A prevailing atmosphere of anxiety, often erupting into hysteria, seems to grip our nation, creating dissension and spreading discord;"

BE IT RESOLVED:

"That the National Council of Negro Women reaffirms its faith in the United States of America; in its form of government; its Constitution; and in the principles of freedom and justice upon which this nation was founded."

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED:

"That we believe our greatest contribution to the nation at such a time is found in the words of our pledge that we will make a lasting contribution to all that is finest and best in America, so that her heritage of freedom and progress will be indefinitely enriched by the integration of all her people into the spiritual, economic, social, cultural, civic and political life of their country.

"To that aim, we rededicate ourselves believing that we find our greatest strength in the support of and communion with those who live their belief in the brotherhood of man, and the Fatherhood of God."

Other members of the resolutions Committee included Mrs. Edna McClellan, Attorney Margaret Hawthorne and Mrs. Corienne Morrow.

The Council formally adopted for its program emphasis for the ensuing year the Social Welfare Department of its program. This department is designed to stimulate and coordinate activities in the broad fields of education, housing, health, recreation, family living, rural welfare, child welfare and rehabilitation.

The Honorable Nelson A. Rockefeller, Under Secretary, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, addressed a large gathering of delegates and special guests on Thursday evening, November 12th at the traditional International Night Program, held in the Departmental Auditorium of the United States Department of Labor.

Dr. Dorothy B. Ferebee, retiring president, presided. Mr. Rockefeller said, "The emergence of the United States as a world power is one of the central facts of our time.... We are gradually becoming accustomed to the role of international leadership which is ours because of the productive strength which we attempt to carry to the best of our ability because of our sense of responsibility to ourselves and to others. Not so much has been said, however, of the hundred and one ways in which the free peoples of the world are working to nourish their spiritual strength....their everyday acceptance of the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of man."

Mr. Rockefeller further stated that, "These deeply held aspirations can be given vibrant meaning. In our own country especially --we have tried to translate our high ideals into practical realities."

Mr. Rockefeller was introduced by Mrs. Jane Morrow Spaulding, Assistant to the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. In her introduction Mrs. Spaulding pointed out the long hist ry of the Rockefeller family's interest in the progress of Negro population in our country. To this end a fund of some $59,000,000 has been granted to further education among the group.

Mr. Rockefeller spoke informally, at the beginning of his address, of his pleasure in working closely with Mrs. Spaulding, a National Officer of NCNW, in connection with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. He said he always considered it an honor to be on any platform with Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, Founder, President Emeritus of the NCNW.

On Friday, November 13, the convention was addressed by the Honorable James P. Mitchell, Secretary of Labor. Mr. Mitchell was introduced by Mrs. Roberta Church, Minority Groups Consultant to the Labor Department, Bureau of Employment Security.

Mr. Mitchell said at the opening of his address, "I am happy to meet with the National Council of Negro Women because I am able to report important progress in the field of equal opportunity for all citizens, a field in which you are most interested". Mr. Mitchell further stated that to date Negro citizens have been appointed under the Eisenhower Administration, to 22 important Federal posts; that he felt proud to say that the Labor Department is in the van of the crusade of the Administration for equal rights for all American citizens."

Secretary Mitchell spoke at some length about the President's new Government Contract Committee, and said his belief in this assignment is such that he feels singularly honored to represent the Department of Labor on the committee which is headed by Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

On Saturday morning of the convention the group was welcomed by the Honorable Sinclair Weeks, Secretary, United States Department of Commerce. Mr. Weeks delighted the group with his ready storehouse of real life New England stories and then spoke seriously of his concern that we increasingly follow the high set of standards on which our country was founded in our inter-relations with all the people of our country. Mr. Weeks said that agencies still following the practice of hiring Negro citizens as consultants on minority group problems are lagging far behind the trend which places people where they are best fitted to serve, without regard to racial heritage. Mr. Weeks pointed out the fact that the Commerce Department has abolished the position of Adviser of Negro Affairs and that Mr. E. Frederick Morrow, who introduced Secretary Weeks, to the group, is serving the Department as Adviser on Business Affairs.

Delegates from many sections of our country attended the three day convention. Prominent among those traveling from a distance were: Mrs. Mattie Grant, president of the Los Angeles Council, and Mrs. Azelea Jones of the Los Angeles Council; Mrs. Ruth March, president of the San Francisco Council; Mrs. Lucille Manley of the San Francisco Council, Mrs. Mary Gregory, formerly of Washington, D. C., and now of Berkeley, California. Attending from Texas were Mrs. Carter Wesley of Houston and Mrs. Pauline Watkins Campbell of Huntsville Council. Convention delegates welcomed the participation of Mrs. Leonora Mc Shine, Trindad, B.W.I., and the Honorable Miss Grace Augustin of St. Lucia, B.W.I.

RECEIVED
AUG 21 1950
Southern Regional Council

August 17, 1950

Mr. George S. Mitchell
Director of the Southern Regional Council
Wesley Memorial Building
Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

You probably have been receiving from NCALL for the past two months a bulletin or a newsletter or both. Through these publications the Council is trying to stimulate an active interest in the case of the migrant and his fellow-dispossessed - the sharecropper, the tenant and the subsistence family farmer. Together these groups represent over one-third of the low-income families in the United States.

The big question is what can be done for these people. No longer can we allow hundreds of thousands of farm workers to shift for themselves unprotected by minimum wage laws, unemployment compensation or social security. Nor can we allow a group of citizens neglected and discriminated by the communities in which they live to be used and then thrown aside.

Those who follow the crops have no roots in this rich country of ours. They are everywhere - in New York State, in California, in the south, in the southwest. They live like animals in rat-infested box cars, drink from filthy ditches by the side of the road. They are the homeless of America.

The situation has become so acute in many parts of the United States that the President has appointed a Commission to make a study of conditions among migrants and of the problems created by the migration of workers into this country.

The Council is doing something to help. It is working with church and welfare organizations, government agencies, labor unions and concerned citizens to alert local and national officials to the need for constructive legislation and a program for the farm worker. The Council serves as a focal point for discussion, exchange of information and planning effective coordination of programs and policies affecting farm labor.

The Council is putting on a membership drive. Your support is urgently needed in building a strong permanent organization. Become a supporting member now.

Very sincerely yours,

Veniette Caswell

The National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor

What it is and

What it does to help

America's Forgotten People

THE NATIONAL COUNCIL ON AGRICULTURAL LIFE AND LABOR

is a non-profit organization representing individuals and organizations seeking remedies for the desparate situation in which a majority of our farm workers—sharecroppers, tenants, migrants and marginal farmers—find themselves. It is concerned with those low-income farm groups which receive none of the rights and privileges accorded other American workers.

The Council is an outgrowth of the National Citizens Council for Migrant Labor set up in 1947 by a group of individuals and organizations interested in the problems of migrant workers in the United States. It is broader in scope than the Citizens Council and recognizes that the welfare of farm workers is closely related to the welfare of agriculture and our economy generally. It is interested in the development of a long-range farm program beneficial to all farm groups.

IT WORKS WITH

religious, welfare, educational, social service, consumer and labor organizations, government agencies and individual citizens. It is an informational and promotional agency encouraging legislative action by cooperating organizations and individuals. It is designed to facilitate cooperation in the field of agricultural labor problems by means of publications, information, meetings and conferences.

ORGANIZATIONS COOPERATING WITH NCALL

may work with other groups represented in NCALL and through NCALL. The Council does not take action in its own name. Those organizations cooperating with the Council are not bound by the Council in any way except in unity of purpose and goals.

THE AIM OF THE COUNCIL

"shall be that all people living and working in rural areas of our country shall participate equitably in the advantages of the American standard of living."

SPECIFIC ITEMS IN THE PROGRAM OF THE COUNCIL ARE:

Recruitment and Placement of agricultural workers

Farm laborers need work—farmers need workers. It is essential that the employer, the agricultural worker and federal and state agencies work to use this shifting labor force to the fullest.

The United States Employment Service is responsible for the recruitment and placement of farm labor. The Council believes that this service should remain in the USES and will resist efforts to return it to the Extension Service of the Department of Agriculture. Division of recruitment and placement of agricultural and industrial workers is expensive and unsound.

Greater effort should be made to transfer workers from agriculture to industry and back again as seasonal demands develop.

Labor Contractors and Transportation

Licensing and regulation of private employment agencies including labor contractors by state and federal laws. In addition, the Council is in favor of giving the Interstate Commerce Commission jurisdiction over private transportation of workers from state, to state, as well as regulation of interstate transportation of workers under State laws.

Extension of Minimum Wage Law to agricultural workers

Agricultural labor for the most part is unorganized. It is not now adequately protected by either federal or state wage laws. The Council favors the extension of the Fair Labor Standards Act to agricultural workers. In addition, it believes state laws should be adopted to provide for prompt and regular payment of wages in cash and for collection of unpaid wages.

Extension of workmen's compensation to agricultural workers

Agricultural workers are not, with one or two exceptions, eligible for workmen's compensation. The accident and death rates in agriculture are higher than in major industries. State workmen's compensation laws should be extended to farm workers and minimum premiums should be reduced so that they may have the protection of insurance covering small numbers of workers for short periods of employment.

Educational facilities extended and improved

At present, children of agricultural workers are denied the educational advantages which children of more settled parents enjoy. School attendance laws must be enforced and migratory children as well as resident farm youth should be admitted to local schools. In addition, the rural school system should be strengthened by federal aid to education.

Adequate housing

The insanitary and dangerous housing often furnished agricultural workers and their families constitutes one of the major problems of these workers. The rural nonfarm public housing program must be activated. The Housing Act of 1949 designates ten percent of all funds for low-rent public housing in rural areas.

As provided under the Housing Act of 1950 farm labor camps should be turned over to local housing authorities as soon as possible. The federal farm labor camp program should be extended and state laws requiring the licensing and regulation of private labor camps enacted.

Adequate health facilities

Preventive public health services should be extended to all rural counties. Agricultural workers including migrants should be allowed to benefit from increased federal grants-in-aid for all medical care.

Foreign Labor

The Council opposes the further importation of foreign agricultural labor at this time. It believes that there is sufficient native American labor available if wages, hours, working and living conditions are improved to attract the workers to the farms.

If foreign farm labor is needed, that need should be openly demonstrated through public hearings before the proper Congressional committees where all interested persons and organizations may be heard.

The Council believes that the primary reason for the importation of these workers is to secure cheap labor and undercut the domestic worker in his demand for a decent living wage.

The situation is aggravated by the illegal entry of thousands of Mexicans each year. The Council is interested in a strict enforcement of the immigration laws to prevent the continued residence in the United States of these illegal entrants and to prevent such illegal entries in the future.

A sizable segment of our population, through community and State neglect, has been robbed of so many normal American and human rights that it is almost unbelievable. Child labor, substandard living and a padlock against education have destroyed the rights of children and drastically disturbed the integrity of family life among migrant workers.

Estimates ranging from one to five million individuals comprise America's forgotten people of 1948, agricultural and industrial migrants. This equals the populations of from 4 to 12 of our 48 States.

Unorganized, unprotected by workmen's compensation laws in most States, ineligible for educational, health, or welfare benefits while following the elusive dollar during seasonal employment shifts, migrants frequently find maintenance of even a minimum standard of living an impossibility.

Dear Mrs. Weil,

Mr. Maurice Stone, as Chairman of the Nominating Committee, asked me in his letter of April 13 to accept nomination as a member of the Board of the NCALL. I am happy to do so.

The Southern Regional Council will be represented at the April 26-27 meeting by Mr. Albert Cotton, of Richmond, Va. He is currently preparing a pamphlet which the SRC hopes to get out soon, on appropriate revisions in the laws of the Southern States on farm land tenure. He used to work in the Office of the Solicitor of the USDA. Here are the blanks and the checks for his attentance.

I wish I could go, but we have a meeting of the Southern Sociological Society at the same time, here in Atlanta, and I am long promised to be present.

Every best wish,

SUGGESTIONS RE LEGISLATIVE POLICY OF NATIONAL COUNCIL ON AGRICULTURAL LIFE AND LABOR IN RELATION TO ITS MEMBER AGENCIES

Membership in the National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor is open to agencies and individuals "interested in the social, economic or cultural problems of agricultural life". It now has 17 or 18 national agency members representing varied fields - labor, education, church, social welfare and women's organizations - and is seeking additional agency memberships. These agencies differ widely in the aspects of the agricultural problem on which they are active, and in their individual programs for and their approaches to the problem.

These agencies (and individuals) are the N.C.A.L.L. They all have equal standing in the organization. To maintain their confidence, to secure the interest and support of their local affiliates, and to secure new agency memberships, it is essential that their diversities be recognized and respected; that they be not "pressured" to take action in which they do not care to participate; and that a procedure be worked out by which the Council can be an active functioning organization without implying the commitment of its cooperating groups to specific policies or legislation which their representatives may feel are outside their agency's field of activity, the area of their competence or their organizational authority.

The legislative policy of the NCALL is stated both positively and negatively in the Constitution:

(1) "It shall facilitate action by cooperating agencies and members; providing information on and promoting discussion of the issues involved". (In the discussion at the organizational meeting, it was agreed that the work "facilitate" should be broadly construed and the importance of preliminary work on strategy, drafting, etc., was recognized.)

(2) "It will limit its action on pending national, state or local legislation to providing information on such legislation to its membership."

In this setting, the following is suggested as a clarification of legislative policy:

(1) The Executive Secretary of the Council is authorized to confer with agencies and individuals and to participate in groups discussing strategy, bill drafting, etc., on any subject in line with the NCALL's statement of Program and Objectives. It should be made clear, both to the groups with which the Executive Secretary works in that capacity and to the member agencies of the NCALL, that she does not "represent" the Council in these discussions nor does her participation imply the support of its member agencies for the legislation concerned. Her participation is for the purpose of helping to shape and inform member agencies about legislation which some of them wish to support, and thereby facilitate their action.

(2) The Council shall not assume that member agencies will, or urge them to, take action on any specific legislation, but shall inform all members about the legislation, stressing the importance of suggested action by those who wish to be active on the specific subject at issue. This can be done in two ways:

(a) Directly by the Executive Secretary in communications to members.

(b) Indirectly by the Executive Secretary by sending to members a communication from an agency member which has a special interest in that legislation. The member agency's letter can be as "urgent" as it wishes.

(An example of this method is the attached letter from the New York Consumers League sent out by National Social Welfare Assembly. This method may sometimes be a saver of time and money, when an agency has material prepared in quantity and may even be willing to meet the mailing cost.)

(3) The Executive Secretary can facilitate action for agencies who wish to participate on any given piece of legislation by organizing discussion meetings for them, arranging for hearing, preparing briefs,etc. - but the name of the Council shall not be used on statements, at hearings, etc.

Dear Bob:

The entire basis of our unemployment insurance law is currently threatened by the Hughes-Brees bill now pending in Albany. If you or your organization have not already taken action to combat this measure, I want to urge strongly that you do so, for the bill is of vital concern to all in the welfare field.

Its main provisions are outlined in the enclosed Newsletter. It would deprive thousands of workers in New York State of the benefits to which they are now entitled, thereby throwing many of them back on relief. It would also undermine the financial basis of the program.

At present the bill, despite labor's all-out campaign against it, seems likely to pass. Public hearings have been refused. A real onslaught of protest from social welfare agencies, neighborhood houses, civic and church organizations, however, might well turn the tide. I cannot emphasize enough the importance of your joining in the effort to defeat this vicious piece of legislation.

Won't you please write or wire the Committee Chairman listed on page 2 of the Newsletter, today? Do what you can to get others to do likewise.

Sincerely yours,

A Statement Adopted by the Board of Directors on June 6, 1951

HISTORY OF STATEMENT

This statement, the by-laws, and the legislative policy are the three official documents adopted by NCALL at the time of its organization.

The original drafts of these documents were prepared by an organizing committee consisting of unofficial representatives of the following organizations:

Council for Social Action of the Congregational Christian Churches (now Council for Christian Social Action of the United Church of Christ)
Division of Home Missions National Council of Churches (formerly Home Missions Council)
National Board of the YWCA
National Catholic Rural Life Conference
National Child Labor Committee
National Sharecropper's Fund

The meetings of the organizing committee were held in New York City, in the offices of the National Child Labor Committee. During the organization process there was consultation in Washington with representatives of several organizations. Among these cooperating organizations were the National Farmers Union, the C.I.O, the United Automobile Workers and the Department of Rural Education of the NEA.

The organizing committee (and consulting Washington based representatives) included persons who had been active in one or both of two previous national inter-agency committees; i.e., an emergency committee to defend the Farm Security Administration and a committee to improve the conditions of migratory farm workers. Both of these inter-agency committees were made up of unofficial representatives of national organizations. The purpose in forming NCALL was to establish a movement which had the official backing of national organizations and therefore would have a strong foundation.

The choice of the name: "National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor" reflected the view of the organizing group that the new national council should have an inclusive interest in the democratic issues of land and people and of rural community life. The problems of hired farm labor were thought of as one aspect of the larger question. The name of the council and its statement of objectives and program express this broad intent.

The statement also indicates the organizers' wish that NCALL should play a positive role in bringing about action. The legislative policy adopted at the time of organization, states that NCALL would not speak in the name of individual member organizations, nor NCALL as a whole, nor put undue pressure on its members. However the charter members wished NCALL to become a positive force working through as many channels as possible. Paragraph 3 of the statement of objectives and program suggests some of these channels. NCALL's statement of its objectives and program, as finally adopted on June 6, 1951, had been:

Drafted by the organizing committee
Discussed at a meeting in New York City of representatives of a large number of organizations
Discussed with cooperating organizations in Washington

Dear Mrs. Weil:

I don't think that the proposed leaflet is quite up to NCALL's usual very high standards.

I can't put my finger on what I don't like. It's partly the heavy emphasis on migratory labor and the light emphasis on the family farmer.

Then there's the statement, "Agriculture cannot get along without the family farmer." One of our troubles is that so much of agriculture would like to get along without the family farm. Well, if we could be more positive in our support of the family farm.

Admittedly, the leaflet is propagandist--it should be--but people weary a little of such a phrase as "slave wages." And though somebody might find an isolated instance of 25¢ a day cash wages, surely it is pretty rare?

Most of it is quite all right, but I do wish there could be a little more of constructive policy. That's the real thing that NCALL is good for.

Sincerely,

George S. Mitchell
Executive Director

Dear Board Member:

Enclosed is a provisional leaflet which I am sending to you for your comments. The leaflet will printed in as bold type as the number of words will allow. The picture on the front will be of a poor farm family or migrant family. It will probably be in black and white. I have considered using deep red headings and black print on white paper. I may have to eliminate some words for the final printing.

Please send me your comments so that I will receive them before or on Sunday, October 21. I hope to get the leaflet printed and out by November 1.

The leaflet will be accompanied by a contribution blank, an appeal letter and a stamped envelope.

I would appreciate an early reply.

Very sincerely yours,

The National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor is a non-profit, non-affiliated council of national and regional agencies, and of individuals, seeking to improve the living and working conditions of low-income groups in our farm and rural population.

WOULD YOU GIVE THEM A CHANCE IF YOU KNEW THE FACTS?

(Picture of Migrant Family)

THE NATIONAL COUNCIL ON AGRICULTURAL LIFE AND LABOR
1751 N Street, N.W., Washington, D.C.

HERE ARE THE FACTS

Agriculture cannot get along without seasonal and migrant labor.

There are about 1,200,000 migratory farm workers not including non-working members of the family. Their average income is less than $980 a year.

These farm workers are Mexicans and Americans of Mexican descent in the Midwest, Southwest and on the Pacific Coast. American Negroes are found in the Midwest as well as the East. Anglo-Americans are an important group from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

President Truman believed the plight of these agricultural workers so desperate that he appointed a five-man commission to investigate conditions and make recommendations for legislation.

Agriculture cannot get along without the family farmer.

Over one-third of all farm families or a total of 2,000,000 are underemployed. The total income of these families is under $2,000 a year. Full employment of these workers would add the equivalent of 1,600,000 workers to our total working force.

The Nationwide character of rural underemployment prompted an investigation by a Senate Committee and a Report on Underemployment of Rural Families.

FARM WORKERS NEED PROTECTION TOO

Why are American farm workers not always "able, willing and qualified" to work?

There is no state or national minimum wage in agriculture.

Workers are not ordinarily eligible for unemployment compensation, workmen's compensation, or old age insurance.

They are excluded from state and federal labor relations laws.

They must compete with foreign labor willing to work for slave wages under oppressive conditions.

They must compete with illegal entrants from Mexico who are used by the industrialized farms in the Southwest and on the West Coast for as little as 25¢ a day.

They and their families live in every conceivable type of housing--tents, chicken coops, barns, warehouses and shelters.

They are often denied the right to benefit from health and educational facilities in the community in which they are working.

WORKER-EMPLOYER RELATIONS IN AGRICULTURE AFFECT THE FAMILY FARMER

Many family farmers must supplement their incomes with work as laborers.

They must compete with foreign workers.

Just as the steel industry established "captive mines" to get their coal, so the processors and canners run "captive farms" for vegetable growing. To get labor they turn to the Government to get them foreign workers.

The family farmer's products must compete with the products of large-scale farmers with subsidized labor.

It is inconsistent for the Government to encourage family farming and at the same time encourage and direct a program for importing cheap foreign labor.

ONE ORGANIZATION SEEKING A SOLUTION

NCALL is a non-profit organization working with religious, welfare, educational, social service, consumer, labor and farm organizations and government agencies and individual citizens. It is an informational and promotional agency encouraging legislative action by cooperating organizations and individuals.

The Council does not take action in its own name.

NCALL offers the following services:

- NEWSLETTER during sessions of Congress.
- MONTHLY BULLETIN dealing with basic problems connected with farm programs, housing, health, education, etc., for farm workers.
- MEMORANDA on current legislative activities and recommendations for action.
- COOPERATIVE MEETINGS WITH INDIVIDUALS AND INTERESTED ORGANIZATIONS at the national level
- INFORMATIONAL SERVICE TO MEMBERS
- NATIONAL CONFERENCE ON AGRICULTURAL WELFARE.

PROGRAM OF THE COUNCIL

NCALL presents information and urges action on:

- Questions of economic and social import affecting rural areas.
- The social welfare of agricultural workers and their families.
- Improvement of working conditions and the organization of agricultural labor.
- Protection of free speech and civil liberties for agricultural workers and in rural areas generally.

WHAT YOU CAN DO

Get the facts by joining NCALL or send a contribution toward its work.

Take an interest in legislation affecting agriculture and the welfare of its workers.

RECEIVED
OCT 22 1951
Southern Regional Council

Mr. George S. Mitchell
Southern Regional Council
Room 432, 63 Auburne Avenue, S. E.
Atlanta, Georgia

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

For some time the Board of Directors of the National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor, as well as many other organizations and individuals, has been concerned about the relatively small audience which has been reached by the report of the President's Commission on Migratory Labor. As a result of this limited distribution, many thousands of community leaders who should be aware of the migratory farm labor problem are not.

In order to correct this situation, an excellent proposal has been made by the Public Affairs Committee to the National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor. It was decided at a meeting of the executive board of the Public Affairs Committee on October 2, that the major factors limiting the utilization of the Commission's report were its size, its cost and the lack of existing distribution channels. It was then decided that a Public Affairs Pamphlet based on the report would serve a very useful purpose. Such a pamphlet has been proposed to the Council.

The Public Affairs Committee has indicated that this pamphlet would be included in its immediate schedule, providing those organizations cooperating with the Council and other organizations interested in migratory labor can show a need for a minimum of 25,000 copies.

While individual pamphlets cost 25¢, a joint order for 25,000 copies placed by this office on behalf of all our members and other organizations would be filled at 10¢ per copy. The name of the National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor would appear on the cover of the pamphlet and participating organizations purchasing 1,000 or more copies would be listed on the inside cover. Arrangements could also be made to give an individual imprint to each organization distributing copies to its own members, so as to further identify the pamphlet with that organization.

The National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor is a non-profit, non-affiliated council of national and regional agencies, and of individuals, seeking to improve the living and working conditions of low-income groups in our farm and rural population.

Since the Public Affairs Committee, a non-profit, educational and unsubsidized organization, must achieve an average pamphlet distribution of 100,000 copies, they will undertake to distribute the remaining 75,000 copies not only to their subscription list but to schools, book-stores, clubs, and individuals. The pamphlet, of course, will receive wide promotion through the press.

Would you please let me know as soon as possible what proportion of the 25,000 copies your organization can utilize and pay for at 10¢ a copy. If the project is to be done, we would like to aim at a publication date at the end of January so as to be able to use the pamphlet in legislative work.

I am enclosing a copy of the Public Affairs Pamphlet, The Negro in America, based on the Gunnar-Myrdal report, as an indication of how effective and useful such a shortened version of an extensive report can be.

Very sincerely yours,

Dear Board Member:

Some comments on the provisional leaflet recently sent out were favorable and others were not. I felt obliged, because of the unfavorable comments, to write another leaflet with a different approach to the subject. It gives more information about the Council and its program and eliminates, to a great extent, the so-called "emotional" appeal material.

As indicated in my last letter, the leaflet will be printed in as bold type as the number of words will allow. I have considered using deep red headings and black print on white paper. I may use another picture in addition to the one on the face of the pamphlet.

Would you please send me your comments on the enclosed leaflet by November 4.

I would also like to report at this time that Paul Sifton and Mrs. Louis Billings have consented to be members of the Board of Directors. Another very good bit of news is the unanimous vote of the Board of Directors of the General Alliance of Unitarian and Other Liberal Christian Women that the Alliance become a cooperating member of the Council. Mr. Sifton and Mrs. Billings' names will now appear on the leaflet and the Alliance will be listed as a cooperating organization.

WORKING TOGETHER

The National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor is a national agency for rural welfare.

* It is composed of organizational and individual members concerned with improved living and working conditions for low-income farm groups.

* It is a service organization, educating and guiding.

* NCALL does not take action in its own name but encourages and facilitates action by means of publications, meetings and conferences.

FOR IMPROVED RURAL LIVING

The underprivileged of agriculture need an intelligent and sympathetic program which will give them a share in the advantages of the American standard of living.

The need for such a program has been emphasized by two recent reports: the Joint Congressional Committee Report entitled Underemployment in Rural Families and the Report of the President's Commission on Migratory Labor entitled Migratory Labor in American Agriculture.

These reports show a serious pattern of persistent poverty among certain groups in agriculture—the underemployed family farmer and the seasonal and migratory farm worker.

The interests of both groups are neglected in defense plans, manpower mobilization plans and housing, health and educational facilities.

They are American citizens without bargaining power.

The National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor offers a long-range farm program beneficial to these groups and to the American people.

THE COUNCIL'S PROGRAM FOR:

THE FAMILY FARMER

Support and strengthen the efficient family farm in the United States.

Stabilization of farm prices with sufficient flexibility to meet changing levels of productivity and consumption.

Democratic and intelligent resource development, utilization and conservation. Included would be watershed protection, river valley development and conservation programs.

Extension of public health services to all rural counties.

State and federal aid to make available equal educational opportunities to rural children.

Aid to less developed rural areas through rural electrification and telephone service, better roads and schools. Industrial development in such areas to augment income.

Improved utilization of the underemployed in rural areas.

Resistance to monopolistic trends in agriculture through regulation, acreage allotments and other methods.

THE AGRICULTURAL WORKER

Inclusion of all agricultural workers under social security and workmen's compensation laws.

Extension of minimum wage to agricultural workers.

Effective recruitment and placement program.

The right to organize and bargain collectively.

Inclusion of housing for agricultural workers in public housing programs.

Regulation of transportation and private labor camps for farm workers.

Prevention of child labor in industrialized agriculture.

Restriction of importation of foreign workers to cases where the need is openly demonstrated at public meetings and domestic labor absolutely unavailable.

Strict enforcement of immigration laws to prevent illegal entry of foreign agricultural workers.

Protection of free speech and civil liberties for agricultural workers and in rural areas generally.

THE COUNCIL IN ACTION

MONTHLY BULLETINS offering the latest information on publications, surveys, legislation and organizational activities in the field of agricultural life and labor.

AGRICULTURAL NEWSLETTERS AND MEMORANDA on legislation vital to agriculture generally and to the low-income groups in agriculture specifically. The memoranda offer advice on appropriate action to take on legislative matters.

MEETINGS giving guidance to and facilitating action on local and national issues involving legislative, administrative and informational problems.

CONFERENCES with member and non-member organizations and government agencies. Such conferences have been held on Social Security, housing for rural areas, child labor, farm labor standards and the importation of foreign farm labor.

RESEARCH on state and national programs for the underprivileged in agriculture.

NATIONAL CONFERENCE on agricultural welfare.

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

I have good news. Varden Fuller's manuscript for a Public Affairs Pamphlet based on the report of the President's Commission on Migratory Labor has been received. The Public Affairs Committee has accepted it for immediate publication.

We have your pre-publication order for 200 copies at 10¢ a copy. Under separate cover, I am mailing you a mimeographed copy of Mr. Fuller's manuscript. Your suggestions about it will be welcomed and can be used if they are received by November 30th.

The executive of one national organization writes, "May I say that I think it is a superb piece of work. It has exceeded my expectations and they were high. Its authenticity and factual basis are obvious and the writing ability of Mr. Fuller is equally obvious. It is an unusual combination and makes for an extremely useful publication."

If you wish to increase your order, will you please let me know? Also, would you like an imprint of your organization's name inside the front cover? This is possible for orders of 1000 or over. The cost is $10.00* for the imprint.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Miss Herring:

I had already picked out from the minutes of the last Board meeting April 22 and 23 as the dates for the next conference, in Washington. I will try my best to be there.

I heard from somewhere that high Republican brains were at work on the idea of trotting out Farm Security's kind of program. That will be politically popular and would step up production from smaller farmers. It would take some re-organizing of Farmers Home Administration!

It would be good if you could draw together a special group of Southern people at the annual conference. H. L. Mitchell could tell you some. The Rural Life Council at Tuskegee would be a good nucleus also.

The problem in the South is whether, in the next few years, we can, through increasing farm ownership, jump to a tolerably democratic pattern in the old plantation belt. All signs are that we can't. It looks as though the Southern Negro in the plantation area is in for decades as a semi-skilled laborer, working the expensive machinery of large places owned exclusively by white people. I had been hoping until lately that some way could be found to escape that stage and push over into widespread land ownership. Now I am about to despair. If we can't jump over into ownership, then the thing, obviously, to do is to unlimber mechanical vocational education, which will at least enable hoe hands, or the sons of hoe hands, to jump up into tractor hands. Of course, if we come to the tractor hand business, behind that looms the problem of union organization for them.

Sincerely,

George S. Mitchell

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

The Board meeting in New York, February 9th, was most interesting and some decisions were made about our Annual Conference. The dates will be April 22 and 23, in Washington.

The Conference this year will be focused on very specific Congressional issues which are undergoing public discussion because of the change in administration.

We will be working on the question of government programs for low income farmers, the probability being that we will exercise considerable initiative in trying to bring about a more adequate program.

As I have discussed matters with our member organizations, I have found considerable confusion as to what we are trying to do with low income farmers. Until goals are plain, it is a little hard to know what means to recommend. Another problem is that regional differences are so great that it is hard to talk productively in generalized national terms.

Do you think it would be profitable for us to have a work group in the Conference on the subject of work in the south and, if so, what kind of a group do you believe it should be? We could invite anybody who could help and we could work ahead of time preparing outlines which would insure our getting down to business. Your advice on this question would be greatly appreciated.

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

Thank you for your interesting letter of February 19th. I am glad to have your approval of the idea of having a work group at the conference made up of people who are informed about the south.

What do you think of our inviting people from two or three foundations? I can see that if we had good luck and could get the right people together, that there might be interesting by-products.

There is interest in the NCALL agencies in the idea of making a fresh approach to credit and other services for low income farmers and there is no reason why we should wait to have the Republicans dream up something. We could do a little dreaming ourselves so as to be ready for the Republicans.

May I count on you to guide me in setting up this group. I shall be grateful for suggestions, both as to issues and persons to be invited. I will follow up the suggestions which you included in your recent letter.

COMMENTS MADE BY GEORGE S. MITCHELL AT NCALL MEETING APRIL 22, 1953

George Mitchell said that attention ought to be fixed on the problem of producing in the rural South, and more particularly in the old plantation belt of the South, an economic base for democratic practices. We all used to suppose that the remedy was a far wider distribution of land ownership. And many of us have put in hard years trying to get that. But it is hard to see now how that can be attained on any wide scale. You can't any longer set up ex-tenants as farm owners on $6,000 or $12,000. It takes $25,000 or $40,000. And it is merely delusion to suppose that such heavy capitalization can be forthcoming through any public program that could reach significant numbers. Neither, I regretted to say, does it seem probable that the multiple skills needed to conduct a farming operation on this new scale will be taught any time soon to most of the people caught still in the dependency of tenancy.

So, he said, it looked to him as though the future for twenty or thirty years would continue the present pattern of large land ownership. And so many of the work people as remain on the land will be skilled or semi-skilled, with a level of living quite a lot higher than what we have associated in the past with Southern farm work. Such people would have a chance to organize and to express themselves as fully participating citizens. They would be an alternative rural voice to the pressures now so strong in our society from the bigger land-owning groups. And, conceivably, they could make friends with organized labor in the cities and towns. And by one device and another, they could get quite nice homes and scraps of land. And some would climb on up. Still, even at its most favorable, that is a picture not bright in comparison with the earlier notion of independent family farms for nearly everybody. And the world has yet to show many examples of successful organization of farm labor groups. And he didn't suppose that they could be free truly unless they were organized.

Finally, he suggested a middle proposal, which needn't cost any money and which could do quite a lot of good quickly. He said the system under which farm land is leased in most of the South is heathen. He didn't know of any single civilized country that permitted its farms to be rented out on unwritten annual leases with no arrangements for compensation for improvements or for damages. Scandinavia abandoned it long ago. So did England, so did Ireland, so did France. He knew the historical circumstances that had fastened our system into the South, where an illiterate work force got back into earning through the sharecropper contract. But nowadays people can read. And the land ought not to suffer any longer from the destructiveness of people who rent it a year at a time. Neither should tenants move or have to move as often as they still do. And as we switch to cattle and dairy cows, how does the tenant on an annual oral lease get into that business? Can he put up a $15,000 barn on the other man's land when he might get thrown off any old year? If we could protect land tenure by statutory leases or by a fast-moving program of voluntary long-term leases, we would open opportunity for many more small people to climb up into security and equal citizenship.

Dear Dr. Mitchell -

My secretary & her husband are taking a trip to Niagara Falls postponed for 25 years — hence longhand inflicted on you.

I have touched base with Dr. Dawson & written Dr. Neal & Dr. Roberts as asked them for the "after thoughts" described in the enclosed carbon.

Would you be willing to give me a few succinct 64 issues plus proposals for action? I would be most grateful. Would you include what you said about unwritten contracts?

Did you happen to hear the British agricultural attaché day in the afternoon - that friends were as well off as land lords in Britain because of good or bad luck "Ka Times".

I haven't the minutes yet - one stenotypist was so terrified by my reporting her that she has not been heard from since.

The Southern evening aroused a tremendous amount of interest. Each person I see comments on it - so I hope we can pin the evening down to a few proposals which we can get incorporated in the policies and programs of our member organizations.

TO: Those who Helped with the NCALL Conference

FROM: Elizabeth Herring

This appeal to you for more help goes to you withapologies for hunt and punch typing.

I am in the throes of trying to write a report of the conference that will be of some use to our member organizations. My present plan is to write a fairly brief summary of what took place and to accompany this with a sec tion known as"afterthoughts ". This will contain a few paragraphs from each of a selected list of leaders and delegates as to what they think the main learnings are from each session as to what should be done.

NCALL is a clearing house organization. As such it cannot adopt a social platform and program of action in its own name. It has an obligation however to pass on to its member organizations in as sharp a form as possible what some of the most thoughtful people think should be done about the various problems which concern us. This is where we need your help. The practical application of the conference discussions is more likely to happen if the issues and proposals are set down in as sharp a form as possible.

Could you find time by May 22 or sooner to write me a few parapgraphs about the topic which I am attaching to this note, and let me know at the same time whether I can quote you?

Thank you again for the help you have already given us.

Dear D. Mitchell —

This letter is about an urgent legislative issue. It is a curious urgency because it is hard to locate the enemy.

The gist of the matter is that a determined effort is being made to nullify the 160 acre water limitation provision of the National Reclamation Act. A statement is enclosed of the meaning of that fact for migratory agricultural workers and family farmers.

Washington is now having a visitation of the seventeen year locusts. They appear almost any where. So do the bills designed to do away with the 160 acre water limitation.

Because the bills are so numerous, it is not effective to concentrate on opposing one bill, at least at this time. (See enclosed statement.)

One thing will help at this time, i.e., a letter to the Chairman of the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs: Representative A. L. Miller, of Nebraska, asking for an opportunity to be heard when any bill is under consideration which deals with the 160 acre water limitation issue.

I need to know also which of our member organizations wish to be kept informed when action on their part will help.

Will you please let me know on the enclosed post card? The NCALL office will be closed most of the summer, but Mrs. Veniette Weil and I will keep track of what is happening to the 160 acre limitation issue until Congress closes and information will be sent to you as soon as action is indicated on any particular bill.

Sincerely yours,

Elizabeth B. Herring

SOME QUESTIONS OFTEN ASKED ABOUT THE MERITS OF THE 160 ACRE LIMITATION.

I. Are there any reasons for modifying the 160 acre limitation?

In a few cases special conditions exist, such as high altitude and short growing season which condition the type of crop that can be grown and the acreage needed to make a living. Exceptions for real reasons should be defined by a task force of agricultural economists and not by political pressures. Public reports, public hearings and public reasons are necessary to safeguard the public interest.

II. If a man owns 2000 acres more or less of dry land, why is it fair to let him have water for only 160 acres of it?

These are some of the reasons:

1. Water brought to dry land at public expense tremendously increases the value of that land. Since the taxpayers money is responsible for so large a share of the increased valuation, it would be unfair for the owner of the large tract to get the full increment of value. To quote from an engineer --

> "Irrigation water when made available to arid or semi-arid lands greatly enhances the value of the land. For example, around Yakima, Washington, dry land can be purchased at prices ranging from $10 to $30 per acre, while land of similar quality which is under irrigation is selling at an average of $250 per acre. Part of this difference in value is due to the improvements, such as houses and fences which have been added by the landowner, but most of the difference is due to increased productivity due to irrigation. In Nebraska dry farmed wheat land can be purchased at from $30 to $50 per acre, while land of similar quality without buildings, which is irrigated, is selling at $200 per acre or better. On the Gila Project in Arizona, raw undeveloped land sold during 1951 and 1952 at an average of $97 per acre while similar quality land which has been irrigated sold at an average of $330 per acre. Allowing for improvements made by the farmer, the increased value due to irrigation was calculated at $245."

2. It was the intention of the Reclamation Act of 1902 to furnish water to the public land entryman and the private landowners on the same basis, i.e., an acreage sufficient to support a family. For this reason the 160 acre irrigable limitation for one private landowner was so incorporated in the act.

III. What part of the cost of a reclamation project is a public expense and what part is paid for by the water users?

The costs of construction are divided between the government and the water users. Items in the construction plan which affect the nation and not the individual area with respect to irrigation only, such as flood prevention or navigation, are paid for by the government.

The irrigation charges on many of the multi-purpose projects are considerably reduced by reason of the application of power revenues to such irrigation charges.

The water users pay for the balance of construction costs on a long term plan.

Construction is only a part of the cost of reclamation projects. Preliminary investigations to determine the feasibility of a project and general administrative expenses of the Reclamation Bureau are paid for by the government.

If a Reclamation project is found feasible and subsequently constructed, the costs of the investigation are included in the costs of the project which are repaid to the U. S. by the water users.

Operation and maintenance costs of irrigation are paid for by the water users.

IV. Why are Reclamation projects justifiable if they are not completely paid for by the water users?

1. National security requires full availability of our national resources.

2. Most reclamation projects contribute to general prosperity through "multi-purpose" operations - Flood prevention, navigation, soil conservation and water shed management are involved, as well as immediate farming operations.

3. The Reclamation Bureau considers Basin development in deciding on its projects. Privately financed projects built on a case by case plan are inefficient because they do not take into account the interdependence of a total Basin. Water knows no state lines.

CURRENT ATTACKS ON THE 160 ACRE WATER LIMITATION PROVISIONS OF THE NATIONAL RECLAMATION ACT OF 1902

At the recent Annual Conference of the National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor, a speaker told of her efforts in behalf of migrant children in several Southwestern areas. In one she said, "The county is almost entirely owned by one family. About 1500 residents live in an ill defined community at the center of the county. There are about 5000 migrants: Negroes, Texas-Mexicans and Southern whites." Of another area she said, "At the migrant reception center outside town, 40,000 people each fall stayed over night in open stalls with four outdoor toilets for all."

WHAT DOES THE RECLAMATION ACT HAVE TO DO WITH SUCH SITUATIONS?

> "It has been known for generations that a sharply class-stratified rural society, landless and migratory laborers, limited opportunities for business and professional people, and a weak state of community-mindedness frequently accompany large landholdings. A cardinal tenet of American public policy for 150 years, since the Nation began to dispose of the public domain in the early 1800's, has been to prevent such situations. The Pre-emption Act of 1841, the Homestead Act of 1862 signed by Abraham Lincoln, and the National Reclamation act of 1902 signed by Theodore Roosevelt are the great historic monuments that embody this public policy."

The paragraph above is quoted from Dr. Paul S. Taylor of the University of California. Dr. Taylor adds:

> "At the beginning of the great era of Conservation, Theodore Roosevelt created acreage water limitation as the device to favor the family farm on federally-irrigated lands, to limit speculation, and to prevent monopoly of federally-developed waters. The National Reclamation Act of 1902 limited water rights for private landholding beneficiaries to an amount adequate for no more than 160 acres of each holding."

The Reclamation Act does not tell a man how much land he may own. It does say that when dry land is irrigated at public expense, one person may have only that amount of water sufficient to irrigate 160 acres. (That is actually a good sized piece of land for the intensive cultivation which goes with irrigation.)

WHY THE PRESENT CRISIS?

In times past Congress has defeated the numerous efforts to repeal the principle of acreage limitation.

Holders of large tracts began almost at once, after passage of the Act in 1902, to try to escape the acreage water limitation. Congress has reaffirmed it at least a dozen times, under presidents of both major parties.

WHY THE PRESENT CRISIS? (Continued)

But will the present Congress do likewise? Holders of excess land seem to regard the present Congress more hopefully. Their representatives have introduced several bills designed to do away with acreage water limitation in a piece meal way. The procedure with these bills has been characterized by avoidance of publicity; either very quiet hearings or none.

The Secretary of the Interior has not committed himself publicly. The Bureau of Reclamation has been without a head.

RECENT EXPERIENCES OF NCALL WITH THE ISSUE.

One of the bills mentioned, HR 2267, would have provided so many exemptions from acreage water limitation as to have nullified the law.

On the morning of April 20, NCALL discovered that hearings were being held on the bill. A representative of a member organization went to Capitol Hill and discovered that the only people testifying were two people who favored the bill. NCALL reported to the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs (sub-committee on Irrigation and Reclamation) that several of its member organizations were interested and wished to testify. The Clerk of the Committee assured us and other interested organizations that a hearing would be held when opponents could testify.

Nothing more has been heard from this bill to date, but suddenly one day NCALL heard that HR 2235 to authorize the building of the Santa Maria project, California, had been reported out of committee with a rider giving exemption from acreage limitation. The committee held no public hearings, nor did it wait for the customary advisory opinion from the Department of Interior. The role of the Committee and of the Department in this avoidance of standard procedure cannot be known accurately by NCALL.

HR 2235 has not reached the floor of the House yet. It is said that now, after reporting the bill out of Committee, the Committee is waiting for the opinion of the Department of Interior.

Whatever happens to these particular bills (and others such as HR 4721, Owl Creek-Missouri Basin, and HR 5250, Heart Division-Missouri Basin), it is clear that holders of excess land have adopted the tactic of trying to slip individual project exemptions through as noiselessly as possible, knowing that the general policy cannot survive such exemptions.

Dear Dr. Mitchell:

Shirley Greene tells me that you made a most interesting speech at Fisk last summer on the stake of labor in the family farm issue.

Is that speech in a form that could be passed on? I would be grateful for it. In the next session of Congress it is going to be very important for farm and labor groups to be clear about the central issues.

The suggestion has been made also that this might be an appropriate subject for our next annual conference.

If the speech is not available in a complete form, would it be too much trouble to give me a digest of the main items?

Sincerely yours,

Elizabeth B. Herring

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

I am writing to ask if the Southern Regional Council would like to become an organizational member of the National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor.

You now serve in a personal capacity as a Member at Large on the Board of Directors, but the Southern Regional Council as such is not represented.

We are trying to build up our organizational memberships, and hope that we may enroll your organization since its interests are so closely allied to those of the NCALL.

I believe you know that the membership fee is $25 a year, and is a good investment!

The next meeting of the Board of Directors is on December 2 and I would be happy to present the name of the Southern Regional Council at that time. Perhaps you will be there to vote on your own application!

Sincerely yours,

Research Project on Education of Migrant Children

NCALL

Minutes of a Meeting of the Research Project Board - Dec. 1, 1953

Washington, D. C.

1. Those present were Chairman Howard Dawson, Amber Warburton, Gertrude Zimand, Monica Owen (for Edith Lowry) and Project Director, Shirley Greene. Also present by invitation were Elizabeth Herring and Virginia Weston.

2. The Project Director made an oral progress report which covered work done to date on analysis and write-up of field research findings, re-visits to the Florida and Virginia study centers for reporting and discussions with the National Sharecropper Fund and others looking toward a follow-up demonstration project in Palm Beach County, Florida and Northampton County, Virginia.

3. The Project Director further submitted a financial statement covering the seventeen months of the Project from its inception to Nov. 30, 1953. This report showed expenditures to Nov. 30 of $17,744.81 from a total budget of $20,604.73. It is the Director's estimate that when all other expenses of the field research are paid, there will remain a sum of $1500 to $2000 available toward the costs of publication of our report and its dissemination.

4. The bill from the Dept. of Social Science at Fisk University of $977 for tabulation of information was presented together with a letter which expressed the willingness of Fisk to scale this bill downward since it was higher than an original estimate for this service. In view of Mr. Greene's explanation that the extra cost was due to the fact that we asked for a good deal more cross-tabulation than had been anticipated, the Board voted to pay the full bill of $977 with appreciation to Fisk University for its fine cooperation and its generous attitude in regard to the costs.

5. The Board voted to instruct its chairman to write a letter to Florida State University at Tallahassee expressing our deep appreciation to the University for its substantial assistance to this Project through the allowance of funds from a research grant and the allocation of a considerable block of time of Dr. Hazen A. Curtis, Professor of Education, to direct a pupil testing program in Palm Beach County.

6. A lengthy discussion centered around the launching of a demonstration research project to follow up our field research project. In view of the grant of $10,000 recently received by NCALL from The Doris Duke Foundation for research on migrant education and of the expressed willingness of the National Sharecropper fund to join forces with the Project Board with a substantial contribution to such a project, it was the consensus of the Board that such a demonstration project should be undertaken. Subject to the working out of details, it was generally agreed that such a project should center around the employment of a specialist in migrant education attached to state or county school staffs working with administrators, teachers and communities toward the implementation of action programs along the lines indicated by the conclusions and recommendations of our field study; that it should be contemplated as no less than a three-year project; and that, assuming approval by the appropriate state and local school authorities, such project should be located in the east coast areas covered by our field study, i.e. Florida and Virginia with particular focus in Palm Beach County, Florida, and Northampton County, Virginia.

7. To implement this consensus, the Board took the following actions:

a. Voted to recommend to the Board of Directors of NCALL that they authorize the continuation of the National Research Project Board; that they inquire of each of the six co-sponsoring agencies as to whether they wish to continue to act as co-sponsors for purposes of such a demonstration project and if so by what individual they with to be represented on the Project Board; and that the Directors of NCALL authorize the Project Board to enlarge itself by the addition of representatives of other NCALL member organizations as may seem desirable in the light of this new phase of the project and in the light of specific contributions which such member organizations may be in position to make to the Project.

b. Voted to instruct the chairman of the Project Board to write a letter to the Doris Duke Foundation expressing our appreciation for their grant of $10,000 and describing in general terms our plan and intention to use this money for a demonstration project in migrant education; further that this letter specify our intention that this demonstration project shall constitute a follow-up and implementation of the field research already done and our purpose that the experiences and findings of the demonstration project shall ultimately be written up so as to constitute an integral part of the over-all research product of this project in migrant education.

c. Voted to recommend to the Board of Directors of NCALL that they instruct their Executive Secretary again to seek full tax-exempt status for NCALL so that its treasury may become the treasury for this demonstration project and for that purpose accept contributions from individuals and organizations who may wish to make such contributions with tax exemption.

d. Voted to express the profound appreciation of the Project Board to the Committee for Relief and Reconstruction of the Congregational Christian Churches for the two annual grants of $10,000 each which have made this field research project financially possible; and to request of them a grant of $5000 in 1954 to supplement the Doris Duke grant for purposes of financing the proposed demonstration project.

e. Voted to request the National Farmers Union to permit Rev. Shirley E. Greene to devote sufficient time, after Jan. 1, 1954, to this project a) to complete the publication of the reports of the field research and b) to direct the transition from the field research to the action phase of our Project. (It was the understanding that, the National Farmers Union willing, Mr. Greene would not receive salary from the Project Board for these services, but would be reimbursed for out-of-pocket expenses.)

f. Voted to leave such money as remains of the original project budget on Dec. 31, 1953 in the hands of the Council for Social Action to be drawn upon as needed by the Project Board for purposes of publication and dissemination of the reports of the field research project.

8. The other major discussion at this meeting centered around the publication of the findings of the field research project. There was general agreement that three publications are needed:

a. A full report, probably mimeographed in 1000 copies, suitable for use by state and county school authorities, teachers who are grappling with the migrant problem, graduate students, national administrative officials who have to deal with various phases of this problem, and the like.

b. A popularized and abbreviated version, printed, of perhaps the length of the typical Public Affairs Com. pamphlet designed for reading by teachers, P.T.A. members, church groups and other concerned citizens. Here the emphasis would be on action implications of the findings. What can the concerned citizen do?

c. A very brief leaflet-type publication which will carry the barest high-lights of the research findings and advertisement of the larger publications.

9. Numerous other suggestions and recommendations were made and noted by the Project Director regarding the size and composition of these several publications.

New York City

February 26, 1954

The Annual Meeting of the Board of Directors of NCALL was held on Friday, February 26, 1954 in the office of the Division of Home Missions of the National Council of Churches, 257-4th Avenue, New York City.

Those present were: Shirley Greene, Chairman, Howard Dawson, Treasurer, Gertrude Folks Zimand, Secretary, Miss Bennett, Miss Briesmeister, Mr. Fleischman, Mr. Hudgens, Dr. Landis, Miss Lowry, Mr. Norman, Miss Raeback and Mrs. Warburton.

The Minutes of the meeting of the Board of Directors of December 2, 1953, which had been mailed to all members, were approved without reading.

The Minutes of the meeting of the Executive Committee held on February 1, 1954, which had been mailed to members of the Executive Committee, were read and approved.

REPORT OF THE MEMBERSHIP COMMITTEE

Mrs. Zimand reported for the Membership Committee that the National Council of Jewish Women had accepted an invitation to apply for membership. IT WAS VOTED that the National Council of Jewish Women be elected an organizational member.

Mr. Greene reported that the National Lutheran Council had expressed a desire to withdraw as an organizational member, but he is to confer with Rev. E. W. Mueller about this decision.

TREASURER'S REPORT

Dr. Dawson presented the Treasurer's Report for the calendar year 1953 and the report for the month of January, 1954. IT WAS VOTED that these reports be accepted. A copy of the Treasurer's Report is attached.* Discussion of methods of increasing financial support was postponed until later in the meeting.

*Sent separately by Miss Herring.

REPORT OF THE RESEARCH PROJECT BOARD

Mr. Greene reported for the Research Project Board with regard to:

1. Plans for publication and distribution of the Report in two forms - the full report to be mimeographed or printed with the number and form determined by receipt of advance orders and a condensed report to be published in the May issue of Social Action published by the Council for Social Action of the Congregational Christian Churches.

2. A two or three year pilot project to begin July 1 under funds received, or to be received, from the Doris Duke Foundation, National Sharecroppers Fund and the Alliance for Guidance of Rural Youth.

   A Migrant Education Supervisor will be employed as a staff member of the Boards of Education of Palm Beach County, Florida and Northampton County, Virginia - two of the areas in which the Research Study had been conducted.

   A written memorandum of agreement outlining the duties and responsibilities of this supervisor, and his relationship to the County Boards of Education and the Research Project Board is being drawn up.

   Mr. Greene announced that two new members had been added to the Research Project Board - Mr. Eliot Pratt of the National Sharecroppers Fund and Miss Ruth Strang of the Alliance for Guidance of Rural Youth. Mr. Paul Blackwood of the U.S. Office of Education will serve as a consultant on the Research Project Board.

REPORT OF THE GENERAL SECRETARY

Miss Herring, Executive Secretary, reported on operating problems and on pending issues. Under the former she mentioned the increased volume of work in the office as indicated by increased mail, a larger mailing list and increasing calls for assistance on various matters as the NCALL is becoming known as a citizen group interested in agricultural problems. She expressed her deep regret that Mrs. Seiler who has served very devotedly and efficiently as office secretary had found it necessary to resign.

IT WAS VOTED that a letter of appreciation be sent to Mrs. Seiler.

Miss Herring reported that a special issue of the Bulletin dealing with various committees and State activities was being prepared. She also mentioned the Annual Conference to be held in April which was discussed later in the day.

In discussing issues Miss Herring mentioned:

1. Items concerning the President's Budget Message, both favorable and unfavorable. The former included the proposed appropriations for migrant work in the Bureau of Labor Standards and in the Office of Education. The latter included the cut in the appropriation for the Immigration and Naturalization Service; the removal of funds for farm housing and the severe cut in the Farmers' Home Administration. The nature of this cut suggests that the FHA will merely become a credit agency and will abandon its educational work with farm families.

2. The Reclamation Act, i.e., the attempt to break down the 160 acre limitation. The Santa Maria project was mentioned as an example of the attempt to "kill it retail" rather than by a frontal attack. She reported that she had called two inter-agency meetings on this - had distributed material through the bulletin and to member agencies. She felt that this required more attention than she could give it, both from the point of view of NCALL's legislative policy and from the point of view of time, and suggested that perhaps a "Defense Committee for the Reclamation Act" should be organized with someone in charge who would be free to lobby and to whom some honorarium should be paid.

   There was some discussion of who should undertake such work and how money could be raised. Mr. Hudgens did not think a formal committee was necessary, that what is needed is to find a person with political sophistication who could watch the situation and alert people in emergencies. In view of the extreme interest in maintaining the 160 acre limitation on the part of veterans he suggested that a veteran might be a good possibility if money for phone calls and incidental services could be made available.

3. The Wetback Issue - Miss Herring reported in detail on developments in the situation and on what she has done to date. This has included letters of inquiry to Board Members and others to solicit their opinions; interviews with the Immigration Service and others; a special memorandum to members who had indicated special interest; discussion with Senator Lehman's assistants, with special reference to the increase in wetbacks and how to apply humane principles in dealing with the problem; the breakdown on negotiations with Mexico on contract labor; the joint memorandum of the Departments of Labor, Justice and State which led to the unilateral agreement; the joint resolution to change Public Law 78 to permit border recruitment and the hearings recently held by the House Agricultural Committee.

Miss Herring asked Mr. Hudgens to discuss the question. He stated that we have retrogressed considerably from the program of earlier days that included orderly movement of labor, standards of wages, minimum term of employment, return transportation, housing, and written contracts. He felt that the present breakdown was due to our failure to find a long range solution to a complex problem, and referred to the recent unsatisfactory treaty negotiations and the wetback problem as simply symptoms of that failure.

He felt that all of us have overlooked the importance to Mexico of this problem, which must be viewed from the Mexican point of view in light of the "revolution." The "revolution" is still the central political factor in Mexico and was built chiefly on five points of issue in Mexican life. Our failure to recognize this has led us into the error of treating Mexico as an underdeveloped area rather than as a neighbor whose assets and needs are complementary to our own.

He pointed out that the Mexican labor problem at the border is simply an expression of two basic situations, one in Mexico and one in the United States. The first is the lack of order in rural development in Mexico. The other is the disorganization of the use of agricultural seasonal workers in the United States. He does not believe the problem at the border will be solved until these two situations are remedied in long range planning.

Mr. Hudgens mentioned several factors which at the present time constitute unfavorable prospects for a long range solution. 1) that all groups are satisfied with the present arrangements, 2) the Mexican bargaining position is weak because the Mexican workers find a comparatively favorable wage in the United States regardless of whether they enter legally or illegally, 3) there is no real shortage of domestic labor in the United States if it could be organized and regulated, 4) negotiations seem to be exclusively in the hands of the Foreign Office and State Department, rather than of the Departments of the respective governments.

Mr. Hudgens suggested that the NCALL should reconsider the agricultural use of Mexican labor in light of current developments. It is necessary that the NCALL decide on its priority among the following objectives: (a) giving Mexican laborers needed income, (b) enforcing immigration laws, (c) providing American growers with cheap labor, (d) developing higher standards for agricultural labor in the United States, (e) raising the level of the Mexican economy.

Each of these objectives has been aggressively promoted by one or more groups in the United States, and it is important that NCALL make perfectly clear which of these objectives it will promote.

Advisory Committee

Miss Herring referred to the provision in the By-Laws which permits the organization of an Advisory Committee. She raised the question as to whether it might not be well to organize such a Committee at this time with the members selected with a view to two functions: 1) People with special skills that we need - primarily along the lines of public relations; 2) people who will help financially by writing to larger givers. In connection with this, there was discussion of our tax exempt status.

IT WAS VOTED

1. That Miss Herring and the Chairman be authorized to take steps to set up an Advisory Committee of the type mentioned above and to submit, through the Nominating Committee, a proposed roster of members.

2. That NCALL secure legal advice on what procedures a group of persons should take to bring about the establishment of a non-profit corporation whose sole function would be research with reference to agricultural life and labor and entitled to tax exempt status.

ADOPTION OF AMENDMENT TO THE BY-LAWS

Miss Herring presented the following amendments to the By-Laws which had been recommended for presentation at this meeting and of which notice had been sent in advance to all members. IT WAS VOTED unanimously that these amendments to the By-Laws be approved.

I. To add the underlined sentence to Article V, Section 2, so that the total section will read as follows:

"Special meetings of the Board of Directors may be called by the Executive Committee or by the Chairman at the request of five members of the Board. Actions at special meetings may be taken only on matters specifically on the agenda as announced in the call for the meeting. Ten days advance notice shall be required for a special meeting."

II. To add the underlined words to Article VI, Section 5, so that the total section will read as follows:

"The Board of Directors shall appoint a Nominating Committee whose responsibility shall be to present at each annual meeting a proposed slate of officers, and standing committee personnel for the ensuing year. The Nominating Committee may bring in recommendations for members at large at any meeting of the Board, provided that the proposed names are submitted to Board members in writing in advance of the meeting at which they are to be elected. In the case of vacancies occurring between meetings the Board may request nominations from the Nominating Committee."

PLANS FOR ANNUAL CONFERENCE

Miss Herring announced that the Annual Conference will be held on April 26-27 at the Unitarian Church in Washington, D.C. Tentatively, the program has been set up as follows: The Conference will open the afternoon of the 26th with a discussion of farm labor - its gains and unfinished business in this area. A dinner will be held at the Unitarian Church with two addresses: The first will deal with the Mexican labor question and the second will deal with the general idea of the impact of sectional farm interests on the preservation of our democratic institutions.

Tuesday morning session will deal with a discussion of agricultural policies and trends bearing on the question of farm labor versus individual farms. After a quick lunch this same subject will be continued during the afternoon session.

Suggestions from members of the Board of Directors included:

1. Securing a very good speaker for the opening session rather than a series of reports from individual States or organizations.

2. That the registration and dinner fee be left to the Executive Secretary to decide, with a view to placing it at a figure that will help NCALL financially, but without cutting down on attendance.

3. That the Executive Secretary appoint a program committee to help her work out plans for the Conference.

4. The Executive Secretary asked the members to write her any suggestions for the Conference program and especially on the handling of the discussion on farm labor.

IT WAS VOTED to hold a brief meeting of the Board of Directors at the close of the Annual Conference.

THE MEETING WAS ADJOURNED.

Dear Miss Herring:

Nice of you to write, and nice to have news of you and of Charlie Smith. A lot of work, but certainly better to have means to do it with. Still we've got to raise more money, and get these reorganized State outfits to raising some, too. I am trying to be in at part at least of the Washington meeting coming up.

Subject: Inclusion of Hired Farm Workers in Social Security

What has happened

The House Ways and Means Committee has retreated from the recommendation in the President's Social Security message on Farm Labor.

The President's recommendation was that a hired farm worker be included if he earned as much as $50 in a calendar quarter from a single employer, regardless of the number of days he worked.

The House Ways and Means Committee has substituted for this the provision that a worker be covered if he earns as much as $200 within a year from a single employer. As you know, this will exclude many more migrants than the original proposal.

What is about to happen

There is little hope of doing anything about this in the House. The Ways and Means Committee will probably be given a rule which will not permit amendment on the floor.

There is time, however, to do something about the issue in the Senate. I understand it may be sometime before it is reported out of Committee in the Senate.

Next week I will send out a Fact Sheet on all I can find out about the issue. In the meantime I am sending this note to a few of our member organizations with the double intent of giving them time to think about it and of asking for advice as to what they think should be done.

A few angles on the issue

The following points have been made to me by those with whom I have talked.

1. A fight in the Senate would be useful for two reasons: first, to prevent action which is worse (the Senate might require a $400 minimum as in the case of the self-employed); and second, to establish the point that there is a public concern. The chances of victory in the 84th Congress will be better if a fight is made now.

2. An educational campaign in the Senate would be useful even with those with humane intentions. (Many of the staff members I find have had so little contact with the facts of life about farm labor that they do not have a clear conviction as to what to be for. One legislative assistant said to me, "Farm labor is covered."

3. "A strong position for your member organizations to take would be to stand on the President's original recommendation of $50 a quarter. That might provide a basis for compromising on $100 a year from a single employer rather than $200.00."

4. "It might be a good idea for people to write to Secretary Hobby and ask what position the Administration is now taking."

In conclusion

I will get the Fact sheet to you as soon as possible after Memorial Day.

In the meantime, what do you think about all this?

Postscript

I am told that part of the opposition is the unwillingness of some large scale farmers to go to the trouble of keeping track of who their employees are and to do the related paper work. "Why, I don't even know who works for me," said one.

Another factor is that if the Bureau of Internal Revenue becomes involved in collecting Social Security taxes from these farmers, it might also get interested in such matters as income tax et al.

Dear Mr. Jones:

Thank you very much for your excellent statement for the Conference report. I am finding several immediate and very profitable uses for that statement. Yesterday I left it with a member of the Social Security Board in trying to explain the situation of farm labor.

Would it be possible for you within the next few days to send me any information that I could use in the fact sheet mentioned on the enclosed memorandum? Could you give me one or two case stories of workers who have been dispossessed as sharecroppers and have settled in small towns and become casual laborers? How would the $200.00 proposition approved by the House Ways and Means Committee affect them? I would be most grateful for some comment from you which I could include in the fact sheet.

Sincerely yours,

STATEMENT OF LEWIS W. JONES

Made at NCALL Conference

Rural Life Council
Tuskegee Institute

Whenever there are any distinctions possible that the employer may play upon, those distinctions will be used to depress the wage level and sustain unfavorable working conditions. We hear now of certain distinctions between nationals and non-nationals. In our history distinctions have been made at various periods between Negro slaves who were valuable property and Irish immigrants who were used to build railroads in the swamp lands of Louisiana and Mississippi because the health hazards were too great to risk valuable property in such undertakings. Since slavery the Negro-white distinction has been used to the disadvantage of workers of both races.

For a long time in the South Negro labor has been regarded as an important asset. When the migration to Kansas in the 1870's grew, Mississippi planters met in a convention at Vicksburg to consider means for halting the movement. Frederick Douglass sent the convention a message which said, "The sands may fly but the earth remains." Negroes have remained the chief source of supply of agricultural labor in the South. When large numbers migrated to man northern factories in World War I, legal and illegal means were employed to prevent the migration of agricultural laborers. Police officers in some places met trains to keep Negroes from boarding them. There are recorded instances in which trains were stopped and Negro workers taken off. In some states local laws were passed to make it illegal for anybody to recruit labor for out-of-state industry. I believe there is still on the statute books of Georgia a law requiring that a $2500 license be paid to recruit labor in that state.

In World War II there was no taking Negro workers off trains as in World War I. The fact that such little objection and barriers against the movement of Negro agricultural workers in this period should have suggested to us that the time was coming when a great amount of agricultural labor would not be needed. The change was underway from row crops to grass farming and cattle and the mechanisation of row crop production. The full impact of the changes came in the decade of the 1940's.

At the end of the decade, 1,200,000 fewer people were earning a living on farms than at its beginning. On some farms mechanization is incomplete only because the problem of mechanical weeding has not been solved. Seasonal labor is still needed for the hoeing and weeding of cotton. While sharecroppers have been put off the farms, they have not all gone to Detroit and Pittsburgh. Many have gone to the nearest small town and go back onto the farms to work at hoeing and weeding in season. Their wage expectations are higher than those of Mexicans and Jamaicans with whom they must now compete for jobs.

Twenty years ago we were worried about the sharecropper. The sharecropper problem was never solved by the federal government in its agricultural reform policies or by well-meaning Christian people. Sharecroppers did not move up the agricultural ladder; instead they are being eliminated from agriculture. Between 1940 and 1952, the number of hired farm workers in the South declined one-third. Sharecroppers declined 36 percent. Other tenants declined 38 percent.

Considered in absolute terms the wages of farm laborers in the South are better in 1952 than in 1940 -- four times better, average hourly wage rates having risen from 13 cents to 52 cents. Considered relatively the gap between the per hour wages of southern farm laborers and the wages of farm laborers outside the South has widened. In 1940, when the southern farm laborer received 13 cents per hour the non-southern farm laborer received 21 cents per hour. In 1952, when the southern farm laborer received 52 cents per hour the non-southern farm laborer received 78.5 cents per hour. The difference spread from 8 cents to 22.5 cents per hour.

The unstabilized situation of farm labor in the cotton South is not a happy one for the Negro laborer. He has not found a job in industry with the same ease that the white laborer has. He may not compete to an advantage with the laborers from other countries for the job that has been his traditionally. There is no organization working in Negro farm laborers interest as is the case of the Urban League's work in the interest of industrial labor. The problem becomes more serious when we think of the Eisenhower veterans of Pittsburgh and Detroit who may be returned when there is no place to which they may return.

These are the South's agricultural laborers who face the competition of imported foreign labor. There is no scarcity of labor but there is a scarcity of labor that will accept the wages and working conditions that foreign nationals will accept.

Greetings - It was good to have a sight of you at the Conference. I know how you are rejoicing at certain recent events which have repaired our national self-respect. Fine piece by Mr. Fleming in the New Republic.

Dear Miss Herring:

Best I can think of is Macedonia, a cooperative community near Clarksville, Georgia. The elected head of that is Art Wiser. It has been running along now for a dozen years or more. Under some encumberances, around a thousand acres of wooded or farming land -- not very good land though much improved. Housing accomodations a'plenty.

Until eight or ten months ago it had fourteen or fifteen families, all of whom were white, though in principal the community was open to anyone. Then it suffered a split when all but two complete families hived off into some outfit I don't know much about called the Bruderhof, and settled in upstate New York. The two remaining families are stable people -- Art and Mary Wiser and Dick Mommsen and his wife. Two, three, or four unattached individuals also at Macedonia.

They have a dairy farm which nearly works them to death, and also a goodish business manufacturing and selling nursery school block and toy items. The light work attached to the operations of block-making pays them 75¢ an hour for what time they can put into it. Two, three, or four empty houses, all with water laid on, but out in the country and chilly except for fireplaces and stoves. Some mud (when it rains, which lately it hasn't). I think there was also a problem of some school teaching, though it may be that the community children now go to the bordering neighborhood public school.

A retired nurse from Philadelphia settled among them some years ago, and was comfortable enough until disease overtook her untimely.

Most of the people at Macedonia have been conscientious objectors. They believe in cooperation. There is a pretty stout strain of Christianity that goes through. Wiser was brought up as the son of missionary parents in India, and retains a good many links with an Oriental form of pacifism. In matters economic they are nothing more radical than cooperative.

If they would take Jacque Poole in, I think she would not lack for pleasant association and ample opportunity to be useful. My only question is whether her physical health would sustain the somewhat rugged life in a North Georgia hill winter.

If she is interested, she should correspond with Art Wiser.

Grace Hamilton remembers most warmly Miss Poole, and will be writing you about what she, Mrs. Hamilton, can turn up as a possibility at Spelman College.

Sincerely,

RECEIVED 10/28/54 Southern Regional Council

Dr. George S. Mitchell
Southern Regional Council
63 Auburn Avenue, N. E.
Atlanta, Georgia

Dear Dr. Mitchell:

Would it be an imposition to ask for a bit of information to help with a personal problem? I am trying to help a friend of mine recovering from a terrible automobile accident to find a spot in a southern residence school where she can earn her keep without salary, while she gets her vigor back.

I know about Brasstown and Highlander Folk School. Could you mention three or four more where you think the leadership is good? She is white but would be happy in either a primarily white or Negro institution.

Jacque Poole's father was Assistant Chief of Police in Atlanta some years back. He was cited in the New Republic for his refusal to accede to the request of an Atlanta industry to buy guns for them for strike breaking purposes. Jacque is 44 years old. She was my assistant years ago, then a YWCA local secretary. She is a warm hearted, attractive and creative person. At this moment she likes the idea of doing something with young people in drama, crafts, dress design and dancing. She has also had radio training.

I enclose a statement Jacque prepared on segregation at our Columbus convention in 1938. (She did not have a chance to give it.)

I shall be most grateful for the names of a few people and places where there might be a niche for her. It is just possible that Mrs. Hamilton may remember something about Jacque so I am sending her a carbon of this letter.

Sincerely yours,

ELIZABETH B. HERRING

J. Poole drafted this to give at the YWCA Convention in Columbus, Ohio in 1938

Madam Chairman:

I am E. Jacque Poole, General Secretary of the Clearwater, Florida, Y.W.C.A. I wish to speak to the resolution of the National Student Assembly recommending that: " - - - (and then a typed page - ending with - - - - We recommend that the YWCA's of the U. S. of America during the coming biennum study - - the implications of segregation and discrimination in American life upon the relationship of white and Negro people in their association and community life.'

Mrs. Speer said yesterday, in speaking of Mabel Cratty, - that Miss Cratty did not put a fire cracker under a person who was not growing sufficiently fast - - or words to that effect! I would never be so presumptuous as to disagree with Miss Cratty - but in the last few days I have 'toyed' with the conclusion that some of us would wake from our inertia if we did find - or feel - a few fire crackers under us! - - particularly when we resort to the statement that 'we dare not move too fast - the people in our communities are not ready for the next step...' etc., etc.

Please do not misunderstand me - - I do realize that this is true - in a great many communities - - but - - is it not also true - that some of use that statement when we have never made any conscientious effort to see if we could move even so far as taking the first step?

A few days ago - here - the question was raised as to 'Why so few of the young white South ever expressed an opinion - either for or against questions brought up in reference to the Negro question.' Because of that question and because it is a challenge - I am speaking at this time (and making it known) - that I am one individual in that group of young white southerners. I was born and reared in the South and I am now working in the South.

The recommendation of a study of the 'Implications of segregation and discrimination' is most welcome to me. I know there are others here - from the South - who feel as I do. I also realize there are others here who differ - on the subject! It is a question that must be answered individually - - and before it can be answered it must be faced realistically and within each of us.

It seems to me that here is an opportunity of finding a deeper meaning in the words "Fatherhood of God - - and Brotherhood of man" - - - and - perhaps - drawing a little nearer the goal to which we are all supposedly dedicated and working for - as members of the Young Women's Christian Associations of America with such a purpose - (which I dare to repeat and remind you of):

> "To build a fellowship of women and girls devoted to the task of realizing in our common life those ideals of personal and social living to which we are committed by our faith as Christians. In this endeavor we seek to understand Jesus, to share His love for all people, and to grow in the knowledge and love of God."

I as one young white southerner hereby welcome the resolution brought by the National Student Assembly and feel at long last that the necessary "fire cracker" has been placed - and strategically.

DearDr. Mitchell:

It was wonderful of you to take the trouble to write me such a helpful letter about Jacque Poole. I have written her telling her about Macedonia (enchanting name by the way) and Art Wiser. Also I have told her that Mrs. Hamilton has ideas. She will follow up and I feel sure that these collective efforts will yield some dividends.

Jacque

Are you coming this way some time? It would be good to see you. I suppose you are out doing your patriotic duty today. It is really grim to be an disenfranchised resident of the District of Columbia. Tonight I go down to the Willard to celebrate or weep with the Young Democrats.

Gratefully,

Elizabeth Herring

Mr. Howard A. Dawson
National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor
1751 "N" Street, N. W.
Washington 6, D. C.

Dear Mr. Dawson:

Perfectly willing to serve on the committee about low income farmers which you describe in your letter of November 3rd.

Sorry I have got to be travelling Monday, November 15th, but I send a comment as follows:

If the Department of Agriculture is serious about helping low income farmers and doesn't want to shell out a lot of money, it has available a ready and effective way of doing it by a systematic campaign to get improved farm leases, particularly in the South.

To save time I attach a memo I did for a Methodist gathering this past Summer.

The truth is that a very large part of the meanness and the political backwardness of the South and of the nation has in its roots the condition of dependence of the bulk of the rural population in the old "Plantation Belt" of the South. Now the thing changes and changes rapidly and, unfortunately, nobody knows exactly how it is changing. But it is quite clear that a whole lot of improvement could be had if we would shift over to long-term leases.

Left on its own the Agricultural Extension Service, in my judgment, is not going to take up the job. Never mind why, but they are too tied in with the landlord group in the Southern states. They could be brought around. This man, Eisenhower, that we have as President evidently believes in educational programs rather than direct action. This is an educational program. And the man has authority over a potential education engine in the Extension Service. So he ought to wrench the Extension Service around so that it does by a mighty effort get over the idea of long-term farm leases.

It is up to the other agencies too, and I think that they too should use the idea. And a lot of help could be had from the churches.

We don't solve these problems in the South about schooling and decency until we obtain status and ambition and chance for the poor guys who farm the country counties. The system of annual oral leases that we have had is a hold-over from way back yonder somewhere. It is quite incompatible with modern society. And I think that the Department of Agriculture ought to begin to do something about it. It won't cost anything and it will do worlds and worlds of good.

Sincerely,

George S. Mitchell

Southern Regional Council

Atlanta 5, Georgia

Dear Dr. Mitchell:

I hope that you will serve on a short-time NCALL Committee. Please do not be dismayed but read a little further.

The Fifth Annual Meeting and Conference of NCALL has been called to meet in Washington February 15-16, 1955.

Probably you noted in the September 28 Board Minutes the decision that "this year's conference be in the nature of an open Board meeting focusing on one or two special questions."

One of the subjects proposed was "Policy on low income and underemployed farmers." This proposal was inspired by Secretary Benson's request to NCALL last summer that we express ourselves on the study of small farmers and farm labor which has been undertaken by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. His letter is enclosed.

I am inviting you and several others to serve on a committee to plan how we will cope with the Secretary's questions in the NCALL Annual Meeting and Conference. I am inviting a distinguished and busy group to serve on this committee, because they are the persons who have the background to help with the questions.

A meeting of this conference committee has been called for 9:30 A. M., Monday, November 15, at 1637 Massachusetts Avenue, N. W., Washington, D. C. } Dr. Mitchell, you will be enroute to Virginia and Boston

1751 N STREET, N. W., WASHINGTON 6, D. C. • NOrth 7-3979

ELIZABETH B. HERRING
Executive Secretary

We hope that you can come. If not, could we have your comments by mail?

One item on the agenda will be a suggestion that we set up our conference discussion of low-income farmers and farm labor in such a way that we get a printed pamphlet from it which can be widely publicized and used in social action programs. This would involve our asking somebody for some money to print it.

I hope that you will consent to give us your expert help.

Sincerely yours,

Howard A. Dawson

To: Members of the Board of Directors of NCALL
From: Howard A. Dawson
Chairman

Your help is needed. Some questions are enclosed to which we would like your answers soon.

In line with board action on September 28th, an appraisal committee has been appointed to look at NCALL's current program and make recommendations for the future.

The committee members are Fay Bennett, Shirley Greene, Paul Sifton, Edith Lowry, plus Howard Dawson and Elizabeth Herring, ex-officio.

The committee has conferred by mail and in person and hopes to bring a progress report to the December 14th board meeting in Washington. To do so, they need your opinion of the enclosed propositions.

Will you please send it by December 6th, or sooner?

THE APPRAISAL COMMITTEE NEEDS YOUR OPINION OF THE FOLLOWING PROPOSITIONS:

FUNCTIONS OF NCALL

I. General Function

To improve the status and conditions of farm labor and family farmers (the emphasis on migrants and low-income farmers being an aspect of the general function).

II. Particular Functions

1. Keep track of what is going on in the Federal government and cooperate with other citizen groups on issues related to NCALL's general function.

2. Inform NCALL members about what is happening and facilitate action of members.

3. Provide a clearing house of information in NCALL's field for people in national, state and local groups.

MEMBERSHIP

1. The only type of members should be organizational members (national and regional).

2. "Associates" (or similar term) should supplant "individual members." "Associates" would not be promoted but the plan would provide a recognized relationship for persons who work closely with NCALL (from non-affiliated national organizations, state organizations, universities, etc.)

3. "Subscription" should take the place of the "individual membership fee" - All persons (except organizational members) would pay this subscription if they wished to receive NCALL publications.

STAFF

1. NCALL should enlarge its financing plan to provide two or 1½ staff members. (What must be done on Capitol Hill and in the NCALL office requires more than one person.) What are your suggestions?

The enclosed suggested budget proposes a full-time executive, a half-time representative who majors on government contacts, and a full-time office secretary.

2. The possibility of seeking a special grant for the clearing house function should be considered.

WHICH NCALL PUBLICATIONS HAVE FITTED INTO THE PROGRAM OF YOUR ORGANIZATION? (What are your new proposals?)

NCALL INFORMATION RELATED TO PROPOSITIONS

FUNCTION

Congress and Government Agencies

NCALL's emphasis has been heaviest on migrant labor, but is moving into the larger framework (as prescribed by the By-Laws).

Subjects (national level) emphasized in publications, releases and conferences this year have been:

- Inclusion of farm labor (especially migrants) in social legislation and government services
- Mexican farm labor
- Farmers' Home Administration and Farm Housing
- Excess Lands Provision of Reclamation Act
- Rural electrification
- Farm surpluses, full production and human welfare

Beside its "reporter" function, NCALL frequently participates in Washington inter-agency planning.

Clearing House Function

Through its meetings and the NCALL Bulletin, there is exchange of experience and opinion on matters national, state and local.

In addition, a growing correspondence with state and local people, especially on farm labor programs, is a tax on our resources and also an obvious opportunity to speed the trend toward united effort.

One indication of interest was the large number of orders for the special issue of the NCALL Bulletin on state committees and commissions. 600 copies were ordered.

MEMBERSHIP

Beside 34 member organizations (mostly national), NCALL has 134 contributing individual members. No attempt has been made for a year to promote individual membership as a money-raising measure. However, an effort has been made to hold the interest of those who were members already, and to offer membership to people who registered their interest on their own volition.

The amount of money contributed by individuals is not great, but the interest is. In suggesting that NCALL substitute an "Associates" plan, the idea is to retain this sense of identification.

Among our individual members are representatives of 15 national organizations not affiliated with us but interested in what we are doing. Also included are representatives of regional and state organizations, state and regional members of national organizations belonging to NCALL, staff members of government agencies (including international), and a sprinkling of university professors, editors, teachers, ministers, and librarians (libraries actually).

The mailing list for NCALL publications includes 450 names. We send our materials free to a good many people; especially

1. To organizations for exchange of publications
2. A few Senators and Congressmen with whom we have had helpful relations and whose staffs are interested in our activities.
3. Washington representatives of cooperating organizations
4. A few government agency staff members
5. A cultivation list

STAFF

A plan for additional staff members is proposed because one staff member with a part-time secretary stenographer cannot keep up with Washington, get out the publications, carry on a clearing house information service, and keep NCALL functioning as an organized body - (not to mention a standby and budget role in relation to the Migrant Education Research Project).

The agenda of the meeting (except for necessary business) will deal exclusively with questions addressed to NCALL last summer by the Secretary of Agriculture. The U. S. Dear Miss Herring:

Thank you for your letter of November 19.

Some of those around you will know of the John H. Rust Foundation. Mr. Rust died early this year, and I have not been able to find out in just what condition his affairs were left. But I know that the Foundation was in working order before his death and had made quite a number of small but carefully placed grants.

Were Mr. Rust alive he would be immediately interested in the problems you pose in Item 4.

I think his widow lives at Pine Bluff Arkansas. Doubtless a letter addressed to Mrs. John H. Rust, Pine Bluff, Arkansas will reach her. She was the treasurer and secretary of the Foundation.

A telephone call to the President of Arkansas A. & M. College in Pine Bluff (Mr. Lawrence Davis) would give you the facts.

Dear Dr. Mitchell:

Your letter was read with the utmost interest. As you note, "leases" are on the program.

Additional suggestions will be gratefully received. As we progress on the plans, I will write you further about how we deal with the lease issue.

We are very anxious to answer Mr. Benson very thoroughly and publicly, so if you have any inspirations about point 4 in the letter will you let me know?

Father Shean called us from Rockville and underlined the lease idea.

With best wishes and thanks.

Sincerely yours,

Elizabeth B. Herring

Dr. Mitchell -

November 19, 1954

To: The Program Committee for the NCALL Annual Meeting and Conference - February 15 and 16, 1955

From: Howard A. Dawson
Chairman

Thank you very much for your letters, your telephone calls, and your presence at the committee meeting on November 16. Four proposals have resulted.

1. All agree that we build the conference agenda around the questions asked of the National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor last summer by the Secretary of Agriculture. As you will recall, Secretary Benson informed NCALL that a study is going on in the United States Department of Agriculture of the problems of underemployed rural people. The specific questions which the Secretary asked had to do both with farm labor and with low-production family farmers. Secretary Benson said: "The purpose of the review is to aid in improving programs already in operation, developing programs within present legislative authority, and in evaluating and formulating legislation which Congress may consider."

2. We agree that the conference is to be an "agenda" meeting rather than a "program". In other words, all subject matter presented will be directly related to the issues on which the members seek consensus. Each topic will receive the following treatment:

Clear statement of the issue.
Factual material on what has happened and the status of the problem.
Proposals for programs of action directed toward solution.

3. We agree that the agenda should include selected issues in three areas:

Education of low-production family farmers and farm wage workers (e. g. adult and vocational)

1751 N STREET, N. W., WASHINGTON 6, D. C. • NOrth 7-3979

ELIZABETH B. HERRING
Executive Secretary

Status and welfare of low-production family farmers (e. g., Emphasis on tenure situation in the South, i. e., problems of no written leases. Also credit and social services.)

Farm labor planning (e. g., Orderly employment, tripartite wage boards, foreign labor.)

4. Committee members who were able to meet on November 16 believe that we should try immediately to get a special grant for this conference; so that the following will be possible:

Preliminary investigation of what is happening in relation to each issue chosen for conference discussion. Preparation of factual material.
Expense for securing leadership of the conference.
Stenotypist, editorial work, printing and public relations expenses so that the widest possible publicity can be given to the ideas of the conference.

At your early convenience, will you let Miss Herring know what you think of all this, and also send your suggestions as to Foundations and organizations to whom this conference would appeal?

The suggestion has been made that three or four member organizations of NCALL with tax exempt status might constitute the official conference committee and receive and disburse the money for the conference expenses. Under what conditions this would be a legal idea is being looked into.

MINUTES OF THE FOURTH QUARTERLY MEETING OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS

NATIONAL COUNCIL ON AGRICULTURAL LIFE AND LABOR

Washington, D.C.

December 14, 1954

A meeting of the Board of Directors of NCALL was held on Tuesday, December 14, 1954 at the National Jewish Welfare Board, 1637 Massachusetts Avenue, NW., Washington, D.C.

Those present were: Dr. Dawson, Chairman, Mr. Greene, Vice-Chairman, Mr. Schiff, Treasurer, Mrs. Zimand, Secretary and Miss Bennett, Dr. Brown, Miss Lowry, Miss Magee, Miss Morton, Mrs. Magolin (representing the National Council of Jewish Women), Mr. Sifton, Mrs. Stough, Mrs. Warburton and Miss Herring, Executive Secretary. Guests during the latter part of the Board Meeting were: Paul Blackwood, U.S. Office of Education, Mrs. Clara Mortenson Beyer, U.S. Bureau of Labor Standards, William Von Seggern, Interdepartmental Committee on Migrant Labor, Eleanor Hadley of the American Association of Social Workers and Max Egloff.

The Minutes of the previous meeting, which had been sent to all members, were approved as circulated.

SECRETARY'S REPORT

The Executive Secretary reported on her activities and material sent out during the fall and on work now under way. She stated that the only item referred by the last Board Meeting on which she had not taken action was the organization of an Advisory Committee. She felt that in view of the suggestions that might be made by the Appraisal Committee which is now engaged in the study and evaluation of NCALL, it would be wiser to defer this until their report had been made next spring.

Miss Herring's report was received and approved.

TREASURER'S REPORT

The Treasurer's Report, presented by Mr. Schiff, was received and approved. IT WAS VOTED that Mr. Greene and Miss Herring be asked to constitute a Committee to discuss with the Council for Social Action the cancellation of the remaining indebtedness ($147) of NCALL to the Council for Social Action.

REPORT OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Dr. Dawson presented the report and recommendations of the Executive Committee. IT WAS VOTED that NCALL make Social Security payments to Miss Sutton on the basis of a full year instead of only for the time she works in Virginia. This would be on the basis of $3,000 for the last two quarters of 1954 and on the basis of $4,200 for 1955. These payments will come from the funds for the Demonstration Project on Migrant Education.

Dr. Dawson explained a suggestion by Miss Herring that her token salary of $1,500 be reduced to $750 and that the other $750 be used as a retainer for a person who could be a liaison with Congress and government departments in securing for NCALL the information about proposed or pending legislation and other governmental proposals or action related to our field of interest.

Miss Herring explained that she did not feel that it was possible for one person to carry full responsibility for office administration, fund-raising, issuance of publications and also to keep in touch with all that was going on in our extensive field of interest.

After considerable discussion IT WAS VOTED that the Board authorize the Executive Committee to employ someone to act in a liaison capacity for NCALL with Congress and with government departments to secure up-to-date information about items relating to our program, and that if further funds became available for salary purposes during the year they be used to increase Miss Herring's salary up to the present $1,500 standard.

Dr. Dawson reported that the revised Internal Revenue Act permits a non-profit organization to establish separate funds for those of its activities which are used "exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary or educational purposes" and for those which are legislative in character.

IT WAS VOTED that the Chairman be authorized to set up two separate accounts for NCALL with one account used exclusively for its educational research and information services.

REPORT OF THE APPRAISAL COMMITTEE

Miss Bennett presented an interim report for the Appraisal Committee which has been considering the functions, the membership basis and the financial problems of NCALL. Her Committee had canvassed all Board Members with a questionnaire. Excerpts from the replies were read to indicate the wide range of thinking among Board Members. It was the consensus of opinion that these matters were so fundamental to the future of NCALL that there should be more time for their consideration than would be possible at a Board Meeting held in conjunction with the Annual Conference in February as originally planned.

It was, therefore, suggested that the Appraisal Committee continue its study, and that a special meeting of the Board be held some time after the Annual Conference, perhaps in March, to discuss and take action upon the report of the Appraisal Committee.

PLANS FOR THE ANNUAL CONFERENCE

Miss Herring reported on plans for the Annual Conference as developed by a Committee consisting of Paul Sifton, George Mitchell, Robert Hudgens, Theodore Norman, Benson Landis and Monsignor Shean, with Dr. Dawson and Miss Herring serving ex officio.

The Board approved the Conference plans with the suggestion that in place of workshops the main speaker at each session be allotted more time, and that a Panel of informed people on the subject under discussion be asked to participate preceding discussion from the floor.

The afternoon meeting opened with presentations by Mrs. Clara Beyer, Associate Director, U.S. Bureau of Labor Standards and Mr. William Von Seggern, Staff Member of the Interdepartmental Committee on Migrant Labor, on the plans that had been developed by the Bureau of Labor Standards under the appropriation of $50,000 that had been granted by Congress to the Bureau of Labor Standards this year for migrant work.

INVITATION FROM NATIONAL SOCIAL WELFARE ASSEMBLY TO BECOME ASSOCIATE GROUP

The invitation to NCALL to become an Associate Group of the National Social Welfare Assembly was considered.

IT WAS VOTED that this invitation be accepted. The Executive Committee was authorized to name two delegates and an alternate to the National Social Welfare Assembly.

IT WAS VOTED TO ADJOURN.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

To: Members of the Board of Directors
From: Howard A. Dawson, Chairman
Elizabeth B. Herring, Executive Secretary

CHANGE OF DATE OF ANNUAL CONFERENCE

The FIFTH ANNUAL CONFERENCE of NCALL will be held in Washington February 23, 24, and 25 (not the middle of February).

The Conference will do a specific piece of work. The entire Conference will be devoted to questions sent to NCALL last summer by the Secretary of Agriculture. The Department of Agriculture is making a study of government services to low-income farm groups. Secretary Benson asked a number of national organizations, including NCALL, for comments.

The Conference has been called early in the Congressional session, so that member organizations wishing to take action will be familiar with the issues and with the concrete things that can be done.

In his letter, Secretary Benson said that it was the object of the study to find ways of "improving programs already in operation, developing programs within present legislative authority, and in evaluating and formulating legislation which Congress may consider". Because the study is for this purpose, the theme of the NCALL Conference will be "LOW-INCOME FARMERS AND THEIR GOVERNMENT".

Preparatory materials will be sent to delegates. To increase the effectiveness of the discussions, preparatory materials will be sent to member organizations in January. While the Conference will pass no resolutions, nor take positions as a total group, there will be a report which will be helpful to member organizations in determining their own lines of action.

The members of the Conference Program Committee are: Rev. Shirley E. Greene, Mr. Robert W. Hudgens, Dr. Benson Y. Landis, Dr. George S. Mitchell, Dr. Theodore Norman, Very Rev. Maurice V. Shean, C. O., and Mr. Paul Sifton.

December 31, 1954

To: Members of the Board of Directors
From: Elizabeth B. Herring
Executive Secretary

Here are three messages to greet the New Year.

ANNUAL DUES OF MEMBER ORGANIZATIONS

A notice is enclosed for the 1955 dues. As you may surmise from my great promptness, the treasury is almost empty.

ANNUAL CONFERENCE AND BOARD MEETING--FEBRUARY 23, 24, and 25.

As you have noted in the December 14 board minutes, the Annual Conference will be a work session. How many sets of preparatory material can your organization use to advantage? The assumption back of this question is that each member organization will send more than one delegate.

There will be a very brief first quarterly board meeting at the time of the conference but all major business will be postponed till the second quarterly meeting to be held in New York the latter part of April (date to be announced later).

MR. CHARLES H. SLAYMAN JR. WILL ASSIST NCALL AS RESEARCH CONSULTANT

In line with Board action (see Dec.14 minutes) Mr. Slayman has been invited and has consented to give us some time during the first session of the Eighty-Fourth Congress helping us to keep up with Congressional and Administration developments. By virtue both of experience and sympathy with our cause, Mr. Slayman will be a great help in getting prompt and accurate information to member organizations.

(Detach and mail to NCALL)

Please send.....sets of preparatory material for use of the delegates from our organization to the NCALL Annual Conference.

Signed.....
Organization.....

ANNUAL REPORT TO THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Dear Friends:

I attach a summary of NCALL's 1954 activities. With it I send thanks for the aid and comfort which so many of you have given during the last year.

There are obstacles to committee work by our Board of Directors. The members live far apart and are some of the busiest people in the United States. However many have helped substantially through letters, telephone calls and conversations. For advice, suggestions, information, and for faith in our common cause, I thank you.

Attached to this report is a draft of a statement about NCALL which will appear in the SERVICE DIRECTORY of the seventy national organizations affiliated or associated with THE NATIONAL SOCIAL WELFARE ASSEMBLY. At the fourth quarterly meeting of the NCALL Board of Directors on December 14, an invitation to become an associate member of the ASSEMBLY was accepted by the Board.

This draft statement contains the following paragraph:

> "The National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor has a unifying concept of rural welfare. In practice, the Council thinks of rural welfare as a complex of interrelated conditions rather than as a list of separate specialized needs to be dealt with out of context. In choosing what to emphasize at a given time, the Council tries to understand these relationships so that specific projects may be chosen wisely and carried out effectively."

As NCALL looks ahead, diversity of approach within a common vision promises to be the source of growing strength.

Sincerely yours,

Elizabeth B Herring

Elizabeth B. Herring

THE 1954 ACTIVITIES OF THE NATIONAL COUNCIL ON AGRICULTURAL LIFE AND LABOR

The office of NCALL is in Washington. What happens in the government is however only part of the Council's concern. The daily mail shows that through NCALL connections are coming about between people all over the United States who are trying to do something about human welfare in agriculture. The existence of NCALL as a symbol of united effort has given encouragement to many people.

The story of 1954 in the NCALL office includes efforts to keep up with the Congress and with Administration policy and to relay the news to member organizations through bulletins, news letters, memoranda, letters and the telephone. The story also includes coping with a varied correspondence, trying to keep up with agency policies (our friends in about 25 organizations send us their publications), attending meetings where NCALL can learn something it needs to know (or tell somebody something).

The Migrant Education Research Project is with us also in its demonstration stage. Miss Elizabeth Sutton, supervisory specialist in charge of the demonstration in Florida and Virginia is hard at work. With skill and imagination she is seeking out possible ways to make progress.

Finally the mystic rites of keeping an organization going are part of the story in the NCALL office. It is too bad that even the most idealistic of organizations seems to take so much running. It reminds me of a sixty year old protest pamphlet; called "Isaiah Incorporated."

IN WASHINGTON, WHAT HAS ENGAGED OUR ATTENTION?

NCALL has tried to keep its members informed on a selection of issues. These issues involved appropriations, basic legislation and Administration policy.

The selection included:

Migratory Labor Programs: Appropriations for the Bureau of Labor Standards and the Office of Education.

Social Security: Inclusion of farm operators and farm labor.

Farm Housing: Renewal of Title V of the Housing Act of 1949.

Mexican Farm Labor Program: Restoration of the International Agreement and enforcement of immigration laws.

Excess Lands Provision of the Reclamation Act: Defence of family farm policy and opposition to land monopoly on lands irrigated by the federal government.

Farmers Home Administration: Defense of adequate appropriations and of the intent of Congress in the basic law (as distinguished from Administration policy).

Rural Electrification: Adequate loan funds and need for support of REA by the Administration.

OUTSIDE OF WASHINGTON, WHAT HAVE OUR CONTACTS BEEN?

They have had a two-way nature: i.e. correspondence, receipt of reports and publications from national and state organizations, attendance at national and regional meetings, and relaying through our publications of the information gathered through these channels.

What has our correspondence been about? Evidently our members and contributors must pass NCALL publications around because so much of our mail is from people unknown to us. My latest surprise was a request from that great agricultural center, Manhattan (i.e. the New York Public Library) for a copy of the report of our FOURTH ANNUAL CONFERENCE.

People write to us for these reasons:

1. To tell us of the programs (often migratory labor) which they are developing at the state level or in more local areas.

2. To ask what we know about some agricultural trend.

3. To ask for suggestions about procedure or migratory labor problems (state or local).

4. To ask for Washington information which will help them with social action programs or with their publications.

5. To ask for study materials for organizations and theses (grade school to PhD.)

6. To help foreign students study farm labor problems.

7. To urge us to do something.

What is the news about NCALL publications? The biggest news is that the results of the field studies of the Migrant Education Research Project have been published. In short form, "Children of Misfortune" by Shirley E. Greene, was published by the Council for Social Action of the Congregational-Christian Churches. The full story in book form, "Education of Migrant Children" by Shirley E. Greene, has been published by the National Education Association. Both have sold well and have been widely distributed.

The angle on publications which interests me most at the moment is, "How are they used?" By indirection, I have learned something about what people find useful. Our biggest best seller was the special issue of the NCALL BULLETIN on state commissions and committees concerned with agricultural migrants. Orders were received for 600 extra copies from twelve states and some national agencies. The extra copies were ordered primarily to use as interpretation of the objectives of the state commissions and committees mentioned in the bulletin.

Several national organizations have ordered extra copies of our publications for use by their committees and by their state and regional representatives. One organization asked for enough copies of several pieces of material to put in the delegates' envelopes at the organization's national convention.

Of those board members who have had the strength to read as far as this, I make a request: "How can NCALL publications be more useful to your organization?" "Do you think NCALL publications should be limited in audience to a few leaders?" "Should NCALL prepare some material which can be used widely as a part of the citizenship program of organizations?"

HOW IS NCALL FARING AS AN ORGANIZATION?

As noted in the December 14 Board minutes, a new Internal Revenue ruling permits organizations to set up separate funds (with tax-exemption for donors) for carrying on educational, research and other non-legislative functions. The Board authorized our making application for permission to set up such a fund. If this is accepted our hope of securing adequate financing will be greater. This year some member organizations increased their contributions but our present income of $5000 means we must depend largely on volunteer leadership.

Another encouraging item is the Board's action to use part of the amount available for executive salary to secure some help from a research consultant on legislation and administrative policy. This might seem almost too much of an illustration of dividing up the loaves and fishes, but I hope that the decision will have the same multiplying effect. The dilemma of the NCALL office is the multiplicity of angles. With more help on the Washington front, it is to be hoped that NCALL members will not only receive quicker and more adequate information but that I will have more time to work on the financial problem.

A HAPPY NEW YEAR TO YOU ALL

DRAFT STATEMENT FOR THE SERVICE DIRECTORY OF THE NATIONAL SOCIAL WELFARE ASSEMBLY

NATIONAL COUNCIL ON AGRICULTURAL LIFE AND LABOR
1751 N Street, N. W. Washington 6, D. C.
Executive Secretary: Elizabeth B. Herring

PURPOSE

Through the National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor, national and regional organizations cooperate to improve living and working conditions on the farms of America. While the Council does not take public positions nor speak for its member organizations, united effort is made possible through the Council. In the selection of its activities, the Council is guided by an official statement of objectives. In general the point of view expressed in this statement is that a family farm type of land tenure is essential to the social, economic and political health of the nation. By the same token the Council operates on the principle that an agriculture based on landless, neglected and exploited farm labor is a threat to democratic institutions and to the vitality of American life.

PROGRAM OF MEMBER ORGANIZATIONS

Thirty four national and regional organizations are represented in the membership of the Council. The rural welfare interests and organizations of these member organizations vary in kind. The religious organizations work for adequate rural religious institutions, for rural community development and for application of religious principles to the social problems of agriculture. Organizations of farm people work for good rural communities, economic adequacy for farm families and just relationships between farmers and other sectors of society. The labor organizations emphasize the interdependence of those who work on the land and in the city. They promote measures for inclusion of farm labor and family farmers in appropriate social legislation. They support measures which will maintain the standard of living of farm people at a level comparable to that of other citizen groups. The social, educational and civic organizations seek to establish adequate rural educational programs and facilities. They work to extend the protection of the laws and suitable social services to farm children and farm families.

In the cooperative activities of the Council, member organizations find common ground. The National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor has a unifying concept of rural welfare. In practice, the Council thinks of rural welfare as a complex of interrelated conditions rather than as a list of separate specialized needs to be dealt with out of context. In choosing what to emphasize at a given time, the Council tries to understand these relationships so that specific projects may be chosen wisely and carried out effectively.

NATIONAL SERVICES

The Council maintains an office in Washington. Information is sent through publications and correspondence to member organizations and interested persons. Publications include the NCALL BULLETIN, newsletters and memoranda giving background material on current issues.

The Council also calls meetings of its members on timely subjects and conducts research projects. Its current research project is a study of the education of the children of migratory agricultural workers.

Inquiries about the National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor should be addressed to the Executive Secretary.

Dear Mrs. Herring:

Here's the item on land tenure. It is a precis of a talk delivered for the Southeastern Jurisdictional Town and Country Commission. I have corrected some misprints along toward the end. Make any reasonable use you wish of it.

Unlikely that I can get to the Conference, and if at all, only for the first day.

Dear Dr. Mitchell:

I would like to have the speech which you made to the *Methodists duplicated and sent out with our preliminary conference material. I hope that is all right with you. Do you wish to have me mention the occasion when you gave the speech?

In a day or two I am writing the Conference Committee fully about conference plans and you will receive a copy of the letter. I am counting so much on your being here that I hope it will be possible for you to come.

I have written to Mrs. Rust about the money but have not heard as yet. I hope that this means she is at least considering it. We will go ahead anyway whether we have the money or not.

With best wishes,

Sincerely yours,

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

CHANGE OF DATE OF ANNUAL CONFERENCE

The FIFTH ANNUAL CONFERENCE of NCALL will be held in Washington February 23, 24, and 25 (not the middle of February).

The Conference will do a specific piece of work. The entire Conference will be devoted to questions sent to NCALL last summer by the Secretary of Agriculture. The Department of Agriculture is making a study of government services to low-income farm groups. Secretary Benson asked a number of national organizations, including NCALL, for comments.

The Conference has been called early in the Congressional session, so that member organizations wishing to take action will be familiar with the issues and with the concrete things that can be done.

In his letter, Secretary Benson said that it was the object of the study to find ways of "improving programs already in operation, developing programs within present legislative authority, and in evaluating and formulating legislation which Congress may consider". Because the study is for this purpose, the theme of the NCALL Conference will be "LOW-INCOME FARM FAMILIES AND THEIR GOVERNMENT".

Preparatory materials will be sent to delegates. To increase the effectiveness of the discussions, preparatory materials will be sent to member organizations in January. While the Conference will pass no resolutions, nor take positions as a total group, there will be a report which will be helpful to member organizations in determining their own lines of action.

The members of the Conference Program Committee are: Rev. Shirley E. Greene, Mr. Robert W. Hudgens, Dr. Benson Y. Landis, Dr. George S. Mitchell, Dr. Theodore Norman, Very Rev. Maurice V. Shean, C. O., and Mr. Paul Sifton.

MEMBERS AND FRIENDS ARE INVITED TO ATTEND. PLEASE WRITE TO THE WASHINGTON OFFICE OF NCALL FOR ADDITIONAL INFORMATION.

Memorandum No. 5 January 1955

Subject: THE FARMERS HOME ADMINISTRATION: WHAT IS THE OUTLOOK FOR ITS FUTURE?

The FARMERS HOME ADMINISTRATION is the principal federal service designed to assist farm families having limited credit resources to become established as adequate farm operators. The central idea of the FHA is to make available at one and the same time, credit facilities and managerial and technical advice. Experience has proved that this combination is necessary.

The Administration recommended severe FHA cuts to the 83rd Congress, cuts that not only reduced the size of the FHA program (*) but changed its character, cutting out much of the technical and managerial advice, making loans more expensive and moving the program away from the concept of a service with a social goal. The 83rd Congress restored some of the FHA's funds but did not have much effect upon the internal changes in the character of the agency. It approved the interest rate increase.

This January, the Administration has recommended some cuts and some additions in the FHA budget. The following information is presented as an aid to NCALL members in their thought about the future of the agency.

WHAT ARE THE SERVICES OF THE FARMERS HOME ADMINISTRATION?

The Farmers Home Administration is an agency of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. It provides eligible farm operator applicants with credit and technical help on farming problems. The credit is for four purposes:

> Operating loans; farm ownership and housing loans; water facilities loans; emergency loans and special live stock loans. In addition, the county staff of the Farmers Home Administration provides assistance in preparing farm and home operating plans, keeping farm records and solving farm problems. Loans and services are available to farmers only when they cannot get the credit they need on reasonable terms from other lenders.

The Eighty-Third Congress made the following changes in FHA services:

1. Extended the Water Facilities Program to all the states and territories, and combined with this extension, authority to make or insure loans for soil conservation purposes.

2. Amended Title I of the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act to authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to set the interest rate for farm ownership loans at any rate not to exceed five percent. The interest rate has been raised one half percent. The farmer now pays $4\frac{1}{2}\%$ instead of 4%.

* Footnote: The FHA administered drought relief programs in 1954 involving large sums of money, but this emergency activity was not part of the basic program of the agency.

WHAT CHANGES DID THE ADMINISTRATION PROPOSE IN THE SERVICES OF THE FARMERS HOME ADMINISTRATION?

The budget request to the Eighty-Third Congress reduced FHA county offices from about 1,600 to 1,500. State and national staffs were reduced by 40%. The result was to eliminate technical engineering experience almost entirely. The farm appraisal assistance (so necessary to protection of small farmers) was transferred to less qualified personnel and its future quality and dependability imperilled. The last of the home supervisors were eliminated.

WHAT ARE THE BUDGET RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE ADMINISTRATION TO THE EIGHTY-FOURTH CONGRESS?

This year the Administration recognized to some extent the danger to quality of service and asked for a 4% increase (approximately) in the item for salaries and expenses.

However, again this year, the Administration proposed cuts in the Farm Ownership direct loan funds. The request is for $13 million, a reduction of $6 million. This is another step in the direction of cutting out direct government loans and giving the business to private banks and insurance companies.

WHAT IS THE REASON FOR COMBINING CREDIT AND TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE TO THE FARMER BORROWER AND HIS WIFE?

Technical assistance is necessary to insure that credit is useful to the farmer borrower. FHA is set up to furnish credit to those who cannot get it elsewhere. Some applicants have not been able to get credit elsewhere because their past farming practices have not been adequate. Technical assistance in planning, improving and adjusting, helps to insure the success of the farm plans. Follow up supervision to correct deficiencies in operations is a boon to the farmer and his wife and increases the likelihood that the loan will be repaid as planned and that the farmer will "graduate" to conventional credit.

Beside reducing technical assistance in quantity and quality the Administration budget reduced it in kind. All home supervisors were cut out of the budget although the farm woman's work and management is a major factor in the economic success of a farm. One person has been retained on the staff of the national office to work with State extension staffs in drawing upon home demonstration services.

WHERE DOES FARM HOUSING COME IN?

A farm housing program is an essential part of the Farmers Home Administration program. The agency has had limited loan funds at its disposal for this purpose under the Housing Act of 1949. Housing has been one of the most appreciated services. Farm housing, both dwellings and other buildings, are important to the success and stability of the farm family and family farm. A decent, safe and sanitary home is essential. The homemaker's efficiency is increased and she can rear a family of better citizens in pleasant, comfortable and efficient surroundings. Improved farm buildings or new ones, if properly planned, designed, and constructed, add to the farmer's efficiency, and cut costs. The gross net income is usually increased.

The authorization for a farm housing program in the Housing Act of 1949 expired on June 30, 1954. The Secretary of Agriculture originally planned to ask the 83rd Congress for farm housing funds. The Bureau of the Budget said "No" offering as a reason that the authorization to make farm housing loans had expired. The Administration budget therefore omitted any request to the Eighty-Third Congress for farm housing loan funds. Bills were introduced by Senator Sparkman and Representative Jones of Alabama to extend the expired authority. The Department of Agriculture recommended that these bills should not be passed and fought them persistently. The argument of the Department of Agriculture was that if the interest rate were raised private lenders would furnish ample funds for an extended farm real estate loan program.

In spite of the opposition of the Department of Agriculture, the Housing Act of 1954 included Farm Housing. After it was passed the Department did not ask for loan funds to implement the provisions. The new administrator of the Farmers Home Administration, appointed by the Secretary of Agriculture, and the Department were asked for recommendations as to loans after the Housing Act had been passed. They replied "no loans are necessary. We will assist more farmers with an expanded farm ownership loan program". Because the Department asked for no loan funds, the Congress failed to appropriate any to carry on the farm housing program.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED BECAUSE THERE IS NO FARM HOUSING PROGRAM?

The Department of Agriculture and the Farmers Home Administration have received hundreds of inquiries and requests concerning loans to farmers for housing. The official reply is that although no funds were appropriated for farm housing loans as such, the Congress and the Farmers Home Administration have done the following two things to bridge the gap:

First: Congress authorized an increase in the interest rate. Farmers Home Administration Administrator McLeaish immediately raised the interest rate a full one percent, even though many state directors, including newly appointed Republican state directors, declared a ½% increase would be ample to induce private lenders to make the funds available for insured mortgage farm ownership loans. Administrator McLeaish reduced it later to ½%.

WHAT INTEREST DO THESE ACTS OF THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE HAVE FOR FARMERS?

The increase in the interest rate is a contribution (that the farmer must pay) to the bankers and the insurance companies. Since announcing the increase the Farmers Home Administration has been flooded with offers of money for the making of insured loans. Lending agencies find this plan to their advantage. Small farmers pay the bill.

It is true that more funds will be available for loans than Congress would authorize. Many believe however that the interest rate was increased more than was necessary to attract lenders.

Furthermore, the building improvement loans, in order to meet the requirements of the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act must be made only on efficient family type farms. Therefore approximately 2,000,000 farms in America will not qualify. Many of these are just the farms that need building improvement. Also the part-time farmer, or city worker living in the country on a few acres, will not qualify, and this group of American citizens will not have available to them any form of governmental assistance in solving their housing problems.

IS IT SENSIBLE TO TRY TO HELP FARMERS WITH NO CAPITAL TO GET STARTED IN THESE DAYS OF HIGH CAPITAL REQUIREMENTS?

In these days of high capital requirements, inflation and rising interest rates, an empty-handed farmer or GI could not meet principal and interest payments on the debt he would incur if he borrowed all it takes to get established in farming. However, it does make sense for our government to lend a helping hand to those who can save some cash or acquire some livestock and equipment but who cannot yet obtain adequate conventional credit.

WHY SET UP MORE FARMERS IN BUSINESS WHEN WE ALREADY HAVE SURPLUSES OF FOOD AND FIBRE?

The issue is not of setting up more farmers. Farmers Home Administration credit is designed to strengthen and preserve the family farm as an American institution by furnishing family farmers with adequate credit, at rates and terms they can meet, so as to become fully successful and not have to sell out to a large operator or corporation farm enterprise. The productive acres of America should be fully utilized by sound farming systems, which permit the use of soil conserving practices, rather than by farmers who are forced to "mine the soil" in order to live and meet debt payments. America's productive acres, farmed in a manner which will conserve the soil, will maintain our heritage and preserve that indispensable resource. They will also produce amply for our needs but not over abundantly, if our growing population is fully employed and in a position to purchase a healthful, adequate diet.

WHY HAS CONGRESS BEEN SO THRIFTY WITH THE FARMERS HOME ADMINISTRATION?

That is a question only the Congressmen can answer, but a few guesses might be offered.

Congress always has many members who fail to agree that the government should appropriate funds for a "sociological" purpose to benefit a group of Americans.

Some Congressmen, particularly those devoted to balancing the budget, have looked with disfavor on appropriating loan funds, even though they are loans and will be repaid. They have looked at the total Department of Agriculture appropriation and seen the Farmers Home Administration loan funds as a good place to make a budget cutting gesture. Many members of the Congress also believe that private credit and insured loans are the answer rather than the direct appropriation of loan funds.

It is possible that some Congressmen are influenced by large farm operators who would like to get control of more farms through the failure of smaller less well capitalized farms. It is to be noted in this connection that the low income farmers of the United States are, of all groups, least able to speak for themselves and exert influence upon the government.

QUESTION: IS THE FARMERS HOME ADMINISTRATION NOW A PROGRAM FOR SMALL AND LOW-INCOME FARMERS?

This is the loan picture:

Direct farm ownership loans are for veterans only.
Insured bank farm ownership loans require the farmer to have a 10% equity or make a 10% down payment. The operators of two million American farms cannot qualify.
The interest rate has been raised to $4\frac{1}{2}$%.

May I call your attention to the enclosed legislative analysis of reclamation bills prepared for us by our research consultant, Charles H. Slayman, Jr.?

Because irrigation is the coming thing in humid as well as arid regions, the breakdown of reclamation law would set us well along on the way to land monopoly in the United States.

NATIONAL COUNCIL ON AGRICULTURAL LIFE AND LABOR
1751 N STREET N.W. WASHINGTON 6, D.C.

LEGISLATIVE NEWS LETTER

FOREWORD: This is the time and place for friends of the family farm policy of the Reclamation Act to stop bad bills that have been introduced in the Senate and House. The bills can be stopped in committee. The idea of these bills is "local participation" rather than the normal way of developing reclamation projects under the Reclamation Act. No need has been shown for this change.

ANALYSIS OF RECLAMATION PROJECTS CURRENTLY BEFORE THE IRRIGATION AND RECLAMATION SUBCOMMITTEES of the United States Senate and House Committees on Interior and Insular Affairs

Prepared by
CHARLES H. SLAYMAN JR.
Research Consultant to NCALL

Family Farm proponents and supporters of existing national policy against unrestricted federal aid to large landholders, should be concerned, and register their views with their Senators and Representatives, about several "local participation" bills currently before the Irrigation and Reclamation subcommittees of both the United States Senate and House Committees on Interior and Insular Affairs.

These bills propose federal financial (and other) assistance in non-federal projects and local participation in federal projects in the seventeen western states. A similar proposal was stopped in the Senate in the last Congress after passing the House without any debate. Witnesses for these bills, in the last Congress and this one, are not identified as supporters of federal reclamation.

There has been no clear showing of the need for this program which would be authorized to the extent of one hundred million dollars.

At present, it is difficult to say whether the proposal in final form would make available federal funds on an interest-free basis.

With one exception, these new bills: i.e. HR.384; S.164; S.405, ignore established public power preference clauses (so vital to municipalities and non-profit cooperative organizations) and excess lands provisions (so vital to prevent federal aid to owners of lands in excess of 160 acres). Thus, without any mention of these cornerstones of national land and water policy, these bills would seriously undermine basic reclamation law.

The exception referred to is H.R. 104, introduced by Representative Engle of California, powerful chairman of the full House committee. His bill would require any contract of the federal government with local irrigation districts to "... conform to the provisions of the Federal reclamation laws with respect to repayment contracts entered into with irrigation districts and the delivery of water thereunder..." but very cautious observers in Washington feel even this provision is subject to misinterpretation by officials not dedicated to protection of the excess lands law.

A further troubling feature of these bills is that the $5 million to be advanced by the Federal government may be for a "unit" or "feature" of a project, thus opening the door to federal financing for several units or features. If this situation occurred, the ceiling of $5 million per project in the bills would be rendered a nullity.

In addition to one's own Representative and two U.S. Senators, the following should hear the views of individuals and organizations:

Senator James E. Murray Chairman, Senate Interior and Insular Affairs Committee
Senator Clinton P. Anderson Chairman, Irrigation and Reclamation Subcommittee
Senator Henry M. Jackson Member " " " "
Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney " " " " "
Senator Richard L. Neuberger Member of the full committee

Dear Mrs. Herring:

I am engaged in a process, stretching over some weeks, of getting a workable manuscript toward a pamphlet on this business of written leases. Lewis Jones at Tuskegee wrote me one which is pretty good, but not quite it.

Would the NCALL like to take over from me the whole job of producing such a pamphlet and getting it out?

I haven't got any money to go with the job; I just have the notion.

Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Dr. Mitchell:

We had a fine conference and took up many cosmic matters. Father Shean was here when we discussed the written lease issue and was most helpful. When the stenotypist record comes back, I will send you some excerpts from the discussion. My immediate objective is to get out some recommendations about legislation to our members.

As you probably noted, Senator Sparkman has introduced a bill in behalf of small farmers and is one up on the President. The story is that the President's message will be due any day. It remains to be seen.

Next we will try to do some brief policy papers on some of the issues raised at the conference. As you can imagine, in a short conference like that, all we could do was to give the topic sentences for a lot of issues. One which needed expansion was the increase in the interest rate for Farmers Home Administration clients. There are many others that need to be expanded if our folks are going to know what to make out of them. I want to do a piece on action in relation to the written lease issue. I sent the paper you wrote to our entire mailing list. I want to follow that up now with some more detailed proposals.

I know you are burdened with too much to do so that is only a request to put in the back of your mind. If any ideas occur to you for getting action in this field, in addition to those mentioned in the material you sent to me, I shall be grateful for them.

With best wishes,

Sincerely yours,

Elizabeth B. Herring

MINUTES OF THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS

NATIONAL COUNCIL ON AGRICULTURAL LIFE AND LABOR

New York City

April 20, 1955

The Annual Meeting of the Board of Directors of NCALL was held on Tuesday, April 19, 1955 at the National Council of the Protestant Episcopal Church, 289 Fourth Avenue, New York City from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Those present were: Dr. Dawson, Chairman, Mr. Greene, Vice-Chairman, Mrs. Zimand, Secretary, Miss Bennett, Mr. de Francis, Dr. Landis, Miss Lowry, Mrs. Warburton, Mrs. Munn of the National Social Welfare Assembly (guest) and Miss Herring, Executive Secretary.

The following, who had asked to be excused, sent proxies: Miss Morton, Mr. Norman and Mr. Fleischman.

The Minutes of the meeting of December 14, 1954 were approved as sent out.

The Minutes of the meeting of the Executive Committee of April 17, 1955, were read and approved.

TREASURER'S REPORT

In the absence of Mr. Schiff, the Treasurer's Report was presented by Miss Herring. A copy is attached. The report was accepted with an expression of appreciation to Miss Herring for having continued her work without salary payments.

Appreciation was also expressed to the Council for Social Action of the Congregational Christian Churches for having cancelled NCALL's indebtedness to them.

REPORT OF THE EXECUTIVE SECRETARY

Miss Elizabeth Herring presented her report as Executive Secretary. She developed for consideration in planning the program of NCALL a four-point formula which she characterized as related aspects of the basic agricultural problem with which NCALL is concerned:

1. To civilize agricultural labor conditions as they now exist.

2. To work out a real strategy on foreign labor.

3. To develop a concrete program for small farms (low income). (The Sparkman bill was mentioned in this connection.)

4. To develop a framework for family farms. (The Humphrey bill was mentioned in this connection.)

Bearing in mind this four-point approach, she made three recommendations:

1. That there be annual program planning to select the points for emphasis each year, and that publications and programs be geared to this selection.

2. That one day meetings to discuss developments and strategy, with regard to the points selected for emphasis, be substituted for the two-day spring conference.

3. That there be a review of proposed or desirable studies of basic agricultural problems with a view to securing the interest of foundations in supporting such research.

Considerable discussion of strategy followed, especially in relation to the Sparkman and Humphrey bills.

The Board was impressed with the thoughtfulness and significance of Miss Herring's report and asked her to put it in writing so that it could be sent with the Minutes to all members of the Board.

IT WAS VOTED that general approval be given to Miss Herring's analysis and proposals and that the Executive Committee be authorized to work with her on plans to develop ways and means of putting the program into effect.

ESTABLISHMENT OF SEPARATE EDUCATIONAL DIVISION

IT WAS VOTED to confirm the action of the Executive Committee in setting up an Educational Division of NCALL which would be concerned entirely with research and education.

REPORT OF THE NOMINATING COMMITTEE

SUMMARY OF REPORT OF THE EXECUTIVE SECRETARY

Because this is the Annual Meeting of NCALL I shall stress some considerations which I think may help us as we plan the program of NCALL in the future.

The member organizations of NCALL have joined the Council with a variety of interests in mind. These differences of approach arise out of the different purposes of the organizations. Some are primarily concerned with labor problems, others with general agrarian policy, others with religious, educational and cultural considerations. In view of this diversity, by what principle shall we decide what to do?

My suggestion is that we need a fundamental idea which is valid for all of us and which helps us not only to select wisely but provides an adequate theoretical framework within which we can operate with a clear idea of what we are doing. This seems to me quite possible. Agriculture does, of course, present a multitude of apparently separate issues. But the longer I live in Washington the more convinced I am of the underlying unity of apparently diverse farm problems.

For example, as a matter of convenience, we sometimes refer to "the family farm" and "farm labor" as two separate issues. That land tenure and farm labor systems are part and parcel of one another is well illustrated in Lloyd Fisher's book, "The Harvest Labor Market in California." He says: "The evidence is convincing that the present character of California agriculture is a direct response to the volume and character of the supply of agricultural labor. Originally a grain and cattle country small experiments in intensive farming were a great success. As early as 1849, during the Constitutional Convention, the delegates were sharply divided into pro-slavery and anti-slavery factions. The case for slavery consisted, in the main, of the need for a cheap and docile labor supply in order to realize the potentialities of California agriculture. Subsequent developments were to provide a free labor force on terms which competed favorably with slavery."

In NCALL we sense the relationships between types of farm problems and we are feeling toward an articulate philosophy as to the kind of agricultural establishment we want in America. We are getting warm in our search for a fundamental idea to guide us. This growing view of American agriculture seems to call for four interdependent programs.

I. To civilize farm labor conditions as much as possible.
   This is essential because people live but once and because efforts to meet the needs of farm labor awaken the public conscience.

2. To work out a philosophy and a strategy on foreign farm labor.
   Opposition to bad proposals should be complemented by good proposals which safeguard risks to land tenure and farm labor in this country while taking just account of the situation of the foreign countries.

3. To develop a concrete program for low-production, low income farms.

   This is essential because of the inherent rights of human beings and also because of the existence of pools of rural poverty undermines the status of farm labor and creates many general social ills. The Sparkman-Patman bills present a good formula.

4. To develop a framework for family farms.

   The Humphrey bill "To state explicitly the long-standing national policy to preserve and strengthen the family-farm pattern of American agriculture" is a statement of the kind of agricultural establishment the sponsors of the bill wish in America and proposed devices for strengthening that establishment. Some such framework as that provided in this bill is essential to long range solution of the farm labor, foreign farm labor and low income farm problems mentioned in programs 1, 2 and 3.

If then we accept some such statement of the four principal ingredients in our goal for American agriculture, how shall be proceed in any particular year?

I suggest that keeping these four ingredients in mind we do three things each year:

1. That we institute an annual program planning process to select the points for emphasis, and that publications and programs be geared primarily to this selection.

2. That we substitute for our annual two-day conference, one day meetings to discuss developments and strategy with respect to the points chosen for emphasis for the year. Beside the members of NCALL,persons with something to contribute to discussion of the problem would be invited to attend.

3. That there be a review from time to time of proposed or desirable studies of basic agricultural problems with a view to securing the interest of foundations in supporting such research. These studies might or might not be conducted under the auspices of NCALL.

In concluding these comments on how we might go about it to decide what to do, I would like to suggest that the Sparkman-Patman and Humphrey bills just mentioned provide us with a springboard for working on our major interests. I would also like to suggest that if the organizations represented in NCALL do not get back of these bills, I do not know who will. I propose that we give major attention to these bills in the first and second sessions of the 84th Congress.

PROPOSALS FROM THE APPRAISAL COMMITTEE FOR BOARD DISCUSSION

I. PROGRAM

NCALL should state in simple terms its concern for the welfare of farm workers, migrant and resident and for small family farmers. Specific issues as they arise should receive attention. An elaborate, all-inclusive program is not needed.

2. PARTICIPATION OF MEMBER ORGANIZATIONS

Member organizations should keep NCALL informed of issues on which support of others is desirable so that joint action can be planned.

Newly affiliated member organizations should be brought into closer participation in NCALL (might discuss this at Annual Conference)

Organizations whose NCALL board representatives are based in Washington should be asked to designate alternates in New York to insure fuller participation of member organizations in both Washington and New York meetings.

3. MEMBERSHIP, PROMOTION AND FUND-RAISING

Associate membership should be established. Promotion should take place through normal channels of correspondence and publications. Large scale promotion should not be undertaken.

A Big Gifts Committee should be set up. Board members would be asked to give names for special approach. A special labor department of the Big Gifts Committee should be formed.

Funds should be sought for a new special project after the Migrant Education project is completed; such as, health of migrant workers.

ADDITIONAL PROPOSALS FOR THE FUTURE MADE BY INDIVIDUALS

I. That a Washington unit of the Associates (and possibly a New York unit) should be formed to assist with fund raising or other projects as needed, such as a dinner.

2. That the persons approved by the Board to be invited to serve as members of an Advisory Committee be considered Associates instead and that they be invited from time to time to act as sponsors for fund raising or other projects.

3. That the Board choose a limited number of projects each year for special emphasis (assuming that the general keeping-track of Washington work would go on always).

4. That instead of the Annual two-day conference, one day meetings be called in the future when they are needed to carry out the special projects chosen by the Board.

Dear Doctor Mitchell:

The enclosed material about the low income farm hearings speaks for itself.

If you have inspirations as to who would be good people for us to ask to testify, would you let me know?

I have written Father Shean asking him the same question.

The emphasis will be so heavily on the South that we want to be sure that we have thoroughly competent people with up to date knowledge. Your advice will be most gratefully received.

LOW INCOME FARM LEGISLATION

The NCALL Executive Committee, at its meeting yesterday, agreed that the following information should be sent to all member organizations requesting information as to which organizations would like to help with forthcoming hearings on low income farm bills and in what ways they will be able to do so.

THE STATUS OF LOW INCOME FARM LEGISLATION NOW BEFORE THE CONGRESS

President Eisenhower sent a message to Congress on April 27 calling for a program with low income farm families. It is expected that bills embodying the recommendations of the President will be introduced this week.

Senator Sparkman and Representative Patman, on February 23, 1955, introduced bills to set up "The Family Farm Development Act" (S.1199 and HR 4300). These bills are designed to aid low income farmers.

THE ADMINISTRATION AND SPARKMAN PROPOSALS OFFER THE BEST OPPORTUNITY IN YEARS FOR FRIENDS OF LOW INCOME FARMERS TO HELP GET SOMETHING ACCOMPLISHED.

Since the member organizations of NCALL are those most likely to have a concern for low income farmers, a special responsibility rests upon us. In what ways can we help?

THE SENATE AGRICULTURE COMMITTEE IS EXPECTED TO APPOINT A SUB-COMMITTEE WHICH WILL CONDUCT HEARINGS ON THE LOW-INCOME FARM BILLS
The expected procedure is:

1. Preliminary hearings during this session of Congress (soon).
2. Field hearings in the fall.
3. Fullscale hearings in the second session of Congress (early 1956).

WOULD YOUR ORGANIZATIONS LIKE TO APPEAR AT THE PRELIMINARY HEARINGS?

It is not necessary to endorse either the Administration or Sparkman bills at these preliminary hearings. It is very important that religious, educational and civic organizations should testify, however, as to their interest in the subject, some of the principles and goals which they think legislation should embody.

WILL YOU PLEASE REPLY AS TO WHETHER YOU CAN HELP WITH THE PRELIMINARY HEARINGS (IF THEY ARE CALLED) TO

Mr. Charles H. Slayman, Jr.
Research Consultant for NCALL

MATERIALS ARE AVAILABLE TO HELP IN PREPARATION OF TESTIMONY
ON
LOW INCOME FARM LEGISLATION

Member organizations wishing to appear or file statements when the preliminary hearings are held will receive a kit of explanatory material. Mr. Charles H. Slayman, Research Consultant for NCALL, 2715 Cortland Place, N.W., Washington 8, D.C., will send the material on request. (Please write directly to Mr. Slayman rather than to the NCALL office.)

Some essential documents can be secured by writing to House and Senate Document rooms in the Capitol for them.

House Document No. 149 DEVELOPMENT OF AGRICULTURE'S HUMAN RESOURCES is the Report on Problems of Low-Income Farmers prepared for the Secretary of Agriculture by the United States Department of Agriculture. The Administration's recommendations are based on this study. (The study can also be secured in pamphlet form from the Superintendent of Documents, US Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D.C. 25¢)

At this writing the Administration bills have not yet been introduced so the numbers cannot be given.

"The Family Farm Development Act", the low-income farm bill introduced by Senator Sparkman and Representative Patman can be secured by writing the Document Rooms. The identical bills are S. 1199 and HR 4300.

Member Organizations are urged to write directly for these documents because NCALL is not able to secure enough copies for all its members.

NUMBER 23 MAY 1955

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE NCALL BOARD OF DIRECTORS HELD IN NEW YORK, APRIL 19, 1955

The annual meeting provided an occasion for appraising the activities of NCALL up to this point and taking a look at the future.

It was recognized that for all the bewildering variety of agricultural issues, there is an underlying interdependence between these issues. NCALL has been interested in measures to strengthen the position of family farmers and to improve farm labor standards. An illustration of how these issues are tied together was given from Lloyd H. Fisher's book, "The Harvest Labor Market in California" (Harvard University Press, $3.50). Mr. Fisher says:

> "The evidence is convincing that the present character of California agriculture is a direct response to the volume and character of the supply of agricultural labor. Originally a grain and cattle country, small experiments in intensive farming were a great success. As early as 1849, during the Constitutional Convention, the delegates were sharply divided into pro-slavery and anti-slavery factions. The case for slavery consisted, in the main, of the need for a cheap and docile labor supply in order to realize the potentialities of California agriculture. Subsequent developments were to provide a free labor force on terms which competed favorably with slavery."

The availability of this cheap labor supply has stimulated the growth of industrialized agriculture. A 1950 Department of Agriculture study of farm sizes and agricultural efficiency shows that on the large scale corporation farms in California less capital is combined with a unit of labor than on the adequate sized family farms. The labor used is thus less efficient on these large scale farms than on well rounded family farms. Other studies show that where labor is cheaper than machinery, the corporation farmer does not nechanize as much as the family farmer but continues to make his profits from low paid manual labor.

In other words, land tenure (family farming or corporation farming, etc.) and farm labor systems are part and parcel of one another. With this in mind the NCALL Board of Directors considered a four-point formula of related aspects of the basic agricultural problem with which NCALL is concerned: i.e. the need

1. To civilize agricultural labor conditions as they exist.

2. To work out a real strategy on foreign labor.

3. To develop a concrete program for low income farms (See Sparkman-Patman bills mentioned later).

4. To develop a framework for family farms (See Humphrey bill mentioned later).

Bearing in mind this four-point approach, the Board agreed to undertake three types of action in the period ahead:

1. Annual Program Planning to select the points of emphasis and to gear publications and programs to this selection.

2. Conduct one-day meetings (as a substitute for the two-day annual conference) to discuss developments with respect to the points selected for emphasis.

3. Review proposed or desirable studies of basic agricultural problems with a view to securing the interest of foundations in supporting such research.

"INDIVIDUAL MEMBERS" TO HAVE A NEW NAME: I.E., "ASSOCIATES"

At the Annual Meeting it was voted to amend the by-laws of NCALL to substitute the term "associates" for the term "individual members". Individual members (as distinguished from the 34 national and regional "organizational members") are sprinkled throughout the 48 states and have been a source of encouragement, information and good ideas as well as financial support. In changing the name to "Associates", the Board felt it was adopting a term which described the cooperating relationship more accurately. The Board reaffirmed its faith in the great value of having "Associates" from all parts of the country who are in close contact with the problems and situations which are the concern of NCALL.

NCALL WILL CONDUCT A CAMPAIGN FOR AN ENLARGED BUDGET IN THE FALL

Most of NCALL's too limited budget is provided by contributions from its thirty-four national and regional member organizations. In these days when most good deeds are done in cooperation with somebody else the pressure is great upon national organizational budgets for funds to support cooperative endeavour. Therefore the Board of Directors has authorized plans for raising special gifts from individuals who have a vision about what it means to maintain a sound, democratic and humane agriculture in America.

Dear Associates, who do you know like that? Will you please send any names that occur to you, to Elizabeth B. Herring, Executive Secretary of NCALL, 1751 N Street, N. W., Washington 6, D. C.?

LEGISLATIVE OUTLOOK

SENATE HEARINGS EXPECTED SOON ON PROPOSED LOW INCOME FARM LEGISLATION

The expected message from President Eisenhower proposing a program with low income farmers was received by the Congress on April 27. The President's recommendations were based on a study conducted by the Department of Agriculture during the last year. NCALL was one of the national groups which participated in making suggestions in connection with this study. It is expected that bills embodying the recommendations of the President will be introduced soon.

The Sparkman-Patman bills for a "Farm Development Act" which would aid low-income farmers in fundamental ways were mentioned in the April issue of the NCALL bulletin.

When the Administration bills have been introduced they will be analyzed by NCALL in relation to the proposals of the Sparkman-Patman bills.

In the meantime, some information can be secured by writing to the House of Representatives for "House Document No. 149 DEVELOPMENT OF AGRICULTURE'S HUMAN RESOURCES". This is the study of the problems of low income farmers prepared for the Secretary of Agriculture by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The Administration's recommendations are based on this study. (The study can also be secured in pamphlet form from the Superintendent of Documents, The Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C. -- 25¢.)

The bills for "The Family Farm Development Act", the low-income farm bill introduced by Senator Sparkman and Rep. Patman can be secured from the Senate and House Document Rooms. The identical bills are S. 1199 and HR. 4300.

THE SENATE AGRICULTURE COMMITTEE IS EXPECTED TO APPOINT A SUB-COMMITTEE WHICH WILL CONDUCT THE HEARINGS ON THE LOW INCOME FARM BILLS

The expected procedure is:
1. Preliminary hearings soon, during this session of Congress.
2. Field hearings in the fall.
3. Full scale hearings in the second session of Congress. (early 1956)

WOULD YOUR ORGANIZATION LIKE TO APPEAR AT THE LOW INCOME FARM HEARINGS?

The members and associates of NCALL are among the organizations and persons who over the years have maintained a sustained and informed interest in the problems of low income farm families. This places a special responsibility upon us to register our views in the Hearings. As we all know, low income farmers are not in a good position to speak for themselves.

If you would like to testify (or file a statement) at the preliminary hearings to be held soon will you please write to Mr. Charles H. Slayman, Jr., Research Consultant for NCALL, 2715 Cortland Place, N. W., Washington 8, D. C. Mr. Slayman will send you a kit of material to help in the preparation of testimony.

At the preliminary hearings, it will not be necessary to take a position for or against particular bills. It is very important, however, that religious, educational, labor and civic organizations should testify as to their interest in the subject, and the principles and goals which they think legislation should embody.

THE SENATE SUB-COMMITTEE WHICH CONDUCTS HEARINGS ON LOW INCOME FARM LEGISLATION IS EXPECTED TO CONSIDER THE FAMILY FARM RESOLUTION S. J. Res. 20 INTRODUCED BY SENATOR HUMPHREY.

This bill (described in the April NCALL Bulletin) "to state explicitly the long-standing national policy to preserve and strengthen the family-farm pattern of American agriculture" would strengthen the position of all family farmers, adequate or low-income, and provide an essential framework for successful programs with low-income farmers.

The Administration has taken a negative position on this bill. As is customary, the Chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, Senator Ellender, asked for the opinion of the U. S. Department of Agriculture about S. J. Res. 20. The reply to Senator Ellender signed by Acting Secretary True D. Morse says that the Department recommends against passage of the bill "for the reasons set forth below". Among the reasons are two which are especially revealing as to the economic philosophy back of the negative position of the Department. Since Mr. Morse as Under-Secretary has been designated by Secretary Benson to head up the Department's work with low-income farmers, his criteria will affect the success of the program.

In connection with a section on low-income farms, Mr. Morse says: "The meaning of the term "economically adequate" family farms is not clear. The Department feels that some differences in income and living standards will occur from time to time and are needed to encourage resource adjustments". Does Mr. Morse mean that we should not try to bring low-income farmers up to an adequate level (or only some low-income farmers) so that some would be forced out of the farming business?

Another comment raises an interesting religious question: i. e., the status of every human being as a child of God. Mr. Morse refers to one section described in the bill as the "family farmers bill of rights". "This section classifies improved standards of rural living as a right," says Morse. "We feel that a more constructive approach would be in terms of the right for equal or full opportunity for achieving improved standards of living".

A LARGE SUPPLY OF LOW-PAID MEXICAN FARM LABOR IS INCREASING THE PRESSURE OF CORPORATION FARMERS UPON THE IRRIGATION POLICY OF THE UNITED STATES. (The Excess Lands Policy of the National Reclamation Act). On page one of this Bulletin an illustration is given of how large supplies of "cheap labor" for the last hundred years have stimulated the growth of corporation farming in California. The present easy flow of almost unlimited supplies of contract Mexican labor under the auspices and partly at the expense of the U. S. Government, is increasing the Gold Rush psychology of corporation farmers. Owners of large acreages of desert land are showing unparalleled ingenuity in trying to break down the federal law which says that limited irrigation water (produced at public expense) shall be divided up fairly among American citizens (enough to irrigate 320 acres, i. e., 160 each for the farmer and his wife.)

Members and Associates of NCALL who are interested in farm labor standards and in fair treatment of family farmers may wish to write to their Congressmen disapproving HR 5581 introduced by Representative Clair Engle of California. This bill is one of the most ingenious efforts to date to supplant Federal Reclamation law without seeming to. Unfortunately the bill was not stopped in committee. It represents a consolidation of a whole series of bills introduced in this session to circumvent Reclamation law.

Congressman Engle, who is chairman of the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, explained the idea frankly and without embarrassment in committee hearings. He said: "I grant you, you start kicking the 160 acre limitation and it is like inspecting the rear end of a mule: You want to do it from a safe distance because you might get kicked through the side of the barn. But it can be done with circumspection, and I hope we can exercise circumspection."

"So I simply provided an alternative procedure.....it is easier to do it this way than it is to try to change that acreage limitation....."

Lloyd Halvorson of the National Grange replied (in part) to Congressman Engle that his alternative plan "might still mean that the Federal Government is practically promoting a corporate type of agriculture where you keep a number of people employed as hired men rather than as owner-operators and tenants in a community."

WHAT ARE THE PROPOSALS OF CONGRESSMAN ENGLE'S BILL?

STATED PURPOSE

The stated purpose of HR 5881 is "To supplement the Federal Reclamation Laws by providing for Federal cooperation in non-Federal projects and for participation by non-Federal agencies in Federal projects."

CONTENT OF THE BILL

The bill provides for Federal assistance through loans and technical services to non-Federal agencies, while relieving the latter of some of the key requirements of the Reclamation Act.

1. It by-passes the requirement of Reclamation law with respect to limiting the amount of water supplied to any one farmer.

While by-passing the limitation it also extends to large scale owners of "Excess Lands" the use of government credit for irrigating those excess lands. The bill provides that the government loans offered to non-federal agencies for reclamation projects shall be at the interest rate "paid on the long-term interest-bearing marketable securities of the United States." This rate is about 2.3%.

2. The bill also provides that when "commercial power" is produced as an aspect of a project that this "commercial power" will also have the benefit of the low government long-term interest rate. Federal law with respect to the way public power is distributed would be jeopardized by this provision. Federal law requires that where power is produced at the taxpayers' expense that "preference" shall be given to municipal power systems and rural electric cooperatives before it is sold to commercial companies operating the distribution of electric power for profit.

3. The bill appears to limit the type of project to be financed through loans to non-federal agencies to "small projects" costing from $5 million to $10 million. However, a clause is included which says that this lending limit may be interpreted to apply to a "distinct unit" of an irrigation project. In other words, with a little ingenuity a $100 million project could be divided up into "distinct units" so that loans would be forthcoming for the total job.

With this interpretation, it may be seen that this so-called "small projects" bill is actually a substitute for the Reclamation Act providing all the comforts of federal loans and technical services while being relieved of the obligations of federal law with respect to dividing the water fairly (Excess lands provision and other items).

4. The bill by-passes Congressional approval of reclamation projects in several ways leaving the real decision in the hands of the Secretary of the Interior. The committee Report 481 which accompanied HR 5581 makes it plain that the Secretary of the Interior did not ask for this increase in power, but that the Congressmen supporting this bill thought it would be easier to get the projects through if Congressional approval were unnecessary.

5. The bill provides no formula for distributing the costs of a multipurpose project (irrigation, flood control, power, etc.) between the various elements in it. For example, there is no formula for showing how much of the cost should be repaid by the farmers who use irrigation water and how much of the cost should be carried permanently by the federal government for the flood control aspects of the project.

6. By providing for negotiation with only one state, the bill by-passes river basin planning -- water is no respecter of state lines and both hydraulics and justice require inter-state agreements.

IN SUMMARY

Supporters of the anti-monopoly, anti-speculation and family farm policies of the Reclamation Act oppose H.R. 5881 for five reasons:

The Excess Lands provision which aids family farmers is by-passed and the Federal Government is actually supposed to give large growers extremely low credit to develop the excess lands.

The prior claims of non-profit farmer and municipal electric systems are by-passed and low government credit is offered to "Commercial Power", when power as well as irrigation is produced by a project.

The Reclamation Act as a whole is undermined by this "small projects" bill because there are loopholes by which very large projects can get the federal help provided.

Congressional approval of projects is by-passed, leaving the power of decision with the Secretary of the Interior. In this way public opinion cannot be registered effectively.

The costs of the project and distribution of those costs would be subject to no clear formula. Land monopolists would thus be aided in getting re-payment arrangements which would amont to additional subsidy from the Federal Government (which means the taxpayers).

BY ADMINISTRATIVE DECISION THE SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE DISCONTINUED MOST HOME ECONOMIC RESEARCH. This order transferred home economics and vocational agriculture funds to food and nutrition research primarily useful to business firms for marketing and processing.

The services cut out were research relating to household equipment and appliances and to selection, construction or reconditioning of clothing and textile articles, also the preparation and publication of bulletins on these subjects. These are the services that have been essential to farm homemakers, and have helped urban homemakers and consumers in general. The Department of Agriculture said that the information on equipment and appliances was unnecessary because consumers could ask the manufacturers about them.

This cut created a tremendous reaction in the Congress. Amendments were introduced in the Senate and House and passed. The effect of the amendments was to instruct the Secretary of Agriculture to restore a reasonable proportion of the research funds for their original purposes. The conferees, at this writing, have agreed.

One good result of the episode has been the agreement of the Department of Agriculture to appoint a representative advisory committee to study the Home Economics Research program and make recommendations as to what should be emphasized. If this committee is representative and is animated by the public interest, the Home Economics Research program may benefit greatly.

"THE PRESIDENT'S COMMITTEE ON MIGRATORY LABOR" IS THE NEW NAME FOR THE "INTERDEPARTMENTAL COMMITTEE ON MIGRATORY LABOR".

The Committee this year as last consists of the Secretaries of Labor, Agriculture, Interior, Health, Education and Welfare, and the Administrator of the Housing and Home Finance Agency. The Committee was established last year by the President to provide a coordinated Federal approach to activities that will improve the social and economic welfare of migratory farm workers and their families.

The Secretary of Labor is chairman of the President's Committee and Mr. Henry K. Arneson is the secretary. Mr. Arneson replaces Mr. William von Seggern who resigned recently to become an agricultural attache in overseas service. Mr. Arneson, whose home is in Wisconsin, has previouslv held positions at both the national and regional level in the Employment Service and during the war was the Director of the Arizona State Employment Service.

While the official members of the Committee are cabinet officers many others are involved in its active work. Deputies for each cabinet officer have been appointed and the working group includes twenty persons from the various Departments who are carrying on sub-committee projects in the fields of Migrant Housing Supply, Migrant Housing Standards, Field Communications, Transportation, and Formation of State Committees.

A new occasional publication "MIGRATORY LABOR NOTES" will be sent out from time to time by the President's Committee. A copy of the first issue can be secured by writing to Mr. Henry K. Arneson, Executive Secretary, the President's Committee on Migratory Labor, U. S. Department of Labor, Washington 25, D. C. Another available publication of the Committee is STATE MIGRATORY LABOR COMMITTEES Their Purpose and Organization.

FARM LABOR RECEIVES CONSIDERATION BY TWENTY-FIRST CONFERENCE ON STATE LABOR LEGISLATION MAY 11 TO 13, 1955, WASHINGTON, D. C.

The report of the Resolutions Committee, approved by the conference, calls for the inclusion of agricultural labor in minimum wage legislation, and for more emphasis on improvement of conditions in industrialized farming. The Conference called for limiting the program for importing Mexican farm workers to a two-year extension and for safeguarding United States workers in the following ways:

1. Mexican workers should be recruited only when domestic labor is not available at wage rates not less than those prevailing for comparable skills withint the labor market area.

2. In determining both the need for importation of Mexican workers and the wage to be paid, the Secretary of Labor should be required to conduct public hearings in each major crop area or region at which all interested parties are invited to state their views regarding the need for workers and the prevailing wage in each crop area where it is proposed to recruit Mexican workers.

3. Employers should not be permitted to hire Mexican workers until they have first offered United States workers the same conditions as they are willing to make available to Mexican Nationals.

RUSSIAN AGRICULTURISTS ARE COMING TO SEE AMERICAN FAMILY FARMS

According to the papers the Russian farm specialists are coming to see high protein food production in Iowa. A recent article in the New York Times by Loren Soth suggests that they may see something else fully as important.

Mr. Soth, editorial page editor of the Des Moines Register, is the originator of the idea that Russian farmers visit Iowa. He says, "Iowa farm people have welcomed the idea" and he goes on to say who Iowa farm people are:

> Family-type agriculture predominates in the state—that is, practically all the work on Iowa farms is done by members of the operators' families. A good many farmers have hired men, to be sure, and in some cases the hired man is married and lives in a separate house on the farm. But Iowa has hardly any "corporation-style" farms, with large numbers of hired laborers. Mechanization has not created farm "factories," as many had feared.

The Russians may visit other states than Iowa and they may see some corporation farming too, but perhaps that will interest them less because of the resemblance to Russian collective farming about which they are a little disillusioned.

MINUTES OF THE QUARTERLY MEETING OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS

NATIONAL COUNCIL ON AGRICULTURAL LIFE AND LABOR

Washington, D. C.

September 29, 1955

The quarterly meeting of the Board of Directors of NCALL was held on Thursday, September 29, 1955 in Washington, D. C., from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Those present were: Dr. Howard A. Dawson, Chairman; Mr. Shirley E. Greene and Miss Fay Bennett, Vice-Chairmen; Mrs. Amber Arthun Warburton, Secretary; Mr. Philip Schiff, Treasurer; Miss Elizabeth Herring, Executive Secretary; Miss Elizabeth Sutton, Migrant Education Supervisor; Mr. Lyle Cooper, Mr. Paul Sifton, Mr. H. L. Mitchell, Very Rev. Maurice V. Shean, C.O., Mrs. Ada Barnett Stough; (Alternates) Miss Lazelle Alway, Mrs. David Coyle, Miss Eleanor Hadley, Mrs. Olya Margolin, Mr. Christian Norgord, Mrs. R. Grey Smith, Rev. James Vizzard, S. J.

Specially invited guests for the luncheon session were: Mr. Leon H. Keyserling, National Conference on Economic Progress; Mr. Benton J. Stong, Public Affairs Institute; Mr. John Baker and Miss Mabel Snyder, National Farmers Union.

The Minutes of the Annual Meeting of April 20, 1955 were approved as distributed.

The Minutes of the meeting of the Executive Committee of May 17, 1955 were read and approved.

TREASURERS REPORT

Mr. Schiff presented the Treasurer's report. A copy is attached. The report was accepted as presented after serious discussion of the paucity of the financial remuneration to the Executive Secretary as related to the demands which NCALL's program makes upon her.

Miss Herring reported that steps were being taken for setting up the necessary organization for the Big Gifts Campaign authorized by the Annual Meeting. She proposed that it would be forehanded to appoint a Personnel Committee to consider what the staff setup should be when and if the money is available.

There was discussion of how work can be divided among Board Members during the summer months when Miss Herring is away. Dr. Dawson cited as an example of delegation of such responsibilities that he would undertake to follow legislation pertaining to education and the Experimental Project in 50 communities of the Department of Agriculture which would fit into his regular line of duty at the NEA. The suggestion was approved.

REPORT OF THE NCALL RESEARCH FUND

Dr. Dawson requested Mrs. Warburton to read the minutes of the first meeting of the Directors of the newly organized NCALL Research Fund, Inc. held September 21, 1955 in Washington. It was pointed out in connection with the minutes that the creation of the NCALL Research Fund had been accomplished in accordance with action taken at the Annual Meeting of the NCALL on April 20, 1955 and the subsequent Meeting of the Executive Committee on May 17, 1955. Dr. Dawson, Mr. Schiff and Mrs. Ellickson had been delegated to sign the Certificate of Incorporation for the NCALL Research Fund. It is now incorporated and the incorporators elected the members of the Executive Committee of NCALL to serve as Directors for the Fund. NCALL's attorney, Mr. Frank Ketcham, is currently applying for tax exemption for the Fund.

FINANCE COMMITTEE

Miss Herring recommended that the Chairman appoint an Ad Hoc Joint Committee on Financing the NCALL and the NCALL Research Fund. (Voted.) It was suggested that in some cases the list of persons to be solicited for contributions be cleared with helping member organizations to insure against the same persons or groups being requested more than once to contribute to the same project.

NEW RESEARCH PROJECT

At the Annual Meeting of NCALL in April 1955 a new Research Project was proposed by Mrs. Katherine P. Ellickson and discussed. The discussion was continued at the first meeting of the Directors of the Research Fund. The minutes include the following statement: "The project would examine problems arising from differences in living levels of such countries as the United States, Mexico and Jamaica and special attention given to more constructive methods of arranging for the employment of people from those countries in the United States and ways in which those countries can provide better employment opportunity for their own people. The study would collect information on current programs for employment of these people and on comparable programs in other countries such as those in Italy and Belgium."

It was voted at the Research Fund meeting that "Mrs. Ellickson and Mr. Sifton jointly prepare a statement of the problem, objectives of the study, methods to be used and budget required. This statement would be presented at the next meeting of the Research Fund and if approved, submitted to a foundation in seeking financial assistance for carrying through the project."

Approval was voiced by the NCALL Board regarding the need for such a project.

AMENDMENTS TO BY-LAWS

Re: Membership

The NCALL Annual Meeting held in New York, April 20, 1955 voted to accept the recommendation of the Appraisal Committee that a group called "Associates" should be substituted for individual memberships. It was voted that an Amendment to the By-Laws should be drafted to incorporate the change. Miss Fay Bennett presented these changes and they were adopted. (Revised By-Laws enclosed.)

Re: Number of Board Meetings and Annual Conference

Mr. Greene reported the proposals made at the Annual Meeting that the number of required Board Meetings be reduced from four to two and the requirement of an Annual Conference be omitted. Mr. Greene explained that the purpose of the change was to release NCALL time and finances for more one day workshops on timely issues. The Executive Committee would be expected to meet more frequently.

The changes were read and adopted. (Revised By-Laws enclosed.)

LUNCHEON SESSION

Mr. Leon H. Keyserling of the Conference on Economic Progress talked to the Luncheon Session of the NCALL Board Meeting. Mr. Keyserling has completed a study of the agricultural situation which will soon be available in pamphlet form. He emphasized the importance of starting solutions with the needs of the people and how they can be met rather than isolating problems of surpluses, price support, crop control, etc.

The meeting adjourned at 3 p.m.

POST BOARD MEETING REPORT TO THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Elizabeth B. Herring
Executive Secretary

October 10, 1955

The meeting of the Board of Directors, held in Washington on September 29, 1955, laid a foundation for some promising new ways of work. Comments from Board members who were unable to be present will be appreciated.

I. There will be fewer required regular meetings and more one day sessions called for specific reasons.

In line with the action of the Annual Meeting, held in New York on April 20, 1955, an amendment to the By-laws was adopted which reduces the number of regular board meetings from four to two. The requirement of an annual NCALL conference was also removed from the By-laws.

The Board voted to reduce the number of regular required meetings so that more NCALL energy could go into bringing representatives of member organizations together as needed for focussed work on particular urgent current problems involving farm labor and low income farm people. Under the new plan it will be possible to hold one day workshops in different cities, under the auspices of committees drawn from NCALL member organizations.

The workshop meetings will analyze the farm problem under consideration and will discuss principles of procedures for doing something about that problem through programs of education and social action.

The new amendments do not prevent calling additional board meetings nor holding an annual conference but make more flexible planning possible. The Executive Committee will carry more responsibility under the new set-up. One of the proposals referred to the Executive Committee for decision is that the spring meeting of the Board be the Annual Meeting and be held in New York. The fall meeting would be held in Washington with a major emphasis on the legislative picture.

II. Membership in NCALL will be limited to national and regional organizations. Individuals will become "Associates".

Also, in line with the decision of the Annual Meeting last April, an amendment was adopted substituting the term "Associate" for "individual member". Since only organizational members have voting privileges it seemed that the term "Associate" described the relationship of individuals to NCALL more accurately.

The Associates (formerly "individual members") are a valuable part of the NCALL enterprise. They are scattered all over the country. Some represent, informally, state and local organizations and non-affiliated national organizations. Their dues as Associates are paid by the organizations they represent.

Other Associates wish to have a connection with NCALL because of a strong personal interest. Others value the connection because farm labor and family farm problems are a part of their individual responsiblities in churches, government agencies, universities, labor, farm and civic agencies.

Associates receive all NCALL releases and publications. They are invited to NCALL meetings and are a source of ideas and leadership for NCALL activities.

III. The NCALL Research Fund Inc. is now an accomplished fact. (See By-Laws enclosed)

The NCALL Board of Directors heard a progress report from the Board of the newly incorporated NCALL Research Fund. This Fund not only assumes responsibility for completion of the Migrant Education Pilot Project now underway in Florida and Virginia, but will consider proposals for other pieces of research (see by-laws) which may be recommended to it by the NCALL Board.

Suggestions from Board members for future research which has a bearing on the welfare of low income farm families will be welcomed.

IV. An Ad Hoc Joint Committee On Financing will be appointed.

Since NCALL will be conducting a campaign in the near future for general funds and the NCALL Research Fund will be approaching Foundations and other groups for Research funds, the Board voted to set up a temporary Joint Committee on Financing which would lay out lines of procedure designed to avoid duplication and get results.

NEWS NOTES

IMMIGRATION HEARINGS WILL BE OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO NCALL MEMBERS

Beginning with November 21st, the Sub-committee on Immigration and Naturalization of the Senate Judiciary Committee will conduct hearings on immigration policy.

Organizations interested in the issues surrounding the importation of contract farm labor from Mexico and the Caribbean will be rendering a useful service if they will ask to appear or to file a statement. Where possible testimony should be supported by documentary evidence. The request to appear (or file a statement) should be sent to Senator Harley M. Kilgore, chairman.

The approach to be followed in these hearings is broad and constructive. The focus is; "What should a sound immigration policy be?" This framework will permit introduction of new points of view and will not narrow the discussion at the start to criticism of existing immigration legislation.

The hearings will begin with November 21 and 22, recess for Thanksgiving, run through the week of November 28 and possibly the week following. They will offer an unusual opportunity for organizations to express their views as to how immigration policy can reflect a sound relationship with other peoples as well as our immediate national interests.

COMING

The October NCALL Bulletin will summarize what happened about farm labor and low income farm legislation during the first session of Congress and will attempt some forecast of what might be the opportunities for accomplishing something for low income farm families during the second session.

Dear NCALL Board Member

Your answers to the enclosed questions will be received most gratefully.

The NCALL Board of Directors, at its April meeting, voted to make a major effort this fall to put the NCALL budget on a sounder basis. The answers to the attached questions will help the officers of NCALL to carry out that mandate.

NCALL's financial dilemma lies in its nature as an organization of organizations. The theory is that NCALL's basic support should come from its member organizations. It is not easy however for our member organizations to contribute what is necessary.

The total amount contributed annually has not exceeded $5000. This total included some individual gifts. If NCALL is to be stable and live up to its task $15,000 is needed. In addition to answering the enclosed questions will you please add your ideas as to what NCALL's financial policy should be?

The general NCALL budget is not as yet donor tax-exempt. The NCALL Research Fund has applied for tax exemption.

We count on your ideas and good advice.

Sincerely yours,

Howard A. Dawson
Chairman

1. LIST ORGANIZATIONS (not members of NCALL) interested in NCALL objectives. (Mention names of persons who might be willing to help in securing a gift.)

2. LIST NAMES OF PERSONS WHO MIGHT MAKE SUBSTANTIAL CONTRIBUTIONS (mention names of persons who might be willing to ask for the gifts)

3. LIST NAMES OF WELL KNOWN PERSONS (with interest in NCALL objectives) WHO MIGHT BE WILLING TO SIGN LETTERS ASKING FOR GIFTS? (e.g. artist, actor, editor, clergyman, professor, labor, farm or business leader)

4. HOW DO YOU THINK NCALL SHOULD RAISE ITS BUDGET?

LEGISLATIVE NEWS

The Senate Agriculture Committee is about to report its farm bill. In the meantime we mention here three measures related to the objectives of NCALL.

* * * * * * * * * *

INCLUSION OF FARM LABOR IN SOCIAL SECURITY (OASI)

The American Farm Bureau Federation, the Florida Fruit and Vegetable Growers and other farm employer groups are seeking to weaken the provisions affecting farm labor.

The Social Security Bill (H.R. 7225), passed by the House during the first session of this Congress is now being considered by the Senate Finance Committee. Hearings are in process.

The bill as it stands calls for no change in the farm labor provisions of the Social Security Act as amended in 1954. (The farm labor amendment adopted at that time provides for inclusion of a farm worker if he receives $100 or more a year from a single employer.)

In its testimony before the Senate Finance Committee on January 27, the American Farm Federation favored amendments which would have the effect of eliminating migratory and day haul agricultural workers. The AFBF expressed sympathy for bills already before the Congress which would exempt the first sixty days of employment of farm workers by one employer and would raise the $100 limitation to $200 or $250.

Action appropriate at this time Persons and organizations wishing to keep the law as it now stands (includes persons who earn $100 from a single employer) should write saying just that to the individual members of the Senate Finance Committee.

The American Farm Bureau Federation is also proposing that inclusion of farm operators be made optional rather than compulsory. It is unlikely that this will become a genuine issue. However it is always safer to assume even on self evident issues that our legislators need to know our opinions.

Since farm workers are so inarticulate it is of the greatest importance that public opinion in their behalf should be registered.

Members of the Senate Finance Committee

Senators

Harry Flood Byrd (Virginia) Chairman
Walter F. George (Georgia)
Robert S. Kerr (Oklahoma)
J. Allen Frear (Delaware)
Russell B. Long (Louisiana)
George A. Smathers (Florida)
Lyndon B. Johnson (Texas)

Alben B. Barkley (Kentucky)
Eugene D. Millikin (Colorado)
Edward Martin (Pennsylvania)
John J. Williams (Delaware)
Ralph E. Flanders (Vermont)
George W. Malone (Nevada)
Frank Carlson (Kansas)

Wallace F. Bennett (Utah)

SURPLUS FOOD BILL WILL HELP LOW INCOME FARMERS

Senator Kerr has introduced a bill S. 627 for himself and twenty two other Senators. The bill is proposed as an amendment to the Social Security Bill passed last year by the House. It calls for an Act "To provide supplementary benefits for recipients of public assistance and benefits for others who are in need through the issuance of certificates to be used in the acquisition of surplus agricultural food products." This bill if enacted would not only aid low income farmers through benefits to the farm economy but would also raise the standard of living of many low income farm families now receiving some form of public assistance.

Persons and organizations wishing to support this bill can help by writing to Senator Harry Flood Byrd, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee or to Senator Robert Kerr who introduced the bill. Letters to one's own Senators would be useful also.

For your information a copy of a letter received from the National Farmers Union is enclosed. It mentions the various purposes of the bill.

THE BILL TO PROVIDE LIBRARY SERVICES TO RURAL AREAS IS VERY MUCH ALIVE

The Library Services Bill H.R. 2840 (Senate version is S. 205) is designed to promote the development and extension of public library service to rural areas. The bill was favorably reported by the House Education and Labor Committee by a vote of 20 to 9 one week before the end of the first session. Friends of the bill are now waiting hopefully for the green light from the Rules Committee so that it can go to the floor for a House vote.

In the Senate, hearings will be held on the Senate version S. 205 which is before the Education Sub-committee of the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee.

It will be helpful now for members of Congress of both houses to know that there is public sentiment in favor of the bill. Letters addressed to one's own Congressmen are indicated.

This bill is of great significance for the 1,000 counties where most low income farm families live. One of their problems is the lack of educational facilities in their communities. Books for all ages are necessary to help these areas become part of the stream of American life.

ANNOUNCEMENT ABOUT PUBLIC ASSISTANCE HEARINGS HOUSE WAYS AND MEANS COMMITTEE
APRIL 12, 1956

I have just learned that hearings will be held on the Administration's Public Assistance bill, HR 9091 by the House Ways and Means Committee on April 12. Two of the proposed amendments are of great importance to low income farm families.

It will mean a great deal if member organizations of NCALL will ask to appear or will file a statement. Rep. Jere Cooper (Tenn.) is chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

The two amendments of special interest to low income farm people are those that deal with medical care and the training of public welfare workers. A memorandum is enclosed which gives additional information about those amendments and the status of social security legislation as a whole.

You may wish to include in your testimony a statement to the effect that public assistance should not be denied to migratory farm workers. The point which can be made to Congress is that federal funds appropriated for a national purpose should not be denied to any group of citizens through state residence requirements for receiving public assistance.

STATUS OF SOCIAL SECURITY LEGISLATION

NOTE: At the NCALL Round Table in New York on March 9, 1956, delegates expressed much interest in proposed new public assistance amendments which would benefit low income farm families. The two amendments which received emphasis were those dealing with medical care and with the training of public welfare workers. Since Public Welfare is the low income farm family's principle experience of the benefits of social work, the appropriate training of public welfare workers is of great importance.

Last year, the House of Representatives passed H.R. 7225, the Social Security Amendment of 1956. The major features of that bill are: (I) the provision for paying disability benefits at age 50 to persons who have been in covered employment and who become permanently and totally disabled; and (2) provision that makes it possible for women to receive retirement benefits at age 62, instead of at age 65. Both of these provisions relate to old-age and survivors insurance; there are no provisions as passed by the House that relate to public assistance.

This bill is now pending before the Senate Finance Committee. There are many amendments pending in the Senate, a number of which relate to public assistance. Considerable progress could be made toward helping people to meet the impact of disability if disability insurance benefits were paid under the old-age and survivors insurance program. There are indications that the Senate Finance Committee will recommend against this provision.

Also pending before the Senate is the Administration's public assistance bill, S-3139. A parallel bill, HR-9091, introduced by Mr. Daniel Reed (NY), is also pending before the House Ways and Means Committee. HR- 9120, Introduced by Mr. Cooper (Tenn) contains the same provisions. Thus far the public assistance bill has not been offered as an amendment to HR-7225. If it is to be enacted this year, it would seem that tieing it to HR-7225 would be the only practicable means. Support given in this respect would be helpful.

In the field of medical care, the provisions in the Administration's bill are most important for low income farm families. The bill provides that the Federal Government would share with the states on a dollar-for-dollar basis the cost of medical care paid for by the states for persons eligible for Old Age Assistance, Aid to Dependent Children, Aid to the Blind, and Aid to the Permanently and Totally Disabled. If this provision is enacted, a measure of medical care will become available to people who are now without such care. The Administration's bill places a maximum on the amount of State expenditures for medical care in which the Federal Government will participate. This amount is determined by multiplying $6 a month times the number of adults in the case load, and $3 a month times the number of children in the case load. Considering the facts of medical cost there is real doubt as to whether these are adequate figures. An increase to $10 and $5 would be more realistic.

The Administration's bill also includes provision for Federal aid to the States for training of public welfare personnel for work in Public Assistance agencies. Lack of staff with sufficient qualifications has been a serious handicap in the program. This provision differs from the provision in other legislation for Federal participation in the cost of training social workers in other fields of endeavor. In other programs the Federal Government pays all the cost. Under this bill the Federal Government pays 80%.

Other provisions important to low income farm people call for clarification of the purposes of the Security Act; i.e. to provide social services to bring about self-support and self-care and to strengthen family life in addition to the provision of maintenance care through the Aid to Dependent Children program. Authorization is asked for an appropriation to enable the Federal Government to work with the States, universities, and other organizations in the development of studies into the causes of poverty and the development of demonstration projects in the best methods of dealing with the problems.

The Honorable Ben W. Fortson, Jr.
Secretary of State of Georgia
State Capitol
Atlanta, Georgia

My dear Mr. Fortson:

Every two or three years I am stirred to some hope that Georgia can be interested in pushing protective rules for workmen (or convicts) lugged about the state in open vehicles. Some while back you were kind enough to tell me that you had referred a suggestion of this sort to appropriate persons. Here is an interesting set of rules drawn up for hauling migratory agricultural workers.

I am sure that it is no function of your office to be concerned with this matter, but I would be grateful if you could pass it on to someone who might officially consider it.

Again I repeat the statement, (for common observation on the roads of Georgia), that sooner or later the state is in for some dreadful calamity in the form of a wreck of convicts hauled in open trucks.

Sincerely,

George S. Mitchell

Re: TRANSPORTATION AND HOUSING OF MIGRATORY AGRICULTURAL WORKERS

Two projects of the President's Committee on Migratory Labor need the support of state and local units of national organizations.

The President's Committee has achieved agreement on the part of the Department of Labor, Agriculture, Interior and Health, Education and Welfare, and of the Housing and Home Finance Agency with respect to recommendations to be submitted to the states on transportation and labor camps.

I enclose copies of the recommendations as sent to the Governors: i.e.

"Transportation of Agricultural Workers by Motor Vehicle: Suggested regulations".

"Suggested language for Regulations of Agricultural Labor Camps".

It is now up to concerned citizens to support and encourage state governments to use existing statutes more effectively. Where new legislation is needed it is possible and urgent for citizens to help in initiating it.

Member organizations are urged to send NCALL ideas as to how this state action can be stimulated. Ideas sent in will be publicized in NCALL publications later in the fall.

THE INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION IS NOW AUTHORIZED TO REGULATE INTERSTATE TRANSPORTATION OF MIGRATORY LABOR. The bill (S.3391) which passed the Senate in the spring, passed the House (H.R.9836) in July and was approved by the President August 3, 1956. It is now Public Law 939 - 84th Congress, Chapter 905 - 2nd Session. S.3391 "An Act: To provide for the regulation of the interstate transportation of migrant farm workers." In its final form the bill included a recommendation of the Farm Bureau that the law shall apply only if the distance travelled is more than seventy-five miles.

Report No. 2810 accompanying the House bill (Report of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce) contains interesting supplementary material.

Dear Dr. Mitchell:

Thank you very much for sending to me the carbon copy of your letter to Mr. Fortson.

You have brought a very important point both to his and our attention. In years passed when I spent much time wandering around Mississippi I saw the grim sight very often of gangs of convicts in striped clothing working in the Delta cotton fields.

I will mention this angle of the transportation question to the group in Government responsible for the new proposed regulations.

When are you coming to see us? It would be good to see you.

Sincerely yours,

63 Auburn Avenue N.E.
Atlanta3, Georgia

Dear Dr. Mitchell:

Your letter is here. I can't tellyou how much we will miss you. You aren't going to dig in b ehind a highland and never speak to us again are you? Maybe you can't be an active Board member, but you could write us a letter occasionally, couldn't you? It would be wonderful to have a piece in the Bulletin from you, telling about the Crofters. It could be that all the things you have been thinking about in your Southern work, will recreate themselves in Scottish terms. If so, I would love to hear about it.

I can't present your resignation to the Board for several months because we are now having only two board meetings a year and we have just had one. We will regretfully do so at the next meeting.

It is very good news that Mr. Harold Fleming with whom you have been working right along will succeed you, so there will be no break in continuity of objective. Will you please give him my greetings and tell him that we count on his keeping NCALL educated as to Southern things which we should be thinking about .

Our thanks to you for the inspiration which you have given on many occasions. My best wishes to you as you move on into a new and , I am sure, fascinating experience.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Miss Herring:

This has to be a future resignation from the Board of NCALL.

I have planned for a long time to quit what I might be doing at fifty-five and take myself to the Highlands of Scotland. Shall be interested, by the way, in the problems of those small farmers called Crofters. The time has come and I am telling my own Board this week that I shall resign from my job at SRC January 15th. Alice and I shall sail for Scotland March 8th.

The Council is in the fortunate position of having Harold Fleming able and willing to take over, and he can run it better than I.

As I shall be way yonder on the other side of the world, I can't do as a Board member. I am all for you and NCALL, thick and thin, but with a prospective residence yonder I think I ought in decency resign. So, effective March 8th I do, but regretfully.

All of you have been kindness itself to me, and I am honored and pleased to have been in this way part of the continuing effort of people to make a democracy on the land in the United States.

Sincerely,

RECEIVED NOV 27 1956

November 20, 1956

To: Members of the Board of Directors of NCALL

From: Elizabeth B. Herring, Executive Secretary

SUBJECT: CONTRACT FARM LABOR FROM JAPAN AND THE PHILIPPINES

At the October Board meeting, it was agreed that the new Japanese-Filipino contract labor program presented grave problems.

It was also agreed that NCALL should facilitate the action of member organizations wishing to raise questions with the Department of Labor and the Immigration and Naturalization Service; the agencies which have authorized the program. Steps are being taken in this direction and you will be informed about them.

Material on Foreign Contract Labor

I enclose, for your information, copies of materials on foreign contract labor. Mrs. Katherine P. Ellickson, one of NCALL's board members, has been doing some research in this field. At my request she has put some of the main points together in a form which can be passed on to other members of the Board.

Other Materials from the U.S. Section of the Joint U.S.-Mexico Trade Union Committee

A copy of "Strangers in our Fields", referred to by Mrs. Ellickson, is enclosed.

I draw to your attention the October 30 release announcing that the U.S. Section of the Joint U.S.-Mexico Trade Union Committee has sent a letter to Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell, urging him to appoint a tri-partite committee consisting of representatives of the public, employers and organized labor, to investigate programs for the importation of foreign agricultural labor.

The National Sharecroppers' Fund has also written to Secretary Mitchell asking for an investigation. A copy of the press release and of the letter may be secured by writing to the headquarters of the Fund at 112 East 19th Street, New York 3, N.Y.

Miss Elizabeth Herring, Executive Secretary
National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor

RECEIVED NOV 27 1956

Dear Miss Herring:

As you requested, I am herewith presenting for the use of NCALL some recent material on the foreign contract labor programs. Much of it was obtained from Mr. Robert C. Goodwin, Director of the Bureau of Employment Security, in response to letters from Mr. Nelson Cruikshank, Director of the AFL-CIO Social Security Department, for his use as a member of the Federal Advisory Committee on Employment Security.

I have added comments to provide general background and to indicate labor's major criticisms of procedures and policies, but without undertaking a comprehensive analysis.

The U.S. Section, Joint U.S.-Mexican Trade Union Committee, has issued a pamphlet, "Strangers in Our Fields," which presents a vivid and extensive picture of the problems of the Mexican contract workers and should be valuable to your members.

Experience with the Mexican program is relevant to what will happen under the Japanese program.

The material is grouped under the following heads:

		Page
1.	Legal Basis of the Programs	1
2.	Extent of the Mexican Program	2
3.	Determination of Need for Foreign Workers	2
4.	Determining the Wages of Contract Workers and the Effects on U.S. workers	4
5.	Violations and Compliance Procedures	7
6.	The Japanese Program	7
7.	Cost of the Mexican Program	11

Sincerely yours,

Katherine P. Ellickson

Katherine P. Ellickson
Assistant Director
Dept. of Social Security

October 1956

1. Legal Basis of the Programs.

A. The Mexican program.

Mexican contract workers are admitted under the terms of Public Law 78, which relies primarily on a government-to-government agreement setting forth details on use of Mexicans. A standard individual work contract is also agreed upon. (These documents are available from the U.S. Department of Labor.)

Public Law 78 was extended last year to December 1959. The U. S. has asked Mexico to agree to extension of the present agreement to June 30, 1959. Actually either country can terminate it by a month's notice, and Public Law 78 now permits contracting of Mexicans without an international agreement, so as to bring pressure on Mexico to reach an accord.

Section 503 of Public Law 78, as amended, sets forth the circumstances under which Mexican contract workers are to be used in an area. The text is weaker than labor advocates but outlines more effective protection of U.S. workers than the Secretary of Labor is providing. It reads:

> "SEC.503. No workers recruited under this title shall be available for employment in any area unless the Secretary of Labor has determined and certified that (1) sufficient domestic workers who are able, willing, and qualified are not available at the time and place needed to perform the work for which such workers are to be employed, (2) the employment of such workers will not adversely affect the wages and working conditions of domestic agricultural workers similarly employed, and (3) reasonable efforts have been made to attract domestic workers for such employment at wages and standard hours of work comparable to those offered to foreign workers.
> "In carrying out the provisions of (1) and (2) of this section, provision shall be made for consultation with agricultural employers and workers for the purpose of obtaining facts relevant to the supply of domestic farm workers and the wages paid such workers engaged in similar employment. Information with respect to certifications under (1) and (2) shall be posted in the appropriate local public employment offices and such other public places as the Secretary may require."

B. Other programs.

Contract workers from other countries, (Japan, British West Indies, etc.) are admitted under the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952. It includes among nonimmigrant aliens who may be admitted to the U.S. an alien "who is coming temporarily to the United States to perform other temporary services or labor, if unemployed persons capable of performing such service or labor cannot be found." (Sec. 101 (a) (15)(H). "The question of importing any alien as a nonimmigrant under Section 101(a) (15)(H) in any specific case or specific cases shall be determined by the Attorney General, after consultation with appropriate agencies of the Government, upon petition of the importing employer. . ." (Sec. 214(c)).

The U.S. Department of Labor certifies that "unemployed persons capable of performing such service or labor cannot be found." The growers make agreements direct with the foreign governments, though the U.S. government departments apparently play some role in outlining protective clauses. Enforcement of safeguards is in the hands of the Immigration and Naturalization Service and the foreign governments, not the U.S. Department of Labor. Copies of the agreements and individual work contracts should be obtainable from the U.S. Dept. of Justice or the U. S. Department of Labor.

2. Extent of the Mexican Program.

Total number of workers contracted:

1952	197,100
1953	201,380
1954	309,033
1955	398,650

In 1956 contracts are more numerous and may well total 500,000.

Mexicans were employed in 1955 in over half the states, though principally in the Southwest (Arkansas, Arizona, California, New Mexico, and Texas). The Department of Labor can supply maps showing their distribution.

A growing number of crop-wage areas have come to rely entirely or primarily on foreign contract workers.

3. Determination of Need for Foreign Workers.

Organized labor and others have for years criticized severely the methods used by the Secretary of Labor in determining that foreign workers are needed and that their use will not adversely affect U.S. workers, as outlined in Sec. 503 of the Mexican agreement.

Major criticisms are:

(a) No real effort is made by growers to attract U.S. workers through offering wages, conditions of employment, and housing suited to their needs. They are not offered even as much as the Mexicans are given in terms of weekly guarantees, insurance, transportation, etc. Housing is often provided for single workers only, not their families. Many growers prefer contract labor because it is available when wanted, docile, and deportable.

(b) Often the growers' association decides in advance what wage rate will be offered, knowing they cannot obtain local labor and that they will use Mexicans, and then, in fact, they do obtain Mexicans at the agreed-upon rate.

(c) The U.S. Department of Labor relies primarily on the state agencies to determine need, and their local and state offices too often go along with what the growers want. The growers have great political influence in Washington too.

(d) Consultation with worker's representatives is inadequate. Public hearings have not been held.

(e) No effective program has been developed for recruiting U.S. workers with due consideration to wage and earnings guarantees, attractive conditions of employment and housing,transportation arrangements, etc. The use of contract workers increasingly drives U.S. workers out of many areas (1) by depressing wages, etc., and (2) by decreasing total employment opportunities, and (3) leaving for U.S. workers only the extra and less remunerative work since the foreign workers have weekly employment guarantees.

The Department's procedures for determining need for foreign workers are summarized as follows by Mr. Goodwin (letter of August 17, 1956):

"Ceiling assignments represent certification of need for the importation of foreign agricultural workers into an agricultural reporting area. Ceiling assignments are the result of demonstrated need based upon statistical and narrative information supplied by the State Employment Service (originating with the local office). Factors which are considered in the justification are:

a. Crop acreage estimates compared with previous years planted acreage. This information is obtained from county agricultural representatives and from growers.

b. Estimated labor requirements. This is arrived at through computing man hour requirements for each crop in the area. Such factors as increased use of machinery and increased output per worker are taken into consideration.

c. Estimated supply of labor. This estimate is based upon local office information which shows anticipated changes in availability of local, intra-state, and inter-state migratory labor. Exchange of information between states provides current migratory labor information to the local office. In addition, employers and workers (or their representatives) are consulted before an estimate of domestic labor supply is prepared.

d. Weather conditions. Ceiling requests are prepared on the basis of normal weather conditions for the season covered by the request. If previous crop season weather deviated from normal, its effect on labor requirements is noted and related to the demands for the current season.

"The ES-229 is used to evaluate State and local office plans for full utilization of domestic workers. The State agency issues authorizations to contract within the limits of the established ceiling.

"As the season progresses, changes may occur which result in increase or decrease of labor requirements. If such change amounts to more than 10 percent, a supplemental request is required.

"The ES-229 requests are reviewed, at headquarters, for statistical accuracy and adequacy of justification. Particular attention is given to domestic labor recruitment attempts, and if additional sources of domestic labor can be found, such information is made available to the area requesting the ceiling."

The Bureau has elaborate instructions and forms for use in this connection.

4. Determining the Wages of Contract Workers and the Effects on U. S. Workers.

While in theory foreign contract workers are paid prevailing wages in accordance with the basic agreements for each program, actually the prevailing wage procedures cannot possibly be expected to assure decent wages for foreigners or to protect U.S. workers from adverse effects.

In this connection, we quote first some Bureau descriptions of procedures and then give labor's criticisms, with a few specific examples.

A. The Bureau's Description of Procedures.

The following are Mr. Goodwin's summaries of wage procedures, supplementing detailed Bureau forms (letter of August 17, 1956):

1. "Beginning Wages. We have recognized the difficulty in determining beginning wage before the season actually starts. To prevent the employment of Mexican contract workers adversely affecting the wage rates of domestic workers at the start of a crop activity, the Department has established the following policy. Mexican workers may not be contracted for employment at the beginning of a crop season at wage rates which are less than those paid at the beginning of the preceding crop season unless it is demonstrated that a lower wage rate, in the specific case, will not adversely affect the wages of domestic workers.

   To carry out this policy, beginning wage information is obtained in the initial wage surveys in the respective crop wage areas. This is then used in the succeeding season as the beginning wage rate.

2. "Description of methods by which the Secretary of Labor makes determinations of prevailing wage rates, including information as to the degree the Department checks and reviews State agency wage findings.

   "The making of a wage determination under a normal situation is comparatively simple. A normal situation prevails in crop-wage areas in which the plan to make a wage survey has been carefully and objectively planned; where the farm, worker, and wage data is carefully prepared and stated; where the survey is conducted by making contacts in the field with employers and workers who are representative of the totals; where there exists a large proportion of domestic workers; and where there do not arise extreme variations in field and crop conditions nor in crop activities. Under such circumstances the Department verifies the State finding for conformity with the policy, procedures and criteria of a valid wage finding. The finding prepared by the State agency is incorporated in a determination issued in the name of the Secretary and forwarded to the State (ESPL No. 681).

   "As may be expected, a great many of the wage findings involve areas and activities in which conditions vary from the normal as described above. Illustrative of such are the following:

a. Inadequate sample (numerical, size of employing units, contacts, etc.)
b. Improper survey period.
c. A wage survey including insignificant wage classes and payment methods.
d. Inclusion of female and child wage rates which could affect adult male wage rates.
e. Numerous container sizes of approximate weights or capacities.
f. Propriety of wage classes raised by indications of:
   (1) field conditions varying because of irrigation, dryland, hard soil, weeds, topography, etc.
   (2) yield
   (3) color, size and variety
   (4) skill and experience

"The Bureau examines every wage finding for accuracy, adequacy, sufficiency and for conformity with Departmental and Bureau policy and procedure. Problems arising from any of the above illustrative factors are immediately transmitted to the regional offices exercising jurisdiction over the several State programs. In cases needing expedited action, telegraphic or telephonic contact may be made with the State agency. The State agencies in all instances are requested to take corrective action. Depending on the degree of inadequacy, requests on the State agencies range from immediate correction to making minor improvements on succeeding findings. Frequently the State agencies are requested to make another wage survey as soon as practicable to rectify an indicated inadequacy.

"The Bureau has been carefully watching the development of the wage-finding program in the States. In 1956, a great many new areas are being surveyed because of the inclusion of areas heretofore exempted due to Mexican worker dominance or because there were less than 100 Mexican workers. Where the program is entirely new, there have been the expected errors of experience. Our regional personnel has worked closely with the State agencies and a marked improvement has been displayed within a short period of two or three months. In one of our large States there has been a tremendous improvement over the 1955 operations with regard to techniques and coverage. One of the greatest problems was contact with employers and workers in the field. This has shown a marked improvement in several States."

3. "General Rule for Making Prevailing Wage Findings. Under a normal situation, a prevailing wage is defined as one which encompasses at least two-thirds of the domestic workers covered in the wage survey. If a single rate cannot be found which represents the wage paid to at least two-thirds of the domestic workers, the agency making the finding should move from this rate to the contiguous rate with the next greatest number of workers. If the workers covered by these two rates together make up the necessary two-thirds, a scale consisting of both these rates will be the prevailing wage. If a two-thirds majority is not obtained in this manner, the two rates will be considered as a single wage group for the purpose of moving to that contiguous rate having the next greatest number of workers. If these three rates do not represent at least two-thirds of the workers, the process will be repeated until at least two-thirds coverage is reached. In any case where a scale of wages is found to be prevailing, the finding must include information about the significant differences in conditions accounting for the steps in the scale." (from Employment Service Program Letter No. 679, Apr. 4,1956)

B. Organized Labor's Criticisms of Wage Procedures.

1). Wages of U. S. workers are depressed by the knowledge that a large supply of contract workers will be available, and by the actual presence of such workers. In many areas where Mexican nationals have been used, large numbers of U. S. workers are available but are paid substandard rates year after year.

This is true in Arkansas, for example in Phillips County. In June 1956, U. S. workers were paid 35¢ to 40¢ an hour only, a little more than in preceeding years. One thousand U. S. workers were employed in June and 1,055 Mexicans. The Mexicans theoretically were receiving 50¢ an hour, the minimum to which the Mexican government will agree. In July and August the rate for U. S. workers had fallen to 35¢ an hour.

2). It is wrong for the Department of Labor to assume that the beginning wage rate should merely remain the same from year to year since other U. S. wages have been rising steadily with rising productivity and prices. This policy inevitably increases the spread between farm wages and other wages.

3). The growers' associations or processors so dominate many crop-wage areas that they set a uniform wage rate by agreement in advance of the season which continues whether or not wage determinations are made.

It was this situation that led the United States Section of the Joint United States-Mexico Trade Union Committee to approve a report "that the present method of fixing wage rates in the southwest for domestic farm workers and Mexican contract workers is a fraud and conspiracy on the part of the employers.

"The common pattern is for the employers to hold a meeting and agree to what wage rate will be paid in the area. This agreed wage then becomes the 'prevailing wage'; however, the wage rate is so low in the Southwestern states that only a small number of domestic workers apply for the jobs. Thus, when the State Employment Department fails to supply the needed farm workers at the wage offered, the State Department agency then certifies the grower's need for foreign workers."

In Imperial Valley, California, wage findings in 1956 show that the 4 employing units studied were paying 745 employees 8¢ for pulling and tying a dozen bunches of carrots. Official state statistics show the following most common wage rates for pulling and tying carrots since 1948:

Activity-Carrots- Pull and Tie

Year	Most Common Wage Rates (for 12 bunches)
1948	7¢
1950	7¢
1952	8-1/3¢
1953	9-1/3¢
1954	8¢
1955	8¢
1956	8¢

From 1952-1956, while these wage rates declined, average hourly earnings in California manufacturing increased by 18.7 percent.

The tomato harvest in Sutter County, Calif. also illustrates this situation. The growers agreed in advance of the season to pay 11¢ a box, as in 1955; they obtained Mexican workers at this rate, and so few U. S. workers were available that no prevailing wage determinations were made in either 1955 or 1956. A newspaper clipping stated that the representative of the State Employment Service had advised the growers to use Mexicans in 1956 because so few U. S. workers would be available at that rate.

4). U.S. workers are actually offered substantially poorer conditions than foreign contract workers in many areas as they receive no wage guarantees, insurance, and other fringe benefits.

5). The Department's formula for making prevailing wage determinations often results in merely indicating that the minimum wage rate being paid U. S. workers must be paid to foreign contract workers.

When the Department permits prevailing wages to be described by a range of rates, without any indication of reasons for the differences, it is departing from principles followed in any other prevailing wage determinations for which the Department is responsible. Any rates shown above the minimum in the range are meaningless except as they may inform Mexicans what U. S. workers are receiving.

The meaninglessness of any rate above the minimum in a prevailing wage determination is illustrated by the situation surrounding the cotton harvest in the Lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas. In August 1956, wage findings submitted by the state agency indicated that U. S. workers were receiving $1.50 to $2.50 per cwt., for pulling cotton. Under the Bureau's formula, a wage determination would have shown $1.50 to $2 as the range of rates that encompassed 2/3rds of the U. S. workers, but Mexico has insisted that none of its nationals receive less than $1.55 per cwt., or more than the minimum that would have been included in the wage determination. According to Bureau policy no wage determination was therefore made.

6). The wage findings obtained and supplied Washington by the state agencies cannot get around these basic defects and in addition are adversely affected by the absence of job descriptions, lack of trained investigators, etc. The Department of Labor has so small a staff that it must act hastily on the basis of the material supplied. Mr. Goodwin stated on September 28th that 530 wage determinations had been made in 1956 and that there are "four professional employees on the staff of the Bureau in Washington assigned primarily to reviewing wage findings and assisting in making wage determinations."

5. Violations and Compliance Procedures

If a grower or association violates the contract, no penalties are levied. At worst the grower will be denied use of contract workers. Violations by employers are widespread, as shown by the Bureau's own figures. In January through August 1956, 1,868 routine inspections were made and 506 deficiencies were found. In California 310 routine inspections were made and 100 deficiencies were found. These figures and other details are shown in the attached table 1, on the next page.

Organized labor has repeatedly pointed out that the Department of Labor lacks adequate enforcement staff. Its 1957 budget provides a total of 87 professional employees for compliance activities, 37 of whom are attached to the Dallas Regional Office and 28 to the San Francisco Regional Office. These employees have many compliance activities in addition to actual inspections.

It is interesting to compare the number of routine inspections made in each state, shown on page 8, with the number of individuals and user members who employed Mexican nationals in 1955, as shown in table 2 on page 9.

6. The Japanese Program.

The Japanese contract workers are brought in under the Immigration and Naturalization Act, as explained in Section 1. Primary responsibility rests on the Attorney General but he has asked the Department of Labor to certify that workers are needed, which the latter has done. Enforcement is by the Immigration and Naturalization Service, not the Department of Labor.

The Departments have furnished us with copies of three forms utilized for the Japanese program:

(1) A General Agreement between the Council for Supplementary Agricultural Workers (Japanese) and _____ in the State of_____(name of growers' association to be inserted);

(2) A Japanese Agricultural Worker Agreement to be entered into by the individual worker and the growers' association; and

(3) An addendum to this agreement, amending and supplementing it.

Both the general agreement and worker agreement state that they wish workers to be "beneficially employed. . . to alleviate the continuing shortage of agricultural labor and at the same time to give Japanese agricultural workers (or worker) an opportunity to participate in the American way of life and to learn the latest technical methods in American agricultural development."

The actual terms of the agreements, when considered in the light of conditions on large-scale farms, contradict the objective of "participating in the American way of life." The Japanese are not free to move about and work as they wish. The contract specifies that the worker "shall proceed from the port of debarkation to the place of assignment in accordance with the order of the (growers') association," "work and reside at the place of assignment. . . or at any such place as the association may require," and work as directed "up to 12 hours per day for a consecutive 3 weeks at any single time" during peak seasons.

At other times the worker "shall not be obliged to work for more than 8 hours in any period of 24 consecutive hours nor more than 6 days in any given week." But what is to prevent a succession of growers from requiring steady work at 12 hours a day in successive peaks for different crops?

No general minimum wage is provided, although a letter of August 21 from Under Secretary of Labor Larson mentioned a minimum of 85¢ per hour. This may apply in some contracts where the prevailing wage for a given crop equals this amount. But according to officials of the U. S. Farm Placement Service, Japanese workers are being employed in San Diego County for as little as 70¢ an hour.

According to these officials, Japanese workers have now been certified by the U. S. Department of Labor for use in any type of field work in the following California counties: Butte, Colusa, Placer, Solano, El Dorado, Tehama, Sutter, Yolo, Yuba, Ventura, San Diego, Monterey, and San Joaquin.

The failure of so-called prevailing wage rates to protect U. S. workers or foreign workers has been explained in Section 4. The list of counties in which Japanese workers are being used includes ones where the program for Mexican contract workers has for years adversely affected U. S. workers.

The record of violations by California growers set forth in Section 5 suggests greater dangers under the Japanese program, since the Immigration and Naturalization Service has even fewer facilities for assuring compliance by growers than has the U. S. Department of Labor.

The plan for bringing in Japanese workers was developed by a California growers' association. The Labor Department has certified the need for 1,000 and that number have now been admitted. Similar plans have been made for bringing in 1,000 Filipinos. While these numbers are small, the way is being paved for larger future importations. The growers hope thus to lessen Mexico's power to bargain for protection of its own nationals.

The Japanese government will have even poorer facilities than the Mexican Consuls for attempting to protect its nationals, and will have less authority to do so.

The Japanese workers will arrive indebted to the growers' association for "costs of transportation and incidental expenses, if any, advanced for travel from Japan to the port of debarkation." Deductions from the workers' wages will be made to pay any such costs, insurance premiums, cost of meals, etc. The individual worker contract provides for a period of employment of 6 months subject to renewal every 6 months up to a total of 3 years. If the workers are sent back after a brief period, transportation costs alone will presumably take a large chunk of earnings.

Quite apart from problems of inadequate earnings that may arise, it is a farce to say that these workers are "participating in the American way of life." They are in jobs totally unrepresentative of U.S. democracy without the protection of a free labor market, labor legislation or unions. They are sent to labor camps where there is no opportunity to become acquainted with U.S. family life or family farming.

The fine phrases in the basic documents are utterly misleading. They increase the threat which the entire program offers to international good-will.

7. Cost of the Mexican Program.

The current appropriation to the Bureau of Employment Security for implementation of the Mexican program is $2,125,000, but this sum does not cover salaries of high Department of Labor and Bureau officials who must spend substantial time on the program. Appropriations have risen each year from $1,800,000 in 1953.

In addition to the funds appropriated by Congress, fees are assessed employers for the purpose of transporting the workers and for furnishing them with food, shelter and medical examinations. These fees are deposited in a revolving fund which is never allowed to increase beyond an amount sufficient to meet current expenses. The size of the revolving fund is controlled by raising or lowering the fees. The $1,000,000 initially advanced by Congress to the fund has been repaid. Instead of the initial $15 fee for contracting and recontracting, growers currently pay a charge per worker of $7 for contracting and $4 for recontracting.

The attached table gives further details on income and expenses of the revolving fund.

BUSINESS

Social Security Coverage of Farm Labor: Mrs. Ellickson reported on developments in this field and presented recommendations of the NCALL Committee for further work.

Social Issues in Agriculture: The preparation of a document to be used as a work tool on this subject was discussed. It was moved and seconded that the problem be studied further and the committee report to the next meeting of the Board of Directors.

Invitation to Membership in the National Conference of Social Welfare: Becoming an Associate Group of the NCSW was discussed. While it was considered important for rural problems to be presented at meetings of NCSW, it was moved and seconded that action on becoming an Associate Group be postponed. Passed.

Contract Labor: It was moved and seconded that NCALL should keep in close touch with developments in this field, and that the Department of Labor should be asked to make an analysis as to who uses contract labor and the need. Passed.

Minimum Wage: Through Dorothea de Schweinita, Executive Director of the National Consumers League, "Citizens Committee on the Fair Labor Standards Act," NCALL is keeping informed of current legislative hearings. It was suggested that NCALL continue this cooperative effort.

160 Acre Limitation: There were some signs of a different attitude on the part of the new Secretary of Interior. The Executive Secretary was instructed to keep in touch with developments and suggest action as needed.

Area Redevelopment Act: Mrs. Warburton reported on hearings currently being held before the Subcommittee on Production and Stabilization of the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency on S. 964, "Area Redevelopment Act," introduced by Paul Douglas. This bill provides financial and technical aid to depressed communities having considerable unemployment and underemployment. Of interest to NCALL, particularly is the section providing aid for rural communities. The enactment of this bill could have vital influence in cutting down the need for family migration from farm areas suffering from underemployment, because industries would be attracted to provide employment so that farm families would have sources of supplemental income. In hearings, the problem was stressed of rural communities losing their young people because there was no chance for work at home. It was suggested that ways be explored for NCALL to help promote passage of the bill.

The meeting adjourned at 2 p.m.

ANNUAL MEETING
March 19, 1957

CONFIDENTIAL

EXTRACTS FROM REPORT OF EXECUTIVE SECRETARY

Elizabeth B. Herring

At the October Board meeting we discussed foregoing a large NCALL conference this year and concentrating on issues. It was not that we have not been working on issues right along but that we had not left ourselves enough time to do the follow-through which is the price of getting something done.

In the months since, a good deal has happened with respect to the issues we selected then and also on others which time and tide thrust upon us. It would be helpful if, as I summarize recent events, you would give some thought to the ways of work which are developing. Is NCALL doing the things and in the fashion that you think it should?

EXTENSION OF SOCIAL SECURITY TO FARM LABOR

I begin by reporting with pleasure that we have made a start on doing something about Social Security coverage for farm labor. As you will remember the Congress adopted two Social Security amendments in 1956 which narrowed the coverage for farm labor and injected the anomalous provision that crew leaders rather than farmers are the employers.

In a few moments Mrs. Ellickson will give you information about the nature of our problem and make some proposals for action. I would like, as a prelude to her comments, to tell you what a help she has been throughout the fall on this issue, not only through warm interest but by contributing her expert knowledge. She is the Assistant Director of the Social Security Department of the AFL-CIO.

You have all received a copy of an excellent memorandum on the subject which Mrs. Ellickson prepared for the AFI-CIO. This memorandum has been so popular that I have had to ask for more on two occasions. In addition to distributing it to our members I sent it to a large number of other organizations. One of the responses which gave me most pleasure was the request that I airmail-special ten copies to ten key Indian tribal leaders. Between 40 and 50,000 Indians are counted in the Farm Labor force.

Preceding the distribution of this memorandum, a significant meeting was held which included about twenty-five people from the Social Security Administration, the Department of Labor and member organizations of NCALL. This was the outcome of a series of communications to the Social Security Administration. About the turn of the New Year, the Bureau proposed that we have a meeting. As usual in Washington, it had to be arranged in no time flat. I am especially grateful to the Division of Home Missions and the American Friends Service Committee for rallying to the occasion and getting representatives there from a distance, who had first hand acquaintance with crew leaders and migrant families. Washington representatives from the National Congress of American Indians, the National Farmers Union and Mrs. Ellickson, representing the AFL-CIO, were there. The criterion in recruiting a group was to bring people who had concrete, first hand knowledge of what was involved in administering the farm labor Social Security amendments. I content myself with reporting that it was a wonderful meeting.

Since it was the kind of meeting for which minutes were inappropriate, we had none, but you will not go far wrong if you will use Mrs. Ellickson's memorandum.

THE FOREIGN CONTRACT FARM LABOR PROGRAM

The October Board meeting agreed also that we should try to find something constructive to do about the growing foreign contract labor program and the trend illustrated by the new Japanese pilot program. Several steps have been taken in the fact finding realm. Action proposals are in the incubation stage. One step was to send out inquiries as to the role of the Japanese-American Citizens League. I have data with respect to the active interest of this Nisei group in the program and their identification of the issue with the effort to overcome discrimination against Far East immigration.

Since the AFL-CIO is represented on The Federal Advisory Committee of the Bureau of Employment Security and has a good deal of information as to the facts of the foreign farm labor contract program, I requested such material as could be publicized and Mrs. Ellickson very kindly sent it to me. You have all received copies of that material.

What action is possible? Having sat through several hearings on the Mexican Farm Labor program by the House Agriculture Committee, I can assure you that there is nothing more futile than verbal assaults on the foreign labor program. What must be found is the spot where action is possible.

There are several spots where serious abuses have developed. Three main areas are the way labor users' organizations of growers operate, the way the U. S. Government certifies and re-certifies the need for foreign workers and, third, the perfunctory and often unjust domestic recruitment procedures of some units of the State Farm Placement Services.

Those of you who attended the Round Table which was held here in this building last spring will remember Mr. Hudgens' remark: "That the surest way not to serve low income farmers was to put the controls of an agency near to him." The decentralization of the Employment Service is a case in point. The Federal Government pays the bills but the State Employment Services get their directives nearer home.

MINIMUM WAGE

Well, what else have we been doing? We have been working on some issues, which were not mentioned in the October Board meeting; i.e. extension of minimum wage to farm labor and defense of the family farm policy of the Reclamation Act, which is under heavy corporation attack.

I will say just a little about minimum wage, because others will speak of it in a moment. NCALL has cooperated in the united effort initiated by the Consumers League in support of the bill for extension of minimum wage coverage under the Fair Labor Standards Act. The bill provides coverage which would include industrialized farms. Our efforts have been limited to sending information to our Board members and corresponding with individual board members who were working on the issue.

Many letters from a lot of people to their Congressmen will be indicated. It seems that Congress has been flooded with letters against the bill stimulated by retail interests.

THE FAMILY FARM POLICY OF THE RECLAMATION ACT

Most of my time the last month has been absorbed by an emergency which rose with respect to some irrigation bills. As you know most large scale corporation farming is on irrigated land, usually land irrigated at federal expense. The federal rules are that when a dam is built at public expense the water will be divided equitably. No one man can have more water than enough to irrigate 160 acres. (His wife can have as much also.)

Hearings were called on March 5 on very short notice on eight irrigation bills. What was at stake was the breakdown of reclamation law, a great boost for corporation farming, and multiplication of farm labor problems.

I want to say here, how grateful I am to Father Vizzard who stood by through thick and thin. People rallied to the cause. We got some influential witnesses ready for the fray and a number of people writing in from around the country. Then when we were all dressed up and ready to go, Senator Lyndon Johnson suspended all hearings until the Senate had acted on the Middle East Resolution. We were told the hearings would be on the 13th. But then we began getting contradictory answers as to whether we would be allowed to testify. Finally the day before the hearing we got the definitive answer that only proponents of the bills would be allowed to testify. The rest of us could file statements.

We decided in most cases to do that, and to say at the beginning of our statements that we protested the lack of opportunity to appear. By doing this we hoped to lay the ground work for an appeal to Senator Murray for a hearing by the full Interior Committee in the event that the Subcommittee on Irrigation and Reclamation brought in a bad report. Some telegrams of protest were sent.

We will need to watch closely from now on. The ground work done so far means that there are more allies, to defend the 160 acre limitation than for some time in the past.

Dear Miss Herring:

I am sorry to be so long in answering your letter of March 7th, but we have been spearing about for the kind of information you want -- unfortunately with no success.

Beyond the sources that you would already be in touch with, such as Tuskegee and the better state agricultural schools, I know of no one to suggest.

Sorry to fail you, but I hope this won't discourage you from querying us anytime we may be able to help. Needless to say, I greatly appreciate your good wishes as I tackle new responsibilities.

With all best regards.

Dear Dr. Fleming:

Do you have suggestions of how I could get some concrete information about displacements which are going on in the South as a result of the new Soil Conservation program?

I would much appreciate your own views and also the names of persons in a few spots in the south who might give me definite information.

My best wishes to you as you undertake your executive responsibilities. We are all most fortunate that you will be the leader of the indispensable Regional Council.

Dear Miss Herring:

A thousand pardons for this delay in responding to the kind invitation to serve on the Board of the NCALL. The truth is that I have been having inner conflict. I had promised myself that I would take on no added responsibilities, even nominal ones, at this time when the demands of the Council are so heavy. On the other hand, I was greatly tempted by your warm invitation.

After mulling it over this long, I am writing to say that I accept the position of member-at-large with appreciation. I won't be nearly as useful to you as George Mitchell, since agriculture is not a field in which I am deeply versed. However, I hold the work of the NCALL in high regard, and will be glad to give such support as my presence on the Board will constitute.

I thought you might find some material of interest in this article from the Atlanta Journal-Constitution on the effects of the soil bank program. Miss Irving, our Research Assistant, will send you further such articles as they appear.

Dear Dr. Fleming:

Thank you so much for your letter. The kind of information we are both seeking is hard to pin down. I think we have a fresh influx of these migrating folks here in Washington. There has been much awareness of late of starving children, and emergency programs have been set up. Of course, we do not know, how recently these people have come. The newspaper accounts speak of residence laws as a block to welfare assistance.

Last week NCALL had its Annual Meeting in New York. The Board of Directors voted to send a warm invitation to you to become a member-at-large of our Board of Directors. We hope very much that you will accept. The Board has two meetings a year, one in Washington and the other in New York. Whether you can get to meetings or not we would be honored and pleased to count you as a member-at-large and we would hope for your suggestions from time to time.

If the time should come that you feel the policy of the Southern Regional Council would permit organizational membership we would of course be much pleased. In the meantime, it would give us great pleasure to have you serve in your individual capacity.

With best wishes and the hope that you will serve,

Sincerely yours,

Atlanta 3, Georgia

Dear Dr. Fleming:

It is wonderfully good news that you will be a member of our Board of Directors. I look forward with great pleasure to working with you.

I am glad to have this opportunity to tell you how impressed I was with your address at the Civil Liberties Clearing House Conference. I was very glad, indeed that I did not miss that.

I am delighted to have the material from the Atlanta Journal-Constitution on the effects of the soil bank program. Will you please thank Miss Irving also for the extra instalments? The material is really tremendous and I am planning to get a few informed people together to see how to assess it.

If you are feeling the need of a vacation from the problems of the state of Georgia and environs, I hope that you will put our next Board meeting on your list. It will be held here in Washington next December and the subject will be family farm strategy. Information about the dates will be sent out soon.

My best wishes to you. Whenever suggestions occur to you of ways we can be helpful, I hope you will send them on to me.

Sincerely yours,

Elizabeth B. Herring

TO: The Board of Directors of NCALL

FROM: Elizabeth B. Herring, Executive Secretary

ANNOUNCEMENT OF BOARD MEETING
December 12, 1957
10:00 A.M. - 4:30 P.M.
1637 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C.

The next regular meeting of the Board of Directors will be held in Washington on December 12th. It will be an all day meeting, including luncheon. A later notice will give details.

In addition to regular business, the Board will hear and discuss a report from a special committee appointed by the Board to prepare education and action recommendations on "Family Farm Strategy." Because of rapid changes and confusion in farm policy, it is difficult for organizations interested in strengthening family farmers to know where to take hold.

Among the members of the committee are:

Dr. Theodore Norman, Chairman
General Manager of the Jewish Agricultural Society
Rev. James L. Vizzard S.J.
National Catholic Rural Life Conference
Dr. Benson Y. Landis
National Council of Churches
Dr. Howard Tolley
National Farmers' Union

Others have been invited to serve whose special interest is in the labor aspect of the subject; i.e. the family farmers' own labor and his stake in hired farm labor issues. The report will have something to say about the relationship between the problems of low income farmers, commercial farmers and hired farm labor.

SPECIAL NOTE Dr. Dawson and I are happy to report that Mr. Clyde T. Ellis has accepted the invitation of the Board to become a member-at-large. Mr. Ellis is General Manager of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association.

AGENDA OF BOARD MEETING
Friday, December 13, 1957
10:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.
1637 Massachusetts Avenue, N. W.
Washington, D. C.

The preparatory committee for the December 13 board meeting met in New York on November 14 to consider how the Board might focus its discussion of "Family Farm Strategy". Present were: Dr. Theodore Norman, Chairman; Henry Arneson; Dr. Benson Y. Landis; Rev. James L. Vizzard, S. J.; and staff members, Elizabeth Herring and Martha Lewis.

The committee asked the staff to prepare background material for use at the board meeting. This enclosed draft has been prepared. It has not been reviewed by members of the committee and has the status of a discussion tool and not of an NCALL pronouncement.

Since the purpose of the board meeting is to make plans, the agenda will be set up in terms of the action decisions needed.

Several agricultural economists will meet with us. Their fields of specialization are farm efficiency and scale of farms, land tenure, low income farm research, marketing and distribution and farm labor research.

Special Note: In line with the committee's suggestion, the staff is at work on a summary of the low-income farm and farm labor policies and programs of five federal-state agencies and programs; i.e.:

Farmers' Home Administration Agricultural Extension Service
Rural Development Program
Federal and State Employment Services
Vocational Education

RECEIVED DEC - 9 1957

NOTE: These suggestions were prepared by the NCALL staff and represent their uncorrected sentiments.

DRAFT OF SUGGESTIONS FOR A PROGRAM OF FAMILY FARM INFORMATION AND ACTION

Discussion Material for Use by the Board of Directors
December 13, 1957 -- Washington, D. C.

The statement of "OBJECTIVES AND PURPOSE" adopted by the NCALL Board of Directors on June 6, 1951 recognizes the key importance of land tenure in a national agricultural policy which improves the conditions of low income farm operators and farm labor. This policy statement places NCALL on record as supporting a national agricultural policy which is favorable to "establishment of the efficiently managed, adequately capitalized family type farm as the predominant form of agricultural production."

The subject for discussion at this board meeting is "Family Farm Strategy". The aim will be to get a clearer focus on what needs to be done in the broad sense, and also what specific measures should be emphasized in the period immediately ahead.

The following "SUGGESTED PROGRAM" is a statement of goals rather than specific measures. Another statement will be available at the board meeting on December 13 which gives a forecast of specific legislation which will be dealt with during the second session of the 85th Congress. (Since NCALL takes no positions in its own name these program suggestions are for discussion only)

SUGGESTED PROGRAM

As a yard stick for testing legislative proposals and administrative performance these goals for action are suggested:

IN RELATION TO THE COMMERCIAL FAMILY FARM

Support the principle that government has responsibility for helping to maintain farm income at a fair level because of the inherent lack of bargaining power among those engaged in family farm production.

Support federal agricultural policy which has coherence with respect to price supports, production planning (control), marketing regulations and other measures aimed at gearing production to comsumption while maintaining farm income at a fair level.

Support programs designed to maintain a stable price structure which is fair to both farmers and consumers; e.g.

- A support policy which corrects violent swings in farm prices.
- A yard stick for a fair price based on accepted standards of fair return for labor, management and capital;
- Inclusion of a fair standard for wage as well as family labor in price support policy.
- Programs which take all major crops and livestock into account and do not place groups of farmers in destructive competition with each other.
- Experiments with new price support devices intended to encourage consumption while protecting the income of farm producers; such as a mixture of commodity loans and production payments.

Support research and action programs designed to improve marketing and distribution of farm products; with the goal of reducing costs to consumers and giving the farmer a fair share of the consumer's dollar.

Support continuous study within the Congress and in the Executive Branch of the effect of all Government programs upon commercial family farms, so that a coherent family farm policy may develop.

Support programs, voluntary and governmental, of public information on such agricultural issues as:

The meaning of the family-farm type of land tenure for the general welfare
The characteristics of farm enterprises (as distinguished from business enterprises)
The interdependence of crops and crop policies
What happens to crops while getting from the farmer to the consumer and what must be done at the municipal as well as state and federal level.
Reasons for Government intervention in maintaining farm income.

IN RELATION TO THE LOW INCOME FAMILY FARMER WHO SELLS VERY LITTLE

If a "subsistence" farmer is helped out of his low-income position and becomes a producer on a larger scale, he then acquires the problems of commercial farmers inferred above. In the meantime while he is reaching commercial status special programs are required which fit his situation; requiring citizens to Recognize that the low income farm population in certain areas represents the largest bloc of poverty remaining in the United States and that a national policy is needed which is adequate in scope and in methods of work. This calls for support of united effort by tax-supported and voluntary agencies (plus appropriations) to improve the economy and educational resources of low income farm communities.

Support a program of technical assistance and supervised credit to low-income families wishing to stay in farming; and relaxation of the rules governing public welfare workers so they may work in effective cooperation with agricultural agents.

Support increased grants (not matching funds) to low income farm areas for general education (including vocational). Encourage state and local school officials to consider downward extension of vocational education in areas where skills must be taught before children leave elementary school.

Support appropriations and policies which will permit the State Employment Services to work in cooperation with the schools and other agencies so that members of low income farm families will have proper guidance in seeking off-farm employment.

Support provisions in farm legislation (price, production control, marketing, soil bank) to prevent disastrous effects on low-income farmers.

Support constructive "distressed area" programs which will improve the economy of low-income farm areas. Support research in low-income farm areas to define transition problems as industry develops and to indicate needed measures.

Support programs of public information on the facts of rural poverty and the practical problems of doing anything about it; including information about such factors as the low tax-base which makes improved locally financed education impossible, and translating into American terms the many sided technical, cultural, economic approach characteristics of the best Point Four experience.

Conduct programs of public information on the programs and policies of federal and state tax-supported agencies which by statute can undertake or expand work with low income farmers and farm labor, so that citizens may know what to expect of them and support them in efforts to aid low income farm people.

RESOURCE DEVELOPMENT: IN RELATION TO ALL FARMERS AND THE GENERAL WELFARE

Systematic farm planning in relation to water resources in tributary watersheds.

Unified and maximum multiple-purpose development of river basins for flood control, irrigation, low cost power, fertilizer production, wild life protection; and related public policies for wide distribution of benefits and protection against monopoly.

Expand and strengthen rural electric cooperatives through a loan policy which is economically feasible in farm territory, low cost power projects to meet needs of the cooperatives, and inclusion of the cooperatives in Federal planning for building nuclear reactors.

Soil conservation policy and programs which encourage wise use of the soil and make major conservation engineering possible.

IN RELATION TO THE WAGE WORKER ON THE FAMILY FARM

Most efficient family farmers employ one or two wage workers on a regular basis. The tendency is for these regular wage workers to receive wages not too out of line with those in towns: they are covered by Old Age and Survivors Insurance, and by some state social legislation.

In addition family farmers raising certain crops employ some migratory seasonal labor. Frequently they are not unwilling to accept the "advantage" of the low wages which result when corporation farm interests flood the farm labor seasonal market with workers from the low income farm areas of the United States and the countries south of us.

Among the activities indicated are:

A program of interpretation to family farmers through churches and other media of how their own labor is devalued and competition from corporations growing the same crops is encouraged when family farmers acquiesce in sub-standard conditions for seasonal labor; also interpretation of the need for inclusion of farm workers in social legislation.

Support federal and state legislation which provides grants for schools in farming communities, where the tax base is low and the school unable to take care of large numbers of migrant children.

THE NEEDS OF THE CHILDREN OF MIGRATORY AGRICULTURAL WORKERS

GENERAL OBJECTIVES

State programs in behalf of migrant children should in some cases be directed to the children. Any activity which stabilizes and raises the standard of living of the migrant family is probably the most fundamental of child welfare services. Beside having all the normal problems of childhood, migrant children run an obstacle race in the following respects:

Lack of stable social relations in a home base where they feel they belong.
Cultural isolation because they belong for the most part to minority races and often are not accepted in the communities where the family works.
Lack of continuity in education and medical care.
Educational limitations of their parents who often cannot help them to adjust to the demands and culture of the larger world.

Balanced State and community services to migrant children include programs on several fronts: e.g.

Stabilization of the economic position of the migrant family. Promotion of farm labor and housing policies by the Federal Government and the States which make a genuine home base in a normal community possible.
Planning by school officials at all levels of government so as to include migrant children as normally as possible, providing supplementary education where necessary.
Planning by health officials at all levels of government so as to include migrants in all necessary health services.
Planning by education officials at all levels of government for adult education programs which equip parents to help their children.
Protective services which safeguard migrant children in the various ways considered necessary for all children.

ACTION PROGRAMS AND RESEARCH

The following activities have been tried or thought of by the States, in many cases with Federal cooperation.

1. Strengthen services of State Employment Services to low income farm families through such activities as:

   Pilot studies in areas requiring seasonal farm labor to determine whether adequate labor can be found within the area if certain recruiting and wage policies are put into effect. Aim: to give domestic farm people a chance to work within a reasonable radius from their homes (The story is told of a Florida school which had 17 Texas-Mexican children in it four years ago. Last year there were 450.)

   These pilot studies would explore how to teach and prepare these farm people for both farm and non-farm job opportunities.

   Studies of labor markets and of labor surplus areas so that the annual worker plan can be worked out with the least possible migrancy.

2. Federal housing loan program to provide assistance to the States in developing sound housing policy for migrants, this policy to include a prohibition that any housing can be built with Federal assistance that is not suitable for domestic migrants travelling with their families. Standards for housing which give children necessary privacy.

3. Include farm labor in minimum wage legislation.

4. Studies of the shack towns which migrants are building in the attempt to establish a home base. These studies to include fact-finding about real estate promoters and the various factors which distinguish a slum from a community. The results of these studies to be used in municipal planning and in provision of youth as well as general community services.

Consideration of the applicability of urban housing titles of the National Housing Act for improvement of fringe areas.

5. State-wide planning for migrant childhood education, the following aspects being considered:

Where the children are, what facilities are available, what additional funds are needed and where they should come from.
Research as to the educational situation of migrant children;i.e.development or lack of it; cultural including language factors; physical, family and other obstacles.
Training programs for teachers and school officials at State, district and community levels, the content to give insight as to the way schools can meet the needs of migrant children. Leadership to be given by the State Board of Education in the education of School Boards and P.T.A.'s.

6. Cooperative Planning by appropriate State agencies: e.g. State Board of Education, Agricultural Extension Service, Department of Public Welfare, Health Department on adult education programs for migrants in home making, sanitation, literacy, community services, citizenship.

7. Planning by State and County Health agencies on how to include migrant camps and the people in them in regular public health services, with continuity. Work out some new ideas for providing migrants with medical care and hospitalization. (see No. 8)

8. Insurance. Florida, Virginia and New York might do a three state exploration of group insurance for crews. This insurance might cover medical and hospital care, life and accident risks. A model to study is the type of minimum insurance policy which boys and girls have when they go to camp.

9. Nutrition. License commissaries which feed migrant families with the aim in mind of preventing exploitation, insuring adequate and nutritious food, children's needs being specifically included.

10. Recreation. The State Board of Education to take the initiative in bringing together other interested agencies to consider what can be done to supply not only "wholesome" but creative recreation which will contribute to the development of migrant people.

11. Protective (with an educational factor) services for children. State wide systems of child care centers. Introduce legislation to abolish residence requirements for receiving all forms of public assistance. As a step toward getting that through plan some area surveys and pilot projects which will make the needs clear and vivid.

12. License crew leaders. Enact State transportation and housing legislation.

13. Pass State child labor laws which limit child wage labor on farms out of school hours. Ask the State Health Department to do some spot studies of the effects on physical well being of certain types of farm work by children.

Dear Dr. Fleming:

We were sorry that you could not be with us for the Board Meeting, but some day I hope that our Board date will coincide with one of your journeys in this direction.

I wonder whether you could find a moment to comment on some of the items in the enclosed notes of our Board discussion? I would like to have your opinion of what the Rural Vocational Education issues are in the South from the racial as well as the general point of view. I enclose a copy of Senator Lister Hill's bill which he introduced in the First Session proposing to expand Area Vocational Schools. The other question which interests me is vertical integration in the South. I have checked the items in the discussion to which I refer.

There is no rush about any of this, but when you have time I would be most grateful for words of wisdom.

With best wishes,

Sincerely yours,

Elizabeth B. Herring

Dear Miss Herring:

I regret that there is little prospect of my being in New York on April 2 for the Annual Meeting of NCALL.

It strikes me that I have been an even less functional board member than I predicted - even in correspondance. I hope you will feel free to replace me with someone, in the South or elsewhere, who can make a contribution to NCALL's important work.

NOTICE OF ANNUAL MEETING

The Annual Meeting will be held in New York City, April 2, 1958 from 10:00 A.M. to 3:00 P.M. The place of meeting will be the conference room of the Division of Home Missions, National Council of Churches, 257 Fourth Avenue.

This meeting will be something of a milestone because it comes at the time when NCALL's migrant education research project is in its final stage. New opportunities for the NCALL Research Fund can now be seized because the Bureau of Internal Revenue has assured us that donor tax-exemption will be granted.

Among the items on the agenda of the Annual Meeting will be a summary of the new research proposals which have been made. Will you help to make that summary useful by sending your suggestions (by March 15) on the enclosed sheet?

In case you have not seen it, perhaps you would like to write to Community Research Associates, Inc., 124 East 40th Street, New York 16, New York, for a copy of CURRENT SOCIAL RESEARCH, AN INVENTORY. In transmitting this report to the Honorable Marion B. Folsom, Secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Mr. Bradley Buell, Executive Director, says that the INVENTORY is "designed to be of assistance in developing plans" for research grants related to programs of the Social Security Administration. The projects listed in the INVENTORY cover a broad area of subject matter some being in NCALL's field of interest.

Please detach and mail

SUGGESTED NCALL RESEARCH PROJECTS

On this sheet will you please list any low income farm problem which you feel has not received accurate attention? Will you state what the question is that needs an answer? In other words what would NCALL want to find out?

In making suggestions it would be helpful to have your thoughts about a) the straight research stage and b) a possible demonstration stage.

Dear Dr. Fleming:

We are sorry you cannot be at the New York meeting but your membership on our Board gives me the good feeling that when we need advice and information about the South we can impose on you.

We have just been granted tax exemption for our research fund. It is highly possible that our next enterprise will be in the South and you will be hearing from me about it.

257 Fourth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

TAX EXEMPTION FOR THE RESEARCH FUND IS NOW A FACT. The letter from the Bureau of Internal Revenue granting donor tax exemption has arrived.

Part of the Annual Meeting will be a joint session of the directors of NCALL and of the Research Fund to discuss new research proposals. (The Research Fund will have its Annual Meeting at 3:00 P.M.)

REVIEW OF NCALL OBJECTIVES. Because this year is a milestone in NCALL history, the report of the Executive Secretary will be an account of the purposes served by NCALL up to this date. Proposals for the future will be discussed and acted upon.

CHANGE IN THE BY-LAWS TO PROVIDE FOR TERMS OF OFFICE FOR OFFICERS AND MEMBERS-AT-LARGE. In line with the action of the Board at the 1957 Annual Meeting, amendments will be proposed providing:

1. That officers may serve two consecutive terms of two years each and may not serve a third term without a lapse of one year.

2. That members-at-large may serve two consecutive terms of three years each and may not serve a third term without a lapse of one year.

3. That the officers elected in 1958 shall be considered as new officers even though they may have a record of prior service.

4. That in 1958 one-third of the members-at-large shall be elected for one year (the division to be made by lot) one-third for two years, and one-third for three years, and thereafter at each Annual Meeting, one-third of the members-at-large shall be chosen for a three-year term.

MINUTES OF THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF THE

NATIONAL COUNCIL ON AGRICULTURAL LIFE AND LABOR

April 2, 1958
New York City

The annual meeting of the Board of Directors of the National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor met on Wednesday, April 2, 1958 at 10:00 A.M. in the conference room of the Division of Home Missions, National Council of Churches, 257 Fourth Avenue, New York City.

Dr. Howard A. Dawson presided. Others present were: Fay Bennett, National Sharecroppers Fund; Eli E. Cohen, National Child Labor Committee; Richard O. Comfort, Division of Home Missions, National Council of Churches; Clyde Ellis, National Rural Electric Cooperative Association; Curtis Gatlin, National Child Labor Committee; Helen Gulick, New York Consumers League; Elizabeth Herring, NCALL, Benson Y. Landis, National Council of Churches; Martha Lewis, NCALL; Edith E. Lowry, Division of Home Missions, National Council of Churches; Theodore Norman, Jewish Agricultural Society; Serafino Romualdi, AFL-CIO; Esther C. Stamats, United Church Women; Amber Warburton, Alliance for Guidance of Rural Youth; Rowland Watts, Migrant Childrens Fund; Marian Weller, Girl Scouts of the U.S.A.; Susanne Zwemer, National Consumers League; Gertrude Folks Zimand, Member-at-Large.

MINUTES: Minutes of the annual meeting of the Board of Directors of NCALL held in New York City on March 19, 1957, minutes of the Executive Committee held in Washington on April 16, 1957, minutes of the Executive Committee held in Washington on October 13, 1957, and minutes of the autumn meeting of the Board of Directors of NCALL held in Washington on December 13, 1957 were approved as read.

TRIBUTE TO PHILIP SCHIFF: Dr. Dawson paused to pay tribute to Philip Schiff who died on February 14, 1958. Dr. Dawson mentioned the eloquent editorial that had appeared in the Washington Post about Phil which said in part -

> "There was hardly a philanthropic or social welfare undertaking in this community that Philip Schiff didn't have a hand in....He was...one of Washington's real leaders in everything pertaining to care of the sick and needy, the homeless and helpless. He brought to problems of this kind the wisdom and skill of long experience and training in social work. But he brought also a nature of extraordinary compassion, warmth and quickness of insight. No suffering was alien to Phil Schiff. No demand was too taxing. No obstacles overawed him. He died suddenly - in service, as he would have wished. The community is the poorer for his passing."

Dr. Dawson said that it was impossible to relate what each member of NCALL Board had derived from association with Phil over the years, but he wished the official record to reflect the personal blessings that each had received from having known and worked with Phil.

Phil had not only been treasurer of NCALL since its inception, but treasurer of the National Citizens Council for Migrant Labor which had been organized in 1947. When the Council decided to broaden its base and work in behalf of all low income rural people, NCALL was organized to fill that need, Phil was elected treasurer of the new organization, has held that office for most of the past eight years. NCALL has lost one of its pioneer and loyal workers.

REPORTS

Treasurer. The Annual Financial Statement for January 1, 1957 to December 31, 1957 was accepted as distributed.

Dr. Dawson reported that tax exemption for NCALL Research Fund, Inc. was now an accomplished fact. At present the Fund had a cash balance of $3,586.34. This total was earmarked for costs of publishing and distributing the report on the education of migrant children.

Dr. Dawson appointed an ad hoc Finance Committee to include: Paul Sifton, Ada Stough, Katherine Ellickson, Mrs. Marvin Sonosky, Fay Bennett and Dr. Dawson, ex-officio member. The responsibility of the Finance Committee would be to draw up a budget and draft a more permanent finance committee plan. Miss Bennett moved that the Finance Committee be instructed to prepare an adequate budget in which salaries of staff members be scheduled at prevailing rate and that the committee make every effort to seek financial assistance to underwrite the salaries. Dr. Norman seconded the motion. Carried.

Membership Committee. Dr. Norman, chairman, reported (1) the proposal made at the 1957 annual meeting to invite the Southern Mountain Schools Association to become a member organization of NCALL was being pursued; (2) AFL-CIO Industrial Union Department had been invited to become a member organization; and (3) the National Jewish Welfare Board had sent a letter of resignation from NCALL.

The report was accepted.

Legislative Committee. In the absence of Paul Sifton, chairman, Miss Herring reported on cooperative activities of NCALL on farm labor issues. Two of the organizations interested in farm labor are the U. S. Section of the Joint United States-Mexico Trade Union Committee, and the Women's Joint Congressional Committee.

After discussion by the Board of the Area Redevelopment Bill sponsored by Senator Paul Douglas, Illinois, Miss Bennett moved that NCALL prepare an attractive brochure on the program involved in this bill. Mrs. Warburton seconded the motion. Carried.

Clyde Ellis spoke to this motion, emphasizing the importance of educating the public to an appreciation of a bill of this type. For example, as an aid to the United States in the present depression, he cited the value of river development in one part of the country which would not only benefit that area economically but provide employment for hundreds in Pittsburgh.

Officers: Howard A. Dawson, Chairman; Rev. James L. Vizzard, S.J., 1st v.p.; Fay Bennett, 2nd v.p.; Theodore Norman, 3rd v.p.; Gertrude F. Zimand, sec'y-treas.; Shirley Sonosky, ass't sec'y-treas.

Executive Committee - Members-at-large: Eli E. Cohen, Katherine P. Ellickson, Edith Lowry, Paul Sifton, Reuben Johnson.

Membership Committee: Theodore Norman, Chairman; Ethlyn Christensen, Benson Y. Landis, Gertrude F. Zimand, Rev. Shirley E. Greene, Rev. Richard O. Comfort.

Nominating Committee: Katherine P. Ellickson, Chairman: Rev. James L. Vizzard, S.J., Barbara Moffett, Edith Lowry, Eli E. Cohen.

Legislative Committee: Paul Sifton, Chairman; Katherine P. Ellickson, Louise Stitt, Shirley Sonosky, Edith Lowry, Rev. James L. Vizzard, S.J.

Miss Lowry made a motion that the slate be accepted. The motion was seconded by Mrs. Zimand. Carried.

NCALL RESEARCH POLICY AND PROPOSALS

Miss Herring presented for discussion a list of possible research undertakings that the NCALL Research Fund might wish to explore. The proposals fell into three categories:

Projects in low income farm communities and areas
Projects dealing with general farm labor problems
Projects dealing with the welfare of migrant children.

Dr. Paul Blackwood and Mrs. Gertrude Folks Zimand reported on the cooperative research programs of the Office of Education and Social Security Administration. (See enclosed research proposals.)

Presentation of biography of Sir Edward Coke to Howard Dawson, Chairman of NCALL.

In behalf of the Board, Curtis Gatlin presented Dr. Dawson with the book in recognition of his superior legal ability, tenacity and enormous and generous effort expended in securing tax exemption for the Research Fund.

CONSULTATION ON RESEARCH PROGRAM

The NCALL RESEARCH FUND is about to publish the final report of its pilot education project with the children of migrant agricultural workers. The book will be published this fall by the Department of Rural Education of the National Education Association.

The FUND is now turning its attention to what the next phase should be of its studies of low income farm problems. Its approach as a research agency is guided by three considerations; i.e.

Is a study needed to clarify the problem?
Will a group of member or cooperating organizations of NCALL stand back of the study?
Will the study pave the way for a program of action?

At a recent meeting, the FUND considered ten proposals for studies of particular aspects of the situation of farm labor and low income farm operators. In addition to suggestions for continuation of the FUND's interest in migrant children, the following research proposals were considered:

Are information services available to low income farm operators in the South?
How do young people in low income farm families get advised about, prepared for and helped in finding jobs?
How are welfare needs being met in low income rural situations?
How can agricultural extension, public welfare, public health and other social services work together to solve problems of low income farm dependency and rural community poverty?
What successful rural medical self help medical plans are in existence?
Under what conditions should foreign farm labor be admitted? What aid should the US offer Mexico with its rural problems?
Is agricultural migrancy the only way to meet the technological requirements for seasonal farm labor? What effect would improved tenure, labor recruitment and labor standards have upon the supply of resident seasonal labor?
How can the insurance needs of farm labor be met?
How can voluntary and tax-supported agencies in low income farm areas work together with respect to adult education?
Where does responsibility lie for community services in farm labor slums around cities and towns?
Is there enough understanding on the part of teachers, social workers and other professionals of the social conditioning of low income farm people migrating with the crops or to the cities?

The directors of the FUND came to the conclusion that each of these questions involved a central issue; i.e. what overall strategy for a low income farm area will work? It was recognized that a complex of factors accounts for the persistence of rural poverty on an area wide scale, and that single programs are likely to meet defeat unless developed as part of a plan. It was recognized also that low income farm areas have been studied extensively, many useful programs have been tried but that all this knowledge and experience has not been put together in a form that provides enough guidance for the thinking of national organizations.

The FUND directors agreed therefore that as a preliminary to making up their minds as to what new studies they would undertake, a consultation should be arranged with a group of specialists in and out of government on what the FUND might do put together in a national picture three kinds of data; i.e.

Low income farm research most relevant for area improvement.
Successful approaches tried in low income farm areas.
Constructive proposals not yet tried.

The directors of the FUND felt that if such an overall picture existed, even though not exhaustive, the main issues would be clarified and a better framework would be provided for selection of and carrying out particular studies. The directors realized that such a descriptive study would mobilize the intelligent interest of national organizations now lacking any understood way of taking hold of the problems of rural poverty. The Councils of Social Agencies which link voluntary and tax-supported agencies in cities stimulate public discussion and mobilize citizen action. Such councils do not and often could not exist in low income farm areas. As a result tax-supported agencies are frequently the only active factors and they are limited by lack of broad citizen support. To accomplish anything this support must be rural and urban.

The subjects of the consultation will be therefore:

Would it be useful and possible to attempt an overall picture of low income area research and proposals?

What would the researchers look for and how would citizen groups participate in the fact-finding? Since one objective is to involve national organizations in strategic programs for rural improvement, how could such a project result not in a book to put on a shelf but in intelligent commitment of many people?

AGENDA OF BOARD MEETING
Friday, November 14, 1958 10:30 AM- 2:30 PM
YWCA, 17th and K Streets NW, Washington, D.C.

The morning session will be in the fourth floor club room and the luncheon session in the lounger (also on the fourth floor) Luncheon reservations are necessary in advance because a guarantee must be given ($1.50).

FARM LABOR LEGISLATION IN THE NEXT SESSION OF CONGRESS The outlook is good for the introduction and consideration of several farm labor bills (e.g. housing, rest stops, registration of crew leaders, minimum wage). A Congressional investigation of farm labor policy is also a possibility. The Board will discuss what can be done to build effective support for these developments.

NEW RESEARCH PROPOSALS The Board of Directors of the NCALL Research Fund will report several new research proposals and ask for the advice of the NCALL Board of Directors. Task forces are at work defining research proposals in the following areas:

1. Low income farm area development policy.
2. Vocational education in low income rural areas.
3. Coordination of available data and new studies to guide policy with respect to a) Mexican farm labor, and b) farm labor in general
4. Training of professional personnel for the social services (including education) in low income farm areas.

NOTE: Under separate cover copies of recent broadcasts on farm labor by Edward P. Morgan have been forwarded to you. These are background for the Board discussion on November 14.

Also, under separate cover, a report has been sent to you of a consultation on programs with migrant children which was held in New York on September 26, 1958. The meeting was initiated by a group of member organizations to meet the need for a fresh perspective on the direct services which they were giving to migrant children. NCALL assisted the planning committee in setting up the meeting.

MINUTES OF THE AUTUMN MEETING OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF THE NATIONAL COUNCIL ON AGRICULTURAL LIFE AND LABOR

November 14, 1958
Washington, D.C.

The autumn meeting of the Board of Directors of the National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor convened on Friday, November 14, 1958, at the YWCA, Seventeenth and K Streets, Washington, D.C.

Dr. Howard Dawson presided. Others present were: Stuart Morrison, National Advisory Committee on Farm Labor; Katherine Ellickson, AFL-CIO; Ted Norman, Jewish Agricultural Society; Mrs. Harper, Women's Bureau, Dept. of Labor; Richard Shipman, Farmers Union; Curtis Gatlin, National Child Labor Committee; Louise Stitt, and Vera Waltman, Consumers League; Ethlyn Christensen, National Board, YWCA; Amber Warburton, Alliance for Guidance of Rural Youth; Mrs. Clifford Bender, Women's Division, Methodist Church; Marian Weller, Girl Scouts; Kermit Overby, National Rural Electric Cooperative Association; Rabbi Eugene Lipman, Social Action Committee, Union of Hebrew Congregations; Vincent de Francis, American Humane Association; Francis X. Servaites, National Housing Conference; Judith Howard, American Friends Service Committee; Olya Margolin and Shirley Sonosky, National Council of Jewish Women, Martha Lewis and Elizabeth Herring, NCALL.

MINUTES: Mrs. Sonosky moved that the minutes of the Annual meeting of the Board of Directors of NCALL held on April 2, 1958, in New York, be approved as circulated. The motion was seconded and carried.

The secretary read a letter of resignation from Mrs. George L. Weil. Mrs. Warburton moved that her resignation be accepted with regret and that the secretary be directed to so inform Mrs. Weil by letter. Motion carried.

REPORT OF THE TREASURER: Mrs. Warburton moved that the Financial Statement of the General Account be accepted as distributed. Motion carried.

Miss Herring, reporting on the status of annual dues, said that reminders will be sent out to those organizations who have not paid. Two letters go out to contributors in January and in the fall. Mrs. Warburton suggested setting up a committee to increase the mailing list of individuals who are prospective contributors so that when more clerical help is available in the office it can be used.

Dr. Dawson called the attention of the Board to the death in New York City of a former Board member, Dr. Davidson, of the Jewish Agricultural Society. Dr. Davidson became a member of the Board of NCALL when it was formed in 1951 and added the support of his organization. Dr. Norman moved that the secretary prepare an appropriate resolution to send to the family. Motion carried.

REPORT OF THE EXECUTIVE SECRETARY: Miss Herring gave a resume of activities since the Aprl 2 meeting. Mrs. Warburton moved the Board accept the report and asked for a written statement to be prepared so that all members can be informed of the activities.

Miss Herring announced that the National Committee for the White House Conference is to meet Dec. 18-19. Mrs. Ellickson moved that Dr. Dawson designate a small Board group which would find out how NCALL can be helpful. Motion carried.

REPORT OF THE MEMBERSHIP COMMITTEE: Dr. Norman moved that the applications for membership to NCALL of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the United States Section of the Joint United States-Mexico Trade Union Committee, and the Town and Country Department, Evangelical and Reformed Church, United Church of Christ be accepted. Motion carried.

MEETINGS ON FARM LABOR: Miss Stitt announced the Fifty-eighth Annual meeting of the National Consumers League on December 4-5 to consider "New Goals for Social Legislation". The meeting will take place at the Shoreham Hotel, Washington, D.C.

The National Advisory Committee on Farm Labor has called a public inquiry for February 5-6 at the Mayflower Hotel, Washington, D.C.

FARM LABOR LEGISLATION IN THE FIRST SESSION OF THE EIGHTY-SIXTH CONGRESS: Miss Herring listed several farm labor issues that are being worked on by the Council of State Governments: a migrant housing bill which would establish the principle of Federal Government responsibility; regulations covering child labor outside school hours; minimum wage and other issues.

The minimum wage issue will receive attention at the Conference of the National Consumers League and further attention will be called to farm labor at the Public Inquiry mentioned above.

The President's Committee on Migratory Labor will prepare a bill to license crew leaders. Legislation calling for federal responsibility in providing rest stops for migrants and the reintroduction by Senator Johnson of the Depressed Areas Bill were also mentioned.

After a discussion of the ways in which voluntary organizations can best be effective in securing legislation it was concluded that opportunities must be taken advantage of and energies not scattered; a steering committee to coordinate activities should be established to include members of the Women's Joint Congressional Committee, and legislative representatives of other organizations working toward farm labor standards. Representatives of the following organizations indicated their interest in such a committee: American Humane Association; YWCA; AFL-CIO; National Housing Conference; Women's Division, Methodist Church; National Child Labor Committee; Consumers League; Farmers Union; Social Action Committee, UAHC; National Council of Jewish Women.

It was agreed that all member organizations be invited to designate a representative if they so desire.

Paul Sifton, chairman of the legislative committee, reported on the outlook for legislation in the fields of food processing, family farms, migrant labor, depressed areas. He suggested that the committee to further farm legislation be selective in the matters chosen for support and advised, "write down what you want then underline what you can get."

Dr. Dawson stated that the Depressed Areas Bill should be passed without crippling amendments and steps taken to get the appropriation in the budget.

PROGRESS REPORT OF TASK FORCES FOR NEW RESEARCH PROJECTS: Board members were given copies of the Progress Report (attached to the minutes).

During the discussion of the various proposals for new research projects, Dr. Dawson stated that under the National Defense Education Act a section for vocational education of rural youth, intended for technological training, could be used for education of underprivileged rural groups including migrants. He believes a project would be supported and gotten underway in one or two State Departments of Education.

Dr. Norman, in speaking on the coordination of data, pointed out that it was extremely important to collate and put together material available which focussed on the points of action in order to "help what a few know to get to what many need to know."

Mrs. Ellickson told the Board of the Arkansas project sponsored by the Department of Labor to discover the effects of foreign contract labor on the domestic labor supply. She emphasized the need of a project that could be promptly started should the Depressed Areas Bill be passed.

Miss Stitt moved that the Board recommend to the Research Fund the following proposals:

A. That NCALL make application to the proper Foundations for funds to study what constructive methods are possible for meeting seasonal farm labor without use of foreign contract labor.

B. That NCALL make the necessary investigation as to how to apply for funds under the National Defense Education Act for establishing schools in areas where there are many migrants to train them for useful vocational occupations.

This motion was accepted by the Board. The meeting was adjourned at 2:45 PM.

Ass't. Secretary-Treasurer

February 12 ~~December 15,~~ 1959

To: Members of the Consultation on ~~the Education of~~ Programs for the Children of Migratory Agricultural Workers

From: Elizabeth B. Herring

Subject: MIGRANT CHILDREN AND THE U. S. OFFICE OF EDUCATION

At the time we met in New York on September 26, 1958 we recorded our regret that Dr. Paul Blackwood's future responsibilities would not permit his giving as much time as in the past to the education of migrant children. There was general agreement that voluntary organizations would do well to recommend to the Office of Education that a full time staff member be appointed to specialize on work with the states on how to improve the educational opportunities of migrant children.

In discussions among several of us after the meeting it was agreed that letters from individual voluntary organizations would be an effective way of registering concern. If your organization or you as a person would like to say something about this subject, will you please address your letters to Dr. Lawrence G. Derthick, Commissioner of Education, Office of Education, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Washington 25, D. C.

A carbon of your letter, sent to the NCALL office, would be appreciated.

Several members of the staff of the Office of Education have had a warm interest in the education of migrant children for some time. All, however, have heavy responsibilities of other sorts. Some one is needed, well informed on the needs of migrant children, who can not only give full time himself, but can be a focal point for uniting the kinds of specialization in the Office of Education staff. If for example, a specialist for migrant education were attached to the Elementary Schools Section, he would work cooperatively with other staff members concerned with school administration, adult education and related fields.

Still another reason why a migrant specialist is needed lies in the newness of the field. Much travel and direct consultation with state school authorities is necessary if progress is to be made. This is impossible for staff members who are carrying other absorbing responsibilities.

Whether the following additional comments belong in your letter to the Office of Education is a question, but I add them for your consideration. A full time migrant education staff member in concentrating on the needs of agricultural migrants would learn much that would benefit schools trying to serve America's mobile population, agricultural or otherwise. Also the cultural characteristics of children from low income farm areas of the South and Southwest are those of local as well as migrant children. To learn to serve migrant children with more insight would be to help the general cause of rural education in low income farm areas.

Dear Miss Herring:

Thanks for the communication and your note of May 1.

The most likely person I can think of for case material on child labor in the South is A. E. Cox, who has a roving rural assignment for the National Council of Churches. If you are not in touch with him, he might be worth a try. His address is 933 Chambliss Road, Memphis 16, Tennessee.

Sincerely,

To: THE NCALL STEERING COMMITTEE ON FARM LABOR LEGISLATION

From: Elizabeth B. Herring, Executive Secretary

IMPORTANT

An influential Senator is prepared to introduce an agricultural child labor amendment which will protect children engaged in hired farm work outside of school hours.

The Senator would like to secure as many senatorial co-sponsors as possible. In order to do so, he would like to be able to indicate which national organizations support his desire to introduce such a bill.

Will you please wire or telephone me whether your organization may be listed by the Senator? The following telegram is the kind of authorization needed.

> "The----------(name of organization) authorizes the following statement to be given to Congressional sponsors of agricultural child labor bills. " We appreciate your willingness to introduce bills extending legal protection to hired child workers in agriculture. We affirm the principle that hired child workers in agriculture and urban child workers should have equal protection before the law, and authorize the use of the name of our organization as supporting this principle."

IMPORTANT NOTE Only member organizations of NCALL are being invited to send this authorization. Those who participate in this plan will be among the organizations listed on the left side of this page.

SEE ENCLOSURE FOR ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Dear Dr. Fleming: Could you suggest two or three people who would give us thoughtful case material on children who work for hire in Southern agriculture?

BACKGROUND OF PROPOSED AGRICULTURAL CHILD LABOR BILLS

At the March 20, 1959 Washington meeting of the NCALL Steering Committee on Farm Labor Legislation, a delegation representing several organizations was appointed to consult with members of the Senate and House Subcommittees on Labor as to their willingness to introduce an agricultural child labor amendment, and their judgment as to what should be done.

A cordial response was received and a request registered for a draft of suitable language for the bill. Mrs. Elizabeth B. Coleman, formerly chief of the Child Labor Branch of the Wage, Hour and Public Contracts Division, US Department of Labor was asked to prepare such language. Mrs. Coleman prepared two alternative bills. The Steering Committee (meeting in sections in New York and Washington) approved one version. Both versions have been given to the Senator with information as to the preferences of the Steering Committee.

The NCALL Steering Committee consists of representatives of fourteen member organizations of NCALL. These organizations participate in the work of the Steering Committee because of their desire to work actively to promote farm labor legislation before the 86th Congress. Other member organizations, not able to participate in the work of the Committee because of distance or other reasons, have asked to be kept informed of the recommendations of the Steering Committee so that they may cooperate when possible.

NATIONAL COUNCIL ON AGRICULTURAL LIFE AND LABOR

Annual Meeting
of the Board of Directors

May 8, 1959 -- 9:30 A.M. - 2:00 P.M.
600 Lexington Avenue, New York, N.Y.

The Annual Meeting of the Board of Directors of NCALL was held at 600 Lexington Avenue, New York City, May 8, 1959.

Those present were: Howard A. Dawson, Chairman; Fay Bennett and Theodore Norman, Vice-Chairmen; Gertrude Folks Zimand, Secretary-Treasurer; Elizabeth Herring, Executive Secretary, and the following:

Ethlyn Christensen, Clay L. Cochran, Eli E. Cohen, Elizabeth B. Coleman, Lyle Cooper, Rev. William Davidson, Mrs. James Evans, Judith Howard, Theresa Hoover, Rev. Huber F. Klemme, Benson Y. Landis, Rabbi Eugene J. Lipman, Edith Lowry, Monica Owen, David Sternback, Amber A. Warburton, Marian F. Weller and George W. Rabinoff of the National Social Welfare Assembly.

APPROVAL OF MINUTES

The Secretary-Treasurer reported that the Minutes of the November meeting of the Board of Directors had been mislaid but would be mailed with the Annual Meeting minutes. The main action at the November meeting had been discussion of farm labor legislation in 1959 and the authorization of a steering committee for such legislation.

The minutes of the Executive Committee meeting of April 15, 1959 were read.

TREASURER'S REPORT - MRS. ZIMAND

The Secretary-Treasurer presented the financial statement for NCALL and the NCALL Research Fund for the fiscal year of 1958. These reports were accepted with the comment that rarely had any organization accomplished so much on so small a budget.

REPORT OF EXECUTIVE SECRETARY - MISS HERRING

The Executive Secretary reported on:

The Consultation on Programs with Migrant Children held last fall and attended by representatives of twenty voluntary and public agencies. This led to the appointment of a follow-up committee, "The NCALL Study Committee on Community Services to Migrant Families".

The highly successful "Farm Labor Hearings" of the National Advisory Committee on Farm Labor, held this winter in Washington.

The farm labor legislative program and the appointment of a Steering Committee to work on this and the employment - on a minimum token stipend - of Mrs. Elizabeth Coleman, former chief of the Child Labor Branch of the Wage-Hour Administration, to assist in work on legislation in conformity with NCALL policy.

The formation of a new Steering Committee on Family Farm and Low Income Area Legislation.

The need for a redefinition of the function of the NCALL Legislative Committee, and amendment of the Statement of NCALL legislative policy.

REPORT OF MEMBERSHIP COMMITTEE - BY DR. NORMAN

It was voted to approve the application of the Department of the Church and Economic Life of the National Council of Churches.

REPORT OF PERSONNEL COMMITTEE - BY DR. DAWSON

The Committee had considered a proposal from Miss Herring that another staff member be added who would major on the legislative activities of NCALL. Miss Herring felt that it was not possible for one person to carry NCALL's growing program and at the same time build the financial structure which was needed to sustain the program. The Executive Committee had voted on April 15 to recommend to the Board that a subsidy be sought for a period of years, during which time more staff effort could be put into money raising without sacrificing NCALL program.

The Personnel Committee recommended that Miss Herring continue as Executive Secretary and that a person be employed to carry on the legislative program of the organization under Miss Herring's direction. Appreciation of the heavy load she had so successfully carried and of the legislative assistance given this year by Mrs. Coleman on an almost volunteer basis, was expressed.

It was voted that the recommendation of the Personnel Committee be approved, provided that the finances of the organization permitted the employment of an additional staff member.

REPORT OF THE NOMINATING COMMITTEE- BY MR. COHEN (in the absence of Mrs. Ellickson)

1. A recommendation was made that the assignment of members-at-large by one, two and three year terms, approved at the last Annual Meeting, be carried out at this meeting. The result of the drawing by lot was as follows:

One Year Term: Henry K. Arneson, Shirley E. Greene, Lewis W. Jones, Serafino Romualdi, Shirley Sonosky, Louise Stitt.

Two Year Term: Clyde T. Ellis, Harold C. Fleming, Robert W. Hudgens, Thomas B. Keehn, Ira De A. Reid, Rev. James L. Vizzard S.J.

Three Year Term: Leah Lachenbruch, Rabbi Eugene J. Lipman, Lowry Nelson, George Sanchez, Gertrude Folks Zimand, Benson Y. Landis

The Board also approved the suggestion of the Nominating Committee that members-at-large who have not been active in attendance at meetings or by correspondence be consulted as to whether they wish to continue membership.

2. The following members-at-large were nominated to serve on the executive committee:

Eli E. Cohen, Clay L. Cochran, Edith E. Lowry, Paul Sifton, Reuben Johnson.

It was voted that this slate be approved.

3. It was recommended that the present Membership and Nominating Committees be continued until the fall meeting, and that a time be provided for the meeting of these committees before that meeting. This was approved.

4. It was recommended that the Executive Committee continue to act as the Finance Committee while working on plans to finance the employment of an additional staff member for legislative work.

REPORT ON PILOT PROJECT PROPOSED BY NCALL STUDY COMMITTEE ON COMMUNITY SERVICES TO MIGRANT FAMILIES BY MARIAN F. WELLER

This committee of youth-serving organizations has been working on a proposal for a cooperative demonstration project in some migrant community. Three areas are being considered for such a project: i.e. Arizona, Chicago Heights, San Joaquin Valley. Leaders in these areas were asked to submit specific plans on the type of project they would like to see undertaken. The general nature of the migrant group in the three communities was described and more detailed information given for the proposals in the two communities from whom replies have been received to date.

The Board members expressed great interest in seeing a joint project carried out. There was discussion of the role and function of the Study Committee which represents the agencies which will participate and of the NCALL Research Fund in working out final plans for financing and sponsoring the project. No formal action was taken.

It was voted that the material received from the interested areas be circulated to all member organizations.

REPORT OF STEERING COMMITTEE ON FARM LABOR LEGISLATION - BY ELIZABETH B. COLEMAN

Mrs. Coleman reported on developments with regard to amendments to the Fair Labor Standards Act; the omission of an agricultural minimum wage amendment and extension of agricultural child labor coverage in the main bills (Kennedy-Roosevelt) on which hearings are being held; the plans for separate bills and separate hearings. All member organizations are being kept informed of developments and the timing for action. It was suggested that if, at the time the main bills came up for debate, there seems little hope for hearings on separate bills on farm child labor and minimum wage, consideration be given to having such amendments offered to the main bills from the floor.

REPORT OF STEERING COMMITTEE ON FAMILY FARM AND LOW INCOME AREA LEGISLATION BY CLAY L. COCHRAN

This new steering committee was authorized by the Executive Committee at the April 15 meeting. Its first meeting will be held on May 21 at which time Dr. Willard W. Cochrane, Professor of Agricultural Economics, University of Minnesota, will present his view of the present status of family farming. In the fall all member organizations will be invited to designate representatives to serve on the committee in the event that the organization wished to work on family farm or low income area legislation.

REPORT OF RECENT MEETING OF THE UNITED STATES SECTION - JOINT U.S. MEXICO TRADE UNION COMMITTEE BY DAVID STERNBACK

The most important issues dealt with at its recent meeting were 1) establishment of a minimum wage, 2) organization of migrant workers in Mexico before they come to the United States, 3) inclusion of representatives of labor in the negotiations between the two governments.

PROPOSALS FOR ADDITION TO THE LEGISLATIVE POLICY OF NCALL

The recommendation of the Executive Committee that a third point be added to the Legislative Policy was considered and approved; as follows,

> "(3) A legislative committee may be formed upon approval of the Board or Executive Committee when five or more member organizations are interested in action on particular legislation.
> "Each legislative committee shall choose officers from its members and shall be free to plan direct legislative action provided it does not speak for NCALL as a whole. The strategy decided upon by legislative committees shall be reported to all member organizations of NCALL for their information. Legislative Committees shall be open to all member organizations wishing to be represented. The life of any committee shall not exceed the life of the Congress during which it was created without specific re-approval by the Board or Executive Committee."

Miss Herring stated that the new section 3 regularizes a procedure which had become accepted in NCALL as an effective way to unite the efforts of those member organizations wishing to take direct action on legislative measures.

There was discussion of the function of the standing legislative committee in the light of the development of the steering committees. It was recognized that the steering committees' activities were geared to current legislative events and that there was need also for long range thinking about strategy. The Board members felt that this function could be carried to good effect by the Executive Committee and that a standing legislative committee was not necessary. It was voted that the legislative committee should therefore cease to exist.

The meeting was adjourned at 2 P.M.

ANNUAL MEETING
May 24, 1960 9:30 A.M. - 2:00 P.M.

SIXTH FLOOR CONFERENCE ROOM

Replies indicate representative attendance at the Annual Meeting. This is fortunate because the wisdom of all will be needed in the discussion of the issues on the agenda.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE MEMBERSHIP COMMITTEE

Action will be taken at the Annual Meeting on two recommendations for NCALL membership:

Unitarian Fellowship for Social Justice
(Reported at the last meeting of the Board of Directors)
Bishops' Committee for Migrant Workers

This letter constitutes the official advance notice required in the by-laws.

HOUSE AGRICULTURE COMMITTEE CONSIDERS FAMILY FARM INCOME ACT AND McINTIRE FARM LABOR BILL

For several days the House Agriculture Committee has been in executive session considering these bills. What will be reported out remains to be seen, and what happens after that also remains to be seen.

It is important to keep right on sending letters to Congressmen in support of the McGovern Mexican Farm Labor bill. They will have their effect, now and later.

I enclose another copy of the flyer the National Advisory Committee on Farm Labor prepared for the use of all of us. The flyer is available at $10.00 per thousand from the N.A.C.F.L., 112 E. 19th St., New York 3, N. Y.

There are historic overtones about these sessions of the House Agriculture Committee. Urban support for family farm legislation is a must to strengthen the hands of the members of Congress who support decency in agriculture. Unless the supporters of the family farm have more urban allies, there will be neither family farm nor farm labor legislation.

A case history of what is going on in the House Agriculture Committee will be given at the Annual Meeting.

1751 N STREET, N. W., WASHINGTON 6, D. C. • NOrth 7-3979

The Plight of American Farm Workers—

Related to the Mexican Farm Labor Program (Public Law 78)

- Over two million Americans work for wages on the farms which feed the nation—at least half a million are migrants. (Many are of Mexican descent. Objection to imported, underpaid labor is not an objection to Mexicans. The domestic farm labor force represents different racial and cultural groups.)
- Their average annual wage for 1958 was $961, including income for off-farm work of $195.
- They are under-employed for most of the year. Their average farm employment for 1958 was 128 days. (This excludes sporadic workers employed less than 25 days.)
- Many live in shacks; home "on the trek" may be a truck or jalopy, sometimes tents and converted barracks.
- They are excluded from practically all state and federal social welfare laws—from the protection of most workmen's compensation, unemployment insurance, minimum wage, and laws giving the right to organize.
- Their children receive only intermittent schooling, often work long hours in the fields to supplement the family's meagre earnings—are excluded from federal child labor laws covering children working outside school hours.
- Illness and accidents plague these workers more than most because of their low standard of living and nomadic existence—often local residence laws bar migrant farm workers from public welfare benefits and hospital care.

Yet—underpaid and under-employed U.S. farm workers must compete with an annual importation of nearly half a million Mexican contract farm workers.

- The Mexican importation program began as a war-time emergency during World War II, but has been continued and expanded since the Korean War when less than 200,000 were admitted.
- In 1959, 437,600 Mexican nationals were employed on about 50,000 farms—less than 2% of the nation's commercial farms. They do all kinds of farm work and not merely "stoop labor."
- Most family farmers do not use imported labor, and their own income has been reduced as a result of its use by large-scale operators.
- 95% of the Mexicans are employed in the 5 states of Texas, California, Arkansas, Arizona and New Mexico.
- At their 1959 peak, they made up nearly 90% of all the nation's seasonal lettuce harvest workers and more than 30% of the seasonal workers in cucumbers, tomatoes, citrus fruits, melons and nuts. They accounted for nearly 30% of the cotton harvest employment. In New Mexico, they constituted 78% of all seasonal farm labor.
- Instead of raising wages and improving conditions to attract and hold a stable farm work force, the large growers who depend on seasonal labor are able to import low-paid labor from Mexico through governmental channels—thus perpetuating bad conditions and forcing American workers to migrate to other areas seeking farm jobs to keep their families alive. (The guaranteed minimum wage to Mexicans brought in under contract is only 50 cents an hour.)
- Large-scale agriculture is the only industry in the American economy which is permitted a continuous flow of underpaid foreign labor, undercutting standards for domestic farm workers.

These bills are now before the Congress:

- H.R. 9875 (McIntire Bill)—To extend Public Law 78 (the Mexican labor import law) for two years [otherwise it is due to expire in June, 1961] and amending it to prohibit the Secretary of Labor from issuing regulations to protect wages and conditions of employment for U.S. farm workers hired through the federal-state employment service.

  (Supported by users of Mexican labor and spokesmen for some farm organizations.)
- H.R. 11211 (McGovern Bill)—To extend Public Law 78 but with a 20% reduction in numbers admitted yearly to provide for its abolition in 5 years, amended to reform the Mexican labor program to reduce adverse effects upon U.S. farm workers, recommended by a committee of distinguished consultants appointed by the Secretary of Labor to study the Mexican labor program.

  (Supported by church, civic, labor and family-farm organizations.)

NATIONAL COUNCIL ON AGRICULTURAL LIFE AND LABOR

Annual Meeting of the Board of Directors
9:30-A.M. - 2:30 P.M., May 24, 1960
Interchurch Center, 475 Riverside Drive
New York, N. Y.

Presiding — Dr. Howard A. Dawson, Chairman

Attendance — Dr. Howard A. Dawson, Chairman; Fay Bennett and Theodore Norman, Vice-Chairmen; Gertrude Folks Zimand, Secretary-Treasurer; Ethlyn Christensen, Clay L. Cochran, Eli E. Cohen, Dr. Cameron P. Hall, Miss Hoover, Judith Howard, Robert W. Hudgens, Reuben Johnson, Mrs. Liss, Edith Lowry, Mrs. Owen, Msgr. William J. Quinn, Amber A. Warburton and Elizabeth Herring. Guests: Mr. Brownbridge, Mr. Pratt and Mr. John J. Walsh.

Minutes — The minutes of the January 12 Executive Committee meeting were approved, and will be circulated with the 1959 Treasurer's Report.

Report of Membership Committee — Theodore Norman, Chairman recommended acceptance of applications for membership of:

The Unitarian Fellowship for Social Justice
The Bishops' Committee for Migrant Workers

By unanimous vote, these two organizations were elected to organizational membership.

Report of the Executive Secretary — Miss Herring's report dealt primarily with legislation and finance (discussed later). After her analysis of forces working for and against sound farm labor legislation and the outlook, both for legislation now pending in the Congress and on a long range basis, there was discussion of legislative strategy.

Legislation — The need for immediate action with regard to bills amending Public Law 78 led to suggestions about methods of legislative work. Miss Bennett suggested the coordination of efforts to secure telegrams, letters, etc. through one organization which would build up a list of key people in each state, who, when alerted, would, in turn, reach other important groups and individuals in their states.

Mr. Hudgens felt that there would be no great progress until the problem is recognized as a labor rather than an agricultural problem, with bills going to the Labor Committees in Congress, and with organized labor giving such support as they now give to other major activity. The first need is for minimum wage and the second, social welfare programs, including housing, health, etc.

Other Items — Brief reports were given on the following:

The age issue in child labor legislation. This will be considered at the NCALL Rural Youth Consultation to be held in December, for which preliminary work is now being done.

The minimum wage report of the U.S. Department of Labor, on which Mr. Cochran will prepare a statement to be sent to Board members.

The preparation and promotion of a new Public Affairs Committee pamphlet by Varden Fuller. The emphasis in this pamphlet will be on the need to bring agriculture into a rational place in the American economy (with farm labor implications). Board members indicated an interest in promoting the pamphlet and securing advance orders.

The Tulare County farm labor demonstration and self help housing project being developed by the NCALL Research Fund and possible sources for its support.

A meeting on the Stabilization of Migrant Labor attended by Msgr. Quinn.

The need for adequate presentation of the agricultural labor issue to the Democratic and Republican platform committees.

Report of Nominating Committee In the absence of the chairman of the committee, the only action taken was the re-election of Dr. Howard Dawson as chairman of NCALL. The opinion was expressed by the Board members that the two term limitation adopted in 1958 did not apply to the person then holding the office.

The slate for remaining officers and committee members will be sent to the members for referendum vote.

Finance After considerable discussion of the financial needs of NCALL and possible ways of raising additional support on a continuing basis, a committee of three was appointed to consider various methods, including the organization of a committee of "elder statesmen" in various fields who might be able to make or suggest an effective approach to individuals or organizations in their respective fields of interest.

The Board expressed its gratitude to the Executive Secretary who has carried on the activities of the organization during this very busy period at a less than minimal salary.

The meeting was adjourned at 2:30.

NATIONAL COUNCIL ON AGRICULTURAL LIFE AND LABOR

Meeting of the Executive Committee
January 12, 1960
New York, N.Y.

An open meeting of the Executive Committee of NCALL, to which New York members of the Board had been invited, was held at the National Board of the YWCA January 12 at 10 a.m.

Those present were: Dr. Dawson, chairman, Theodore Norman and Fay Bennett, vice-chairmen, Gertrude Zimand, Secretary-treasurer, and Ethlyn Christensen, Mrs. Renata Claiborne, Eli E. Cohen, Edith Lowry, Mrs. Warburton and Elizabeth Herring, Executive Secretary.

The minutes of the last meeting of the Board were summarized.

The treasurer's report was presented showing a deficit of $336.51.

The executive secretary presented a memorandum with suggestions for putting NCALL on a firm financial basis. It was voted that a Finance Committee be appointed and consider these and other suggestions for a long-range financial policy. It was suggested that, in the meantime, the situation be explained to member agencies and they be asked to increase their contributions.

An invitation from the National Conference of Social Work to become a member was considered. It was suggested that we express our interest in the Conference, but take no action this year.

Application for membership from the Unitarian Fellowship for Social Justice was presented. It was voted to recommend this membership to the Board.

The executive reported on two inactive organizations which, according to NCALL policy, should be presented to Board for dropping. She was authorized to take appropriate action in these two cases.

The proposed meeting of an NCALL delegation with Sen. Williams was discussed. It was agreed that the important points for such a delegation to discuss were tactics and strategy - i.e., an omnibus bill or individual issue bills; and the interest of NCALL in legislation on farm matters not assigned to his committee. It was suggested that our approach to him should be that of seeking advice as to procedure and assuring him of our willingness to help secure support. The Chairman and Executive were authorized to appoint a delegation, and see that the materials for the interview were prepared, etc.

The Executive explained the proposal for holding a consultation of interested agencies in the spring to consider recent statistical data and reports on trends in farm population, with special reference to taking a fresh look at the needs of rural youth. The idea of such a meeting was enthusiastically approved, and it was suggested that it might interest some new agencies in becoming members of NCALL.

Mr. Cohen, as a member of the U. S. Steering Committee for World Mental Health Year, reported that one area of interest to the committee was the Psychological Problems of Migration, broadly interpreted and including agricultural migration within a country. He said the group was looking for an organization that could take responsibility for materials and planning in this area and asked for suggestions.

The Executive Secretary reported a special committee on publications was being organized to draft a plan to enable member agencies to utilize each others' legislative publications in 1960. A first step might be to find out from each agency what publications it planned and for what audience, determine what gaps remained, and how to fill them. It was suggested that this might be useful not only for legislative publications, but those on farm problems generally.

After further discussion of methods of approaching member agencies for additional financial support, the meeting adjourned at 4 p.m.

Gertrude Folks Zimand, Secretary-Treasurer

MINUTES: The Assistant Secretary-Treasurer moved that the minutes of the previous meeting be accepted as distributed. Motion carried.

TREASURER'S REPORT: The annual statement will be mailed with the minutes of this meeting. The following report from the Executive Committee on financial matters was read:

Report from the Executive Committee on Financial Matters

"At the Annual Meeting of the Board of Directors held in New York on May 8, 1959, Dr. Dawson gave the following report from the Personnel Committee: (Quoted from the Minutes of the Annual Meeting)

> "The Committee had considered a proposal from Miss Herring that another staff member be added who would major on the legislative activities of NCALL. Miss Herring felt that it was not possible for one person to carry NCALL's growing program and at the same time build the financial structure which was needed to sustain the program. The Executive Committee had voted on April 15 to recommend to the Board that a subsidy be sought for a period of years, during which time more staff effort could be put into money raising without sacrificing NCALL program.
> The Personnel Committee recommended that Miss Herring continue as Executive Secretary and that a person be employed to carry on the legislative program of the organization under Miss Herring's direction.
> It was voted that the recommendation of the Personnel Committee be approved, provided that the finances of the organization permitted the employment of an additional staff member.

In line with this action, the Board voted that the Executive Committee continue to act as the Finance Commitee while working on plans to finance the employment of an additional staff member for legislative work.

Since that time, Dr. Dawson has submitted a request to a possible donor for a three-year subsidy which would make this legislative assistant a possibility. A reply has not been received to date.

In the meantime arrangements are being made for a January meeting of the Executive Committee at which time some work will be done on financial proposals which have to do with long-range financing of NCALL.

A policy statement on the financial relations of member organizations to NCALL will be considered also. This is needed to clarify the relation of tax exempt organizations to NCALL which is not tax-exempt."

After a discussion concerning the confusion which arises from separate funds being deposited in the same bank, Clay Cochran moved that the regular account be moved to the First National Bank. (The Research Fund would remain in the Security Bank.) The motion was seconded and carried.

REPORT OF THE NCALL STUDY COMMITTEE ON COMMUNITY SERVICES TO MIGRANTS:

Marian F. Weller, chairman, reported that the committee is about ready to request a research fund for a project in Tulare County, California, which will combine community services and self-help housing.

BY-LAWS AMENDMENT: The Executive Committee recommended that the by-laws be amended as follows:

> In Article III - Membership and Associates - Section 2(b) - strike out the phrase "upon payment of the first annual $25.00 membership fee".
> In the same Article III, in Section 2(d), substitute for the present sentence "Organizational members shall pay a membership fee of $25 per year" the following sentence: "Organizational members shall pay a $25.00 subscription for NCALL publications and other informational communications."

Reuben Johnson moved that the Board amend the by-laws as recommended. The motion was seconded and carried.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETING DATE: The meeting will take place on January 12, 1960 in New York City.

LEGISLATIVE POLICY OF THE NATIONAL COUNCIL ON AGRICULTURAL LIFE AND LABOR

(A Statement adopted by the Board of Directors - June 6, 1951)
With Amendment adopted at Annual Meeting, May 8, 1959

The legislative policy of the NCALL is stated both positively and negatively in the Constitution:

(1) "It shall facilitate action by cooperating agencies and members; providing information on and promoting discussion of the issues involved." (In the discussion at the organizational meeting, it was agreed that the word "facilitate" should be broadly construed and the importance of preliminary work on strategy, drafting, etc., was recognized.)

(2) "It will limit its action on pending national, state or local legislation to providing information on such legislation to its membership."

(3) (Amendment adopted May 8, 1959)

"A legislative committee may be formed upon approval of the Board or Executive Committee when five or more member organizations are interested in similar action on particular legislation.

"Each legislative committee shall choose officers from its members and shall be free to plan direct legislative action provided it does not speak for NCALL as a whole. The strategy decided upon by legislative committees shall be reported to all member organizations of NCALL for their information. Legislative Committees shall be open to all member organizations wishing to be represented. The life of any committee shall not exceed one year without specific re-approval by the Board or Executive Committee."

The following statement is a clarification of this policy:

(1) The Executive Secretary of the Council is authorized to confer with agencies and individuals and to participate in groups discussing strategy, bill drafting, etc., on any subject in line with the NCALL's statement of Program and Objectives. It should be made clear, both to the groups with which the Executive Secretary works in that capacity and to the member agencies of the NCALL, that the Secretary does not "represent" the Council in these discussions nor does such participation imply the support of its member agencies for the legislation concerned. Participation is for the purpose of helping to shape and inform member agencies about legislation which some of them wish to support, and thereby facilitate their action.

(2) The Council shall not assume that member agencies will, or urge them to, take action on any specific legislation, but shall inform all members about the legislation, stressing the importance of suggested action by those who wish to be active on the specific subject at issue. This can be done in two ways:

(a) Directly by the Executive Secretary in communications to members.

(b) Indirectly by the Executive Secretary by transmitting to members a communication from an agency member which has a special interest in that legislation. The member agency's letter can be as "urgent" as it wishes.

Dear Friend:

The Board of Directors of the National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor is planning a Washington consultation in December 1960 to consider the status of farm and rural youth. Your advice will be welcome as to the subject matter which should be covered in the consultation.

Technological change in agriculture, the lag in the training of rural youth for the changing occupational picture, the growth of the rural non-farm sector of the population all need to be understood from the angle of their effects upon the welfare of youth. What public programs are needed? How should voluntary organizations revise their youth programs to conform with present day rural facts?

Would your organization be interested in particiapting in this consultation? If so, the planning committee will be grateful for a statement from you as to what aspects of the subject your organization would like to see illuminated in the consultation.

You will be interested to know that by the time the consultation is called, results will be available of the cooperative study by the United States Census and the U.S. Department of Agriculture of the educational status and educational plans of farm, non-farm and urban youth. It is expected that this comparative study will be instructive as to the nature of the problems to be met.

Your comments and advice will be appreciated by August 5th.

Sincerely yours,

Eli E. Cohen

To the Members of the Board of the
National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor

Dear Friends:

The Finance Committee appointed at the last meeting of the Board was commissioned to develop a representative committee on Finance to draw up a plan for basic support of the National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor. The Committee has met and will be in touch with you later.

Meantime, we know you will be excited with the enclosed report. It outlines the significant part that the National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor has played during the past year in the aggressive efforts to help the constituent organizations play an active role in support of a better day for all who work in agriculture. It has kept us in touch with developments in the executive branch of government as well as Congress so that each of us could act promptly and intelligently. This is a very important service, especially for organizations outside of Washington.

This was felt keenly by the Finance Committee. We believe that a way must be found by which the organizations served can give more adequate support to the National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor. This is the channel for many of us to extend the program of our own organization in this field.

Would you give thought to this and send your ideas to Miss Elizabeth Herring at the above address or to Miss Edith E. Lowry at the National Council of Churches, 475 Riverside Drive, New York 27, New York.

We hope we may hear from you -- we need your ideas.

Very sincerely yours,

FINANCE COMMITTEE

THE CURRENT PROGRAM OF THE NATIONAL COUNCIL ON AGRICULTURAL LIFE AND LABOR

A Summary Report to the Board of Directors

by
Elizabeth B. Herring, Executive Secretary

The National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor was formed by its member organizations to assist them in their effort to speed the end of exploitation and poverty and to safeguard democracy in agriculture.

This goal is expressed in five characteristic types of NCALL activity.

FIRST SERVICE HAS BEEN PROVIDED TO MEMBER ORGANIZATIONS AND THEIR ACTION FACILITATED

Hearings During the last three years NCALL has played a substantial role in assisting its member organizations to participate in hearings on:

The 160 Acre Limitation of the Reclamation Act
Migratory Labor Transportation Hearing of the Interstate Commerce Commission
Senate Minimum Wage Hearings
House Mexican Farm Labor Hearings
Senate and House Hearings on Domestic Migrant Legislation
U.S. Department of Labor Hearings on Farm Placement Regulations

NCALL has informed its members of the substance and status of proposed legislation. The Executive Secretary has consulted with Congressional committee members, sponsors of bills and legislative staff concerned; has informed member organizations of what part it would be possible for them to take and has assisted as called upon in the preparation of testimony.

NCALL has played a minor role in hearings on appropriations; depressed area and general education bills; arranging delegations to members of Congress of authorized representatives of member organizations; publishing informational materials indicating how individuals and organizations could take action; and informing key individuals of how they could help.

Policy Consultations NCALL has arranged delegations of authorized representatives to consult with members of Congress and the Executive Branch on questions affecting low income groups. A joint session of members of the OASI staff and NCALL board members is an illustration.

Publications Three types of informational material are issued from the Washington office: i.e.

The NCALL Bulletin
Legislative News Letters (when immediate action is needed)
Memoranda and Working Papers on Basic Issues

On request special material is furnished to member organizations wishing to include agricultural articles in their periodicals or needing specific information for policy groups.

Consultation with Individual Organizations, both Member and Non-Member On request, the executive secretary has assisted in drafting policy statements for official action by organizations, has consulted on steps to be taken in stimulating interest in farm issues; and has assisted with seminars and other agency meetings. Some NCALL board members have been generous with their time and talent in giving this type of service to organizations wishing to strengthen their farm labor and farm policy programs.

SECOND JOINT PLANNING FOR ACTION THROUGH STEERING COMMITTEES

NCALL has a STEERING COMMITTEE ON FARM LABOR LEGISLATION and a STEERING COMMITTEE ON FAMILY FARM LEGISLATION. These committees operate under the provisions of an amendment to NCALL's official legislative policy. The amendment was adopted at the Annual Meeting of the Board of Directors, May 8, 1959 and reads as follows:

> "A legislative committee may be formed upon approval of the Board of Directors when five or more member organizations are interested in similar action on particular legislation.
> "Each legislative committee shall choose officers from its members and shall be free to plan direct legislative action provided it does not speak for NCALL as a whole. The strategy decided upon by legislative committees shall be reported to all member organizations of NCALL for their information. Legislative committees shall be open to all member organizations wishing to be represented. The life of any committee shall not exceed one year without specific re-approval by the Board or Executive committee."

Under this charter the STEERING COMMITTEE ON FARM LABOR LEGISLATION has been active, meeting in Washington as a rule but in Washington and New York sections if circumstances make this arrangement necessary. The STEERING COMMITTEE ON FAMILY FARM LEGISLATION is getting underway and will have more to report later.

The STEERING COMMITTEE ON FARM LABOR LEGISLATION has discussed the substance of pending legislation and the strategy indicated. The committee has requested persons authorized by their organizations to consult with members of the Senate and House, resulting in the introduction of the agricultural child labor amendment in both houses and the Bailey migrant education bills in the House. Authorized persons were asked to work with Senator Williams on the language of the education bills and with Senator McNamara and Rep. O'Hara on the language of the child labor amendment.

On the recommendation of the Steering Committee a limited national letter inquiry was instituted to gain information on certain issues raised by the migrant housing bill.

Some long range thinking has been done on what kind of statutory domestic recruitment plan should be substituted for the Mexican Farm Labor Program.

While the informal consensus of the Steering Committee is not binding on any member of the Committee nor is it publicized, the discussion is helpful to each member in deciding what he thinks his agency should do in the way of action on particular legislation. Some participating organizations are not tax exempt. These agencies are free to take certain types of direct action with members of Congress. Other organizations are tax exempt and do not have this freedom. Consultation between these groups is valuable both as to policy and as to the types of action open to different groups.

THIRD INFORMATION TO NCALL ASSOCIATES AND TO A NATIONAL LIST OF PERSONS INFLUENTIAL IN STATE AND LOCAL ORGANIZATIONS

The NCALL by-laws provide the status of "NCALL ASSOCIATES" to individuals anywhere who wish to advance the aims of NCALL and to receive regular Washington information. The annual dues are $5.00. The NCALL Bulletin and some other publications go to the Associates.

The publications go also to an extended list of people who are placed on the NCALL mailing list because they ask to be, because of their influence in their fields of work, or because of the cooperation needed from them. Effective work in Washington requires exchange of information with the States and regions.

In recent years there has been a tendency for individuals on this mailing list to write in for rather large numbers of extra copies of the more substantial items which NCALL sends out and to distribute them, sometimes on a state-wide basis. Among the popular items have been the 1958 Bulletin summarizing the Senate 160 acre hearings and recent issues which have summarized the farm labor developments of sessions of Congress and the various aspects of the Mexican farm labor issue.

FOURTH NCALL PLANS CONSULTATIONS REPRESENTATIVE OF MEMBER AND COOPERATING ORGANIZATIONS

The December 1959 Workshop on Family Farm and Farm Labor Legislation and the anticipated 1960 workshop on the status of farm and rural youth are illustrations.

FIFTH COOPERATIVE RELATIONS WHICH CONTRIBUTE TO NCALL'S OBJECTIVES

NCALL participates in several Washington groups which deal with general matters affecting the welfare of farm people. These groups of Washington representatives are concerned with civil liberties, with programs administered by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, with rural electrification and resources and with housing. The informal discussions are a great help in keeping up with developments in the Congress and the Executive Branch. Opportunities present themselves to work with some of the members of these groups on farm labor and farm policy matters. It seems to the point to seek allies wherever they may be found.

NCALL participates in some general meetings such as the White House Conference on Children and Youth and the recent conference on interstate migration held in Phoenix. Attendance at meetings is rationed severely because of the large number which have some relevance for NCALL's program.

THE NATIONAL COUNCIL ON AGRICULTURAL LIFE AND LABOR RESEARCH FUND

This separately incorporated tax-exempt agency is now completing its first major project; the migrant education study and demonstration. The final report by Elizabeth Sutton will be published in the fall in book form by the Department of Rural Education of the National Education Association.

Funds are now being sought for a demonstration program in a farm labor community and for a self help housing plan in Tulare County, California. The project committee (of the Research Fund) includes representatives of the American Friends Service Committee, Division of Home Missions of the National Council of Churches, Girl Scouts of the U.S.A., Migrant Children's Fund, National Board of the YWCA, National Committee on the Employment of Youth of the National Child Labor Committee.

Additional information about the objectives and details of this project may be secured from the NCALL office.

CURRENT PROJECTS OF IMPORTANCE TO NCALL MEMBER ORGANIZATIONS

CONSULTATION ON STATUS OF RURAL YOUTH, JANUARY 5 and 6, 1961. This meeting is convened by NCALL because of the importance of recent Federal, State and area studies of the relative status of farm, non-farm and urban youth; the educational and employment problems resulting from technological change in agriculture; and the implications of rural-urban migration under current circumstances.

The program of the CONSULTATION is under the direction of a planning committee of member organizations. Eli. E. Cohen, executive of the National Committee on the Employment of Youth is chairman. The planning committee will send full information about the CONSULTATION to board members later in November.

COMMITTEE ON THE MEXICAN FARM LABOR PROGRAM HAS OPEN MEMBERSHIP

Under the terms of NCALL's by-laws, legislative committees may be formed to work on specific issues by representatives of member organizations which have official positions on the issue. These committees do not speak for NCALL. A committee is now being formed on PUBLIC LAW 78 (the Mexican Farm Labor Program). Membership on the committee is open to any NCALL member organization.

"HARVEST OF SHAME", STORY OF MIGRATORY WORKERS, WILL BE ON "CBS REPORTS", FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 9:30 - 10:30 PM, EST

Member organizations may wish to encourage listening groups for this very important broadcast asking them to register their comments afterward with CBS and also with the national organization to which they belong. NCALL does not know the content of the script but does know that an extraordinary amount of interest, time and thought has been invested in the preparation of it by David Lowe, producer, and the executive producer of "CBS REPORTS", Fred W. Friendly.

"CBS REPORTS" cameras will show how migratory workers live, travel, and labor in America's fields and orchards. Films were taken of workers in the fields and on the highways at Homestead, Fla.; Kingsland, Ga.; Fayetteville, N.C.; Norfolk, Va.; Cranberry, N.J.; and Norwaih, N.Y. Other workers were filmed in their temporary shacks, or living in the fields -- of Stockton, California and Holland, Mich.

Among the persons interviewed on the program will be U.S. Secretary of Labor, James P. Mitchell and Charles B. Shuman, American Farm Bureau Federation.

FORTHCOMING ISSUE OF NCALL BULLETIN WILL CONTAIN LEGISLATIVE OUTLOOK

About December 1, NCALL will release an issue of the BULLETIN which summarizes where the 86th Congress left things with respect to issues of interest to NCALL and what the developments may be in the following fields:

Domestic farm labor legislation
The Mexican Farm Labor Program (Public Law 78)
Farm policy issues involving justice to farm people and the national interest.

Member organizations wishing to distribute copies of this issue to their constituencies, may place advance orders. Since the cost will depend upon the number ordered, member organizations are requested to indicate on the enclosed blank whether they are interested so that exact information on costs may be sent to them.

MEMBER ORGANIZATIONS ARE INVITED TO HELP IN PROMOTING SALES OF "KNOWING AND TEACHING THE MIGRANT CHILD" by ELIZABETH SUTTON.

The NCALL Research Fund is happy indeed that the NCALL Migrant Education Research Project has culminated in this excellent book. Warm thanks are due to Elizabeth Sutton and to Dr. Howard A. Dawson, Department of Rural Education, NEA. Please write to Dr. Dawson for copies of the enclosed announcement.

WHAT SCHOOL FOR JOSIE ???

KNOWING AND TEACHING THE MIGRANT CHILD

by Elizabeth Sutton

JOSIE IS REAL—THE PROBLEM

American schools are expected to educate all children—but what about Josie? Work in the fields cheats Josie and many thousands of migrant children of the opportunities which education makes possible.

If this is your problem, in your school district, you will find Knowing and Teaching the Migrant Child by Elizabeth Sutton an invaluable handbook. It was prepared after three years of extensive research and work with migratory children in the schools of Palm Beach County, Florida, and Northampton County, Virginia. In both areas Miss Sutton served as a staff member of the school district, working directly with teachers, administrators, and permanent residents in an effort to gather ideas and test new techniques.

Miss Sutton provides us with a description and interpretation of significant elements in migrancy and in the behavior of migrant children, and with a report of successful school practices which aided in their adjustment and learning.

She supports personal observation with information drawn from such resources as:

- Enrollment and attendance data
- A daily journal she kept throughout the three-year project
- Three hundred written accounts submitted by teachers reporting on some 1200 school practices—most of them successful
- Two thousand compositions written by the children on topics such as
  - "How I Feel When I Go to a New School"
  - "The School I Have Liked Best"
  - "How I Feel When I Move."

Miss Sutton is no stranger to problems of poverty and underprivilege. Before serving on this research project, she spent a number of years among low-income groups in Kentucky and Tennessee as a teacher and supervisor of instruction. She was selected as project director in 1954 by the National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor Research Fund, Inc.

Miss Sutton supplements this background of experience with her wealth of human understanding in interpreting for us the problems of the migrant child. We think you'll find her book a stimulating and invaluable guide.

Knowing and Teaching the Migrant Child will be available about September 1, 1960. The price for this 200-page book is $3.50. Won't you send us your advance order now?

memorandum to educators

subject: KNOWING AND TEACHING THE MIGRANT CHILD

One of the most serious problems in many school communities is that of how to provide a satisfactory education for children of low-income groups. Agricultural migratory workers are one of the most important of these groups.

With the stimulus and financial aid of the National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor Research Fund, Inc., and the official sponsorship of the Superintendents of Schools and Boards of Education at Palm Beach County, Florida, and Northampton County, Virginia, Elizabeth Sutton was employed to conduct a program of supervising the education of migrant children over a period of three years. Prior to this assignment she had had many years of successful teaching and supervisory work in low-income rural areas in Tennessee and Kentucky.

In this volume Miss Sutton describes and interprets the principal problems encountered in working with migrant children and reports on successful school practices.

This book will be found valuable by all teachers working with children of underprivileged groups everywhere. It presents sound theory and practices that are the bases of all good teaching. Of course, it is of special value to teachers and others having a primary interest in migrant children.

Copies of this important report will be available about September 1, 1960. An advance order blank is provided for your convenience in ordering your copy now.

Dear Dr. Henning —

Information is enclosed about a consultation on the status of farm and rural non-farm youth to be held in Washington on January 5 and 6, 1961. Your organization is cordially invited to send a representative.

The effects of agricultural technology and longstanding inadequacies in education and other rural social services present a major challenge to the nation to preserve and develop its rural youth.

At this meeting representatives of national voluntary organizations will consider the facts as revealed by recent research. In light of these facts the group will review hopeful proposals for voluntary and public programs which offer solutions.

If your organization is interested in sending a representative, we will be glad to hear from you.

Sincerely yours,

Howard A. Dawson

Dear Dr. Dunbar:

At our Annual Meeting on December 7, the NCALL Board of Directors voted to invite you to become a member-at-large of the Board. We hope very much that you will accept.

Although it may not be possible for you to be in Washington often, it would be a great help to hear from you occasionally about your suggestions for our work.

I enclose a little material which indicates what we are trying to do and how we work. A good deal of strength has gone into migrant labor legislation but we have a major interest in rural areas development and in family farm policy.

We have two board meetings a year and our Administrative Committee meets in between. It would be possible to call an Administrative Committee meeting some time when you are in town, so that we might hear from you on perspectives for the rural south.

With our best wishes and the hope that you will accept our invitation,

Sincerely yours,

Elizabeth B. Herring

COMMENTS ON THE METHOD OF OPERATION

of the

NATIONAL COUNCIL ON AGRICULTURAL LIFE AND LABOR

BACKGROUND

The organization of NCALL in 1951 was the outcome of previous cooperative ventures of a number of national voluntary organizations. In 1942 and 1943 when the Farm Security Administration was under attack, an emergency committee was formed to try to prevent the abolition of the agency. Later some of the same agencies and others formed a committee to work for migratory labor reforms.

In both of these ventures, the moving spirits were connected with national organizations but did not speak for them officially. In 1950, with this history in mind, representatives of seven organizations met to consider what type of cooperative council might be set up which would have the official backing of participating organizations. The participants in the planning group were connected with the:

Council for Social Action of the Congregational Christian Churches
Division of Home Missions, National Council of Churches (predecessor, Home Missions Council)
National Board of the YWCA
National Catholic Rural Life Conference
National Child Labor Committee
National Sharecroppers Fund

Proposals for the purposes and structure of a clearing house organization on "agricultural life and labor" were worked out. A number of national organizations were invited to send representatives to a meeting and NCALL was formed.

The name "National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor" was selected. The name was intended to indicate that the Council would concern itself not only with the immediate situation of migratory labor but also the conditions which cause rural poverty. The Council believed also that the character and organization of agriculture had a crucial effect upon the national welfare as well as upon those who earned their living in agriculture.

Because of the major role of governmental action, NCALL established headquarters in Washington. However its emphasis has not been exclusively on Federal programs. The interpretation of human values in agriculture to the end that citizen support will be forthcoming for necessary measures at community, state and Federal levels, has been a broad objective.

During NCALL's first years various ways of being useful were explored. As time has passed characteristic procedures have developed.

THE COOPERATIVE PROCESS IN WASHINGTON

NCALL's role has been conditioned by certain general facts about the nation's capital.

In Washington there are representatives of many of the national organizations having a primary concern for human welfare. Mutual interest unites these representatives around various foci of subject matter. Among the subjects are:

Civil Liberties
Housing
Education
Programs of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare
Agricultural Life and Labor
Others

Groups of representatives meet at intervals to explore the issues connected with these (and other) subjects and to propose forms of action. The autonomy of participating organizations is always respected. No public positions are taken by any group as a whole or in the name of individual organizations. Some of these groups have budgets and employed staffs. Others do not.

NCALL takes initiative with respect to "agricultural life and labor", convening representatives of its member organizations, and inviting other cooperating persons and agencies on occasion. The member organizations of NCALL and the NCALL staff participate also in groups with a different focus but with a relation to rural life (e.g.: civil liberties, housing, etc.).

This cooperative process in the various groups makes possible the sharing of knowledge and understanding. The issues involved in the operations of the Federal government are so complex that organizational representatives need the help of their fellows in knowing what is going on, what it means and what might be done about it.

In the case of NCALL, the cooperative consultation process is not confined to Washington. Some group meetings are held in New York. Board meetings and NCALL conferences bring together broadly representative groups.

THE INFORMATION FUNCTION OF NCALL

Beside group consultation, publications and correspondence are important media of communication.

Legislative releases, bulletins and memoranda include subject matter applicable to immediate needs for action by member organizations. Some memoranda explore long-term issues. The latter are prepared as ground work for the action which may be indicated later. Publications do not commit individual organizations but are general in nature.

Correspondence deals with the separate interests of organizations.

SERVICES TO INDIVIDUAL MEMBER ORGANIZATIONS

Within the limits of the resources of the Washington office, requests are met for services such as:

Writing articles for organizational publications
Recommending agricultural speakers and helping with conferences
Providing background materials on agricultural policy issues
Securing data from government agencies
Sending publications to persons listed by the organization

INFORMATION SERVICE TO ASSOCIATES AND OTHER INDIVIDUALS

NCALL receives a good many letters from people throughout the United States who are not connected with member organizations. The letters usually request information about legislation, resource materials or problem situations.

In addition to its information services to member organizations, NCALL sends a selection of materials to a mailing list of about 1000 persons who are "NCALL Associates" or are included on the list because of their responsibility in some Federal, State or community activity. A growing number of student organizations receive material by this route. The NCALL by-laws permit membership in the Council for national and regional organizations but not state or local agencies. The "Associates" plan ($5.00) establishes connections with these agencies and interested individuals.

ADJOURNMENT

NATIONAL COUNCIL ON AGRICULTURAL LIFE AND LABOR

"THE WORLD GROWS BETTER BECAUSE PEOPLE WISH THAT IT SHOULD AND TAKE THE RIGHT STEPS TO MAKE IT BETTER."

Jane Addams

In Rural America

Over half of the poverty in America is rural poverty.

More than one-fifth of the 22 million youth in rural America under 20 years of age are in poverty-ridden families.

1.7 million farm families have total money income from all sources of less than the equivalent of $208 per month.

Among Farm People

The average hourly earnings of the 4.2 million hired farm workers are less than half the earnings of the manufacturing workers in rural areas and small towns.

The average earnings of the migratory farm worker in 1961 were $1016.

In 1910 each American farm worker produced food and fiber for seven persons; in 1960 for twenty-four persons. The technological revolution in agriculture has doubled the output per man hour since 1950.

Mechanization continues to reduce the need for unskilled farm workers. In one state 50,000 workers have been displaced by mechanical cotton pickers during the last ten years; an additional 25,000 by sugar cane harvesters; and 15,000 by rice harvesters.

A program is needed which will retrain farm workers in the marketable skills demanded by modern agriculture and industry.

In The Future

All people deserve equal opportunity for a satisfying life for themselves and their children.

Rural poverty can be eradicated so that the next generations of rural babies, regardless of race or region or economic status of their forefathers, can start life with equality of opportunity.

That The Voice Of The Oppressed May Be Heard:

NCALL – Serves national and regional organizations and individuals as they work to change those social and economic conditions which adversely affect the welfare of people who earn their living by work in agriculture.

NCALL – Keeps members informed on:

Current trends in farm labor migratory and local situations;

Conditions affecting family farmers;

Pending Federal legislation;

Developments in related agencies of the U.S. Government.

Provides a channel for member organizations to share information and experience.

Shares appropriate information with the various branches of government.

Provides information on world movements related to agriculture.

Interprets the trends in agriculture and the farm labor situation through news media.

Sponsors consultations and conferences on problems of agricultural life and labor.

NCALL – Receives its financial support from:

Payments from organizations for the Bulletin, reports, memoranda, and other services;

Contributions from individuals and groups;

Research grants for specific projects.

"It is not to die or even die of hunger that makes a man wretched. Many men have died. But it is to live miserably and know not why, to work more and gain nothing, to be heart worn, weary, yet isolated and unrelated."

Thomas Carlyle – "Past and Present" 1843

How You Can Help

If you are concerned about the conditions of agricultural migrants and others who work on farms, why not become an "Associate" at five dollars a year? Larger contributions will help to sustain and strengthen the program.

NCALL publications and legislative releases are sent to Associates and contributors.

Checks should be made payable to the National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor, 1751 N Street, N.W., Washington 6, D.C.

Dear Dr. Dunbar:

We are happy to have the good news that you will accept our invitation to serve on the Board of Directors of the National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor. I hope that you will find your way to Washington soon so that we can have the pleasure of talking to you.

Next week, the proceedings of our Annual Meeting in December will be mailed to you. You will note that we elected Mr. James P. Mitchell, the former Secretary of Labor as President of the NCALL. We have revised our by-laws to provide for an Administrative Committee, of which Reverend James L. Vizzard, S.J. will be Chairman. I have learned today that Mr. Mitchell, who now lives in San Francisco, will be in Washington on February 18. We are calling a meeting of resident board members on that day to confer with him. If by any happy chance you expect to be in town, we hope that you will come. A notice will go out shortly to all board members.

Next week we are mailing a bulletin on the subject of rural poverty and the measures adopted by the Eighty-Seventh Congress. If any members of the staff of the Southern Regional Council have suggestions for us about the ideas in that bulletin, we will be grateful for them.

With best wishes,

Sincerely yours,

The name "National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor" was selected. The name was intended to indicate that the Council would concern itself not only with the immediate situation of migratory labor but also the conditions which cause rural poverty. The Council believed also that the character and organization of agriculture had a crucial effect upon the national welfare as well as upon those who earned their living in agriculture.

Because of the major role of governmental action, NCALL established headquarters in Washington. However its emphasis has not been exclusively on Federal programs. The interpretation of human values in agriculture to the end that citizen support will be forthcoming for necessary measures at community, state and Federal levels, has been a broad objective.

During NCALL's first years various ways of being useful were explored. As time has passed characteristic procedures have developed.

THE COOPERATIVE PROCESS IN WASHINGTON

NCALL's role has been conditioned by certain general facts about the nation's capital.

In Washington there are representatives of many of the national organizations having a primary concern for human welfare. Mutual interest unites these representatives around various foci of subject matter. Among the subjects are:

Civil Liberties
Housing
Education
Programs of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare
Agricultural Life and Labor
Others

Groups of representatives meet at intervals to explore the issues connected with these (and other) subjects and to propose forms of action. The autonomy of participating organizations is always respected. No public positions are taken by any group as a whole or in the name of individual organizations. Some of these groups have budgets and employed staffs. Others do not.

NCALL takes initiative with respect to "agricultural life and labor", convening representatives of its member organizations, and inviting other cooperating persons and agencies on occasion. The member organizations of NCALL and the NCALL staff participate also in groups with a different focus but with a relation to rural life (e.g.: civil liberties, housing, etc.).

This cooperative process in the various groups makes possible the sharing of knowledge and understanding. The issues involved in the operations of the Federal government are so complex that organizational representatives need the help of their fellows in knowing what is going on, what it means and what might be done about it.

In the case of NCALL, the cooperative consultation process is not confined to Washington. Some group meetings are held in New York. Board meetings and NCALL conferences bring together broadly representative groups.

THE INFORMATION FUNCTION OF NCALL

Beside group consultation, publications and correspondence are important media of communication.

Legislative releases, bulletins and memoranda include subject matter applicable to immediate needs for action by member organizations. Some memoranda explore long-term issues. The latter are prepared as ground work for the action which may be indicated later. Publications do not commit individual organizations but are general in nature.

Correspondence deals with the separate interests of organizations.

SERVICES TO INDIVIDUAL MEMBER ORGANIZATIONS

Within the limits of the resources of the Washington office, requests are met for services such as:

Writing articles for organizational publications
Recommending agricultural speakers and helping with conferences
Providing background materials on agricultural policy issues
Securing data from government agencies
Sending publications to persons listed by the organization

INFORMATION SERVICE TO ASSOCIATES AND OTHER INDIVIDUALS

NCALL receives a good many letters from people throughout the United States who are not connected with member organizations. The letters usually request information about legislation, resource materials or problem situations.

In addition to its information services to member organizations, NCALL sends a selection of materials to a mailing list of about 1000 persons who are "NCALL Associates" or are included on the list because of their responsibility in some Federal, State or community activity. A growing number of student organizations receive material by this route. The NCALL by-laws permit membership in the Council for national and regional organizations but not state or local agencies. The "Associates" plan ($5.00) establishes connections with these agencies and interested individuals.

Certified Household Assistants course

1 Answer to 2 Community Needs

ALMOST every community today has a few elderly people who cannot quite manage by themselves, yet hesitate to enter a nursing home for several reasons: they are reluctant to give up their independence; they resent the lack of privacy; they feel that such places are for the ill or helpless; or the cost of such a plan may be prohibitive.

A good many communities also have a group of women who need employment but who lack the necessary education or training that would enable them to handle what jobs might be available.

In an effort to meet these two needs, the executive director and the adult program director of the Lorain, Ohio, YWCA discussed the possibility of providing a training program for women who could go into homes to care for the elderly.

Conferences were held with the City Welfare Director, the Home Service secretary of the American Red Cross, and the Employers' Service representative of the Ohio State Employment Service (OSES) to get their opinions about such a course. They all agreed that Lorain definitely needed trained personnel for this type of work, which would not be in competition with nurses' aides who work in hospitals and nursing homes or with licensed practical nurses.

A committee, including also representatives from the United Health Foundation and the Business and Professional Women, set up a tentative curriculum of 40 hours spaced over a two-week period:

- 3 hours—Personal appearance
- 10 hours—Home management
  - 4 hours—Job organization; short cuts to good homemaking
  - 3 hours—Use and care of electrical equipment and other household appliances
  - 3 hours—Cleaning and laundering techniques
- 9 hours—Food preparation
- 2 hours—Understanding the process of aging
- 14 hours—Home nursing (Red Cross home nursing course)
- 2 hours—Diversional activities.

The YWCA took full responsibility for coordinating the project and publicizing it. The OSES handled the testing and selecting of applicants and the placing of trainees. The Red Cross provided a volunteer home nursing instructor. The other courses were taught by the YWCA adult program director, a home economics major who taught in the public schools and served for six years as instructor in the School of Practical Nursing. The Business and Professional Women's Club underwrote the expenses of the course so that it might be offered free of charge, and one of its members sat in on several of the classes and assisted. Several other volunteers helped with job organization, preparing trays for invalids, and personal grooming.

Announcements were sent to local newspapers and radio stations. The Association wrote letters to women selected by the City Welfare and Employment Service from their lists. As a result, 23 contacts were made to the Employment Office; 15 women took the aptitude test; 10 were selected. One of these was a member of the adult activities committee of the YWCA who had agreed to join the class as an adviser and to interpret the project to outside groups.

There were four Negro and five white women in the class, as one of the original ten dropped out because of a conflict in schedule. Members of the planning committee and the volunteer instructors were invited to attend the graduation on the last day when special certificates signifying successful completion of the course, Red Cross home nursing cards and pins were given out.

Asked for comments, the group suggested that first aid be included in the curriculum; more time be spent on nutrition; the class be extended to three weeks' duration with three- instead of four-hour class sessions.

In summing up, the women who were available for jobs as Certified Household Assistants were placed through the facilities of OSES. The first training course was a worthwhile project, and the program is continuing. Publicity is now directed toward making the community aware of the availability of these trained workers.

I. Several items are enclosed:

Minutes of the Annual Meeting on December 7, 1962

A domestic peace corps proposal by Rev. James L. Vizzard, S.J.

"Comments on the Method of Operation of NCALL" - (prepared for new members) -

A reprint "1 Answer to 2 Community Needs" from the YWCA Magazine (illustrating how a voluntary organization can help with training for employment)

A folder "Farm Families, Youths, Operators, Workers and the Manpower, Development and Training Act."

II. The 1962 Financial Statement will be mailed to you soon.

In 1962, about $4,500 in new money was contributed - This is renewable so far as we know. With another $5,000 in new money in 1963, NCALL's budget will be on the way to health.

NCALL is indebted to the Finance Committee and to Miss Edith Lowry, who provides the staff assistance to the Committee. Also several other board members have stimulated the enrollment of "Associates" ($5.00 a year).

One part of the Finance Committee's policy is to secure 100 gifts of $100. About 20 such gifts have been secured. Do you have suggestions of other persons who might contribute $100? If so, will you please write to Miss Edith E. Lowry, Consultant, NCALL, 1751 N Street, N.W., Washington 6, D.C.

Miss Lowry will be very glad to have your ideas and suggestions.

REPORT OF EXECUTIVE SECRETARY Elizabeth B. Herring

There was discussion of one of Miss Herring's questions; i.e. whether NCALL should take some steps to broaden public understanding of rural housing needs. It was pointed out that several important rural housing programs were authorized by the 87th Congress (administered by the Farmers Home Administration). These programs deserve public support so that in the future they may be enlarged and strengthened. Agreed: that the staff should confer with National Housing Conference representatives and bring proposals later.

REPORT OF FINANCE COMMITTEE Edith E. Lowry

Miss Lowry reported on the progress made on broadening the base of NCALL and increasing financial support. The emphasis has been on securing additional member organizations; contributions from individuals (100 individuals being invited to give $100 each) and a mail appeal to individuals on NCALL mailing list inviting them to contribute and to become associates of NCALL at $5.00 a year. Broadening the participation of organizations and individuals in NCALL is important as well as the financial gains. The 1962 annual financial statement will show considerable improvement.

REPORT OF BY-LAWS COMMITTEE Clay L. Cochran, Chairman

The Committee recommended changes in the by-laws which would have the following effect:

Establish the Following Offices

1. Honorary President
2. President
3. Chairman and Vice-Chairman of the Administrative Committee

Enlarge the Administrative Committee (formerly Executive Committee)

In addition to the officers who are ex-officio members, the number of members-at-large of the Committee would be increased from 5 to 10.

The requirement is added that the Committee members shall be able to attend meetings. In special instances alternates may attend by authorization of the Chairman of the Administrative Committee.

The Chairman of the Administrative Committee becomes an ex-officio member of all Standing Committees.

Increase the Number of Members-at-Large of the Board of Directors from 20 to 21

Since each third of the members-at-large serves for staggered three-year terms, the change is needed to provide a number divisible by 3.

Remove the Phrase "By all possible means" from the Statement of Purpose in the By-Laws

This statement is inexact and raises questions.

Moved, seconded and carried to adopt the changes in principle and instruct the by-laws committee to make the necessary editorial changes.

Moved, seconded and carried to waive the by-laws requirement that 30 days notice be given of recommended changes in the by-laws.

At the luncheon meeting Dr. Norman presented to Dr. Howard A. Dawson, an expression of appreciation signed by board members for his ten years service as Chairman of NCALL. A purse was presented to Dr. Dawson to buy those books he would most enjoy as a token of the Board's appreciation. Dr. Norman spoke of the universal satisfaction that Dr. Dawson would continue as Honorary President.

Dr. Norman also expressed the pleasure of the Board that Mr. James P. Mitchell, former Secretary of Labor had accepted the invitation of the Board to serve as President. His service to farm labor during his tenure as Secretary of Labor was greatly appreciated.

Dr. Norman also spoke of the leadership to be counted on from Father Vizzard in his new post as Chairman of the Administrative Committee.

DISCUSSION OF FARM LABOR LEGISLATION IN THE EIGHTY-EIGHTH CONGRESS

As chairman of NCALL's subcommittee on P.L. 78, Father Vizzard introduced the speaker, Mr. Frederick R. Blackwell, counsel of the Senate Subcommittee on Migratory Labor (Chairman of the Subcommittee is Senator Harrison A. Williams, Jr.) Mr. Blackwell presented an evaluation of experience with farm labor legislation during the Eighty-Seventh Congress and indicated lines along which procedure could be strengthened during the sessions of the Eighty-Eighth Congress.

During the discussion period, the chairman called upon Mr. Millard Cass, Deputy Undersecretary of Labor to give greetings from the Department of Labor. The resource panel included Mr. Willis Sloan, Mr. David Fessenden and Mr. Howard Dellon from the Farm Labor Service of the Department of Labor.

DISCUSSION OF TRAINING OF LOW INCOME FARM PEOPLE FOR EMPLOYMENT: HOW CAN VOLUNTARY ORGANIZATIONS SUPPORT THE NEW GOVERNMENT PROGRAMS?

Dr. Seymour L. Wolfbein, Director of the Office of Manpower, Automation and Training, spoke at the luncheon meeting on some of the considerations affecting the operations of the new manpower programs made possible by the Manpower Development and Training Act. Training of low-income farm people was the subject of the afternoon session. The resource panel included:

Reuben Johnson (Chairman), National Farmers Union
Eli E. Cohen, National Committee on the Employment of Youth
Anne Gould, Area Redevelopment Administration
William Mirengoff, Office of Manpower, Automation and Training

Announcements Made

2. Organizations can file statements until January 1 with the Department of Labor to include in the record of the hearings on possible adverse effect upon domestic farm workers of the employment of workers from the British West Indies.

4:00 P.M. Adjournment.

A PROPOSAL FOR THE DOMESTIC PEACE CORPS

Suggested during the Annual Meeting

Rev. James L. Vizzard, S.J.

There is a wide-spread conviction that meeting the desperate human needs of migratory farm workers and related groups must have high priority in any national effort such as the proposed Domestic Service Corps. I suggest that one of the ways in which the Corps could serve most effectively would be to train a certain number of the volunteers to expert knowledge about 1) the programs and funds already available to meet some of the needs of these people; 2) the techniques for developing projects which will merit and receive support under these programs; and 3) methods of identifying and developing local leadership and mobilizing community efforts in such projects.

The reasoning behind this proposal is as follows: State and federal legislation, most of it recent, has created a number of valuable tools which are waiting to be used to the benefit of migratory workers and other U.S. citizens on the bottommost rung of the socio-economic ladder. But many of these tools lie unused or inadequately used because at the community and grass roots level, where ultimately action must take place, there is little awareness of the availability of the tools or confusion and dismay at their very number and complexity. In the absence of local knowledge and initiative, Washington-based administrators with good programs and adequate funds can do little or nothing.

My proposal, then, is that a certain number of Domestic Service Corps volunteers, after thorough briefing and training in the above three areas, be sent into the communities and among the peoples where they can inform, interpret, and serve as catalysts and coordinators for both individual and community improvement under legislative programs already in existence. In fulfilling this role the volunteers will almost certainly discover that not every needed tool has been provided and through experience will be able to make recommendations to the appropriate legislative and administrative bodies.

Dear Friend:

Hearings on the migratory labor bills are scheduled in the Senate for April 10th and 11th and in the House in the near future.

Letters are needed, especially to Representatives as in the House, there is less awareness of the problem.

The letter might make such points as:

1. You are glad that bills to protect migratory farm labor have been introduced in both Houses.

2. You hope that hearings will be called soon.

3. You hope that your Senators and Congressman will support the bills.

4. Anything you would like to say from your own experience about the urgency of action to improve the conditions of migratory farm workers.

For your information, I include reports on migratory labor events during the last Congress and on current events in the Senate.

Your name has been placed on our mailing list and you will be notified when additional letters to Congress will be needed. In the meantime, the letter suggested above will help because it will stimulate Congressional attention and indicate public opinion.

Sincerely yours,

Elizabeth B. Herring

To the Board of Directors

Dear Friends,

You may not have heard that Miss Herring is resigning as Executive Secretary of NCALL because of illness. Her health is considerably improved but she does not feel equal to carrying the responsibilities of leadership of NCALL.

This means some very important decisions must be made by the Board. The Administrative Committee has met and is meeting again soon to work out possible plans for the consideration of the Board.

In view of this a meeting of the Board is called for

2 p.m., October 17, 1963 at the Philip Murray Building
(second floor Board Room)
1126 - 16th Street, N. W.
Washington, D. C.

We urge you to plan to attend if at all possible.

Very sincerely yours,

Edith E. Lowry

To the Members of the Board of Directors of NCALL

Dear friends,

The date when the largest number of members can attend the meeting of the Board is December 13th. The Board will convene at 10:00 a.m. and continue until 3:30 or 4:00 p.m. Through the courtesy of Rabbi Hirsch we shall meet at the Religious Action Center, 2027 Massachusetts Ave.N.W., Washington, D.C. Please make reservations for luncheon on the attached blank.

Another matter of importance! We understand that there is a move on in the Senate to reject House Bill H.R. 8195 extending P.L. 78 for one year and without safeguards recommended by U.S. Dept. of Labor. Letters to Senators immediately will help as action is not scheduled until the end of next week.

Sincerely yours,

Edith E. Lowry

TO: THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS

FROM: EDITH E. LOWRY, Acting Executive Secretary

The United States Senate on December 4, 1963, voted to extend Public Law 78 (The Mexican Farm Labor Program) for one year without provision for equal protection for American and Mexican workers. The Senate accepted the House bill extending Public Law 78 for one year without amendment. Now the bill goes to President Johnson for his signature.

It is important that the President hear from you. We suggest first, that you may want to urge him to veto the bill. You may want to draw his attention to the fact that the U. S. Department of Labor opposed the one year extension unless protection for American workers was included. When Under Secretary John F. Henning testified before the Senate Subcommittee on Migratory Labor, he said:

> "We would oppose any further extension of Public Law 78 without amendments which would bring the required job offers made to Mexicans and to domestic workers more closely together."

In a letter of November first to Senator Eugene McCarthy, Secretary of Labor Wirtz reemphasized this position of the Administration stating, "we are opposed to the extension without the amendments."

We suggest, second, that if the President does not veto the bill, he be urged to send a strong message to Congress making it clear that he will never again sign a bill extending Public Law 78. We would hope that his message would urge the Congress and the growers to start now to develop an alternative program for recruiting domestic workers along the lines proposed in Senate bill S.527. (The Voluntary Farm Employment Service, introduced by Senator Harrison A. Williams, Jr.)

In the debate on the floor of the House and the Senate, many made statements that this one year extension would be the end of the program. Time will tell whether they mean it. When Senator Ellender of Louisiana moved that the Senate concur in the House version which had no protection for American workers, he made it clear that this was the last time he would ask for an extension of the program. It is urgent that President Johnson hear from you now.

Extracts from Statement of Senator Hubert Humphrey on Public Law 78 in the U. S. Senate December 4, 1963

The House version, because it does not contain the McCarthy amendment, would continue to deny to American nationals certain important benefits which are extended to Mexican nationals. That situation cannot be justified. Under present law and under the House amendment, American workers could get all these benefits if they went to Mexico, took out Mexican citizenship, and then were imported back to the United States as braceros. But American workers could not obtain such benefits if they applied for jobs in this country as American citizens.

The situation means that an American law, passed by the U.S. Congress, makes it a handicap for one having American citizenship to be an American worker. Such conditions cannot be justified.

MINUTES of the Annual Meeting of the Board held December 7, 1962 were accepted as circulated.

ANNUAL MEETING OF BOARD FOR 1963

As the notice to this meeting did not indicate that it would be the Annual Meeting the Board declared it the Annual Meeting for 1963. It was agreed to ask the Nominating Committee to bring in a report nominating persons for the expiring terms of Members-at-large and that it shall be retroactive.

REPORT OF ADMINISTRATIVE COMMITTEE

Father Vizzard, Chairman, reported that Miss Herring's resignation had been accepted with deep regret and it is hoped that she will be able to help with the work of NCALL on a consultative basis at a fee in 1964. As an expression of appreciation a check for $500 as separation pay was sent to her.

The Administrative Committee has been concentrating on securing more adequate financial support to provide an adequate salary for an Executive Secretary, a Research Assistant, secretarial service and office space. The salary range for the Executive Secretary was set at $9,000 to $11,000. The Executive Secretary would be secured first and the Research Assistant added as funds are available.

Mrs. Shirley Sonosky's resignation from the Administrative Committee was accepted with regret and Mrs. Sarah H. Newman was asked to serve until Mrs. Sonosky's successor is appointed.

RESIGNATION OF MRS. EUGENE MCCARTHY

Father Vizzard presented Mrs. McCarthy's resignation as a Member-at-large on the Board. It was accepted with regret.

REPORT OF TREASURER

In the absence of Miss Weller, Secretary-Treasurer, Miss Lowry presented an analysis of NCALL finances as of December 13, 1963 as a basis for planning for the future staff set-up of NCALL.

Receipts -- NCALL General Fund	$9,495.
Receipts -- NCALL Research Fund	1,200.
Balance -- NCALL General Fund	4,620.74
Balance -- NCALL Research Fund	2,320.84

It was felt that the receipts of approximately $10,000 are renewable in 1964. A full financial report will be prepared at the end of the year.

MEMBERSHIP COMMITTEE

In the absence of Dr. Theodore Norman, Chairman, Miss Christensen reported that the committee unanimously recommended the approval of the membership application of the National Advisory Committee on Farm Labor.

It was voted to approve this application.

It was suggested that other organizations such as those concerned with the rights of minority groups- Negro, Spanish, Indian-- The Grange, The American Veterans Committee, be considered for membership.

SPECIAL FINANCE CAMPAIGN

Father Vizzard reported on the special finance campaign.
1. Letter and prospectus sent to each member organization and contributor. Response not very encouraging to date.
2. Major approach to Industrial Union Department. United Automobile Workers, United Packing House Workers, Amalgamated Meat Cutters Union. Industrial Union Department contributed $2500 for 1963. Others have matter under consideration.
3. Special assignments to committee members were reported on.
4. It was suggested that the Teamsters Union might be approached for financial support.
5. Msgr. Higgins offered to write to Unions not already approached for financial support.
6. It was felt important to define clearly the unique cooperative function of NCALL as compared to the functions of the member organizations of NCALL, some of which receive grants from labor groups.
7. It was pointed out by several representatives of member organizations that could not make a substantial cash contribution to NCALL but it would be possible to contribute to projects by making available special services.

PERSONNEL COMMITTEE

Dr. Howard A. Dawson, chairman, reported that the committee had recommended the size of staff needed, the qualifications, educational background, salary ranges, but stated the committee was in no position to recommend candidates until adequate financial resources were available. Several candidates have been recommended to the committee.

DUPLICATION OF NEWS LETTERS

Father Dugan asked if NCALL could help in coordinating the dissemination of information as some of NCALL member organizations send out news letters and sent them to the same people. The question was raised as to the possible confusion created and the wastefulness; some felt that duplication added emphasis to the importance of the issue. No solution was offered.

PROJECTS

Father Vizzard reported on several projects that are developing that could be carried out by NCALL Research Fund. As pilot projects the information and experience would be shared with member organizations and made generally available to public and voluntary agencies. Those member organizations that desire to participate in any of the projects could do so through the Research Fund.

1. Mobile School for migrants that would move with a group of migrants, possibly from Florida to New Jersey or from San Antonio, Texas to California, to provide education in health, sanitation, hygiene, nutrition, job training and retraining for young adults and adults and day care for the young children.

The project was stimulated by a Peace Corpsman in Nigeria who offered his service and those of his associates in such a project on their return to this country. A number of Federal Agencies have expressed interest in participating- such as OMAT, the Migrant Section of the U.S. Public Health Service, the Citizens Committee for the National Service Corps, the Peace Corps and the U.S. Office of Education. Also local and state units of NCALL member organizations would be available through the Research Fund to tie in the areas in which the migrants move in developing the project.

2. Believing that the Mexican Farm Labor Program (Public Law 78) is soon to end, several large growers in California want to develop their own program for recruiting their own domestic farm labor force. They have discussed this possibility with Father Vizzard. They would draw up a contract for employing domestic farm workers similar to the contract for employing Mexican Farm Workers, including minimum wage, transportation, housing, etc. Father Vizzard is to work with Father Wagner in Texas and others to survey the situation and recruit American farm workers to migrate to California to fill jobs these California growers have available. The growers plan to remodel the Bracero housing to make it suitable for families.

3. A training project for low income farm workers was submitted to OMAT last spring and was favorably received by OMAT but NCALL could not follow through on it because of the illness of Miss Herring. Interest in the project continues.

LUNCHEON SESSION

At the luncheon hour, Mrs. Sarah H. Newman, Executive Secretary of the National Consumers League, presented a summary statement on the Status of Farm Labor Legislation. Discussion followed. Report is attached.

PROCEDURE FOR ACTION ON PROJECTS

The procedure for action on any projects was recalled. The Administrative Committee of NCALL would review the projects and recommend to the Board of Directors which in turn would recommend to the Research Fund Board. The Research Fund Board would decide on what projects to undertake, ascertain which member organizations desire to participate, and set up a committee of representatives of the participating organizations to develop, direct and supervise each project. It was recognized that considerable work is required in drafting the prospectus for each of the suggested projects before any action can be taken. Father Vizzard asked Dr. Dawson if he could give a block of time to do this. Dr. Dawson said he would have to give thought to this suggestion as he already had some prior committments.

JOB DESCRIPTION

In order to interview candidates for the position of Executive Secretary, the need for a description of the responsibilities of the position was recognized. Mrs. Mary Gereau was asked to draw up a job description in consultation with Miss Herring.

EMPLOYMENT OF EXECUTIVE SECRETARY

It was agreed to proceed to employ an Executive Secretary as an act of faith, even though funds were not in hand for a full year's operation.

It was voted:

1. to set aside $5500. of the current balance for the salary of an Executive Secretary for six months.
2. that the Personnel Committee interview candidates immediately and recommend to the Administrative.
3. that a Memorandum of Agreement be drawn up by a committee composed of Dr. Dawson, Father Vizzard and Miss Herring.

As important as the proposed projects are, it was emphasized that the most important responsibility of the Executive Secretary is to provide a cooperative channel for the member organizations in their legislative effort. This has bearing on the qualifications of the person to be secured.

OFFICE SPACE

The need for more adequate office space was discussed. Rabbi Hirsch graciously offered space in the Religious Action Center, 2027 Massachusetts Ave., N.W., as all the offices were not in use.

It was voted to accept with great appreciation this kind offer of cooperation to provide more adequate office space. (The details are to be worked out.)

It was voted to express deep appreciation to the Council of Churches of Greater Washington for the privilege of having office space in the Council of Churches building for the past ten years.

APPRECIATION TO MISS LOWRY

It was voted to express to Miss Lowry the appreciation of the Board for carrying on during this period of Miss Herring's illness.

THE ELIZABETH B. HERRING AWARD

Clay Cochran presented the following resolution:

That there be established by NCALL an annual award to be known as the Elizabeth B. Herring Award to be bestowed on one or more persons for outstanding services promoting and protecting the welfare of rural people with emphasis on hired farm labor, each award to be phrased in terms of the individual involved and that the first award be given to Elizabeth B. Herring in 1963.

ELIZABETH B. HERRING AWARD
- 1963 -

KNOW YE ALL MEN

That the National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor hereby bestows humbly and gratefully the first Elizabeth B. Herring Award upon its namesake, Elizabeth B. Herring for a lifetime of courageous devotion to the welfare of rural people; for her generous and invaluable services to NCALL; for her sturdy and cheerful leadership; and particularly for her unstinting efforts on behalf of the silent ones, the poorest of the poor, the migratory farm workers and their hapless children.

Presented on this thirteenth day of December, 1963.

_____ President

_____ Chairman of Administrative Committee

CONFERENCE WITH PRESIDENT JOHNSON ON FARM LABOR

It was agreed that a high level delegation of six to eight persons representing member organizations seek an opportunity to confer with President Johnson regarding farm labor, the minority groups it represents and particularly Public Law 78 to see if he will support the termination of this program in 1964. It was recognized that because of the great pressures on the President it may be necessary to confer with one of his assistants, but an attempt should be made to see the President if at all possible. It was agreed that a memorandum on the position of our member organizations should be prepared in advance and sent to the President in advance of the interview.

FUNCTION OF NCALL IN PREPARING PUBLIC FOR ACTION ON PENDING LEGISLATION

Recognizing that it takes considerable time to develop an understanding of proposed legislation and public opinion in support of it, it was suggested that an important function of NCALL is to work on an educational program with its member groups over a two or three year period. It was suggested that NCALL begin now on such a program on S.528 - minimum wage for agricultural workers and S.527 to provide improved voluntary methods of recruiting, training, transportation and distributing agricultural workers.

ADJOURNMENT 2:30 p.m.

MIGRATORY LEGISLATION REPORT

December 12, 1963

During this first session of the 88th Congress, a balanced program of legislation to alleviate the problems confronting migratory farm workers and their families was introduced by Senator Harrison A. Williams. Although the substance of the bills was very similar to the ones introduced in the last Congress, some modifications were incorporated to conform with suggestions made during previous hearings, and to expedite passage of the legislation.

In the House, two Congressmen, Rep. Bennett (Florida) and Representative Cohelan (California) introduced bills. Most of the bills in the House go to Congressman Roosevelt's General Subcommittee on Labor, of the House Labor and Education Committee; the health and housing bills are assigned to other committees.

Following is a list of the bills, with a description of their coverage and their present status:

S. 521 and H.R. 4517 (Education)
S. 522 and H.R. 3803, 4523 (Day Care)
S. 523 and H.R. 4520 (Child Labor)
S. 524 and H.R. 3802, 4558, 6242 (Crew Leader)
S. 525 and H.R. 3801, 4519 (National Advisory Council)
S. 526 and H.R. 4522 (Sanitation Assistance)
S. 527 and H.R. 4518 (Farm Employment Recruitment)
S. 528 and H.R. 4521 (Minimum Wage)
S. 529 and H.R. 4516 (National Labor Relations Act Coverage)
S. 981 (Housing Assistance)

In the Senate, hearings started early in April on S. 521 - S. 526, and the bills were approved by the Senate on June 10 and 11.

Hearings were held on September 26 by the Senate Subcommittee on S. 527, but the bill has not yet been reported out. The Banking and Currency Committee held hearings on S. 981 in October but has not yet reported the bill.

In the House, H.R. 6242, a bill similar to S. 524, the Crew Leader Bill, was reported out by the full Labor and Education Committee and is now in the Rules Commitee. The House has not held hearings on any of the other bills.

There are also two other bills, S. 2260 (tax relief for farm labor housing) which is in the Finance Committee and S. J. Res. 82 (residential requirements for voting) which is in the Judiciary Committee. Neither of these committees have scheduled hearings on this legislation.

On P.L. 78, the House had, early in the session, voted down any extension. The Senate later passed a one-year extension with an amendment granting to domestics all the fringe benefits given Mexican braceros. The House later (on October 31) passed a straight one-year extension which the Senate adopted on December 4. The bill was then sent to the President for signature. He is being urged to veto the measure, or at least to indicate that this is the last extension. A strong message by the President might also be useful when "adverse effects" hearings are held. It is highly likely that the program will not be renewed after 1964. Senator Ellender said he would not ask for further extension, and many in the House who voted for the bill, indicated likewise.

A hearing was held in Washington on the order rescinding the 95 cent hourly rate for Florida farm workers. Prospects for reinstatement of the rate look hopeful.

The Department of Agriculture has scheduled a series of hearings on rates for sugar beet workers in Salt Lake City, Utah, on December 6; Fargo, North Dakota, on December 18; Detroit, Michigan on December 20; San Antonio, Texas, on January 7, 1964; and McAllen, Texas on January 9, 1964

Dear Mr. Dunbar:

Miss Elizabeth B. Herring, Executive Secretary of the National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor, has been selected to receive the National Farmers Union's 1964 Award for Outstanding Service to Agriculture.

We are currently preparing a booklet of testimonial letters from her many loyal friends and co-workers which will be presented to her. I wonder if you would care to write a letter for inclusion in this tribute which I know she will treasure. If so, please address the letter to her and the envelope to me, at 1404 New York Avenue, N. W., Washington, D. C. It would be helpful if you will mail in large envelope to avoid folding the letter. We must have these by February 15.

Kindest personal regards.

Sincerely,

James G. Patton

Mr. Ben Neufeld
National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor
1751 N Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Neufeld:

At the suggestion of Senator Harrison Williams we are writing to you to request sources and materials that would aid our teaching about migrant labor problems in the United States.

The Harvard Project Social Studies at the Graduate School of Education is now engaged in developing a new three year social studies curriculum under a grant from the U.S. Office of Education. One of the features of the curriculum is that it utilizes a large number of case studies as the primary focus from which students will examine continuing or basic human dilemmas. One of the cases we are developing deals with the problems of "standard of living" and "distribution of privileges" as exemplified by the life of migratory workers in the United States.

Although we have adequate material on the daily life and situation of the migrant, there are some areas in which we have not yet found adequate material.

We are seeking a series of case studies that illustrate various political, economic, and social obstacles that block attempts to improve the migrants' situation through legislation. For example, do you know of materials that dramatically illustrate how "invisible" the migrant problem really is to most Americans? Do you have materials that show concretely the reasons for migrants being "voiceless and voteless"? With regard to the many bills in Congress, are there materials that demonstrate the kinds of groups and interests voting for and against, and stalling the legislation? What kinds of lobbying, legislative, grass roots, and parliamentary strategies are necessary to make progress in this area?

We hope to develop a unit, focusing on the migrants, that illustrates the mechanics and complexities of the political process in general. We would like to have a series of vignettes in which students are able to view the situation through the eyes of many different observers: the migrant laborer, a crew leader, the employer, a Congressman, and a union official, voluntary welfare worker, a lobbyist, etc.

We realize that there is a great deal of interpretive and analytical material dealing with the problem. However, we are more interested in dramatic, journalistic, narratives that portray concrete events and dilemmas in such a way as to be exciting for high school students of average ability.

We would be thankful for any material you can send or suggest.

Sincerely,

s/ FRED M. NEWMANN

CONFIRMATION OF BOARD MEMBERS

It was moved and seconded that the Board of Directors which has been acting for the past year be confirmed. This action was required by the lack of a quorum at the last Annual Meeting (see minutes of that meeting). The motion passed unanimously.

APPOINTMENT OF EXECUTIVE SECRETARY

It was moved and seconded that Ben Neufeld, Executive Secretary of NCALL, be appointed Executive Secretary. The motion passed unanimously.

AUTHORIZATION OF ROUTINE EXPENDITURES

It was moved and seconded that the Executive Secretary be authorized to reimburse NCALL for services rendered by the staff and for related costs. The motion passed unanimously.

AUTHORIZATION TO SIGN CHECKS

It was moved and seconded that the following be authorized to sign checks drawn on the Research Fund account: The President, the Secretary, the Treasurer and the Executive Secretary. The motion passed unanimously.

FINANCIAL REPORT

A. It was moved by Cochran, seconded by Bennett that the Board agree to accept a grant of $2,500 and to authorize the Executive Secretary to disburse funds from this grant for expenses connected with preparation for the Hearings on Farm Labor, a research project of the National Advisory Committee on Farm Labor, an NCALL member organization, to be held May 18 and 19 at the Statler Hilton Hotel in Washington. The motion passed unanimously.

B. It was moved by Norman and seconded by Newman that the Financial Statement for 1963 be accepted with the proviso that, starting in January 1964, the accounts be audited annually by an outside accountant. The motion passed unanimously.

AMENDMENT OF THE BY-LAWS

A. It was moved by Norman, seconded by Cochran, that the provisions of Article IV of the By-Laws, requiring written notice of proposed changes, be waived for this meeting. The motion passed unanimously.

B. It was moved by Cochran, seconded by Norman that the number of members of the Board of Directors be increased to sixteen. The motion passed unanimously.

C. It was moved by Norman, seconded by Cochran that a quorum of the Board be reduced to five members. The motion passed unanimously.

ELECTION OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS

The Chairman of the Nominating Committee (Norman) reported that the Committee recommended the re-election of the present Board, with these changes: substitution of Cassandra Stockburger for Eli E. Cohen at Mr. Cohen's request and the addition of Elizabeth B. Herring and Edith Lowry. He moved that the slate be elected. Seconded by Newman, the motion passed unanimously.

ELECTION OF THE ADMINISTRATIVE COMMITTEE

It was moved by Norman, seconded by Cochran that the Administrative Committee be composed of Rev. James L. Vizzard, S. J.; Daniel Bedell; Clay Cochran; Howard Dawson and Sarah H. Newman. The motion passed unanimously.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

It was reported by the Chairman of the Nominating Committee (Norman) that the Committee recommended continuation of the re-election of the present officers. After discussion of the ability of the officers to attend meetings, it was moved by Norman, seconded by Stockburger, that the following officers be elected:

President	Rev. James L. Vizzard, S. J.
Vice-President	Daniel Bedell
Secretary	Sarah H. Newman
Treasurer	Clay Cochran

The motion passed unanimously.

DISCUSSION OF PROJECTS

A. 1963 Training Project: Neufeld reported that the Research Project group at OMAT do not consider this a research project, but rather an action program. They therefore are unable to support it in its present form. Further discussion was postponed.

B. Mobile Project: Neufeld reported that the original Mobile School project suggested by Jim Garofalo has been discussed with the Labor and HEW Departments and has grown into a "mobile task force", concerned with a number of disciplines: vocational training, basic education for adults, education for children, health services, vocational counseling, etc. After discussion of the feasibility of the project, centering mainly on the selection of participant migrant families, it was moved by Bennett, seconded by Stockburger, that an ad hoc committee be appointed to give further study to the project. The motion passed unanimously; the President appointed Eleanor Eaton, Cassandra Stockburger, Edith Lowry and Fay Bennett to the committee.

C. Planned Community for Migrant Farm Workers:

Father Vizzard briefly described a proposed integrated community to be built in or near San Antonio, Texas, to include, in addition to housing, facilities for job training, commercial facilities, recreational facilities, etc. The project would start with 120 families, be increased to 700 in appropriate stages, charging subsidized rents at first but giving tenants an opportunity to pay increased rents through increased job opportunity and eventually to purchase their homes. The Bishops' Committee for the Spanish Speaking carried the proposal to the point of approval by the HHFA under the Demonstration Project grant program but were then forced to withdraw sponsorship. It was proposed that NCALL or the Research Fund sponsor the program. It was the consensus of the Board that it looks with favor on the project but wants more information before deciding whether to undertake sponsorship. Accordingly, it asked the Executive Secretary to send copies of a description of the project to all members of the Board of NCALL; to ask Father Wagner, Executive Director of the Bishops' Committee, to create an on-the-spot committee with which it could consult, this committee to consist of Father Wagner, Betty Whitaker, the Friends Service Committee and the Texas State AFL-CIO at the minimum; to ask the President to appoint such a committee for this project, and to ask the President to see if the IUD-AFL-CIO could send Clay Cochran to the area to investigate and report to the Board's ad hoc committee.

ADJOURNMENT

The Board adjourned at 12:10 P.M.

Respectfully submitted

Sarah H. Newman
Secretary

MINUTES OF ADMINISTRATIVE COMMITTEE

7 April 1964 at 1:30 PM

Religious Action Center, Washington, DC

ATTENDANCE: Father Vizzard, Chairman; Dan Bedell, Fay Bennett, Clay Cochran, Elizabeth Herring, Rabbi Hirsch, Edith Lowry, Arnold Mayer, Henry McCanna, Theodore Norman, Cassandra Stockburger, Ben Neufeld.

Edith Lowry was asked to serve as Secretary Pro Tem.

DISCUSSION WITH DR. GLENN OLDS

Dr. Glenn Olds, President of Springfield College, Massachusetts, and assistant to Sargent Shriver for those aspects of the War on Poverty involving the Volunteers For America and non-governmental volunteers, joined the Committee for lunch before the meeting. Dr. Olds, who recalled that he had been a migrant in his youth, generally described the provisions of the Poverty Bill, expressing the belief that volunteers would find a role under all titles. Suggestions were advanced for uses of Volunteers, including intensive training of some in existing government programs so that they could be brought to bear on problems (Vizzard) and their use as "buffers" between the migrant and the community (Mayer).

Dr. Olds asked for immediate volunteers to help him with his secretarial work, and the executive secretary was instructed to canvas the membership for this purpose.

ACTION ON REPORT OF NOMINATING COMMITTEE

At the December 1963 meeting of the Board of Directors, the Nominating Committee was requested to report to the next meeting of the Administrative Committee nominating members-at-large of the Board to succeed Directors whose terms expired in 1963, and such other nominations as were required.

The following were nominated as Board Members-at-Large

James P. Mitchell	1964
Elizabeth Herring	"
Edith Lowry	"
Ernest F. Witte	"
Leslie W. Dunbar	1966
Rev Shirley E. Greene	"
Robert W. Hudgens	"
Lewis W. Jones	"
Elizabeth Magee	"
Shirley Sonosky	"
Paul S. Taylor	"

Fay Bennett will submit the name of the representative of the National Advisory Committee on Farm Labor (Msgr George G. Higgins, a member of the Committee, was subsequently named). Mrs. Zimand wrote suggesting that she be dropped from the Board to make a place for a more active member. The Committee expressed appreciation of Mrs. Zimand's thoughtfulness but was eager to have her serve out her full term and requested the Executive Secretary to write her accordingly.

ADMINISTRATIVE COMMITTEE

The Nominating Committee recommended that the present members be continued for 1964 and that the following be added:

Arnold Mayer
Cassandra Stockburger in place of Eli E. Cohen at his request.

Mrs. Newman, already a member in her capacity as Assistant Secretary-Treasurer, would not be listed again.

Voted that those nominated be elected.

HEARINGS ON THE POVERTY BILL

It was reported that hearings have begun and continue for two or possibly three weeks. Several member organizations are planning to testify.

MEMBERSHIP

The following organizations were confirmed as Members of NCALL:

	Board Representative
Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America	Howard D. Samuel, Assistant President
American Veterans Committee (AVC)	J. Arnold Feldman, Executive Director
United Steelworkers of America	Francis Shane, Executive Secretary, Committee on Civil Rights

They have appointed the Board representatives indicated.

Other organizations considering membership are the National Congress of Parents and Teachers and CORE. It was agreed that if they decided to become members before the next meeting of the Administrative Committee, the Executive Secretary be authorized to list them on the new letterheads. Travelers Aid should be approached again about membership and listed if they join.

It was suggested that the Executive Secretary communicate with Herbert Hill of NAACP stressing the importance of their active participation in NCALL. It was also suggested that a record be kept of attendance at future meetings so that all Members with inactive representatives may be asked to appoint new representatives or local alternatives.

BY-LAWS

The recommended change in the By-Laws, relating to membership, was approved with the understanding that the term "affiliate" would be clarified and the student Associate subscription set at $1.00 ("affiliate" was subsequently changed to "Associated Groups").

REPORT ON PROJECTS

The Executive Secretary presented a description of the Mobile Services Project. It was received with interest, a number of suggestions were made, and it was agreed that it was not yet ripe for action. More planning will be done with the cooperation of an NCALL-Research Fund ad hoc committee, and it will be presented to this Committee later.

The Planned Community for Migratory Farm Workers, the housing and training project initiated by the Bishops' Committee on the Spanish Speaking, was outlined by Father Vizzard. As this project has already had favorable action by Governmental agencies and by local leaders in Texas, it was agreed that the Research Fund Board would report again after further consideration, including consultation with an advisory committee to be set up in Texas by an ad hoc committee to be appointed by Research Fund President Vizzard.

Selected excerpts from the project description are attached.

BULLETIN

Mr. Neufeld reported that a Spring Bulletin is in preparation, to include information on the following:

Legislative picture

How the Congressional system is preventing action on migrant legislation

Poverty Bill - analysis and needed action

Housing Bill - its relevance to low income farmers and farm workers

Current activities of NCALL member organizations

Mr. Neufeld hopes to issue the Bulletin at regular intervals.

Suggestion was made that pertinent information published by member organizations could well be included in NCALL Bulletins, so all member organizations would have access to it. An example would be the recent news letter of National Advisory Committee on Farm Labor analyzing the Poverty Bill. It was agreed that NCALL, rather than any of the organizations represented, would prepare the definitive statement on the Poverty Bill.

It was suggested that the manuscript of the Bulletin be sent to member organizations in advance of publication, indicating cost of additional copies, should member organizations wish to distribute them to their own constituencies.

VACATION AND SICK LEAVE FOR THE EXECUTIVE SECRETARY

Mr. Neufeld suggested the following:

Vacation - 18 working days a year with maximum accrual of 36 days.

Sick Leave - 15 days a year and no maximum accrual.

It was agreed that this is generally in line with the personnel practice of Government and voluntary organizations.

When covered by Workmen's Compensation, the Executive Secretary would not receive salary, and time off would not count against sick leave or vacation.

Voted to approve the above policy but to work out policy for other staff as needed.

DIRECTORY OF JOB OPPORTUNITIES FOR SUMMER WORKERS

The Executive Secretary reported working with the Rural Education Department, NEA, toward assembling information on summer work opportunities; numerous offers of services are received by NCALL and its member agencies. Miss Stockburger offered to provide information.

FINANCIAL REPORT

The annual report for 1963 and for the first quarter of 1964 were presented.

It was agreed that an audit by a CPA of the accounts of NCALL would be made beginning with 1964 in accordance with the requirement in the By-Laws.

Report attached.

To Research Fund Directors
NCALL Directors

From Ben Neufeld, Executive Secretary

Subject "A Planned Community for Migratory Farm Workers"

This packet has been prepared to give you a picture of a demonstration project which was initiated in San Antonio, Texas, for sponsorship by the Bishops' Committee for the Spanish Speaking and carried through to approval by the HHFA. At that time, however, the Bishops' Committee was not in a position to sign the sponsorship contract and receive the grant funds.

It is now suggested that NCALL or the Research Fund sponsor the project.

At its Annual Meeting on 7 April 1964, the Research Fund Board, looking on this suggestion "with favor" and voting to get more information from people in San Antonio, asked me to circulate basic information about it to all of you. I have selected these items from a more complete description:

An outline of the Project, prepared by Allison B. Peery, the architect who designed the community (green pages)

A description of the Community which is to be built and operated under the Project, prepared by Mr Peery (pink)

Cost and economic analyses prepared by Mr Peery (white)

A letter from HHFA raising questions about costs (blue)

Mr. Peery's reply, explaining some of the features of the community (yellow)

The Board would appreciate your comments and questions. Would you please send them to this office for distribution.

HOUSING AND HOME FINANCE AGENCY
OFFICE OF THE ADMINISTRATOR
WASHINGTON 25, D.C.

Mar 21, 1962

Mr. Allison B. Peery
Architect
211 North Presa
San Antonio, Texas

Dear Mr. Peery:

This is in reply to your letter of February 26, covering two copies of the supplement to the application for a Section 207 grant on the part of the Bishops' Committee for the Spanish Speaking.

The supplement has not as yet been thoroughly reviewed. However, it is readily apparent that considerable refinement of the proposal has taken place.

On the other hand, we must at once observe that the $8,000 per dwelling cost figure is seriously questioned. To begin with, effective demand for housing at the $8,000 level, or even much lower levels, does not exist and is to be cultivated within a potential market of uncertain and untested demand characteristics. Even should the cost level be accepted, FHA commitments and financing be obtained, and the dwellings prove marketable in Bexar County, the price level of the housing would hardly invite replicability of the demonstration in other communities, as is, of course, the basic purpose of every eligible demonstration.

Moreover, the proposed demonstration would employ a combination of public subsidy and support, involving at least four different programs of Federal assistance, a circumstance further emphasizing the necessity of a more realistic cost objective.

In addition, the $8,000 cost level is one which does not favorably compare with other low-cost housing ventures current in Texas. As the submission itself notes, "Middle income, semi-luxury air conditioned apartments in the San Antonio area are built year after year at a per unit cost ranging from $4,000 to $6,000." Further, the widely-publicized SARAH undertaking in San Antonio is geared to a $7,000 sales price for three bedroom dwellings. These dwellings were designed and developed to meet FHA minimum property standards for low-cost housing and enjoy support of the HHFA Section 314 demonstration grant program. It should also be added that one of our more advanced Section 207 proposals, also from the Southwestern part of the country, aims at a dwelling, designed for a hot-dry climate, to market at $5,000.

While we, of course, support your concern that the quality of the proposed demonstration dwellings be properly related to the low-cost objective, the considerations outlined above require that the $8,000 objective be carefully re-evaluated.

Lastly, since a combination of FHA-insured loans is to provide financing for the proposed development, we have contacted the FHA Commissioner's Office here in Washington which advises that you should arrange a conference with Mr. H. Earl Rosamond, FHA Multi-Family Housing Representative, HHFA Region V Office, Room 2000, Federal Center, 300 West Vickery Boulevard, Fort Worth 4, Texas. Please inform us as to the results of your discussion with Mr. Rosamond.

Sincerely yours,

George B. Nesbitt
Director, Low-Income
Housing Demonstration Program

Notes Concerning
A Planned Community for Migratory Farm Workers

Mr. George Nesbitt,

1- It has been our intention to apply only for the Preliminary Development grant, requested November 7, 1961; then, after detailed refinement of the proposal, request the financing terms and the required subsidy, all in due time. The questions raised by you, and others, have made it necessary for us to attempt the refinement of the proposal in a less thorough manner than will be the case when we are operating under the Preliminary Development grant contract.

We have therefore tried to show the feasibility of the scheme by selecting sample conditions, designing for them, and figuring costs based on familiar construction techniques. We believe that ultimate refinement will produce even lower costs. One obvious example - some of the dwelling units need not be as large as our sample. When we suggested that a subsidy of $67,104.00 would be required, it was on the basis of an $8,000.00 per dwelling unit total cost, which included dwelling units, parks and open spaces and central community facilities - we chose that figure we knew we could stay under. Please note that a more careful analysis shows a lesser figure using a fairly large sample dwelling unit. Further, please note that the $8,000.00 figure was never the sales price of the dwelling unit to the migrant family. We now know our sample house could sell, with land, for $6,678.90. Smaller houses could sell for less. Further, careful refinement, we believe, will lead to even lower costs.

2- Concerning SARAH, and other current low-income projects, please note that these are almost entirely attempts to squeeze a typical builder house even smaller, usually with no planning or design, much less any real analysis of the problems that keep low-income families in the low-income bracket. It has been our central idea that through the low-income housing demonstration program we might show that there is a better way, economically sound, that will produce a community designed to flourish socially and esthetically as well.

3- Mr. Rosamond raises questions some of which are answered by this submittal. He did not have these designs or cost figures, and was operating with the same information you received prior to this submittal. I refer specifically to his questions 2, 3 and 4.

Concerning his first question, we would like to present our case to the FHA Commissioner after final refinement. His number 5 question sets limits within which we easily qualify. Concerning number 6, I would like to stick to my figures since they are based on pretty careful research, and in reference to taxes, have clear assurance from the County Commissioner in whose precinct the demonstration project would lie, that he and his attorneys can help us set up the project to enjoy tax exemption.

4- By way of review, let's go through the whole process once more. The sponsor borrows $912,488.40 for the 120 family demonstration project. ($7,604.07 per dwelling unit.) He builds the project, geared to the needs of the Migrant family, and provides the spaces for job-training and job-placement, health clinic, administration, land for commercial leasing, parks and open spaces. He moves in the migrant families for whom he immediately secures employment (year round) at 75¢ an hour, charging them 20% of their income for rent. The difference he needs to meet all his expenses is made up from the subsidy. He begins to raise the level of the migrant family's income through his job training and job placement facilities, and raises the family's rent concurrently, until the family is paying economic rent. He then sells the dwelling unit to the family at a sales price composed of only the cost of the dwelling unit and the pro-rata share of land cost the dwelling unit sits on. Meanwhile the sponsor has leased out land to commercial enterprises, generating income; pays rent for his own office, charges the health unit rent for its office, charges the Community Development Council rent for the job-training facilities; i.e., in general, during the time he is selling off the dwelling units to the migrant families, he puts the central facilities on a paying basis so that when all the dwelling units are sold, he is in a position to expand the idea by constructing more dwelling units and starting the process all over again.

Obviously, the central facilities will serve more than the pilot, 120 families. It is for this reason we show a site diagram of a community of 714 dwelling units, the 120 family demonstration being the first part.

5- If our grant request is approved, we hope to revise our figures downward. I hope that I have shown there is little likelihood they will have to be revised upward. If our studies indicate a simpler financing scheme, we will revise accordingly. Incidentally, the project could be transferred as purely a rent scheme; its only because of the Latin orientation toward home ownership that we have included this feature.

A PLANNED COMMUNITY FOR MIGRATORY FARM WORKERS

A DEMONSTRATION PROJECT

Outline prepared by:
Allison B. Peery, Architect

I. PURPOSE: To show that domestic migratory farm workers can be integrated socially and economically with their home base community by providing:

1. A Planned Community of safe, sanitary and decent dwelling units designed for permanent occupancy and ultimate ownership by the migratory farm worker family.

2. Permanent job-training and job-placement facilities in the community.

3. Permanent classroom space for the education of children and adults in language and citizen benefits and responsibilities.

4. Space for permanent health facilities and health education facilities.

5. Space for necessary commercial facilities to insure that the community will function as a natural one.

II. METHOD: The demonstration should proceed according to the following outline:

1. The national sponsor (NCALL) enters into a contract with the Housing and Home Finance Agency agreeing to sponsor and administer the demonstration.

2. The architect is authorized by NCALL to proceed with the planning and design of the community through the design development stage. (Monies for the architect's fees have been included in the demonstration grant through the design development stage).

3. A non-profit corporation of citizens from the locale where the planned community will be constructed enters into negotiations with the local FHA office for a permanent loan covering the cost of land acquisition and construction of the entire community under the provisions of Section 221d3 of the Housing Act. It is this corporation which signs the mortgage papers and, through the architect, administers the completion of working drawings and specifications for, and construction of, the entire community.

4. At the completion of construction, the local corporation sets up its rental office and rents its housing to the migratory farm worker families which have been selected for the demonstration by the national sponsor. The migratory farm worker family is charged "economic rent", that is, the amount of rent which is necessary to amortize the cost of land acquisition and construction borne by the local corporation over the period of the life of the loan. If the migratory farm worker family is unable to pay "economic rent" (which will probably be the case) then the family pays twenty per cent of its monthly income, whatever that amount might be. The difference between what the family is able to pay and "economic rent" is made up in subsidy payments which the national sponsor pays to the local corporation. Monies for subsidy payments have been included in the project demonstration grant.

5. All of the job-training and job-placement, educational and health facilities of the community are brought to bear in a well organized, integrated campaign administered by the national sponsor but carried out by local organizations, to raise the income level of the migratory farm worker family. Since the amount of rent paid by the family is a function of income, the families' rent soon rises to the point of "economic rent".

6. The all-out effort of the community facilities continues until the migratory farm worker family is in an economic position to qualify for home ownership of the same dwelling in which they have been housed through the period of subsidy rent and "economic rent".

7. As soon as families qualify, the dwelling units are sold to them and they then assume their own mortgage. The community facilities remain as an integral part of the community and more dwelling units are added and the process begins all over again.

III. SPONSOR: The role and responsibilities of the sponsor are as follows:

1. To enter into contract with the Housing and Home Finance Agency agreeing to carry out the demonstration.

2. To administer the demonstration from the period of design development through the period when "economic rent" and home ownership have been achieved.

3. Appoint a director to co-ordinate and administer the demonstration. Funds for this purpose have been included in the demonstration grant.

4. Furnish subsidy payments to the local corporation when required. Funds for this purpose have been included in the demonstration grant.

5. Observe and publish a report on the methodology and results of the demonstration. Funds for this purpose have been included in the demonstration grant.

IV. INITIAL STEPS: The first step is to confer with Mr. George B. Nesbitt, Director, Low Income Housing Demonstration Program, Housing and Home Finance Agency, express a willingness to sponsor the demonstration, and discuss with Mr. Nesbitt the official measures that must be taken to secure the contract for the demonstration.

4. THE NATURE OF THE COMMUNITY

4. The PCMFW will be a new and improved method of housing migratory farm workers at their home base. The demonstration will show that stabilization of this group and a healthful, decent, economically sound living standard can be achieved through:

A. The nature of the community.

The PCMFW will contain 120 safe, sanitary and decent dwelling units. The planning and design will produce dwelling units so carefully fitted to the needs of this group as to stimulate and maintain the desire for ownership of the unit and the desire to remain in the community. There will be space provided for a permanently staffed and maintained job-placement office. There will be space to house the job-training classes and workshops. There will be classroom space for the education of children and adults in language and citizen benefits and responsibilities. There will be space provided for health facilities and space for the necessary commercial facilities to insure that the community will function as a natural one.

B. A progression from subsidized rent through economic rent to home ownership within the same dwelling unit.

The migrant family will be offered a dwelling unit in the community which it may ultimately own. The initial rent which the family will pay will be 20% of income, using PHA formulae and standards. "Self-help" maintenance will be encouraged, stimulated by the progression toward ownership. As soon as the family income reaches the point which normally produces ineligibility in current low income housing projects, the typical "gap" is closed through a succession of rent adjustments until economic rent is achieved. The family then becomes eligible to buy the dwelling unit, with a final rent adjustment to produce the minimum down payment required in the permanent financing scheme. The 120 families which will be housed in the first PCMFW will be selected from the 12,000 migrants known to be home-based in Bexar County. It is estimated that 98% of this group are of Mexican descent. Since all current social survey data indicates a rigid orientation toward home ownership on the part of Latins, the project has been organized to achieve this result.

A sample site of 76.37 acres has been developed to demonstrate how the project could work. Each single family dwelling is row house with a common party wall to its neighbor, providing maximum density, yet permitting the clear legal isolation of each unit for sale in the future. Each plot, 40'x80' would provide a minimum, landscaped front yard, and a walled back yard. The private back yard space is an essential item fulfilling the emotional need of families of Mexican descent for a place to garden, cultivate flowers, keep animals and birds.

A system of open spaces, to serve as parks and playgrounds, are included within easy strolling distance of the dwelling units.

Land to be leased out for small neighborhood commercial establishments is located at points in the project to integrate these facilities into the neighborhood in a natural way. Laundries, dry cleaning establishments, neighborhood groceries, soda fountains and taverns would serve as meeting places, in general, would be in close proximity to park and recreational spaces. This integration of commercial and residential land use within the neighborhood is also derived from the cultural pattern of Latin families.

The Community Center, located in the dominant open space would provide:

Office space for the administrative center of the project (rental office, maintenance headquarters)

Office space for the job-placement center.

Space for the health clinic.

Large recreation space designed to accommodate basket-ball games, dances, indoor children's activities for bad weather and mass meetings.

Educational facilities space designed to accommodate a public library branch, a study hall for children with school home-work, class-rooms or small meeting rooms, space for the Programmed Instruction demonstration.

Space for blue-collar job-training designed to accommodate truckers and warehousemen's school, service station training school, and building trades school. This space could be equipped with facilities and tools to accommodate furniture repair and maintenance. It could also serve as a shop where families could make repairs to their own automobiles. The space could ultimately function on the level of a hobby shop.

The sample site chosen accommodates 714 single family dwelling units yielding a density of 9.3 families per acre.

A sample single family dwelling unit has been developed to indicate how the space needs of a low-income, large family could be met. Space for the family automobile or truck is included as an essential item, inasmuch as this prized possession is never left on the street, and would be parked in the front yard if not provided for.

Adequate living, dining and kitchen facilities would include cabinets and appliances (range and refrigerator, with connection for future washing machine).

Two dormitory bedrooms and one private bedroom together with a compartmented bath could serve a family of from six to twelve. Screen partitions may be used to sub-divide the dormitory space into semi-private sleeping spaces.

The units would have to be breeze oriented (as no air-conditioning is intended) with an emphasis on sun control, provided here by the use of a deep overhang and a minimum balcony which could also serve for extreme hot weather sleeping out.

The privately fenced rear yard would allow for expansion of the dwelling unit, or the construction of outbuildings, within the orderly pattern of the community.

Subject: Tax Exempt Status

This statement was prepared by the United Community Funds and Councils of America (USFCA), distributed by the National Social Welfare Assembly, with which we are associated, and copied with the consent of the author.

Its message may be summarized "secure competent tax counsel".

The Internal Revenue Service has mailed a questionnaire to some 300,00 exempt organizations seeking information to be set up on the Service's automatic data processing equipment. Additional organizations will receive these questionnaires shortly. They are accompanied by a request that they be returned within 15 days of receipt.

As soon as UCFCA saw a copy, it telephoned the Exempt Organizations Branch of IRS in Washington and pointed out how a great deal of misleading information might be filed by agency executives who are not knowledgeable about the Internal Revenue Code and some of its technicalities. We asked if the questionnaire could be withdrawn and redesigned but learned that it had such widespread distribution that this was impossible.

Consequently United Funds and Councils are urged to secure competent tax counsel in filling out this form and to warn their affiliated agencies immediately to do the same.

Questions #7 and #11 are of particular concern. They relate to the classification, purposes and activities of tax exempt organizations are are to be answered by selecting descriptive terminology from two tables printed on the form. Only so-called 501 (c) (3) organizations are eligible to receive contributions which are deductible by the donor for income tax purposes. All agencies which are supported by United Funds are supposed to have this classification and in answering question #7 should limit their selections to eight catgories that the table shows have such a classification if they can possibly and legitimately do so. Becuase the term "social welfare organization" is used differently in the Internal Revenue Code than it is commonly used in the health and welfare field, agencies that select "social welfare organization" from this list may invite further inquiry from the Internal Revenue Service about their correct classification for income tax purposes. Agencies should be warned that "social welfare organizations" are classified as 501 (c) (4) exempt organizations which means that contributions to them are not deductible for income tax purposes.

Included in the list of 90 purposes, activities and operations from which answers to question #11 may be drawn are several which if used unwittingly, could cause trouble for agencies. These include "civic welfare," "humanitarian activities" "services to members" and Revenue Regulations relating to tax exempt organizations, frequently are used to describe 501 (c) (4) organizations. Since despite the wide choice provided in the questionnaire, it will prove extremely difficult for many agencies to find appropriate descriptive terms, agencies should be warned to be very discriminating in their selections from this list lest they jeopardize their exemption as 501 (c) (3) organizations contributions to which are deductible for income tax purposes.

A special word to Councils. 501 (c) (3) organizations are not forbidden by the Internal Revenue Code from engaging in legislative activity so long as they do not devote more than an insubstantial part of their time, effort and budget to this purpose. Yet in a number of recent cases, the mere mention of legislative activity has resulted in exemption applications of clearly qualified organizations being rejected by IRS. This fact should be kept in mind in answering the questionnaire. Also, Councils will find it difficult to find suitable selections from Table 2 of the questionnaire to describe themselves accurately. Consequently it may be advisable for them to append an explanation of their activities to the questionnaire rather than to attempt to select an appropriate word from this table. Some might find it advisable to choose "educational (other)" as being most nearly descriptive. This will not adversely affect their 501 (c) (3) status but, if as a result they are subsequently reclassified as "educational" rather than "charitable", they will henceforth be required to file annual information returns with the Internal Revenue Service. Such returns are not presently required of 501 (c) (3) charitable organizations supported primarily by contributions of the general public.

Poverty Program Projects

In what projects are you engaged under the Anti-Poverty Act?

I know you do not have money for projects, but we are all vitally interested in your preparations to take advantage of the Economic Opportunities now available.

Would you please let me know immediately. All information along these lines will be helpful to me in talking to the Poverty Task Force here in Washington and to the Crusade Against Poverty initiated by the UAW.

Will you please respond to this request immediately; as soon as I hear from you, I will prepare a summary of your activities and circulate it to all of you.

TO : NCALL Directors

SUBJECT: Meetings, Conferences, etc.

FROM : Ben Neufeld, Executive Secretary

Talking with a number of people who were in town for various meetings last week, I learned that a great variety of meetings is going on around the country on rural poverty. Conferences on the Poverty Package held here in Washington, with the exception of those sponsored by the NEA's Department of Rural Education, almost completely ignored rural problems.

Not having been aware of the rural meetings, I have been unable to tell you about them for your own planning.

Furthermore, I have been exploring the possibility of grant funds for a major conference of our own: a national conference on Developing Rural Opportunities through Private Organizations, to bring together people who have programs, people wishing to start programs, people who want to know what programs can do, and government program specialists. The effort would try to make up for rural areas' lack of organization, which contrasts with the well-organized metropolitan regions. Now I find that some of this work is already being done.

In order to avoid duplication and identify resource participants, I need to know what conferences on this general subject you have given, are planning to hold or have participated in. Could you let me know what you have scheduled?

In particular, I would appreciate knowing whether any of your forthcoming conferences are so constructed as to permit the devotion of some time to this subject, my thought being that we might do as well or better with a series of regional meetings rather than a single one here in Washington.

Please, give this request your prompt consideration.

To Directors representing Members

Subject National Conference on Poverty in the Southwest

From Ben Neufeld, Executive Secretary

At the Annual Meeting last week, the Directors voted to join as a co-sponsor of the National Conference on Poverty in the Southwest and to urge all of our members to do the same.

The enclosed documents from the Conference organization - a progress report on Conference preparations, the most recent revision of the tentative program and preliminary list of sponsors, and a model news story for the sponsors' own newspapers - are due you as NCALL members in any event.

Additionally, those of you who are already sponsors will want to know the latest about what you are sponsoring; those of you who are unable to join as national sponsors will want to know what is happening as it may affect your activities in the future; those of you who are still considering sponsorship will have more information on which to act now. If you are in the last of these categories, we hope to hear from you soon.

All of you are reminded that your local units or affiliates in the Southwest may be regional sponsors. Because of the emphasis on participation by the people of the region and the consequent assignment of program planning to the Phoenix office, I am unable to define the role you might play. However, I would suggest you have your people in the region discuss participation with the Conference Coordinator, Robert B Choate, or the Executive Secretary, Mrs Grace Gil Olivarez, at the Conference office Draft of suggested press release to be used by national organizations sponsoring the National Conference on Poverty in the Southwest.

(Name of organization) has joined with several other organizations in sponsoring a National Conference on Poverty in the Southwest to be held in Tucson, Arizona, Jan. 25-26, 1965, it was announced today by (name of responsible officer of organization).

The conference is aimed at arousing national concern over the poverty found in a major region of the United States which blights the lives of many thousands of Americans (name of officer) said.

The Conference developed in response to efforts by several organizations which succeeded in gaining the support of President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Efforts by the groups resulted in a letter to President Johnson Oct. 22 by three nationally prominent citizens setting forth the proposal for the conference.

The letter was signed by James G. Patton, President of the National Farmers Union and Chairman, National Policy Committee on Pockets of Poverty; UAW President, Walter P. Reuther in his capacity as Chairman of the Citizens' Crusade Against Poverty; and the Rev. James L. Vizzard, S.J., Chairman, National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor.

Purpose of the conference, the letter to the President pointed out, would be "to concentrate national attention on the unique problems of this area and particularly those of the ethnic minority groups in what is otherwise a great and prosperous part of our country."

In his reply Nov. 2, President Johnson said, "This undertaking by the many private groups you represent can be very helpful in focusing attention on the special problems of poverty in this region of the country.

"I have asked Mr. Sargent Shriver, the Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, to provide you with whatever assistance you may need. The war against poverty depends upon the kind of citizen effort in which you are engaged, and we want to help in every possible way."

National Co-chairmen of the Conference are Patton, Reuther, and Father Vizzard.

NATIONAL COUNCIL ON AGRICULTURAL LIFE AND LABOR

Annual Meeting of the Board of Directors

7 December 1964

MINUTES

The 1964 Annual Meeting of the Board of Directors of NCALL was called to order by Acting President Fay Bennett at 9:40 am on 7 December 1964 at the Burlington Hotel in Washington, DC. Present at the meeting were Dan Bedell, Fay Bennett, Howard A. Dawson, John Fryer, Elizabeth Herring, Robert M. Isenberg, Mrs. John Bayley Jones representing the Methodist Woman's Division of Christian Service, Robert E. Jones, Edith E. Lowry, Lewis Maddox, Howard C. Maxwell, Arnold Mayer, Mary Moran, Henry A. McCanna, Sarah Newman, Theodore Norman, Msgr. William J. Quinn, Helen Shettle, Shirley Sonosky, Cassandra Stockburger, Cleonice Tavani, Rev James L. Vizzard, SJ and Ben Neufeld, Executive Secretary.

Proposed agenda was modified and adopted and the Minutes of the 1963 Annual Meeting and the 1964 Spring Meeting of the Administrative Committee were approved.

Membership Committee report was made by Ted Norman, recommending approval of membership for the National Association of Social Workers and the Social Action Secretariat of the National Federation of Catholic College Students.

Review of 1964 activities included:

Report by Father Vizzard on the Citizens Crusade Against Poverty and their plan for a conference in Washington in February. In view of Father Vizzard's report that Walter Reuther, Chairman of CCAP was being operated on that day, it was unanimously agreed to send Mr. Reuther a telegram of cheer.

Father Vizzard also reported on the National Conference on Poverty in the Southwest being scheduled for January 25 and 26 in Tucson, Arizona. James Patton, Walter Reuther and Father Vizzard had acted as co-chairmen of a committee to convene the conference, planning for which is being carried out by a Steering Committee in the Southwest jointly with a Washington-based Steering Committee. The Conference is to be financed largely by grants from UAW, CCAP, Farmers Union, and OEO, plus contributions from sponsoring organizations and registration fees. At the core of the Conference will be three sets of Citizen Hearings - one to hear the citizens themselves, the second for private and local public agencies, and the third for Federal agencies.

After much discussion, it was moved (Norman), seconded (Dawson), and passed unanimously that NCALL join in co-sponsoring the Southwest Conference and that NCALL urge its member organizations to do likewise. A letter is to be sent as soon as possible to all member organizations of NCALL on this matter.

Ben Neufeld then reported briefly on passage of the Crew Leader Bill, postponing until the afternoon session the report on PL 414 and the Poverty Bill.

Review of Member Activities

At this point, it was agreed to change the adopted Agenda to have brief reports on activities of each organization before taking up the item on "Purpose and Function of NCALL". Fifteen members present reported; summaries are enclosed (blue paper).

By-laws After a recess for lunch, the first order of business was the motion (Dawson) that the Board ratify and adopt By-laws amendments proposed by Administrative Committee at its April meeting. It was seconded (Norman) and passed unanimously (enclosed - see canary paper).

Discussion on Purpose and Function of NCALL

The June 6, 1951, Statement of Objectives and Program was distributed. Miss Bennett and Miss Eaton had both asked for clarification of functions of NCALL in responding to the call of the meeting. A motion (Vizzard) that a special committee be set up to study the 1951 statement and bring in recommendations for updating it was seconded (Shettle) and passed unanimously.

Miss Herring was appointed Chairman of the Special Committee whose members include Bennett, Dawson, Eaton, Maxwell, Mayer, Neufeld and Vizzard.

A motion (Mrs. Jones) that the Board be circularized to inform them of the projected study and including a copy of the 1951 Statement, and asking for recommendations, was seconded (Shettle) and passed unanimously (A letter will be sent out immediately after the holidays).

Plans for 1965

It was agreed that the Executive Secretary was to provide each Board member with a list of names and addresses of all Board members to facilitate flow of relevant information among members (the list is enclosed, on white paper).

Finance Committee report was given by Edith Lowry, with two recommendations:

1. that the new Finance Committee Chairman be chosen in consultation with organized labor, and

2. that the members' basic subscription fee be increased to $100 to help support our expanded activities.

Recommendation No 1 was agreed to unanimously. After much discussion on Recommendation No 2, it was moved (Lowry) and seconded (Shettle) that the Bylaws be amended to increase annual subscription to $50 per year except for student organizations which were to remain at $25. Passed unanimously.

It was moved (Lowry) and seconded (Norman) that certain member organizations be approached by the Finance Committee for larger contributions. Passed unanimously.

Legislative Workshop

Public Law 414 was discussed, with a review of the Labor Department's position on foreign workers. The discussion was interrupted to permit Mr. Nat Keith, president of the National Housing Conference, to speak on plans for Housing legislation (particularly in rural areas) prospects in the 89th Congress. Mr. Keith outlined the Conference's tentative plans and welcomed suggestions from NCALL and its members for changes or inclusions. He agreed to try to get mailings out to NCALL members when organization action on rural housing legislation was required.

Arnold Mayer suggested that legislation providing aid to farmers to build family housing for migrants might be a point on which NCALL members and the growers could cooperate. Father Vizzard promised to get in touch with Stewart Boswell, DC representative of the National Council of Agricultural Employers.

Spring meeting dates and plans were left to the Administrative Committee with suggested dates for a one and one-half or two day meeting being May 25 and 26, 4 and 5, or 11 and 12. The Executive Secretary was instructed to prepare a description of his proposed Annual James P. Mitchell Seminars for consideration as an adjunct to the meeting.

The date for the next annual meeting was set for 7 December 1965.

Legislative Workshop then continued with discussion of PL 414, the need for a separate bill on a minimum wage for farm workers, and the need to strengthen Title III of the Economic Opportunity Act. Member organizations should be writing President Johnson on the latter point.

Nominating Committee report, made by Ted Norman, recommended re-election of present officers, with exception of shifting of Secretary-Treasurer and Assistant Secretary Treasurer names, and re-election of those members of the Board whose terms expire in 1964. Recommendations for President still are under consideration. It was moved (Dawson) and seconded (Norman) that the report be accepted and the Secretary be instructed to cast a unanimous ballot. Passed unanimously.

It was moved (Norman) and seconded (Vizzard) that the Nominating and Membership Committees be increased in size. Carried unanimously.

It was moved (Shettle) and seconded (Vizzard) that the Annual Meeting be recessed until May at which time a President will be elected. Passed unanimously, and the meeting stood in recess at 4:30 pm.

Mr. Ben Neufeld, Executive Secretary
National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor
2027 Massachusetts Avenue, N. W.
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Neufeld:

I am returning enclosed the card asking for date preferences for the 1965 Board and annual meeting; about all I can do is indicate the one date questionable at this time.

I have reviewed also your memo of December 28, on the proposed James P. Mitchell seminar. It is an attractive idea, and I would be for it if funds are not a problem.

I cannot be with you on January 7, because of a conference with the Georgia Council on Human Relations.

Your memo of December 14 notes that at the Spring meeting of the Board some vacancies on the Board will be filled. This is an appropriate time for me to bring up my own status. I sincerely regard my membership on the Board as an honor. On the other hand, I have been of absolutely no use to you and have yet to attend even my first meeting. Our budget does not permit travel on non-SRC business and I am already stretching the criteria as far as one reasonably can by attending a couple board meetings of NAIRO each year.

As an agency head myself, I have very strong opinions about non-working board or executive committees members. On my own standards, I am a dismal failure.

I am interested in NCALL and, as I said, feel honored at being on the board. Meetings have never yet coincided with my SRC travel; if they ever do, I shall attend. But under these circumstances, I wonder if you don't want my resignation?

All the best wishes for the New Year,

Sincerely yours,

Leslie W. Dunbar

SUBJECT The James P. Mitchell Seminars on Agricultural Life and Labor: a program proposal

Just a few days before the 1964 Annual Meeting, the idea came to me of an annual NCALL function to which I gave the name "The James P. Mitchell Seminars on Agricultural Life and Labor". Because I had not had time to prepare a comprehensive discussion of this notion, the Board instructed that I do so as soon as practicable and circulate it to you for your reaction so that the Administrative Committee might reach a decision on whether or not to undertake this activity.

What the Seminar Would Be

The Seminar itself would be a luncheon-and-afternoon or dinner-and-evening meeting with an invited attendance at which one major speaker or a small panel of outstanding specialists would discuss a topic of current importance within NCALL's area of interest.

Farm labor is only one subject which might be included; others might be the new role of the Department of Agriculture, Family Farm policy, the future of mechanization and automation, American agriculture in the world picture and the findings of the National Commission on Food Marketing.

Combined with the Seminar should be the Spring Meeting of our Board of Directors and the presentation of the Elizabeth B. Herring Award. The Board meeting would take essentially a full day, and those present at the Annual Meeting therefor suggested the Seminar might well be held the preceding evening.

For discussion only, here is a proposal for a sample schedule:

5:30-6:30 - Reception for the Awardee and the principal speaker(s)

6:30-8:00 - Dinner, including presentation of the EBH Award and remarks by the Awardee

8:00-10:30 - Seminar: A Labor Policy for Organized Farmers

Herschel Newsome, Master
The National Grange

James G. Patton, President
National Farmers Union

Charles Shuman, President
American Farm Bureau Federation

Oren Lee Staley, President
National Farmers Organization

Questions from the floor

Why NCALL Should Take on this Activity

Four positive values would seem to stem from such a series.

First, the series would be a memorial to our late president, calling attention specifically to this area of his interest.

Second, it would serve as a vehicle for publicizing the particular subject under discussion. While this might be a chronic problem, it might also have immediate legislative implications.

Third, it would bring together people working in this area who normally would not meet over this subject. Secretary Wirtz feels there is no need to revive the President's Committee on Migratory Labor, and there is no progress toward a National Advisory Commission; perhaps this kind of get-together will help promote action.

Fourth, it would encourage attendance at the mid-year meeting of the Board.

We would appreciate your comments as soon as possible. A lot of work needs to be done if we are to hold the first Seminar this year.

Subject Labor legislation in the 89th Congress

From Ben Neufeld, Executive Secretary

Because of lack of time during the Annual Meeting, the Legislative Workshop was confined to a too-brief discussion of foreign workers and minimum wage strategy.

We did not discuss such important items as the relative priority of collective bargaining and minimum wage what constitutes an adequate minimum wage law voluntary recruitment proposals

child labor

In order that our legislation-oriented members may get together to reach a concensus on these points and possibly create a labor legislation committee, there will be a meeting with this agenda on Thursday, 7 January 1965

from 10 to 11 am

in our Conference Room

Subject Mid-year Board Meeting - When?

From Ben Neufeld, Executive Secretary

At the Annual Meeting last week, the Board selected tentative dates for its mid-year and annual meetings for 1965 but asked for a poll of the entire Board before the Administrative Committee makes a definite choice.

May I urge your prompt but serious consideration of this matter because of the importance of the business coming before the Board in the Spring:

Electing a President
Amending the By-laws to reflect the Board's intention of raising the basic subscription fee
Filling At-large vacancies on the Board
Considering the recommendations of the select committee studying the functions of NCALL

You will receive more information about these and other actions of the Board in and with the Minutes within a few days.

Spring date proposals are all 2-day possibilities in May. It is possible that the Administrative Committee will adopt a proposal for a "James P Mitchell Seminar on Agricultural Life and Labor", this event to take place the evening of the first day with the second devoted entirely to NCALL business. A separate memo describing the Seminar proposal is being prepared for the Administrative Committee and will be sent out with the minutes.

Please use the enclosed postal card to reply at your earliest convenience.

Proposed dates:

May 25 - 6 (Several Directors will be in Washington for a meeting of USDA's Rural Area Development Advisory Committee on May 24 - 5)
May 11 - 12
May 4 - 5

You may recognize the enclosed pink document as the statement we adopted in 1951 of our Objectives and Program. It has served us for a long time.

However, taking into account the fact that it is now thirteen years old, the Board has asked that it be reviewed to see what improvements might be made in the light of our experience. At the Annual Meeting, it appointed a committee to conduct this review and make recommendations to itself. This committee consists of Elizabeth Herring, Chairman; Fay Bennett, Howard Dawson, Eleanor Eaton, Howard Maxwell, Arnold Mayer, Ben Neufeld and Father Vizzard.

In order to do justice to this assignment, we need to know where your own experiences indicate shortcomings of our present policy and how these shortcomings might be overcome. It is to help you be specific that we are enclosing the copy of our present statement.

Although it is not under discussion, we are also enclosing our formal "Legislative Policy" to set a frame of reference.

It would be helpful if you could let us have your reactions by February 15th so that we can digest your comments for the full committee and plan to hold a meeting early in March.

NATIONAL COUNCIL ON AGRICULTURAL LIFE AND LABOR

LEGISLATIVE POLICY

(A Statement adopted by the Board of Directors - June 6, 1951)
With Amendment adopted at Annual Meeting, May 8, 1959

The legislative policy of the NCALL is stated both positively and negatively in the Constitution:

(1) "It shall facilitate action by cooperating agencies and members; providing information on and promoting discussion of the issues involved." (In the discussion at the organizational meeting, it was agreed that the word "facilitate" should be broadly construed and the importance of preliminary work on strategy, drafting, etc., was recognized.)

(2) "It will limit its action on pending national, state or local legislation to providing information on such legislation to its membership."

(3) "A legislative committee may be formed upon approval of the Board or Executive Committee when five or more member organizations are interested in similar action on particular legislation.

"Each legislative committee shall choose officers from its members and shall be free to plan direct legislative action provided it does not speak for NCALL as a whole. The strategy decided upon by legislative committees shall be reported to all member organizations of NCALL for their information. Legislative Committees shall be open to all member organizations wishing to be represented. The life of any committee shall not exceed one year without specific re-approval by the Board or Executive Committee." (Amendment adopted May 8, 1959)

The following statement is a clarification of this policy:

(1) The Executive Secretary of the Council is authorized to confer with agencies and individuals and to participate in groups discussing strategy, bill drafting, etc., on any subject in line with the NCALL's statement of Program and Objectives. It should be made clear, both to the groups with which the Executive Secretary works in that capacity and to the member agencies of the NCALL, that the Secretary does not "represent" the Council in these discussions nor does such participation imply the support of its member agencies for the legislation concerned. Participation is for the purpose of helping to shape and inform member agencies about legislation which some of them wish to support, and thereby facilitate their action.

(2) The Council shall not assume that member agencies will, or urge them to, take action on any specific legislation, but shall inform all members about the legislation, stressing the importance of suggested action by those who wish to be active on the specific subject at issue. This can be done in two ways:

(a) Directly by the Executive Secretary in communcations to members.

(b) Indirectly by the Executive Secretary by transmitting to members a communication from an agency member which as a special interest in that legislation. The member agency's letter can be as "urgent" as it wishes.

NATIONAL COUNCIL ON AGRICULTURAL LIFE AND LABOR

Its Objectives and Program

(Statement Adopted by the Board of Directors - June 6, 1951)

The purpose of the National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor as stated in its Constitution is "to serve as a non-profit, non-affiliated council of national and regional agencies, and of individuals, dedicated to working for the amelioration and/or elimination of those conditions in our nation's economy which adversely affect our farm and rural population."

To accomplish this aim, the Council focuses its attention on the welfare of individuals and families - migrants, sharecroppers, tenants and family farmers - who earn their living through agricultural pursuits. Because the problems of farm workers and operators are closely related to the welfare of agriculture and our economy generally, the Council is also concerned with questions of economic and social import affecting rural areas.

The National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor pursues its aim by 1) disseminating information to cooperating organizations and interested individuals; 2) consulting with and supplying appropriate information to agencies and officials in the executive and legislative branches of the government; 3) informing the public of developments in agriculture through the press, radio and other channels; 4) facilitating legislative action by cooperating organizations; 5) sponsoring conferences on problems of agricultural life and labor.

Illustrative of the specific areas of interest and concern of the National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor are the following:

I. General Economic Factors Affecting Agricultural Labor

The development of a national agricultural policy favorable to: 1) stabilization of farm prices with maximum resource utilization and sufficient flexibility to meet changing levels of productivity and consumption; 2) establishment of the efficiently managed, adequately capitalized family-type farm as the predominant form of agricultural production; 3) utilization of farm surpluses to benefit school lunch programs and the unemployed, especially in times of depression; and 4) promotion of satisfactory employment opportunities for the under-employed in rural areas.

Encouragement of constructive efforts to strengthen the agricultural economy by resource development, utilization and conservation in conformity with the public interest and the welfare of family-type farms. Included would be watershed protection, river valley development, conservation programs using methods to promote genuinely social objectives through democratic participation, economically and politically.

Resistance to monopolistic trends in agriculture and encouragement of regulation and land monopolies through stricter tax enforcement, application of acreage limitations and other methods.

Aiding less developed rural areas to utilize their resources through electrification, rural telephone service, improved roads, better schools; industrial development in such areas so as to augment income and provide full or part-time employment for surplus agricultural workers.

II. Social Welfare of Agricultural Workers and Their Families

Inclusion of all agricultural workers under Social Security laws including unemployment, old-age and survivors' insurance and public assistance. Removal by the States of residence requirements for relief benefits.

Inclusion of housing for agricultural workers in public housing programs. Transferral of old Farm Security Administration migrant camps to responsible agencies of government. An effective housing program, including rural non-farm housing, designed to assist migrants to secure adequate home base housing.

Development and maintenance of minimum standards for private labor camps with licensing, regulation and inspection.

State and Federal aid to make available equal educational opportunities to rural children.

Required school attendance for the full school term for children under 16 years, resident or migrant.

Extension of public health services to all rural counties. Removal by States of residence requirements for medical care.

Development of child care, youth recreation and parent education programs in rural areas.

III. Improvement of Working Conditions of Agricultural Labor

Extension of the minimum wage law principle to agricultural workers.

Elimination of the use of scrip and other devices which reduce or restrict the use of wages,

Provision of safety and health standards for agricultural workers similar to those applicable to industrial employees.

Extension of workmen's compensation laws to cover workers in agriculture.

Regulations providing for safety and comfort in transportation of agricultural workers, both interstate and intrastate.

Effective recruitment and placement programs for agricultural labor conducted by cooperative agencies of Federal and State government.

Regulation of private employment agencies, including labor contractors.

Prevention of child labor in industrialized agriculture through extension and enforcement of child labor provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act and of State child labor laws.

Restriction of importation of foreign workers to cases where a labor shortage has been demonstrated beyond the availability of domestic labor. This would not bar bona fide immigrants or displaced persons taking up agricultural pursuits under satisfactory conditions. Strict enforcement of immigration laws to prevent illegal entry of foreign agricultural laborers.

IV. Organization of Agricultural Workers

Legislative protection of the rights of agricultural labor to organize and bargain collectively with at least as adequate safeguards as are given industrial workers.

Efforts aimed at organization of agricultural workers on large commercial farms.

Encouragement of genuinely cooperative enterprises.

V. Civil Liberties

Protection of free speech and civil liberties for agricultural workers and in rural areas generally.

The Honorable W. Willard Wirtz, Secretary of Labor
(The Secretary probably will not be present)

The Elizabeth Herring Award is given annually by the Board of Directors of NCALL in recognition of work with or on behalf of farm workers.

It was named for its first recipient, Miss Elizabeth Herring, on the occasion of her retirement as Executive Secretary of NCALL.

As Secretary of Labor at the time of the expiration of PL 78, which had authorized the bracero program, Willard Wirtz actively opposed the law's extension and personally led the fight to prevent mass importation of temporary foreign workers under other legislation. He has stated and demonstrated his conviction that there is no work in agriculture that cannot be done well by American workers when they are motivated to do it.

James P. Mitchell, at the time of his death last October, was nearing the end of his first term as President of the National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor. This seminar series was instituted by the Council in his honor as a means of bringing to public notice this area of his interest, to which he devoted so much of his attention while serving as Secretary of Labor.

Through this vehicle, we hope to encourage broad discussion of the social, economic and cultural concommitants of agricultural policy.

Dear Mr Anthony,

When our Board of Directors met last month and voted to present our Elizabeth B Herring Award to Benjamin Mays and Leslie Dunbar, it was suggested that I send you a copy of our letter informing them of our intention. That copy is enclosed.

The reason for the suggestion was some question about whether those two gentlemen would agree to accept an award. We felt the choice was a realistic one, in terms of our purpose of recognizing work which has an impact upon rural poverty. We were not sure they would agree from their own points of view.

But, as my letter points out, the presentation offers an opportunity to call the hunger problem once again to the public's attention. The opportunity should be used.

And so we would appreciate your encouraging Dr Mays and Mr Dunbar to give favorable consideration to our award.

Sincerely,

Daniel S Bedell

Dear Mr Dunbar,

Our Board of Directors, meeting in Washington recently, voted to award jointly to you and Benjamin Mays our Elizabeth B Herring Award in recognition of work against rural poverty. I am writing both to inform you of our action and our next steps, and to urge that you accept the award and help us arrange an appropriate presentation.

The nomination was made on the strength of your efforts, as co-chairmen of the Citizens' Board of Inquiry into Hunger and Malnutrition in the United States. It is our belief that this campaign was the most significant work undertaken for the benefit of the rural poor within the last two years. What has already been done was at great cost in energy and commitment; what has already been accomplished is proof of the great deal that still needs to be begun and carried through to obvious conclusions, as you both know from the recent Washington Conference to End Hunger in America as well as from your own experience. And just this week the newspapers have reported that the hunger investigators are themselves being investigated.

Uncompleted work is one of the reasons why we should like to hold an imposing presentation. In the past, the National Council on Agricultural Life and Labor presented this award at a dinner or luncheon meeting at which the awardee gave an address on the work which inspired the award. We would like to continue this tradition, and do it in a way which will give new visibility to the hunger problem and the steps that still remain ahead if we are to eliminate it.

If you are agreeable, we will work with the Citizens Crusade against Poverty, the Conference to End Hunger and other groups here in Washington and elsewhere to ensure that our efforts will produce a useful result in terms of renewed visibility.

You may be interested in knowing that the previous recipients of the award were Miss Herring, on her retirement as Executive Secretary of the National Council; Senator Harrison Williams; Secretary Wirtz, for laying the groundwork for the end of the bracero program, which occurred only this year; and the California Migrant Ministry.

Because we hope to be able to make the presentation this winter or early spring, I hope we will have your favorable response soon.

Sincerely,

LAND REFORM AND DEMOCRACY

By Clarence Senior $6.75

About the Book.--Land Reform and Democracy is a case study of a large-scale agrarian experiment--the distribution of land to about 30,000 peasant families in the Laguna region of Mexico. This gift from the Mexican government was made on October 6, 1936, and represents the greatest single agrarian move in the history of the Mexican Revolution.

The significance of this experiment is international in scope, for about two-thirds of the present world population are involved in an attempt to throw off the yoke of agrarian feudalism and achieve democracy. Most of the problems and the usual aim--democracy--are common to the other areas in South America and Africa which today are in the forefront of such reform movements.

Land Reform and Democracy, then, may be a pilot study for land-reform movements throughout the world for the author has attempted to view agrarianism, democracy, and social change scientifically. As a frame of reference, he applies sociological concepts to three major issues of land reform, with emphasis on the second:

(1) How are those who want the reform going to secure the power to carry it into effect?

(2) How is democracy going to be achieved during and after the land reform?

(3) What kinds of technical problems must be solved?

Employing as experimental criteria the "eight goal values of democracy"--power, wealth, well-being, skill, enlightenment, affection, rectitude, and respect--the main body of the study examines the geographic, economic, and historical factors in the development of Mexico as a whole and the Laguna region in particular. Land Reform and Democracy relates these factors to the process of building democracies following land distribution. The concluding chapter consists of a critical appraisal of the extent to which a democratic society has developed in the Laguna region in terms of the aforesaid criteria.

About the Author.--A native of Clinton, Missouri, Clarence Senior is a specialist in the study of underdeveloped areas. Since 1945 he has specialized in migration and immigration research and administrative action. At the request of the United Nations he undertook, during the latter part of 1949 and 1950, a study of immigration possibilities related to development programs in South America. In 1955, under the aegis of the Jamaican government, he prepared a study of West Indian migration to Great Britain. Presently Chief of the Migration Division, Department of Labor of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and lecturer in demography at Columbia University, Dr. Senior has also served as Director of the Social Science Research Center, University of Puerto Rico, Consultant to the Twentieth Century Fund study of economic development in Costa Rica, and Director of the Inter-American Institute of the University of Kansas City. In addition to the present volume, he has written numerous reports and articles on agrarian reform, industrialization, population and migration problems, and is the author of a standard study of the Puerto Rican migrant entitled Puerto Rican Journey: New York's Newest Migrants.

REMARKS BEFORE THE NATIONAL ADVISORY COMMISSION ON FOOD AND FIBER

Atlanta, Georgia
November 9, 1966

by

Paul Anthony, Executive Director
The Southern Regional Council, Inc.

Mr. Chairman, Members of the Commission:

I am grateful for this opportunity to share several thoughts with this Commission as you engage in these important deliberations. These thoughts shall be limited to several major points which we believe to be basic. In presenting them, please realize that our experience is limited to the Southern region, and while we believe they are applicable to the nation, they never-the-less are developed from regional experience only.

(1) The rural areas of this country continue to be important as a total part of the nation. There is a real danger in the trend of national opinion and national policy which subscribes to the idea that rural areas are becoming insignificant in terms of where people live and earn a living. The assumption of the inevitability of larger and larger cities with a deserted countryside is a dangerous one and correct only if we insist on making it so. We should not.

There is, as a matter of fact, every need to slow the migration of persons from rural to urban areas and to plan, on a longer range basis, to reverse this trend.

(2) The concept that there is no role for the small farm in future agricultural production should be thoroughly re-examined. A number of countries, including several of the most developed nations of Europe, have a stable and profitable rural economy which includes a large number of successful small farms.

In the past months we have seen a significant shift in national policy toward providing, for at least the next decade, food and fiber for millions of people in the underdeveloped nations. Our concept of surplus vs. need has changed drastically. Further, it is anticipated that within the next thirty years there will be an additional hundred million persons in the eastern part of this country to be supplied. In light of the new concept of increased need we must reevaluate the role of the small farmer - engaged in the proper agriculture, using the proper methods in helping to fill this need.

(3) If we are to rebuild the rural areas of the country, we must to a considerably higher degree than at present, approach the problem with regional planning. We cannot isolate the problems of the people of the Mississippi Delta from those of Appalachia, nor from those of the oyster fishermen of South Carolina. Consideration of industrial expansion into rural areas cannot be separated from plans for developing recreational facilities.

(4) In developing rural areas particular attention must be given to the situation of minority groups. These include especially Negroes, Indians, and the Mexican-Americans. An obvious and basic problem in developing rural areas is the paucity of land owned by members of minority groups and the unavailability of low interest, long-term financing to correct this. For instance, in the South, the average farm size for whites is 249 acres; the average for Negroes is 52 acres. The average value for farms owned by whites is $25,370 and that for Negroes is $6,240. There is need for an entirely new and different approach to making long-term, low interest loans available to all persons in the region, but particularly to Negroes for the ownership of land.

Relative to this is the poor use of land presently owned, poor management, poor marketing procedures, and the like. This is due in part to USDA policies for the small farmer generally and Negro farmers specifically. Entirely new and imaginative programs need to be developed.

(For instance, the Franklinton Center in Bricks, N. C., has conducted a successful experiment in which they acquired a large plot of land and settled six farm families on it. These farmers had been tenant farmers. Over a period of several years these families were assisted in developing good agricultural and marketing techniques. A financial arrangement has now been made whereby each of these farmers is purchasing the land which he works, and, while small, the results of the project are that six former tenant farmers have now been settled on land, will in time own it, and have been trained in good farm management.

(5) Perhaps the greatest need in the rural areas is that of adequate housing. This may also be one of the simplest problems to meet. Rural housing units of an adequate nature can be provided at a cost of from three to five thousand dollars per unit.

As with any other area of concern, programs of housing cannot, of course, be approached in a vacuum. It is absurd to provide housing for people without planning at the same time for adequate income. No housing programs should be undertaken without companion programs in overall economic development.

(6) Quite obviously there is a need to get away from agriculture as the sole provider of income in rural areas. Programs must be encouraged that will assure that industry - of the appropriate nature - goes to the rural areas where people are now. Public funds will be needed to encourage such moves. Likely this should include on a short range basis a subsidy for the industry in recognition of the initial difference in productivity between an untrained labor force and that which may be available in the larger cities.

(The idea of industry in the rural areas has certain dangers that must be guarded against. There is no magic formula in industrialization. For instance, making rural areas more livable does not necessarily mean making them urban, industrialized. It makes sense to locate an industry large enough to provide incentives to local people to stay in rural areas and to inject additional capital into the community. But, beyond the population stability motive, further industrialization could be self-defeating.)

(7) Employment opportunities and substantial economic growth can be realized from rural reclamation, the sound development of recreational facilities, and from promotion of arts and crafts. Time does not allow development of these ideas here but it should be noted that a large and affluent population creates a potential here-to-fore unknown in this country.

(8) Finally, our greatest need is to think in terms of developing our human resources. It is in keeping with our national policies to subsidize industry and agriculture and we should be prepared to continue this as we develop programs for rural development. So too, we should develop programs to subsidize people. There are millions of persons living in the rural areas of this country who can be trained and assisted for a decent life where they now live far more easily and far more cheaply than they can be trained, assisted, and subsidized in a foreign urban society where they are neither wanted nor needed.

To encourage ideas of a stable rural society, the small farm, the intact, producing family unit, is not to engage in superficial dreams or to call on sentimental memories of childhood. It is rather to realistically recognize where our people are, where they should be, and how they can most sensibly become a comfortable, producing part of this nation. It is especially to recognize that the stability and wholesomeness of a rural people living productive lives in dignity has been an asset to this society which should not be abandoned casually.

The Southern Regional Council, as a private agency, has a strong interest in this important area. We offer our support and assistance to the Commission.

MR. MAULDIN:

ATLANTA REPORTING COMPANY, INC.

1 Thank you very much for that fine statement, Mr.
2 Anthony.
3 Before we begin, now, begin our questions, if you will 4 indulge me, I would like to introduce to you and the other
5 people present our Commissioner present, seated in the 6 audience is Mr. Ed Fallon, the General Manager of Agway, 7 Incorporated, New York.
8 Mr. Fallon.
9 Mr. Carl C. Farrington, Vice President, Agricultural 10 Development Group, Minneapolis, Minnesota.
11 Mr. Jay Taylor, President, Texas Livestock Marketing
12 Association, from Amarillo, Texas.
13 Mr. Roscoe G. Haynie, President, Wilson & Company
14 from Chicago.
15 Mr. Woodrow W. Diehl from Iowa, a farmer.
16 We also have Mr. L. L. Males, farmer from Oklahoma,
17 Mr. Males.
18 And our lady Commissioner, Mrs. Janice Smith, Dean
19 of the School of Home Economics, University of Illinois.
20 We have a new Commissioner with us today for the first 21 time, Vice President of the University of West Virginia, 22 Mr. Ernest J. Nesius. Dr. Nesius, we are glad to have 23 you with us.
24 Now, we have two other Commissioners, I believe, in 25 the back, Mr. Hughes from Nebraska and Mr. Hister, President of the National Wool Growers Association. Excuse me, I was looking at my list, and rather than the people in the audience.

ATLANTA REPORTING COMPANY, INC.

Dr. Wheeler, do you have a question of Mr. Anthony?

DR. WHEELER:

Mr. Anthony, do you expect -- How do you expect that some of these programs may be put into operation? In other words, where will they get the impetus? Where do you envisage the impetus coming from?

MR. ANTHONY:

I would hope that the Federal Government through USDA the Universities, and also those industries who have a particular interest in the rural areas and in food and fiber would all encourage considerable research into the whole concept of the future of the small farmer in this country on an entirely different basis than in the past, where presumeably we have simply assumed that nothing can be done, that the small farmer is disappearing and is uneconomical. I would also hope that those Federal policies now in operation particularly in USDA could continue to be closely observed, and particularly that within USDA every effort would be made to prevent discrimination, and equal importance that every effort would be made to assist the small farmer in loans and better agricultural techniques.

MR. MAULDIN:

ATLANTA REPORTING COMPANY, INC.

Mr. Berg.

MR. BERG:

Mr. Anthony, in looking at your proposals here and concepts, and there are a number of them, I would like to probe a little bit further with you what some of the concrete proposals might lead to in terms of an envisioned level of income for these people from the type of farm you are describing, what income level are you aiming at? What income level do you hope to achieve of these units and this would be supported then by what type of agriculture, what type of agricultural methods or techniques that might be different from those that we usually think of?

MR. ANTHONY:

Well, first, of course, as quite obviously, we have a number of factors in a rural society. We can think in terms of the small farm units that in themselves provides adequate income as I think we should, we can think also in terms as we now have in a large number of instances the small family unit living in a rural setting, and supplementing its income with an agricultural situation. I would hope this Commission would be particularly concerned with all of the low income groups that ~~is~~ are rural, as identified by our regular standards now of inadequate incomes and poverty, and that certainly in terms of an income level we would seek that level which the nation

ATLANTA REPORTING COMPANY, INC.

1 accepts and a minimum adequate income. I believe at that 2 point that is being debated between three thousand and
3 four thousand dollars, but certainly the same standards
4 are to apply to rural life.
5 MR. MAULDIN:
6 All right, thank you.
7 Dr. Cochrane.
8 DR. COCHRANE:
9 Mr. Anthony, I am not familiar with your organization.
10 It would be helpful to me if I knew who -- what is the 11 constituentcy of your organization?
12 MR. ANTHONY:
13 The Southern Regional Council was formed in 1944 as 14 an outgrowth of the Commission on InterRacial Cooperation
15 formed in 1918 here in Atlanta. It is concerned with the 16 southern region, Virgina through Texas. It has a member-
17 ship, that is, the council as a legal entity, of 100
18 persons from throughout the South, Negro and white,
19 interfaith and representing various professions. A 20 member of this Commission, Mr. John Wheeler, is President
21 of the Council.
22 MR. COCHRANE:
23 Thank you.
24 MR. ANTHONY:
25 We are particularly concerned with regional development

ATLANTA REPORTING COMPANY, INC.

1 and with race relations.

2 MR. MAULDIN:

3 Mr. Fernbach.

4 MR. FERNBACH:

5 Well, I have to be more friendly than I expected to 6 be if John Wheeler is your Chairman.

7 (Laughter).

8 MR. FERNBACH:

9 I am a little disappointed with this testimony because

10 I don't think you get us down to brass tacks, and if there

11 is anything this Commission has had, it has had a little 12 too much over-generalization.

13 Now, on page three you seem to get closer to your 14 water but you don't quite get into it. You say the second

15 paragraph, "Relative to this is the poor use of land

16 presently owned, poor management, poor marketing procedures,

17 and the like. This is due in part to USDA policies for 18 the small farmer generally and Negro farmers specifically."

19 Now, what in effect you seem to me to be saying is 20 that either policy or farm legislation or both as it has

21 recently existed and programs still exists is prejudicial

22 to the welfare of the smaller farmers and to minority

23 group farmers specifically.

24 Where does one go as an ignorant city boy to find

25 out what you are talking about?

ATLANTA REPORTING COMPANY, INC.

1 MR. ANTHONY:

2 Well, let me say first, Mr. Fernbach, we are in 3 complete agreement in being unhappy over the general nature
4 of this testimony. It was simply felt that with the time
5 limitation we could not be more specific or take more of 6 your time.

7 I think first of all we have to recognize and again
8 I am speaking primarily from the Southern Region, that the 9 small farmer has been under several handicaps, one has 10 been the tradition of poor management, and poor crops.
11 For instance, Alabama corn production does not begin at 12 this point to compete with Mid-Western corn production,
13 though there is no reason why it should not, with proper 14 methods and techniques. I think generally all of our 15 national policies of accepted inevitability, there is no
16 place for the small farmer, and I think primarily we have 17 looked at that only in the narrow limits of past production
18 and trends, and I was recommending this Commission re-
19 evaluate that, the USDA policy has very clearly in the past
20 discriminated against the small farmer and against minority
21 groups, and I think a great deal could be done purely 22 within the internal structure of USDA under the laws and 23 regulations which now exist, and I believe USDA is making
24 some effort towards that itself.

1 Well, would it be within the realm of possibility,
2 since we have some time yet to weight our ultimate judg-
3 ment, to provide this Commission with some kind of a docu-
4 mentation with respect to the specific policies?
5 MR. ANTHONY:
6 We would be very pleased to.
7 MR. FERNBACH:
8 For example, under our commodities law s involving 9 crop curtailment, what happens to the smaller farmer,
10 particularly if he is a tenant, or a sharecropper, what 11 has been the extent of displacement, state by state, with 12 respect to particulars of these commodites? What happens
13 when the Federal Government, the Congress enacts a law
14 and the Department of Agriculture administrates it and 15 let's assume reducing acreage by X percent of the total,
16 how many Negro independent farm operators a re there in the 17 United States now, how many were there 20 years ago, what 18 is the trend, what are the specific actions of those that 19 administer the policy of the Department of Agriculture
20 that you are alluding to?
21 Now, we have got to have the facts in order to 22 adress ourselves to policy and we count on this hearing at 23 this place and this time to produce them.
24 MR. ANTHONY:
25 We would be very pleased to submit such a document to you.

MR. FERNBACH:

It doesn't matter how lengthy it is, I will read every word of it.

MR. MAULDIN:

MR. SOTH:

Mr. Anthony --

MR. ANTHONY:

Yes, sir.

MR. SOTH:

Your point eight was our greatest need is to think in terms of developing our human resources.

Has your organization made any apprais al or study of vocational education throughout your reg ion, both agricultural and non-agricultural vocationa l education, and could you make any general comments on that situation?

MR. ANTHONY:

We have not made a thorough study that would allow me to make such comments except there are s everal things that we have done which imply, one, it is extremely difficult in the urban setting to take the rur al person who is poorly educated, at best, illequipped for city life, it is extremely difficult and very costly to train that individual to become an independent wage ea rner, head of

ATLANTA REPORTING COMPANY, INC.

1 a household, it is considerably, it seems from such
2 instances, such as the one I cited at Bricks, North
3 Carolina, it seems that there is considerably more hope
4 that persons now living in rural areas with agricultural 5 experience can be retrained for agricultural pursuits, at 6 considerably shorter periods and considerably cheaper.
7 MR. SOTH:
8 I was thinking more of an appraisal of the institutional
9 educatin system that you now have, vocational, agricultural,
10 public school, trade schools, and that sort of thing.
11 I know a good deal about North Carolina, but I am
12 ignorant about much of the rest of the South.
13 MR. ANTHONY:
14 The only studies we have done of that nature would 15 be in the overall amount and quality and expenditures de-16 voted to public education. We have not done so with 17 specific interest in vocational education.
18 MR. MAULDIN:
19 Mr. Anthony, we thank you very much for visiting
20 with us this morning, and we will appreicate your supple-
21 mental statement if you have time to submit it.
22 MR. TAYLOR:
23 May I ask Mr. Anthony a question?
24 MR. MAULDIN:
25 Mr. Taylor.

ATLANTA REPORTING COMPANY, INC.

1 Inasmuch as he seems quite willing to write some 2 more papers for us, the thing that confuses us in the 3 West where I come from is the large amount of government
4 land, forest service, Bureau of Land Management, every 5 agency has millions of acres of land and we have started
6 in out there about three years ago on land exchange pro-
7 grams, and the Department of Agriculture has been very 8 aggresive and very intellegent about disposing and 9 exchanging some of their lands that were not fit for 10 forest, grazing and trees, over into private hands.
11 Now, in this I don't know how much land you have,
12 government land you have in the South, but it seems to me
13 that if we do need some more land, I wish you would think 14 about making a surveyof it and see if the same thing could 15 be done here in the South that we are doing so well in 16 the West.
17 MR. ANTHONY:
18 I shall. Thank you.
19 MR. MAULDIN:
20 Beforewe introduce our next witness, I would like to 21 present two additional Commissioners who have arrived,
22 Mr. Leon Schachter.
23 Leon, would you stand, please.
24 Thank you, and Mr. Bill Hewitt.

Dear Executive Officer:

The Directors of the National Conference on Citizenship are pleased to invite your organization to participate in its Eighteenth Annual Meeting to be held at the Statler Hilton, Washington, D. C., September 15-18, 1963.

The National Conference on Citizenship operates under a charter granted by unanimous vote of the Congress of the United States. This year's meeting will again bring together delegates from several hundred organizations representing all levels of government; religious faiths; professional, veteran, farm, civic, and youth organizations; labor, business, industry, and finance; and other groups. The enclosed brochure will give you information about the objectives, history and management of the Conference.

AMERICAN CITIZENSHIP-SHOWCASE FOR FREEDOM is the challenging theme of this year's meeting. We are observed by freedom loving peoples around the globe. Our country is not perfect. Sometimes we fall short of the ideal. But we stand for democracy and should, by inspiring example, show what responsible citizens can accomplish in a free country. With outstanding speakers and leaders, the theme will be emphasized throughout the Conference--in the keynote address at the opening session, in the luncheon discussions, in the group discussions and at the dinner.

The enclosed form is for your use in designating representatives. If your organization has youth members, or a youth program, you may designate both youth and adults. Immediately upon receipt of the names and addresses of your representatives, the Executive Director will send them information and forms for registration.

We are looking forward to the participation of your organization in what promises to be another inspirational and effective Conference.

Sincerely,

Tom Clark

Tom C. Clark
President

ORIGIN

The National Conference on Citizenship was founded in 1946, when a small group of men, women and youth met in Philadelphia to consider how the spirit of cooperation that had bound together all citizens of the United States during World War II could be conserved for the future. They sought a means to maintain this spirit so that, in peacetime as in wartime, all citizens might dedicate themselves to upholding continuously our concept of government and the democratic way of life.

★ GROWTH

The Conference is unique in that it brings together the most comprehensive cross-section of organizations and agencies to be found in any single National meeting. Since 1946, more than 1,200 organizations and agencies have participated. Through their memberships and activities these touch nearly every wholesome aspect of our life and reach most of the population of our Nation.

Included are all levels of government—national, state and local; schools, colleges and universities; major religious faiths; professional associations; veterans' and related organizations; labor, business, industry and finance; farm and civic groups; and youth organizations.

The Honorary Chairmen of the Conference have been the late Harlan F. Stone and the late Charles Evans Hughes, former Chief Justices of the United States; the late Alben W. Barkley, former Vice President of the United States; and Earl Warren, Chief Justice of the United States, who is the present Honorary Chairman.

★ CONGRESSIONAL CHARTER

The National Conference on Citizenship now has the distinction of operating under a Federal Charter. From 1946 to 1954, the United States Department of Justice and the National Education Association sponsored the Conference. The two agencies lent their support until the Conference could function as an independent entity.

A Bill to incorporate the Conference passed both Houses of the Congress by unanimous consent and was signed by the President on August 13, 1953. Under the provisions of the Charter, the officers and Board of Directors are elected by the delegates at the annual meeting of the Conference.

The strength of the National Conference on Citizenship comes from the combined strength of all the agencies represented in its make-up. Group participation is its cornerstone. It is a broad cross section of American thought, action, and life—as broad as the land itself. The Conference is patriotic citizens, coming together in a spirit of unity and striving to bring the ideals of democracy to full fruition.

Like the little band of men in 1787, who laid the foundation for our great Nation, the Conference is working to help build a Nation "where the least shall be heard and considered, side by side, with the greatest." A creation of the spirit, nurtured by good citizens, it belongs to no one organization, no one individual. An agency of good will and understanding, needed now more than ever before, the National Conference on Citizenship is dedicated to helping build freedom, security, peace, and happiness for peoples here and everywhere.

DRAFT DRAFT

DRAFT STATEMENT OF PRINCIPLES, RESOLUTIONS, RECOMMENDATIONS & GOALS

TO BE CONSIDERED AT THE MEETING

TO END HUNGER IN AMERICA - 10/16/68

MAYFLOWER HOTEL - WASHINGTON, D. C.

I. PRINCIPLES

This nation is confronted by the fact that, in spite of its prosperity and its abundance of nutritious food, a substantial number of its people suffer from hunger and malnutrition because they are without adequate nutritious food. It has also been demonstrated, by surveys conducted by Government agencies and responsible private groups, that Federal food programs fail to reach many citizens who lack sufficient food, medical assistance and other related necessities essential to life and health. This may result in the lifetime mental and physical impairment of children and in unnecessary disease, suffering and premature deaths among both children and adults.

Confronted by these facts, we, as representatives of business, labor, religious, civil rights and other private organizations, and as concerned individuals, have joined in this meeting, to create a sense of national urgency and a national commitment to end hunger and malnutrition in America.

In support of these objectives, we are united in the following convictions:

--Every American family has the right to an adequate diet and must have the means to obtain an adequate diet. To this end, both the public and private sectors must accept responsibility to assure that this Nation's resources are devoted to the task of assuring that no American, whatever his social or economic circumstances, is without nutritious food.

--That task requires that the Federal government enlist the cooperation of government at all levels and of appropriate private industry and other groups to undertake bold and immediate action and to develop long term policies and programs which will end hunger and malnutrition in America.

--Such policies and programs must be designed and carried out in a manner which fosters human dignity and promotes economic self-sufficiency rather dependency.

II. RECOMMENDATIONS FOR IMMEDIATE ADMINISTRATIVE ACTION

Accordingly, we call upon the Federal government, and particularly the United States Department of Agriculture and other Federal Agencies which are responsible for the administration of existing Federal food assistance programs, immediately to use to the fullest possible extent their authorities under existing laws to:

--make available all funds which are received by USDA each year under Section 32 of the Agricultural Act of August 24,1935 and which would otherwise be unspent and returned to the United States Treasury, forthe expansion of the Commodity Distribution Program so that persons not now served by food assistance programs will receive Federally donated food and so that present commodity program participants receive a nutritionally adequate diet;

--in accordance with Section 4(b) of the Food Stamp Act, declare the existence of an emergency situation in those areas where a food stamp program is in effect and distribute Federally owned and acquired foods to persons in such areas who are not fully benefiting from the food stamp program;

--provide free food stamps to persons without income or available cash; revise, completely, the schedule of food stamp charges to reflect accurately eligible families' normal pattern of expenditures for food; raise the food stamp bonus to provide the purchasing power necessary to acquire minimally adequate diets; simplify the eligibility procedures for participation in the food stamp program; and provide convenient and ready access to both stamps and food purchased with stamps.

--improve the School Lunch Program by setting price ceilings on school lunches so that more school children will be able to receive food at school; by establishing regulations guaranteeing free and reduced price lunches to children from poor families; and by bringing school lunches to city and rural schools which do not now participate;

--provide the funds and other resources necessary to complete the nationwide study of the incidence and location of serious hunger and malnutrion and related health problems under the Partnership for Health Act of 1967;

--assure that nutrition education is provided both in and out of school to children and adults who lack the knowledge or need the skills necessary to acquire and prepare a balanced, nutritious diet for themselves and their families through the employment and educating of food stamp recipients and of sub-professionals from among the poor as well as by other means;

--develop and immediately undertake, with the cooperation of both private groups and persons including sub-professionals, drawn from among the ranks of the poor, a program to monitor and evaluate the Federal, State and local administration of food programs and analyze the effectiveness of existing machinery for the delivery of food and related services to persons in need.

III. DEVELOPMENT OF LONGER RANGE APPROACHES

Beyond these requirements for immediate administrative action, we believe the documented existence of substantial hunger and malnutrition as well as the demonstrated failure of existing Federal food assistance efforts make it essential that further study and the development of long range solutions be undertaken with respect to the following matters as part of a national commitment to end hunger in the United States:

--the reorientation of the school lunch, school breakfast school milk, commodity distribution, food stamp and other Federal food assistance programs away from their dependence on agriculture policy, so that all such programs are carried out from the standpoint of human needs rather than from the standpoint of the economic needs of one segment of the American economy;

--the establishment of a universal free school lunch program;

--the reorganization of Federal, executive and legislative responsibilities and the need for concentrating responsibility for food assistance efforts in those units in the Executive Branch and in those committees of the Congress which are responsive to the needs of those who suffer from hunger and malnutrition rather than to political, bureaucratic, economic and racial factors;

--the cooperation between and relationships among Federal, state and local government agencies in the administration of food assistance and related programs;

--the establishment of nationwide uniform eligibility criteria for all persons in need of food assistance and of Federal minimum standards of food program administrative performance at the state and local levels;

--the means by which the cooperation and resources of the private food industry can be enlisted in efforts to bring nutritious food to the malnourished poor; and

--the means by which members of social agencies can be educated to recognize presumption of malnutrition and physicians to diagnose it, and the improvement of the methods by which the social armamentorium to combat malnutrition can be put at the disposal of social agencies and physicians.

IV. IMPLEMENTAION

We believe that the implementation of our recommendations for immediate action and for the development of long range policies and programs must be undertaken both within and outside the Executive and Legislative branches of the Federal government. We, therefore, urge that the next administration develop such solutions in the fulfillment of the commitments contained in the respective Party platforms. We also commend the recent establishment of a Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs by the United States Senate and urge that a similar body be established in the House of Representatives. The fulfillment of the Senate Committee's mandate can go a long way toward implementing the objective of ending hunger in the United States.

We also believe that the implementation of our recommendations for immediate action and the development of long range plans and recommended changes in existing efforts requires the cooperative efforts of private groups and individuals such as those represented at this strategy meeting.

Dear Mr. Anthony:

Our registration records indicate that your schedule did not permit your attendance at the October 16th meeting, TO END HUNGER IN AMERICA. However, we should like to inform you of the work done there.

A drafting committee was appointed to revise a Statement of Goals, Principles and Resolutions, incorporating the recommendations of the delegates. A Draft Statement of Goals, Principles and Resolutions was the working document around which the meeting's General Session focused.

We have enclosed for your review the position statements of Vice President Humphrey and Richard Nixon which their representatives presented to the delegates. Also included are the news releases which appeared Thursday, October 17th in the New York Times, The Washington Post and the Washington Evening Star.

At the strategy meeting of October 16th, Carl Holman was appointed from among the conveners to coordinate the next steps necessary to implement the recommendations made during the General Session. Since, in any strategy meeting, the desired effects are only achieved through post-meeting efforts, we hope you will continue to work with us on this most important issue of Hunger and Malnutrition in the United States.

Towards that end we shall be in further communication with you.

Sincerely,

Goodell Delivers Nixon's Pledge on Food for Poor

By RICHARD L. MADDEN
Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 — Senator Charles E. Goodell, who has displeased some New York Republicans by his criticism of the Nixon-Agnew ticket, delivered a Nixon policy statement today pledging "total reform" of the nation's food programs for the poor.

The New York Senator, speaking for Richard M. Nixon, the Republican Presidential candidate, told a Conference to End Hunger in America:

"There may be no area where the gap between promise and performance is so glaringly evident as in this Administration's conduct of the programs of food for the poor."

A position paper from Vice President Humphrey, the Democratic Presidential candidate, which was read at the same conference by William Welsh, Mr. Humphrey's administrative assistant, said:

"I pledge that no child will be hungry at home or at school because his parents are poor."

Mr. Humphrey's statement said that he would ask Congress to "bring the food stamp program to every county in America," expand the program with liberal national eligibility standards, provide free food stamps for those in greatest need and "operate a program directly where the local government will not act."

Among the organizers of the conference at the Mayflower Hotel were the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference; John W. Gardner, head of the Urban Coalition, and Dr. Jean Mayer, professor of nutrition at Harvard University.

Senator Goodell, who has publicly differed with Mr. Nixon on such issues as Vietnam and civil rights, suggested during a recent joint campaign appearance in New York that the former Vice President make a policy statement on hunger. Mr. Nixon agreed and later asked Mr. Goodell to deliver it for him.

When it appeared that conflicts in Mr. Goodell's speaking schedule might prevent him from appearing at the conference today, Nixon aides arranged for a private plane to fly the Senator to Washington and back to New York.

The Nixon statement said that only 6 million of the nation's estimated 27 million poor received family food help from existing Government programs.

With administration of the programs by the Departments of Agriculture and Health, Education and Welfare, the statement said, "the nation's food programs leave final decision-making to welfare investigators who have produced a pat-making to welfare investigators who have produced a pattern of disinterest, hostility and red tape for families faced with daily crises. Total reform of these programs is vitally necessary."

Among other things, the Nixon statement said that a new national administration could develop a plan under which families with food needs would be registered in a "national food-stamp data bank." Such a certification process would enable the participant to receive food stamps by mail, based on the family needs and income. Under thee xisting food stamp program, needy families buy stamps at reduced rates and exchange the stamps for food at local stores.

Mr. Humphrey's statement said that programs to provide free or reduced-price meals to school were reaching 2.5 million children. "We need to reach an estimated 7 million," the statement added.

Hunger Fight Mapped by U.S.

By Spencer Rich
Washington Post Staff Writer

Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman told a conference on hunger yesterday that his Department is seeking a $400-million boost to $1.6 billion next year in Federal outlays to feed the poor.

Freeman, speaking against a background of complaints from conference participants that Federal programs for the poor don't give enough people enough good food, said "the next presidential budget will see a more than $400-million" increase for aid to the hungry in the United States.

The increase will allow food stamps and direct food distribution to go up from $550 million to $875 million, with beneficiaries increasing from 7 million to 9 million persons. Child nutrition programs—school lunches, breakfasts and milk, chiefly—will rise from $600 million to $700 million with 20 million beneficiaries.

Earlier, spokesmen for Vice President Humphrey and Republican presidential candidate Richard M. Nixon read program statements pledging both men to end hunger in this country.

The Nixon statement, read by Sen. Charles E. Goodell (R-N.J.), said "Every American, regardless of economic status, must have an adequate diet for himself and his children."

The commitments by Humphrey and Nixon were in keeping with the theme of the conference, which was organized by the Citizens' Crusade Against Poverty, to plot a war against hunger. Speaker after speaker, and they included such figures as the Rev. Ralph Abernathy and spokesmen for Walter Reuther and John Gardner, who heads the Urban Coalition, attacked existing food programs for not going to all the needy and said that America has the means to end hunger.

Freeman said that to do an adequate job of reaching 10 million hungry people and children would cost $2.1 billion to $3 billion a year for food stamps and another $1 billion for child feeding.

The conference, attended by spokesmen for 200 welfare, labor and public organizations, appointed a special committee to draft an action program. A permanent organization to work on the hunger issue probably will be set up later.

Mr. Abernathy, speaking last, summed up the goal as follows: "We have got to apply pressure on Congress . . . and to make it clear to this country that while man does not live by bread alone, he does need bread."

Humphrey, Nixon Back Food Stamps

By JUDITH RANDAL
Star Staff Writer

The two major presidential candidates, Hubert H. Humphrey and Richard M. Nixon, say they would beef up the federal food stamp program as one way to help end hunger and malnutrition in America.

A Humphrey-Muskie administration would seek a five-point program stressing a more liberal policy on food stamps, plus other federal aid.

The program would include an obligatory food stamp program for every county, free food stamps for those who cannot afford to buy them and an expansion of present federal food programs through the establishment of liberal national eligibility standards instead of the present variable standards that now prevail.

A Nixon-Agnew administration would pursue the same objectives by setting up a food stamp data bank similar to those now being operated for Social Security and Madicare and by accelerating the development and distribution of nutritionally fortified foods.

The two major candidates made their positions clear yesterday at an "End Hunger in America" conference held at the Mayflower Hotel. The Democrats were represented by Humphrey's administrative assistant, William Welsh, and the Republicans by Sen. Charles E. Goodell of New York.

Welsh proposed:

- Continuing study of the location, nature and proportions of hunger and malnutrition throughout the United States.
- Strengthening the school lunch and breakfast programs to assure those children who need them free or reduced-price meals.
- Expanding the number of families covered by the food stamp program and direct federal government operation of it were local government is unprepared to do so.
- Providing special programs for those particularly vulnerable to malnutrition—the elderly, infants, and pregnant women.
- Educational programs to encourage better selection of foods among all population groups.

In his statement Nixon placed much of the blame for the nutritional problems of the poor at the doorstep of the Department of Agriculture which, he said, is not showing enough interest in helping the hungry.

His statement was particularly critical of the food stamp program.

There are, he said, more than 700 counties which have no food stamp programs. Furthermore, the program requires families to pay for the stamps in advance each month and thus "was not designed for those with irregular income, nor for those who travel in search of employment, he said.

To remedy this situation Nixon's proposals recommended:

Interim direct food distribution programs in every county where they do not now exist.

- Application procedures for food aid which would trigger referrals to local employment services, job training programs and public and private medical facilities.
- More attention to the medical aspects of malnutrition which in turn would assure immediate access to needed basic foods and free entrance into the school lunch program.
- A data bank system for the food stamp program which would enable participants according to their family needs to receive food stamps by mail according to national eligibility standards instead of having to wrestle with local authorities for the privilege.

ACTION REPORT

SCENARIO: Brief Overview

2,000 years ago, Emperor Nero kept the Roman plebs content with a surfeit of bread and circuses. Two weeks ago, President Richard Nixon tried to appease the 25 to 30 million poor, hence hungry or malnourished Americans, with the same diet. There was one difference -- he omitted the bread. The political consequences of that omission are still unfolding.

The President staged a carnival in Washington, D. C. from December 2nd through 4th under the label of the White House Conference on Food, Nutrition, and Health. He invited 100 poor people and 300 "representatives of the poor" to join with 2,800 food industry executives, dieticians, doctors, and academics on 26 panels in charting a national nutrition policy. But he delivered only a repeat of earlier, unimplemented pledges to end hunger in America, some retreaded food program changes advertised as new, and jokes about living to be 92 on catsup and cottage cheese. He did not provide any of the "Bread Now!" the majority of the delegates agreed the poor must have. The President didn't even offer to foot the entire bill for his own party, but took advantage of the pending tax reform legislation to dun private foundations for half the cost.

The President's failure to replace promises with food means that, essentially, the Conference was a waste of $900,000 that could have been put to better use buying school lunch for one full month for 196,000 needy children or a month's supply of bonus food stamps for 135,000 individuals. But, the President's Conference may have unwittingly triggered an avalanche of public pressure that will force him to act more swiftly and meaningfully than he had planned to put food in the hands or food purchasing power in the pockets of the poor. The seed of that $900,000 may yet bear fruit 4,000-fold.

The President had no such outcome in mind when, in May he announced that the Conference would involve only "executives from the nation's leading food processing and food distribution companies and trade unions." By the time the Conference was called to order the spectrum of invitees had expanded well beyond the business sector. Indeed, the leading food industrialist, Donald Kendall of Pepsico, Inc., chairman of the panel on food safety and a close friend and financial supporter of the President, quit abruptly on the eve of the Conference. He departed in protest over an article in Life in which the President's special consultant in charge of the Conference, Dr. Jean Mayer, had harshly attacked snack manufacturers as well as over the surprising muscle in the recommendations of his own panel.

The final Conference invitation list was the product of political winnowing. The White House imposed strict and ludicrous clearance procedures. The father of one of the persons in charge of clearance took three weeks to be approved, and Mayor Joseph Alioto of San Francisco was deemed questionable at one point. Potential troublemakers were eliminated: Senator George McGovern, Chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs, who had dramatized the urgency of providing food for the needy, had his invitation to make a major speech recalled; the Black Panthers, who operate the largest private breakfast program in the nation, were entirely excluded; 12 former felons, who were discovered in the "community action" category, were disinvited. Dr. Mayer struggled constantly with members of his own staff to stress the participation of middle-class professionals in the field of nutrition at the expense of the poor.

In the end, although thin in number, it was the poor and their allies who dominated the Conference. Unlike the others, they were organized through ad hoc racial and regional caucuses and a handful of Conference-appointed social action task forces. They used the various panel sessions and an evening people's plenary conducted by the National Welfare Rights Organization to convince most of the conferees to treat hunger and malnutrition as priority concerns.

Their success in capturing the conscience of the 3,200 conferees was unexpected and striking, although the depth of the commitment they extracted remains unclear. They were able to persuade the Conference to go on record in support of their action program, including immediate declaration by the President of the existence of hunger as a major disaster that would enable him to go beyond existing programs to feed hungry Americans during the winter and ultimate provision of a guaranteed adequate income to all at a floor of $5,500 per year for a family of four. They also called upon the President to support the Senate-passed food stamp bill and a package of school lunch reforms.

Their triumph was, however, as short-lived as it was unprecedented at an official White House function. When the Conference was over, Dr. Mayer selected a sextet of harmless liberal ladies and less liberal priests, together with a Mexican-American leader weakened by a 48-hour fast, to visit the President. He excluded from participation any representative of the student groups whom he had lavishly praised the week before, because they might demand too much. They went; they saw; they were conquered. At Dr. Mayer's instance, they purposefully declined to present to the President the very action program that was the only measure the entire Conference had approved. They apologized for the behavior of the poor. One lady wept and pledged the President the support of her volunteer efforts. They expressed the hope that the President might consider acting on an emergency basis.

The meeting was a total loss. As the President's Counsellor, Daniel Moynihan, later reported, the President met with them as he meets with all groups, said thanks, and promised nothing. On December 8 in a press conference, the President expressly opposed his own Conference's proposals on the expansion of the food stamp and school lunch programs and went out of his way inaccurately to attack the Conference's reference to guaranteed adequate income.

The Conference may nonetheless prove to have an uncontrollable life of its own that could compel the President to change his posture. The issuance of a Presidential declaration that some parts of the nation face a hunger disaster remains sensitive. Republican supervisors in Stanislaus County, California acted on December 9 to declare their county a disaster area because of extreme hunger and poverty. The problem of what to do with that declaration now confronts Governor Reagon and may reach the President.

12 Republican Senators, impelled by the Conference's conclusions, prompted high White House officials on December 10 to be more responsive and liberal in the area of food policy. The food businessmen who were persuaded that hunger is serious and urgent and that their industry could use some favorable public relations may become a potent lobby in behalf of Federal food assistance and welfare programs. The several thousand professionals who attended the Conference may seek to push their home counties and cities to do more and their Congressmen and Senators to take action.

As Senator Walter Mondale told the conferees in the closing address, unrelenting public pressure is the key to ending malnutrition. There is clear and convincing evidence that where hunger is concerned the Administration's policy is reacting to pressure. In May Nixon announced his hunger package only when the rejected March proposals of his Urban Affairs Council were made public and Senator McGovern called Secretaries Hardin and Finch to testify. The public outcry in August against the Nixon proposal to terminate food stamps for families in return for a less valuable welfare grant caused its retraction in September. If the pressure mounts sufficiently, the President may be compelled to give in January, February, or March what his White House Conference demanded in December.

Note: A future issue of the Washington Monthly will contain a detailed account by Nicholas Kotz of the political maneuvering within and without the White House that resulted in the emasculation of the Conference by Dr. Moynihan and certain food industrialists as well as of the seesaw behavior of Dr. Mayer, who, alternately believing in the Administration and realizing that he had no enduring support from it, ultimately ran the Conference in a smooth fashion that perhaps no other hunger fighter could have achieved.

PROLOGUE: The Invocation at the People's Plenary Session

At the opening of the December 3rd People's Plenary Session on the grounds of the White House Conference the Reverend Joseph M. Clark, vicar of St. Christopher's Episcopal Church, Linthicum, Maryland, delivered the following invocation:

> Almighty God, we who have been attending a conference at which we receive $18.30 a day for food, while our Government gives poor and needy children 15 cents for breakfast and 23 cents for lunch. We give thee no thanks.
> We who place our priorities on the War, ABM's, S.S.T.'s and moon trips, while the poor of our nation go hungry, we give thee no thanks.
> We who can live among the nation's 175,000,000 healthy Americans, while turning our backs on the 25,000,000 hungry, we give thee no thanks.
> Oh Lord, we have failed Thee, we have failed our country, we have failed our communities and have failed ourselves. We ask thy forgiveness.
> Oh Lord, give us the strength to fulfill our commitment to feed the hungry of our nation now.
> All of this we ask in thy Son's Name, Amen.

ACT I: Challenge

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

December 1, 1969

Mr. President:

Last May 6th you informed the nation that "the moment [is] at hand to put an end to hunger in America itself for all time...It is a moment to act with vigor."

Since that day, we have awaited with eagerness your actions to implement that promise. You did request in early June that the Congress consider your revised food stamp plan. That plan would serve all families of four or the equivalent whose incomes did not exceed $4,000 a year and would furnish up to $1,200 annually in stamps to such families against a maximum down payment of 30% of their income and a minimum of nothing, if their monthly income was less than $30. That was a commendable step forward.

You did act to revise your April decision to hold the Federal budget for a food assistance to the poor at the level requested by President Johnson by adding $270 million for food stamps. This enabled that budget to double from 1969 to 1970. That paid a small part of your pledge.

You also appointed Dr. Jean Mayer of Harvard University early in June as your Special Consultant on Nutrition and charged him with organizing this week's White House Conference on Food, Nutrition, and Health. While that smacked more of delay than action, it evinced some progress.

Since then, we have waited for you to fulfill your commitment. And we have waited and waited and waited. We have complied with your request to watch what you do rather than what you say. Here are the results:

We waited at the end of June while your Administration returned to the Treasury $36 million that had been appropriated by Congress for the specific purpose of supplying bonus food stamps to the poor. That constituted a wastage of nearly 15% of all food stamp monies obtained from Congress after a tough floor fight. You did this after informing nearly 150 counties who wanted to start the program that no money was available. That was no way to eliminate hunger.

You waited at the end of June while your Administration returned to the Treasury $111 million that had been appropriated by Congress from Section 32 customs receipts for the purpose of donating agricultural produce to persons in low-income groups. That $111 million went unspent even though, at that time, over 400 counties and nearly 1,000 townships had no Federal food aid programs of any variety. That was no way to eliminate hunger.

We waited in August while your Administration announced its decision to eliminate the food stamp program rather than hunger and malnutrition as part of its welfare reform package. And we waited until September while public disclosure and criticism of your move to delete food stamps for families compelled you to revive them once again. That was no way to eliminate hunger.

We waited in September while your Administration sought unsuccessfully to lobby in the Senate against the McGovern-Javits substitute food stamp bill, which met food needs more effectively than yours by setting eligibility at a $4,000 minimum, supplying $1,530 worth of stamps against no more than 25% of income, and delivering stamps free to families of four with monthly incomes less than $65. That was no way to eliminate hunger.

We waited in October and November while your Administration circulated a memorandum in the Cabinet condemning the Senate-enacted food stamp reform bill as unacceptable to you and excessive,1/got only three House Agriculture Committee Republicans to line up behind your food stamp measure, 2/and threatened to veto any food stamp legislation that went beyond your budgeted figures.3/ That was no way to eliminate hunger.

1/ On October 23rd, Philip C. Olsson, Assistant to the Assistant Secretary for Marketing and Consumer Services, circulated a memorandum among members of a Subcabinet Working Committee severely criticizing the Senate food stamp bill, S.2547, as "inflexible" because of its provision of large allotments of stamps, its extension of products covered to include non-food hygiene items and meals by the elderly, its expansion of eligibility beyond the poverty level, and its requirement of certification by affidavit.

2/ Only three Republicans on the Committee supported the Nixon food stamp bill, H.R.12222: Catherine May of Washington, Martin McKneally of New York, and John Zwach of Minnesota

3/ At a press conference on October 16th, Dr. Arthur Burns, Counsellor to the President, referred to a list of vetoable items that Budget Director Robert Mayo and the President had drawn up. Included among them was the Senate food stamp legislation.

We waited in September while your Administration refused to support a 352 to 5 vote in the House in favor of appropriating an additional $100 million to supply free and reduced price meals to needy children. You recommended to the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry that it not accept the House bill. 4/ You declared your opposition to Senator Herman Talmadge's school lunch bill, the most far-reaching and liberal reform measure relating to child nutrition ever introduced.5/ That was no way to eliminate hunger.

We waited in October while your Administration persuaded the House Agriculture Committee to seek an authorization level of only $610 million for the food stamp program in fiscal year 1970 as opposed to the $750 million authorized and appropriated by the Senate, because your Secretary of Agriculture claimed he could not efficiently spend any more.6/ Even now your Bureau of the Budget plans to hold spending back to no more than $450 million. That is no way to eliminate hunger.

We waited in October while your Administration supported Senator Javit's efforts in the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee and Senator Dominick's efforts on the Senate floor to combat any move to increase the $25 million authorization for the Emergency Food and Medical Services program conducted by the Office of Economic Opportunity. You beat it down from $300 to $100 million in the first instance and finally cut it to $25 million in the latter, 7/because you contended you could not fruitfully spend any more this year. That is no way to eliminate hunger.

We waited in October while your Administration informed Congress that a 10% increase in social security benefits was all that it would request and further that it would seek to delay the start of new benefit levels by three months, until primary time. That is no way to eliminate hunger.

We waited in November while your Administration sought to divert $400,000 of OEO money from its express statutory purpose of providing food on an emergency basis to the poor to paying for the general expenses of your own White House Conference that you never cared enough about to finance yourself, except at the expense of the needy. You even implored the foundations to pick up part of the bill for your own image-building. That was no way to eliminate hunger.

4/ On September 29, J. Phil Campbell, Under Secretary of Agriculture, wrote to Committee Chairman, Senator Allen Ellender of Louisiana, to inform him that USDA, while "in agreement with the objectives of H.R.11651," "recommends that the bill not be passed."

5/ On September 29, in another letter to Senator Ellender, Under Secretary Campbell notified him that "the Department does not favor enactment of this bill in its present form."

6/ In Senate Report No. 91-292 on the Food Stamp Program, filed on July 7, p. 11, the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, which had reported a resolution to the Senate in June requesting a $750 million authorization for food stamps in fiscal 1970, noted that "the Department has advised the committee that only about $610 million can be used in an orderly manner in fiscal 1970."

7/ The floor vote to curtail the authorization took place on October 14. The Dominick Amendments to reduce the authorization to the President's budget request prevailed 47 to 38 with only one Republican, Senator Charles Mathias of Maryland, voting against.

We waited in May, October, and November, while your Administration opposed members of your own party who were leading the unsuccessful struggle to impose a $20,000 limitation on the payment of subsidies to large individual and corporate farmers for not producing crops.8/ You have not even suggested any limitation for your new farm program that may govern us for years to come. That is no way to eliminate hunger.

We have waited all year long while your Administration made no meaningful effort to appoint members of racial minorities to positions of authority over the administration of consumer food programs or generally to prevent discrimination in the programs, as Attorney General Mitchell commanded Secretary Hardin to do in a letter dated April 16. But, as of the latest tabulations, there were no more than 3 Negroes and 1 Spanish-speaking-American who had attained GS-12 ranking or better out of the 123 headquarters and district level personnel above that rank and no more than 9 minority group individuals out of the 269 top-level officers-in-charge of the food stamp program in county areas. A 97% white operation is not acceptable, since your own figures reveal that at least one-third of the individuals reached by your food programs are non-white. That is no way to eliminate hunger.

We have waited all year long while your Administration has expended thousands of dollars not to fight hunger, but to fight lawsuits requiring you to install food programs in every county, to make food stamps less costly, to provide free lunches to the poor. You are devoted to law and order, yet Secretary Hardin and his deputies were in contempt of a Federal court in California for six months while they refused to provide commodities throughout the state.9/ That was no way to eliminate hunger.

We have waited for nearly seven months while your Administration has taken actions that negated your explicit commitment. The record, Mr. President, speaks far louder than your words. We are distressed at your relentless efforts to curtail any further expansion of food aid, despite the advice of your personal nutrition consultant that $3 to $5 billion is the minimum sum that is acceptable. We anticipate that you may make more promises this week, Mr. President, but after seven months of having our hopes alternately raised and dashed, we are skeptical and distrustful.

We have waited long enough, Mr. President. "Something very like the honor or American democracy is at issue" - or so you once said. Now we would like to express our demands for action in the immediate future:

1. We request, Mr. President, that, this week, you declare that a major disaster exists in the United States because of what you once termed the "intolerable" existence of hunger and malnutrition that affect millions of Americans. We request that you further determine that, as a result of this disaster, low-income households throughout the United States are unable to purchase adequate amounts of nutritious food so that you may use

8/ On May 27, the House voted to impose such a limitation by 224 to 142, with Representative Gerald Ford of Michigan and most Republicans opposed. On October 9, this vote was reversed 181 to 177 and cofirmed on November 19 by a vote of 214 to 172. On each of the latter two occasions, the Republicans generally supported no limitation.

9/ On December 30, 1968, in a case styled Hernandez v. Hardin, Judge Stanley Weigel of the United States District Court for the Northern District of California issued a temporary restraining order restraining the Secretary of Agriculture and other USDA officials from refusing to put into effect in the shortest time feasible either a food stamp or commodity program in every California county. Although facing a possible contempt citation, Hardin never complied with that order. The case was dismissed on June 26 when every California county had, without any Federal assistance, installed a program.

your legal powers to distribute food stamps and surplus commodities to the poor under your own terms and conditions, free from normal program constraints, for as long as you deem necessary. 10/

That means, Mr. President, that you should invoke the provisions of Section 11 of the Disaster Relief Act of 1969, which was enacted by the Congress in September and signed by you on October 1. You should, under the crystal-clear authority of that Act, supply enough free food stamps to families whose meager incomes prevent them from affording the Economy Food Plan ($105 each month for a family of four) to enable them to be well-nourished. The cost to do this for all of the 3.4 million present participants in the food stamp program for the next seven months, by which time Congress should have legislated a new program structure, would be approximately $625 million.

That also means, Mr. President, that you should undertake, employing the California Act, to deliver each month $15 worth of commodities that cost you $8 to each of the remaining 26.5 million poor Americans, at an estimated expenditure of $1.5 billion through next June. These two sums, when added to the $1.304 already contained in the 1970 food budget, would reach the $3 billion your consultant pledged you to spend. The legislation permitting you to take this step is already in place. The necessary funding must, by statute, follow, not precede your actions.

2. We request, Mr. President, that you take steps, immediately and without any further delay, to utilize the $610 million Congress has formally appropriated for expenditure on food stamps. The appropriations bill passed both Houses on Wednesday, November 19. Your failure to sign it into law for a full nine days, while the lives of millions are daily jeopardized, belies your expressed sense of urgency.

You should promulgate and institute, by no later than December 15, revised food stamp issuance tables that established a maximum cost to the user of no more than 33% and adjust the bonuses so as to provide each participating household at least the equivalent of the Economy Food Plan. 11/

The money is in your hands. Its use to alleviate hunger should not be delayed another day. Your own Secretary of Agriculture's data on the food expenditure patterns of low-income families reveal that they allocate between 23 and 33% of their income for food. Accordingly, the present tables are in violation of the Food Stamp Act's command that charges not exceed "normal expenditures" for food. You must order him to redraft his tables now and cease violating the law at the expense of the poor.

Your own Department of Agriculture's data reveal that its Economy Food Plan is not a reasonable measure of the basic money needs for nutritional well-being. But at least that much should be furnished to every participant as a minimum. You should not continue for one more day to discriminate in allotment value by giving the poorest of the poor less stamps overall than those poor families which are higher up the economic ladder. That is an unconstitutional denial of equal protection of the laws and must be remedied forthwith.

10/ On November 18, 1969, in Section 2 of Executive Order 11495, the President delegated to the Secretary of Agriculture to exercise the authority conferred upon the President by Section 11 of the Act (Disaster Relief Act of 1969) "to determine the need and the duration of the need for distributing food coupon allotments and surplus commodities as a result of a major disaster, and to distribute them under such terms and conditions as he may prescribe."

11/ On December 1, USDA announced that coupon allotments would be set at a uniform level nationally with $106 for a family of four or $1 above the September level of the Economy Food Plan. The Department released new user cost tables on December 18, with a maximum income input of 33%. See pages 37 - 40.

ACTION REPORT

The cost of lowering the purchase price for stamps and raising the bonus applicable to all those now in the program so that the average monthly per person benefit becomes $17.80 would be in the neighborhood of $410 million for the next seven months. Since you have expended only $100 million to date, that would leave another $100 million for expansion to new areas.

3. We request, Mr. President, that you immediately apply part of the Section 32 funds you received from the Congress on November 19 to make sure that every county and every town in the United States has a food program in place and operating by no later than February 1, 1970. 12/ On November 21, a Federal district judge in Dallas, Texas rendered a decision requiring your Secretary of Agriculture, at Federal expense and in the shortest time feasible, to put a commodity distribution program into effect in every area in Texas without a food program. That decision covers at least 96 counties or almost one-third of the present nationwide number of programless counties. You should order your officials to comply with that order and not seek, as has been their custom, to delay their obligation to serve poor people by appealing to a higher court.

You should act as if that order was national in scope and assist every area that provides no food to its needy inhabitants to do so. Two years ago President Johnson assumed, in the absence of any Congressional mandate, the responsibility of guaranteeing, with Section 32 funds, that a food program would be established in the 1,000 poorest counties of the United States. You, faced with a court decree, can do no less in the 300-plus counties that remain untouched by family food aid. If past cost is any indication of expense, the bill for this process should be much less than $40 million.

4. We request, Mr. President, that you immediately exercise your authority over the $100 million in special Section 32 monies placed in your hands by the Agricultural Appropriations Act of 1970 to expand your free food stamp experiment conducted in two South Carolina counties to every food stamp county in America. 13/

12/ On December 4, the President announced that those 307 counties which have no food program would have a food stamp program by June 30.

13/ Apparently, the President plans to utilize part of that $100 million in helping to persuade programless counties to accept food stamps.

You justified the use of several thousand special Section 32 funds in South Carolina to furnish free stamps to families of four with incomes of less than $30 a month on the grounds that the 1969 appropriations act directed that special Section 32 funds be spent, among other things, for "other programs, without regard to whether such area is under the food stamp proogram....,to provide....an adequate diet to other needy children and low-income persons..." The language in the 1970 appropriations act is identical.

Your Secretary of Agriculture determined on February 21, 1969, that residents of Beaufort and Jasper Counties, South Carolina, with such incomes were entitled to be provided with an adequate diet by means of free food stamps. He can just as easily determine tomorrow that every family in the over 1,600 food stamp jurisdictions in the United States with an income equivalent to less than $30 per month for a family of four should receive an allotment of free food stamps worth $105. Since there are over 300,000 participants in the food stamp program below that income level and the cost to you each month would be 50 cents per person, the sum needed to fund a free food stamp program for them should not exceed $1.1 million through June, 1970.

5. We request, Mr. President, that you begin at once to distribute vouchers in every major city and pocket of poverty in this country to pregnant and nursing women, infants, and children under 6 to enable them to obtain milk, formula, cereal, and other vital products at their nearby grocery store. You said, on May 6, that you would take this step in order to replace the awkward distribution mechanism of requiring pregnant women to go to an inconvenient storage center to pick up and cart home 88 pounds of food stuffs each month. You said that you would, but only silence has ensued. Even the city of Chicago, to which you pledged the first such program, has gotten sick of waiting. The appropriations bill you recently signed contains $34.5 million for you to do precisely that. By February 1, at least ten urban and five rural areas should be handing out vouchers.

6. We request, Mr. President, that you move now to undo the damage your Administration did earlier this year to the cause of eradicating hunger and malnutrition and continues to do by opposing every piece of legislation to make food aid programs more effective and meaningful. Specifically, we request that you send a message to the Congress this week withdrawing your objections to and announcing your support for:

a) The Senate-passed food stamp bill, S.2547, which is under consideration by the House Committee on Agriculture;
b) The House-passed bill providing $100 million for free and reduced price meals for needy children, H.R.1165 and the Talmadge School Lunch Reform Act of 1969, S.2548, which will be passed upon by the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry in executive session; and
c) Section 401 of the Economic Opportunity Act Amendments of 1969, which adds a new Title X to the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964 known as "Intensive Programs to Eliminate Hunger and Malnutrition", authorizes the expenditure of $92 million for the effective delivery of food and medical services to the poor, especially the very young and the aging, and is to be voted upon by the House during the first two weeks of December.14/

14/ Title X passed the House on December 12 and in conference became part of Section 222(a)(5) of the Act.

7. We request, Mr. President, that in the first week of the new legislative session of the 91st Congress in January, you send to the Hill a second hunger message in which you endorse and make the necessary budget allocations for:

a) An increase in the level of your family assistance cash payments to a minimum of $2,700 for a family of four, which, when added to the Senate-passed food stamp measure soon to be endorsed by you, would furnish every family in America purchasing power identical to the latest definition of the poverty line ($3,555). This should be coupled with extension of your welfare system to cover couples and individuals, who are equally susceptible to malnutrition, and provision of that assistance level on a guaranteed basis, without any intervening work requirement; and

b) An increase in the percentage rise in your Social Security benefits proposals from 10% in April with a minimum $61 benefit to 20% effective January, 1970 and an additional 20% as of January, 1972 to bring the minimum to $120.15/

The added cost attributable to these changes over the sums you have already requested is in the neighborhood of $4.5 billion in 1970 over your present proposals and could be readily financed by putting an end to your wasteful farm subsidy policy which is costing this country a minimum of $3.5 billion a year and required a $5.2 billion appropriation this year to cover past expenditures. The principle of supply and demand should be applied on an even handed basis: if the poor man is able to obtain only the low-paying jobs his unskilled labor can attract, then the farmer should not receive more than his produce is worth in the open, competitive market. Both should be guaranteed the right to an adequate income by programs that maintain income rather than by programs that force the wasting of economic resources. Both should be offered new governmentally-created opportunities to engage in public service work that our private economy has no incentive to provide.

8. Finally, we request, Mr. President, that, commencing now you change your policy in dealing with food-related lawsuits and minority participation in program administration. It is unconscionable that you should spend public monies to struggle in court to deny food to the poor. It is unconscionable that you should permit your officials to flout with impunity court decrees commanding them to supply food to the needy. It is unconscionable that you should allow politically-oriented appointment policies to allow only token desegregation of your own Administration, particularly where operation of food assistance for the hungry and malnourished is concerned.

We request, therefore, that you immediately instruct your counsel in both the Agriculture and Justice Departments to submit to and comply with the recent court order in Texas as well as to withdraw from defending the 24 other suits across the United States seeking to install family food programs on a universal basis. Similarly, you should embark upon whatever action is necessary to moot the lawsuits (perhaps a dozen) pending against your Administration on the food stamp price-benefit tables and on its conduct of the school lunch program. Mootness should flow from providing all of the food assistance relief sought by the hungry and malnourished plaintiffs.

15/ On December 9, the President indicated he might veto a tax reform bill that boosted benefits by 15%.

We request further that you immediately announce a nationwide recruiting program to uncover and, thereafter, hire and train substantial numbers of minority group individuals for positions of significance in overseeing the administration of food stamps, commodity distribution, and school lunch in Washington, in the five regions, and in the multi-county areas.

These are our demands for BREAD NOW!, Mr. President. The time for speech-making and promising has past. The time for acting and fulfilling is at hand. We will review the situation carefully by February 1 and see precisely where you have led us. Do not fail the hungry and malnourished again.

Sincerely,

M. Alfred Haynes

ACT I: Non-Response

On the morning of December 2nd, the President of the United States appeared before the Conference's opening session. Despite indications by Dr. Mayer that the President's speech would break new ground by specifically committing new funds for fighting hunger, Mr. Nixon's remarks merely restated the essence of his May 6th message to Congress, repromising to put an end to hunger in America and trying to persuade the public that the only measures necessary to assure that goal were his food stamp proposal that the Senate had rejected and his family assistance plan with which he had originally sought to bury food stamps, until the National Council exposed his intentions on August 11.

The President told his audience what his Urban Affairs Council had already reported on March 17 -- that, when fully implemented in fiscal 1973, his food stamp program might cost $2.5 billion a year. Fiscal 1971 estimates are $1.517 billion with $1.743 for 1972. His reference to $5 billion in "new or expanded programs for food and family assistance next year" includes a maximum in actual food aid of approximately $1.5 billion for food stamps. The extra welfare funds would buy no extra food. Of the $2.5 billion in additional cash assistance, only one-third or $800 million would be applied to food and that to pay for food stamps that would otherwise be given free as part of the bonus. With a typical Moynihanlike flourish, the President concluded his trinity by suggesting birth control as another way to eliminate the hungry.

A slightly abbreviated version of the speech follows:

The President Throws Out the Opening Ball

"...As all of you are aware, this is an historic conference. It is particularly an historic conference for me because it is the first White House Conference that I have had the opportunity to address as President of the United States. I have addressed others as Vice President. And it is the first that we have had in this administration.

This meeting marks an historic milestone. What it does is to set the seal of urgency on our national commitment to put an end to hunger and malnutrition due to poverty in America.

At the same time, it marks the beginning of a new, more determined, and more concerted drive than ever before, to reduce the malnutrition that derives from ignorance or inadvertence.

I recognize that many of you who are here and who have participated in the panels have been under enormous pressure, because you have had a relatively short time for the vast amount of work that it took to put this conference together and to prepare for it.

However, that pressure reflects the priority of the subject we are here to discuss. It reflects the sense of urgency that we all feel.

Until this moment in our history as a Nation, the central question has been whether we as a Nation would accept the problem of malnourishment as a national responsibility.

That moment is past. On May 6 I asserted to the Congress that "the moment is at hand to put an end to hunger in America itself. For all time."

Speaking for this administration, I not only accept the responsibility-I claim the responsibility.

Malnourishment is a national concern because we are a Nation that cares about its people, how they feel, how they live. We care whether they are well and whether they are happy.

First of all there is a moral imperative: Our national conscience requires it. We must because we can. We are the world's richest nation. We are its best educated nation. We have an agricultural abundance that ranks as a miracle of the modern world. This Nation cannot long continue to live with its conscience if millions of its own people are unable to get an adequate diet.

Even in purely practical terms there are compelling considerations requiring this challenge to be met.

A child ill-fed is dulled in curiosity, lower in stamina, distracted from learning. A worker ill-fed is less productive, more often absent from work. The mounting cost of medical care for diet-related illnesses; remedial education required to overcome diet-related slowness in school; institutionalization and loss of full productive potential; all of these place a heavy economic burden on a society as a whole.

And for many of us, and for me, as I know for many of you,this subject also evokes vivid personal memories. I grew up in the Great Depression. I shall never forget the hopelessness that I saw so starkly etched on so many faces-the silent gratitude of others lucky enough to enjoy three square meals a day, or sometimes even one.

I recall in my native State of California in the '30's, families that I knew, that I went to school with, subsisted on bread and gravy, bread and milk, beans. And later on in the '30's, in North Carolina, families who knew nothing much more than black-eyed peas, turnip greens.

We have come a long way since then, but we still have a long way to go.

The question now is: What will we do about it?

We begin with the troublesome complex of definitions and causes.

Now experts can argue-and they do- and you will-about the magnitude of the poblem: how many are hungry, how many malnourished, how severely they are malnourished. Precise statistical data remain elusive and often contradictory. However, Dr. Arnold Schaefer, the man in charge of the National Nutrition Survey, recently made this cautious but very forceful obervation. He said:

"We have been alerted by recent studies that our population who are 'malnutrition risks' is beyond anticipated findings, and also that in some of our vulnerable population groups-pre-school children, the aged, teenagers and the poor-malnutrition is indeed a serious medical problem."

We don't know just how many Americans are actually hungry and how many suffer from malnutrition, who eat enough but do not eat the right things. But we do know there are too many Americans in both categories.

We can argue the extent, but hunger exists.

We can argue the severity, but malnutrition exists.

The plain fact is that a great many Americans are not eating well enough to sustain health.

We see, then, that the problem of hunger and malnutrition is, really, two separate problems. One is to ensure that everyone is able to obtain an adequate diet. The second is to ensure that people actually are properly fed, where they have the ability to obtain the adequate diet.

On the one hand, we are dealing with problems of income distribution. On the other hand, with problems of education, habit, taste, behavior,personal preferences-the whole complex of things that lead people to act the way they do, to make the choices they do.

The answers to many of these questions are difficult to come by. The very fact that the same question evokes so many different, conflicting answers is itself testimony as to how fragile is the basis of our knowledge.

Assuming we can agree on definitions, and the causes of malnourishment, how do we eradicate it?

Now some will answer that the magic ingredient is money, and money certainly is one ingredient, and a very important one. The more than $5 billion that I have proposed for new or expanded programs for food and family assistance next year would go a long way toward bringing the problem under control.

And in this connection, I would urge each of you in this gread conference to enlist yourself in an effort to win passage of three landmark pieces of legislation I have already recommended to Congress.

One of these is what many observers consider to be the most important piece of domestic legislation proposed in the past 50 years, the establishment of a floor under the income of every American family.

For the first time-Mr. Moynihan please notice-for the first time, this new family assistance plan would give every American family a basic income, wherever in America that family may live. For the first time, it would put cash into the hands of families because they are poor, rather than because they fit certain categories. When enacted, this measure alone will either supplement the incomes or provide the basis for the incomes of 25 million American men, women, and children.

Our basic policies for improvement of the living conditions of the poor are based on this proposition: that the best judge of each family's priorities is that family itself; that the best way to ameliorate the hardships of poverty is to provide the family with additional income-to be spent as that family sees fit.

Now, some will argue with this proposition. Some argue that the poor cannot be trusted to make their own decisions, and therefore, the Government should dole out food and clothing and medicine, according to a schedule of what the Government thinks is needed.

Well, I disagree, I believe there are no experts present in this great gathering who know more about the realities of hunger and malnutrition than those among you who are here because you have suffered from it, or than those among you who are here who do suffer from it, from great cities, from wornout farms, from barren reservations, from frozen tundra, from tiny islands half a world away.

The task of Government is not to make decisions for you or for anyone. The task of Government is to enable you to make decisions for yourselves. Not to see the truth of that statement is fundamentally to mistake the genius of democracy. We have made too many mistakes of this type-but no more. Our job is to get resources to people in need and then to let them run their own lives.

And now I would stress that all of you who have been so strong and effective in achieving a breakthrough on national awareness on hunger, will become an equally strong citizen lobby for welfare reform. The needs of the poor range far beyond food, though that is often the most visible and heart-rending aspect of poverty. More basically, the poor need money with which they can meet the full range of their needs, from basic shelter, to medicine, to clothes for school, to transportation. And they need these resources in a program framework that builds incentives for self support and family stability.

Let the reform of the bankrupt welfare system in this country be the next great cause of those who come together here today.

Now the second measure that I would especially urge your support for is one that you will be considering in your deliberations. It is the reform and expansion of the food stamp program. I requested this in my May 8 message on hunger. This has been designed to complement the welfare program. While the welfare proposals may be subject to long debate, I hope and I expect that Congress will act quickly on the expanded food stamp plan.

The Nation's food programs have been shot through with inequities, as you will find-notably, the fact that many counties have not participated, and the fact that because food stamps had to be bought with cash many of the neediest were unable to participate.

We are pressing hard to bring every county into one or other of the food distribution programs, and the new food stamp bill would provide stamps free to those most in need-while expanding the program to a level that would reach $2.5 billion a year when fully implemented.

In a related matter, we already are greatly expanding our school lunch programs, with the target of reaching every needy school child with a free or reduced-cost lunch by the end of the current fiscal year.

Now, there is a third measure, a third measure which at first will seem unrelated, but which is directly related to this conference. I ask your support for the Commission on Population Growth and the American Future which I have proposed to Congress and which has been most favorably received, not only in the Congress, but by church and civic organizations throughout the Nation.

America, I believe, has come to see how necessary it is to be responsibly concerned with this subject. In proposing the Commission, I also declared that it would be the goal of this administration to provide "adequate family planning services within the next five years to all those who want them but cannot afford them." And there are some 5 million women in low-income families who are in exactly that situation. I can report that the steps to meet that goal, a goal 5 years away, have already been taken within the administration, and the program is underway.

Now taken together, these three measures would virtually eliminate the problem of poverty as a cause of malnutrition.

Their dollar cost is high, but their practical benefits to the Nation are immense.

I know that your panels have advanced proposals for massive efforts on many fronts. They demonstrate that the goal cannot be won by government alone.

It is for each to ask how he, individually, can respond to the question being asked here. For example:

- can foods be better labeled, be made more nutritious, and be fortified with available additives?
- can industry, the schools, government, and citizens individually join effectively in a program of public education?
- can school lunch programs feasibly be improved?
- can voluntary programs by citizens and community organizations teach people what to eat, to close the knowledge gap?

The fact that so many groups are represented here today is itself evidence of a new sense of community responsibility, of industry responsibility, of individual responsibility. The fact that so many women are represented here, especially, is evidence of an enormous resource, particularly in the volunteer field, a resource that can do so much to ensure our success.

I, of course, in my official capacity, have already indicated legislative programs that I shall be supporting. But speaking now as one who from time to time can act in a volunteer capacity, I know the power of simply dropping a word as to what a President or a potential President does in certain fields.

I recall in your field, about 18 months ago I was being interviewed on a talk show. I was asked how I kept my weight down-that was my problem rather than the other way around. I answered-I though rather low-key - that the doctor had told me to eat cottage cheese. The difficulty is I don't like cottage cheese. And so I took his advice, but I put catsup on it.

You can't imagine how many letters I got. The dairy industry wrote and told me that I should like cottage cheese. The catsup industry wrote and told me to try it on my cereal. And others wrote and said that catsup with cottage cheese had to be unhealthy. I pointed to the fact that my grandmother lived to be 92 and she ate it all her life, so that was the answer.

I use this facetious example to only indicate that the power of example, not just from a President, but from those in this room in the whole field of not just how much, but how and what we eat with regard to diet can be tremendous.

Now, I want to turn to - with Dr. Mayer's suggestion and his approval - to a very important procedural point, one that I discussed with him when he took the position which he is filling and one that I wish to speak directly to you about.

We have not attempted to program those in this room. We have not attempted to program you as to the questions you may ask or the answers and recommendations that you will make.

I expect to read that you had a lively difference of opinion during this conference. As a matter of fact, I have already read about a lively difference of opinion that you have had during this conference and that is as it should be. From an airing of views of all sides, answers and ideas will appear; answers and ideas are what we seek in this process. Obviously, if we knew all the answers we would not have convened the conference in the first place. That is why you are here.

ACTION REPORT

I will say this: I want to speak quite directly. I can imagine that in this room are many people who have attended White House conferences before. For 22 years I have been watching White House conferences. I have attended them and I have seen the effort that went into them, an enormous voluntary dedicated effort. I have seen it too often wither away in futility as the reports gathered dust on Government shelves.

Well, beginning with this conference, that is going to change. It will be the policy of this administration to follow up each White House conference, beginning with this conference, with a second meeting one year later, bringing together the key participants of the original conference to reexamine its findings and to measure what has been done about implementing them. We believe that is the only proper procedure.

I know that you take your work seriously and we are going to take your report seriously. I expect the results of this conference to be not just words, but action.

This conference marks a coalescing of the national conscience; it marks a triumph of the American system.

Now, I realize that there is a ready disposition, whenever we confront an ill that is still uncorrected in America, to cry that "the system" is corrupt, or "the system" has failed.

Our so-called "system" has been under heavy and sustained assault, not from one quarter but from many quarters.

But let us not forget that that system is what brought us here together today in this conference. It is a system that embraces compassion and practicality; it has given us the abundance that allows us to consider ending hunger and malnutrition.

Ours is the most productive and most generous country the world has ever know. Less than 5 percent of our population - according to Secretary Hardin, Secretary of Agriculture - produces enough food to feed all the American people and to supply the needs of millions in other countries as well. In the years since World War II the United States has provided more than $30 billion in food, in the form of aid, to needy nations and people abroad.

I have traveled to most of the nations of the world, in Asia, in Africa, and Latin America. Do you realize that in most of the world today a conference like this would be meaningless because those nations would lack the resources to produce the food to meet the objectives that this conference may decide should be met or lack the resources to purchase the food which they themselves would not be able to produce?

It is precisely because our system has succeeded so well that we are now able to address the goals of this conference and the fact that we are gathered here is an example of one of the greatest strengths of that same system. It has a capacity for self-correction, for self-regeneration; its constant reaching out to identify new or additional needs and to meet those needs, the readiness of its citizens to join in that effort, volunteering their time and their talents, as you are volunteering your time and your talents today.

This Nation has the capacity to provide an adequate diet for every American. The calling of this conference demonstrates that we have the will to achieve this goal. What we need is to find the most effective means for doing so consistent with maintaining the vitality of the system that makes it all possible.

And so I will review your recommendations with great care.

And I will ask you to go about drawing up those recommendations with equally great care.

My fellow Americans, as you begin this conference I commit to your concern the lives of millions of Americans, too young, too old, or too hurt by life to do without your help. I commit to your concern the not less serious task of helping to bring the rest of America to understand what we seek and to join us in adding this new dimension to the concept of American democracy. For at this very moment we are gathered at one of those great historical moments when it becomes possible for all of us to act a little better than we are, and in so doing, to leave this great and good Nation a little better because we were there.

ENTRACTE: The Various Sayings of Dr. Mayer

December 19, 1968 - "We know that the new Administration shares the concern of Congress and of the citizens of the United States on these shocking conditions [of hunger and malnutrition]. We feel certain that meeting these problems will be one of the early Administration programs." (Press Conference announcing the establishment of the National Council).

June 5, 1969 - "Accept my assurance that there are many people in the White House who are trying to do a better job than have been in the past, to 'assure every American family an adequate diet'." (Letter to National Council).

June 10, - "It is not my purpose as head of the White House Conference to develop spending recommendations for different feeding programs." (Interview with Washington Post).

June 27 - "I want all the poor inside being constructive rather than outside waving banners and saying nothing is being done....I am a great believer in community action." (Interview with the New York Times).

July 22 - "The President said he was prepared to spend more money on the fight against hunger and malnutrition. The final recommendations should be available as the basis for any legislation needed next year and to enable the Budget Bureau to determine the rate of expenditures to combat hunger and malnutrition." (Interview with the New York Times).

August 6 - "Mayer says Nixon has assured him that if the conference gives rise to feasible solutions to the hunger problem, the White House will take steps to have Congress translate them into action." (Interview with the Washington Star).

August 11 - (after President Nixon had announced on August 8th that families on welfare would not be eligible for food stamps, a position maintained by the Administration until September 15th) - "I must deny in the strongest possible terms some suggestions that the President's welfare program means a decrease in the intensity of the fight against hunger and malnutrition. There is no question of food stamps being abolished or phased out until alternative and equivalent means of support have been established."

November 7 - (in response to a charge by the National Council that he was trying to divert OEO funds for feeding the poor to paying the Conference's general expenses by way of a political "charitable" corporation formed on October 28 and run by ex-staff assistants of President Eisenhower) - No contract that large "is presently contemplated". The new corporation is "free from any prior position on issues" and has "the flexibility to see that the conference is conducted in a manner which assures participation by all Americans, rich and poor, minority persons, consumers, and those in positions of responsibility in the various sectors of our life." (Statement for the press).

November 10 - "I would rather not have any money come from OEO." (Interview with the Washington Star).

November 17 -"The White House is nervous. Pressure and ultimatums such as the demands of the community action task force in Chicago [which was the genesis of the Conference's action program] will kill the Conference and then the Bureau of the Budget won't appropriate any money for food stamps at all." (Talk to the women's task force).

November 18 - "The community action groups are wrecking the Conference because they don't understand its purpose." (Talk with community action task force chairman).

November 23 - "Mayer said that President Nixon is committed to spending the $3 billion to $5 billion a year it will cost to eliminate hunger and malnutrition in the United States in three years. 'The President has made it very clear that he will spend whatever needs to be spent to eliminate hunger and malnutrition due to poverty.' He said that Mr. Nixon apparently has a greater sense of urgency about the hunger problem than does Congress." ("Meet the Press").

November 26 - "It [the Conference] is going to commit immediate relief to the hungry, and it is going to do that starting with the President's speech. I have no possible doubt about that.

"A lot of people are prejudging without having the slightest idea of what the President is going to say. Obviously the President is enough of a politician to know you can't create a conference of this sort without raising levels of expectations. He's prepared for it." (Press Conference).

December 2 - After the President's speech, Dr. Mayer told newsmen that the President was awaiting the Conference's final recommendations before taking action. "If he had announced specific things today, he would have been criticized for setting up the conference as a cut-and-dried, set-up forum." (New York Times).

December 4 -"The President is more interested in placating corporation presidents and Wall Street bankers than in calming the leaders of the black, Mexican-American, Indian, Puerto Rican and welfare groups at the conference. (Talk with Scripps-Howard reporter).

December 6 - "Action is being taken now [in the White House] to look into this emergency approach of aiding the poor." The President did not make such an emergency declaration last week becuase he "did not wish to indulge in any more rhetoric." One of the two dominant aspects of the conference not reported by the press was the potentially violent political threats posed to the meeting. (Interview with the Boston Globe).

December 7 to ? - Blessed silence.

ACT II: Challenge

On December 3rd, in response to the President's speech, the Reverend Ralph Abernathy wrote to the President strongly objecting to the tone and contents of that speech and urging the President to act, not talk. Dr. Abernathy's complaint was not isolated. Anthropologist Margaret Mead pressed Nixon to declare an immediate national hunger emergency. The New York Times labelled the Nixon speech "More Rhetoric to Eat." At the People's Plenary Session on December 3rd in the evening, Dr. Abernathy renewed his criticism joined by Fannie Lou Homer of the Mississippi Delta and Dr. George Wiley of the National Welfare Rights Organization.

The Abernathy Letter

The President
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. President:

Yesterday you claimed the responsibility for the problems of malnourishment. You are responsible, Mr. President.

- You are responsible for coming to this Conference grinning like Santa Claus and delivering a bundle of second-hand, useless toys: a food stamp program that won't feed very many very well; a welfare program that compels couples and individuals to face hunger on their own and offers next to nothing to families in most urban areas.

- You are responsible for making us listen to how you got thin once by choosing to live for a while on ketchup and cottage cheese. But at the very same time you are forcing the poor to subsist forever on a similar quantity of stuff by providing them, in the distant future, no more than 27 cents per meal from both your welfare and food stamp programs combined.

- You are responsible for violating the truth-in-packaging law by leading us to believe that your speech was going to put an end to poverty-related hunger and malnutrition in America, when the only new food it delivered to the poor was the paper it was written on -- with catsup.

- You are responsible for deceptive advertising by pretending that you are stamping hunger and malnutrition as URGENT when, in fact, your only concrete suggestions were to sit tight and wait while your meager bills dribble through Congress and you lobby against stronger measures.

- You are responsible for dunning the foundations and Federal agencies for $1 million for a Conference that is strengthening your image, but not the minds and bodies of the poor, for yesterday you merely repeated what you promised us last May and still have not made good on.

- You are responsible for inviting us to what should have been a free and open meeting and then inhibiting our freedom by stationing more retired police and private detectives by the doors than you have bureaucrats administering the food programs.

- You are responsible for furnishing each of us with Conference meal tickets worth $18.30 ($4 for breakfast, $5.80 for lunch, and $8.50 for dinner), while you consistently turn your back on any Congressional move to serve lunches and breakfasts to all the needy children in the United States at 58 cents a lunch and 25 cents a breakfast;

- You are responsible for allowing the so-called Department of Justice to uphold law and order by delaying and delaying and appealing and appealing the right of needy people to BREAD NOW in 307 counties in America without any family food assistance.

- You are responsible for playing politics and placing your personal ambition for 1972 over the needs of the poor today by seeking to undermine Senator George McGovern's food stamp bill.

- You are responsible for misleading the public into believing that your are offering $5 billion in new food aid, when your food stamp program is budgeted at only $1.3 billion in new food aid in 1971 and still almost one-third of your $2.5 billion in added welfare benefits for all human needs must be spent to pay for your food stamps; into believing that your food stamp program is adequate when even your own Department of Agriculture rejects the notion that 27 cents a meal sustains nutritional well-being; into believing that you will feed lunch to every one of the 8.4 million poor pupils in this country this year when you plan to spend only $132.8 million, which could, at the most, feed 3.56 million.

- You are responsible for purposefully perpetuating the myth that the poor will not work by rejecting income maintenance and appealing to the baser instincts of Congress in making work the "basic element" of your welfare proposal;

- You are responsible for asking poor Americans to accept your assumption that America is like India and China so that they can be well fed only if they join you in limiting population growth.

- You are responsible for convening us to co-opt us into your undying search for the cheapest, most superficially appealing way out of a tough crisis.

We intend to hold you to your responsibility and make you face it squarely, not deviously, Mr. Nixon.

We will monitor your performance not one year from now, but tomorrow and next week and every week thereafter, Mr.Nixon.

We are watching to see who is really responsible and responsive to whom, Mr. Nixon.

President Kennedy committed the nation to land on the moon by 1970 -- and we have been there twice in 1969. I call on you to end poverty during 1970. And begin it, NOW, in 1969!!!

President Nixon, if you are serious, then assume your responsibility by declaring a state of hunger-induced disaster in this country and act to end malnutrition, starvation and disease in this wealthiest and most prosperous nation in the history of mankind.

Sincerely,

Ralph David Abernathy

ACT II: Non-Response

The President's "New" Promises on December 4th

As a prelude to the closing session on December 4th, Dr. Mayer revealed that President Nixon had made three "concessions" to his own conferees. He had agreed to meet with "Conference leaders" on the 5th of December. He had instructed his Secretary of Agriculture to implement "with utmost speed" his previously announced change in the value of the total allotment of food stamps. Finally, he promised to provide by June 30 food stamp programs in the 307 counties that have no family food assistance.

The meeting was a tragic farce, illustrating the quality of the troops Dr. Mayer had selected. Pat Young, Chairlady of the Women's Task Force, wept and pledged the President the support of the women's organizations she represented. She thought that he seemed "interested in action." Father Robert McEwen of Boston College asked the President for "a symbolic gesture." Daniel Moynihan gave one to reporters that very day. Dorothy Height of the National Council of Negro Women spoke of the need for a good climate for voluntary action. Herman Gallegos of the Southwest Council of La Raza and Chairman of the Community Action Task Force was the most outspoken, although he had been on a two-day hunger strike. He gave the President a laundry list of things he could do before Christmas, which was a watered-down version of the Conference's action program. The students had been vetoed by Dr. Mayer, who did not dare at that time deliver to the President the one document around which most of the Conference had united.

Moynihan, as always, had the last word. "All meetings like that are essentially alike for Presidents. He says thanks to the group, but does not make the decisions...We don't need to get a national emergency."

The second "concession" was somewhat more substantive, if only a stab by the President to recoup what he had amazingly forgotten to include in his speech on the 2nd - the fact that USDA would raise the total stamp allotments for almost everyone to a uniform, national level and had said so on the 1st in a press release. What was new on the 4th was that this would be implemented "as soon as possible" rather than as slowly as the states care to act, which is standard operating procedure. How quickly this works out to be is another question. Some states, like Pennsylvania, run the program via computers. Three months is a minimum lead time for implementation there. In other places, like Mississippi, people are in charge and schedules can be replaced quickly.

USDA's action was prompted by two events. The first was the receipt of $610 million in appropriated funds for the fiscal year 1970 food stamp program, nearly $490 million of which remain to be spent because of the snail's pace at which the program is currently moving. The second was the clearly-expressed beliefs of the three judges of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit who, in oral argument in Peoples v. USDA on October 28, indicated that the current USDA practice of providing greater total allotments for the richer of two families of comparable size was a denial of equal protection and might thus be unconstitutional under the Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment.

$106 per month for a family of four still works out to be only 29.4 cents per person a meal, which is inconsistent with purchasing adequate nutrition. There may even prove to be some welfare and even non-public assistance families in the states of Alaska, New Jersey, and New York who lose a little under the new allotment schedule because their monthly net income entitled them to more than a total of $106 under the old schedule (families between $300 and $329.99 received $108; those between $330 and $359.99, $113). Previously, allotments in the South ranged all the way from $58 to $80 (Tennessee) for a family of four and the range in the North was from $60 to $113. This lack of uniformity and the dual regions approach will end. The overall increase in benefits will cost USDA between $90 and $100 million a year based on 3.5 million participants. That still leaves $365 million to be allocated between lowering the purchase price and building up participation. See pp. 37-40. infra.

The third and last promise -- the installation of food stamp programs in the next seven months wherever no form of family food aid is currently available -- was a wild promise made in disregard of the Food Stamp Act of 1964 and the allocation of fiscal year 1970 appropriations. If it happens at the expense of the Federal Government rather than at the expense of the counties and/or states, the losers will be needy children, for the only money that can be diverted is funds now set aside for free or reduced price meals or special milk for poor school children or supplementary food packages for preschoolagers.

Section 4(a) of The Food Stamp Act of 1964 specifies that the Secretary of Agriculture can administer the food stamp program in a state only "at the request of an appropriate State agency" and, under Section 10(e), "The State agency of each State desiring to participate in the food stamp program shall submit for approval [by the Secretary] a plan of operation specifying the manner in which such program will be conducted within the State, the political subdivisions within the State in which the State desires to conduct the program, and the effective dates of participation by each such political subdivision." Thus, the Secretary has no legal power whatsoever to install or operate a food stamp program in an unwilling county.

But the Secretary does have the power to make a county more willing. The power is money - money to pay for state and local costs of certification for eligibility and issuance of the stamps. Certification costs are estimated to run $30 per household per year; coupon issuance approximately 15 cents per person per month. USDA pays 62.5% of the salaries and travel expenses of staff engaged in certifying non-public assistance households (approximately 38% of the 5.4 million recipients) and none of the issuance costs.

The way to entice recalcitrant counties to accept food stamps is to offer to pay all or part of their costs. But Section 15(a) of the Food Stamp Act states that "each State shall be responsible for financing, from funds available to the State or political subdivisions thereof, the costs of carrying out the administrative responsibilities assigned to it under provisions of this Act." The limited cost-sharing (62.5%) of Section 15(b) on certain certification expenses contains the only express authority for Federal administrative input. Nor can the Food Stamp Act be carried out with Section 32 (commodity-customs receipt) funds because that is expressly prohibited by Section 16(a) of the Stamp Act.

The only loophole is one found (or made) by Secretary Hardin last March when he dipped into Section 32 monies to finance limited free food stamps in two South Carolina counties on the strength of Agricultural Appropriations Act language permitting Section 32 funds to be used to provide an adequate diet to low-income persons in a particular area willy-nilly the existence of any food stamp program in that area. Almost precisely the same authority is contained with respect to $100 million in the Agricultural Appropriations Act of 1970 in subsection (4) dealing with the allocation of Section 32 funds. The trouble with that approach is that when USDA presented its fiscal year 1970 budget to Congress it divided that $100 million into $61 million for free and reduced price lunches, $20 million for special milk, $1 million for breakfasts, $5 million for equipment, $2 million for State administration expenses, and $11 million for supplemental food packages for pregnant and nursing women and children under 6 in food stamp areas. To divert any of the $100 million into other activities, including cost-sharing of food stamp administrative expenses, would seem to be in violation of Congress' prerogative to appropriate.

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Richard Lyng, recognizing the difficulty which evaded Moynihan and Mayer, has apparently diluted the President's promise to encompass having USDA do its best to get some form of family food program into the 307 counties by the end of the fiscal year. Secretary Hardin confirmed this on December 18 when he called the improvements in the stamp program to the attention of local officials in 301 programless areas and noted that this would give the officials "an excellent opportunity to establish a food program," an opportunity he hoped they utilized. USDA has all the money and power it needs to take that action with respect to commodity distribution. Section 32 makes no reference to local option and, indeed, at one point last year, USDA was operating commodity programs in 49 counties without any local help. While that number is now down to 38, USDA's Section 32 budget for 1970 includes an estimated $20 to $25 million for either directly operating commodity program or else cost sharing "to assist and encourage counties which presently have no food program to enter the program." USDA specifically requested and received $15 million for this purpose in presenting its revised 1970 budget. The additional $7 to $10 million (and it could be more because USDA appears too embarrassed to reveal the full figure or separate it from commodity procurement expenses) was contained in the original 1970 USDA budget proposed by President Johnson. It is upon that $22 to $25 million that USDA could

ENTRACTE: The American Medical Association Requests A Guaranteed Bowel Movement

On November 17, Dr. Russell B. Roth, Speaker of the House of Delegates of the American Medical Association, wrote to Dr. Edward Bortz, past President of the Association and Chairman of Panel II-4 on Guidelines for the Nutrition of the Aging, to state the AMA's point of view:

Dear Ed,

As one who has had no input into panel observations or recommendations it is probably presumptious of me to be critical at this late date. Nonetheless I feel constrained to express some general misgivings about the report, and one or two outright objections...

Recommendation 3 offends me and I vote for its deletion. If it were to be retained it should be put in clear focus by adding at the end a phrase so that it would read:-
"That the United States Government having already in a de facto manner (guaranteed?) the right of every resident to adequate health and nutrition should acknowledge as a governmental obligation the provision of adequate health and nutrition to every resident, as well as an adequate daily bowel movement." If this seems fatuous please consider the inanity of saying that the government has an obligation to provide "adequate health" to everyone. In defense of my additive I would submit that intake without output is also lethal.....

I am most embarrassed to do this, but to return to Recommendation No. 3, I would respectfully request that, if this is retained in any fashion which asserts a blanket responsibility of government to provide "adequate health and nutrition" to all of the pop-

Personally I hope that this White House Conference can be scientific and objective. It would be too bad to have it follow the pattern of a few previous White House Conferences which turned out to be mere political tub-thumping in behalf of pre-ordained political objectives.

I am addressing this to you primarily because I believe you share my basic beliefs that politics and medicine are both important, but explosive mixtures can be generated by unwise combinations thereof. This is, of course, intended equally for Dr. Watkin who has the task of coping with his panel of prima donnas. I write on AMA paper to emphasize the validity of my objection.

Cordially,
